GERMANS RETREATING ACROSS ITALY

Spectacular Fire Wrecks East City Building At Midnight

Firemen battled for several hours to smother a stubborn and unusual fire in Canadian Oil Company warehouse on Hunter Street, early Tuesday morning. The photo shows the fire at its height with the air above the structure a mass of flames.

Fire Levels Oil Warehouse

A spectacular fire which started at midnight wiped out the Canadian Oil Company warehouse and White Rose Service Station on Hunter Street East Monday night, doing damage that may exceed $15,000.

An explosion which shook the house of Arthur Dubay, warehouse manager, and located directly east of the building was the first indication of trouble, and in a matter of seconds the structure was an inferno of fire and smoke, that could be seen for miles. Fed by highly inflammable gasoline, grease and alcohol, the fire sent streamers of flames more than a hundred feet in the air, and only the fact that there was no wind saved the entire district from disaster.

Directly south of the building and less than a hundred feet from it are six huge gasoline storage tanks, containing thousands of gallons of gasoline and coal-oil, and these were a potential threat to the lives of the firemen who battled the raging inferno with six lines of hose. Fortunately the firemen were able to keep a wall of water against the south end of the building, reducing the heat near the tanks, and after three hours the danger of an explosion was eliminated.

No Sign.

Citizen who passed the building at 12.30 report everything was in order, but at 12.39 Joe O'Donoghue spotted flames and ran to his home on Rogers Street to turn in the alarm. Joe Dean who was passing in his car about the same time also called the firemen. Ten firemen arrived in good time, and within half an hour the entire staff of 22 men were on the job. They had a stiff battle for at least three hours, and found to their dismay that at several points in the blazing building, the fire continued to roar despite the volume of water thrown on it. This was due to the fact that 12 drums of high-test naphtha gasoline were stored in the building, and these burned furiously. Every once in a while, a drum of gas would explode. Hundreds of barrels of gasoline stored beneath the flooring of the building burned all night, and this morning firemen were still pouring water on the ruins.

The building is owned by Canadian Oil Company, and Harold Howell operates a service station at the front. The structure is 60 years old, one storey, with a high peak roof, and was of frame and corrugated iron construction. At one time it housed the Peterborough Canoe Company.

Canada's First War Medal Chosen For Three Services

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.— (CP).— A new service ribbon soon will be awarded to most volunteer members of Canada's Navy, Army and Air Force—the ribbon of the "Canadian Volunteer Service Medal"—it was announced to-day by the three defence ministers in a joint statement.

The silver medal itself will not be struck until after the war, but a distinctive ribbon will be issued as soon as it becomes available—probably about the middle of December. It will be issued both overseas and at home.

"Those who have served outside of Canada with the Canadian armed forces in this war will be authorized to wear a silver maple leaf on the ribbon," said the statement. "Service outside of Canada includes all service beyond the territorial limits of the Dominion."

For Women Too.

Men and women of all ranks in the armed services will be eligible for the medal, which will go to these persons:

1. Those "who have voluntarily served on active war service and have honorably completed 18 months' total voluntary service.

2. Those "who have voluntarily served on active war service and who, after having proceeded outside of Canada, have been honorably discharged or retired.

3. Those "who have voluntarily served on active war service, and have as a direct result of injuries sustained while on duty been honorably discharged or retired."

The medal will be awarded posthumuously to persons of any rank in the three services "who have voluntarily served on active war service, and have been killed, or died of wounds or injuries sustained in action or while on duty."

Cast in silver, the medal will be circular, bearing on one side marching figures representing the three services, with the inscription "Canada" above the "Voluntary Service Volontaire" below. The reverse side will bear the Canadian coat-of-arms.

The medal will be worn on the left breast, immediately after the African Star of 1935-43 Star—British medals—or any previously issued war service medals. The ribbon will be 1¼ inches wide of green, scarlet, royal blue, scarlet and green. Each green and scarlet stripe will be 3-16ths inch wide.

"The new medal represents recognition by the people of Canada of their volunteer fighting forces," said Defence Minister Ralston, Navy Minister Macdonald and Air Minister Power in their joint statement.

"These men and women of the armed forces, many of whom now are in their fifth year of active service, voluntarily gave up civilian life to serve their country anywhere in its time of need. It is a tribute to their spirit of self-sacrifice that the new medal has been instituted."

A Defence Department spokesman said the Silver Maple Leaf will be awarded to anyone who goes outside the territorial limits of Canada on duty, no matter for what period.

The Ministers' statement did not say specifically when Navy and Army personnel on active service on Pacifc and Atlantic coasts would qualify for the Maple Leaf, but one spokesman said he assumed they would get it if their patrol operations carried them outside "territorial waters" which are closely defined for legal purposes.

Chameleon, Fliers' Mascot

Campbellford Aviator Had Odd Pet

SICILY, Oct. 26 (CP)—Gus the Chameleon, smallest mascot in the R.A.F. and possessor of the deadliest shooting eye in his squadron, is missing, lost somewhere in an olive-grove.

Pet and pride of a Kittyhawk fighter-bomber squadron in Sicily and personal property of PO. Wallace Rutherford of Campbellford, Ont., Gus had been through many a dive-bombing and strafing "do," the R.C.A.F. reported today in an overseas press release.

He attached himself to the squadron during the desert war and in five minutes he had cleared Rutherford's tent of flies—bane of desert life. The pilots watched in amazement and envy as he flicked the insects from every angle with his lightning tongue.

"His deflection shooting was a joy to watch," said Rutherford. "In all the weeks we had him, watching him at work all day, we saw him miss a kill only once—and then he came so close that the fly panicked and spun in."

Gus' biggest moments, however, were in the air. Soon after he arrived, Rutherford began taking him on operational trips—"He used to perch behind the reflector-sight and hang on like grim death."

4 Red Armies Speed Hun Retreat

Badly Mauled Nazis Withdraw In Great Disorder

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Oct. 26 — (AP). — Four hard-hitting Soviet armies today were pursuing the battered legions of Hitler retreating across southern Russia from the shattered Dnieper River defence wall toward the Bug River, 170 miles to the west.

Front dispatches indicated that badly mauled Nazi forces were waging desperate but futile rearguard battles along a 200-mile-long front from Kremenchug south to the Sea of Azov, intent only on saving as much as possible from what may prove to be the greatest German disaster since Stalingrad.

The German retreat, accelerated by the Russian's capture of the industrial cities of Dneprotpetrovsk and Dneprodzehzinsk in the great Dnieper bend yesterday, was bluntly characterized by a Russian communique as "disordered."

Involve One Million

London dispatches, based on Moscow advises and admissions of danger emanating from the Berlin broadcasts, estimated there were perhaps 1,000,000 Germans involved in the mass retreat across the Ukraine.)

It was Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky' third Ukrainian army which stormed Dnepropetrovsk to topple that great economic and military centre. He was supported on his right flank by Gen. Ivan S. Konov's Second Ukrainian Army group, while the Fourth Ukrainian Army which captured Melitopol Saturday backed him up on the left flank. The First Ukrainian Army operating further to the north was believed plunging westward below Kremenchug toward Znameka.

Russian columns were battering at the gates of Krivoi Rog. 85 miles southwest of Dnepropetrovsk and spearheads of the Fourth Army were racing through Melitopol toward the Crimea.

TORONTO, Oct. 26 —(CP)—New York and Toronto police officials today conferred for more than two hours on the arrest yesterday of AC2 Wayne Lonergan for questioning in connection with the murder in New York Sunday of his pretty 22-year-old wife, Patricia Burton Lonergan.

After the conference there were indications steps were underway to get immediate extradition of Lonergan to the United States as a material witness in the case. The officials ended their conference and slipped away to Toronto City Hall without being seen by waiting newsmen.

Later Judge James Parker of York County Criminal Court indicated he would hear extradition proceedings

Township Road Disappears In Sink Hole Stretch 615 Feet Long Appears Bottomless

DUNGANNON, Ont., Oct. 26—(CP)—Members of the road committee of the County of Huron are much perturbed by a phenomenon on the 9th Concession of the Township of West Wawaanosh about three and one half miles east of Dungannon-Lucknow highway, where for some unknown reason the bottom literally dropped out of the road for a distance of about 615 feet.

Trees in the adjoining field were hoisted about four feet, while the road dropped almost out of sight.

The cavity filled with water to within four feet of the top of the road. The sink-hole seems to be bottomless as a 21 foot rod failed to touch bottom when plunged into the hole.

Experts can make no explanation regarding the unusual occurrence, unless there may be a subterranean passage leading to a small lake, known as Mud Lake which is situated about one-quarter mile from the scene of the trouble.

Meanwhile the road is closed to traffic, while a temporary road around is being built of rails as the surrounding land is swampy. A large knoll of clay has been purchased by the county and this will be trucked to the spot in an endeavor to fill the cavity.

Prisoners Reach England Won't Talk About Germany

LIVERPOOL, England, Oct. 26—(CP Cable).—The British hospital ship Atlantis today brought 890 repatriated Allied war prisoners back to Britain — including a small group of Canadians — back to those who had waited at the bleak dockside for them all day yesterday and throughout the night.

The returning Canadians were greeted by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, who went aboard the ship immediately on its arrival and spoke with most of the men from the Dominion, prisoners from the Dieppe raid on August, 1942, or from R.C.A.F. raids over the Continent.

"I was able to see most of them aboard," Mr. Massey said on returning to the pier, "and I was struck by their excellent spirit. Most of them naturally are looking forward to getting home as fast as they can but all of them are either sick or wounded.

Reporters were not allowed to approach the men immediately and were unable to obtain names, although they were especially anxious to get that of a big fellow who was half sitting up in his stretcher as he was carried ashore. A small flag on his shoulder revealed he was the first of the Canadians and spectators broke into a renewed cheer, many of them shouting, "Welcome home, Canada."

Many On Stretchers.

The lad smiled and waved back. Mr. Massey broke away from the official party and walked alongside the stretcher until it was out of sight.

Many of those to whom this port was journey's end were stretcher cases—Britons who had been in hospital since they fell wounded on the fields of France in 1940.

The first sign some of the people of Liverpool had that the Atlantis had reached port was the arrival in the city of long hospital trains bearing the insignia of the Red Cross.

Thirteen Americans arrived with their comrades from the forces of Britain, Canada and Poland.

The Port rails of the Atlantis were lined solidly with soldiers as she pulled into a dock after an uproarious welcome from harbor craft and shorebased guns.

With dry humor one group amidships sang "Wir Fahren Gegen Englandtrab," the Nazi song meaning "We Sail Against England," but the Tommies changed the words to "We're coming home to England."

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—(CP).—Canada's $1,200,000,000 Fifth Victory Loan reached $487,279,200 up to last night, seventh business day of the three-week campaign, National Loan headquarters announced today.

At the same time last spring the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan had reached $436,345,250.

Monday's bond sales totalled $70,135,000, compared with $63,800,350 on the same day of the last loan.

Sales so far in the present campaign have averaged $69,600,000 a day. The daily average needed to make the drive a success is $66,666,000.

"While payroll and general canvass maintained great activity as indicated in news wires to headquarters, advices were also received of quite a number of corporate and other large subscriptions," loan officials said. "Some of the amounts may have been included in the bulk figures already announced."

A subscription of $2,200,000 was received from the Workmen's Compensation Board of British Columbia.

"A large number of industries reported that 100 per cent. of their employees had bought bonds and many individual quotas were passed," said headquarters.

In the central region of the Canadian National Railways, 20,012 subscribers had invested $1,764,450, compared with 13,843 subscriptions for a total of $166,900 in the same period of the fourth Victory Loan.

Prudential Insurance Co. of America, through its Montreal office, subscribed $15,000,000 an increase of $5,000,000 over the subscription to the fourth Victory Loan. Also from Montreal, Aluminum Fiduciariee Ltd., on behalf of Aluminum Ltd. and its Canadian subsidiaries, invested $4,000,000; Dominion Oilcloth and Linoleum Co. Ltd., $2,000,000; Canadian Cottons Ltd. $1,515,000; Penmans Ltd. of Montreal and Paris, Ont., $600,000; and Building Products Ltd., $500,000.

Allies Capture Ten Towns Advance Five Miles Huns Prepare New Position

Nazis Using Heavy Artillery Barrage To Slow Montgomery's Army Now Menacing Retreat Route

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 26—(AP).—Allied armies in Italy have captured ten more towns in advances up to four to five miles, it was announced today, and German opposition on the 5th Army front diminished as the Nazis apparently fell back to new positions.

The Anglo-American 5th Army seized Raviscanina, 15 miles south of the large transport city of Isernia, and an 8th Army column striking up from the southeast took Objano, some 15 miles from Isernia on the main road from Campobasso.

The 5th gained four to five miles in taking Raviscanina, 19 miles north of Capua, and also took the towns of Crancolise, 2½ miles west of captured Sparanise, and Rocchettta.

Four other towns besides Bojano fell to British troops, including Baranello, a strongpoint between Campobasso and Bojano, Spineto, four miles north of Bojano, Petrelle and Palata.

Isernia, a key point in German supply, was being threatened by the 5th and 8th Armies from the south and southeast.

Some German rearguards still offered stubborn resistance.

Fraicolise was captured in fresh advance westward aimed at the main enemy defence positions at Mondragone and Massico ridge which towers 2,500 feet. Rocchetta is four miles northeast of Sparanise.

Official information from the front confirmed an earlier forecast that the Germans are preparing a major stand along a line from Mondragone on the west coast northeastward through Venafro and then across Italy to the area of Vasto on the Adriatic.

Serious Threat.

It was disclosed that the bridgehead gained by the 8th Army across the Trigno River was near the mouth of that stream, only seven miles below Vasto.

Alarmed by the success of the British in that crossing, the Nazis concentrated artillery there and laid down a heavy shellfire on the British front.

Heavy enemy shellfire also met the 8th Army farther inland where Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troops, who included the Canadian 1st Division, took Bojano in a six-mile advance west from Vinchiaturo.

Between Bojano and the Adriatic, Gen. Montgomery's forces made steady gains and drove the Germans from Spineto, Petrella, 15 miles northeast of Spineto, and Palata, 12 miles northeast of Petrella.

Hammering out again at the Germans in Yugoslavia, U.S. medium bombers struck the airfield at Podgorica, 20 miles inland from the Dalmatian coast and not far from the Albanian frontier.

Fighters went over first, destroying several grounded planes and damaging hangars and motor transports. Two-engined bombers and fighters followed, hitting the administration building and wrecking more planes. Several fires were were started, and three enemy planes driven away.

Convoy Escort Scatters E-Boat Fleet

LONDON, Oct. 26 — (CP). — British light naval forces protecting a convoy sank four German E-Boats and damaged seven more out a force of 30 in a fierce five hour running battle in the English Channel off the coast of East Anglia Sunday night, the Admiralty announced today.

The British escort fleet, made up of destroyers and motor gunboats, swarmed down upon the speedy enemy craft as they began the attack shortly before midnight. The battle lasted throughout the night, the Admiralty said, and all British ships rejoined the convoy without serious damage although there were several casualties among the crews.

The Admiralty disclosed that one group of motor gunboats which surprised a force of enemy E-boats and damaged three of them was commanded by a Canadian, Lieut. C. A. Burk, R.C.N.V.R., of Toronto.

One Blows Up

The first engagement came when the destroyer Pytchley intercepted a group of about five E-boats, the Admiralty said. Hits were observed on one enemy craft and the group withdrew. Shortly afterwards motor gunboats attacked an enemy group in the same area, severely damaging one vessel.

The destroyer Worcester engaged other E-boats, blowing up one by gunfire and severely damaging a second. Almost immediately afterwards the destroyer MacKay scored hits on still another E-boat.

Meanwhile a group of motor gunboats cut into position to engage fleeing enemy vessels, the communique added. Gunfire followed and two enemy craft blew up and were seen to sink. A British gunboat destroyed a third by ramming, picking up prisoners.

'Sometime later motor gunboats under command of Lieut. C. A. Burk, R.C.N.V.R., surprised a further force of 5-boats and damaged three of them with gunfire."

Morale of Nazis High in Russian Retreat

Air Attack Devastating In Reich But Army Not Ready To Surrender

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

What justification, if any, is there for the various European reports that Germany is on the point of cracking up?"

For instance, a dispatch from Scotland reports that British soldiers who have just returned from Nazi prison camps say German hope and morale are cracking under the strain of the steadily increasing air attacks on the key cities.

London tells us that statements leaking out of Germany through neutral countries describe last week as the blackest of the war for Hitler, and hint at a critical situation on the home front.

Nazi commentators have made no bones recently of expressing grave concern over the trend of the fighting on the Russian front.

Dr. Jenny, widely known Swiss newspaperman, writes that "in wide circles it is considered possible Germany will break within a few weeks."

Ivan Yermashov, Soviet commentator, wrote the other day in the Red Star, organ of the Russian Army, that a decisive blow through France by the Western Allies would bring about swift defeat of Germany and a quick end to the war.

Morale Unshattered

Brig.-Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, the commander of the United States heavy bomber division in England, says German war industry will be so smashed by spring as the result of the Allied bombing that the Nazis won't be able to fight effectively any longer on land or sea or in the air.

Well, the answer to all that is that Germany's immediate fate is so delicately balanced that a great stroke of adversity might bring sudden collapse.

There's no harm in hoping hard that there will be such a collapse.

However, it would be criminal for us to fool ourselves into believing that our wishes are actualities —that Germany is bound to collapse in the near future.

What right have we, for instance to assume that the morale of the German army might crack? It has been magnificient, so far as has been reported. The great and protracted Nazi retreat to the Dnieper without a collapse was one of the outstanding achievements of the war, because a retreat is one of the most difficult of military operations that called for fool-proof morale on the part of the Hitlerite troops.

Canadians Jam Shell-Torn Churches

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 24 — (Delayed) (CP Cable.)—Canadian troops just out of the front line a few miles away paraded to church through crowded streets of a mountain town today in a demonstration of faith that impressed keenly religious Italians.

To the skirl of bagpipes a Toronto regiment more than 2,500 strong marched smartly into the shell-torn collonaded Roman Catholic cathedral in the heart of the town and attended mass celebrated by Major A. Butts of Halifax, a brigade chaplain, assisted by two Italian priests. A choir from a French-Canadian unit sang mass.

Maj. G. Cherrier of Toronto, a headquarters chaplain, preached the sermon. During the service confessions were heard by four padres, including Capts. Thomas McManus of Kirkland Lake, Ont., and J. Wilhelm of Hamilton, Ont.

At the same time a Protestant service was held in an neighboring theatre where Capt. S. B. East of Toronto officiated. The address was given by Maj. J. Gordon Jones of Hamilton, Ont., and the lesson read by Maj. R. O. Wilkes of Winnipeg.

Gains Are General As 5th And 8th Armies Push Ahead

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Allied 5th Army has captured Francolise and Raviscanina in an advance all along its front in Italy, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Raviscanina is 19 miles north of Capua and about 15 miles south of Isernia, where the Germans are reported to have anchored a new defence line running inland from Mondragone.

Francolise is 2½ miles west of Spartanise, important rail and road junction town whose capture was announced yesterday.

The British 8th Army also pushed ahead, capturing Boiano, on the main lateral road from Campobasso to Isernia, and also entered Spinete, Petrelle and Palata.

The town of Roccheta fell into the hands of the 5th Army fighting through difficult terrain against strong German positions.

Medium bombers and long-range fighters of the Northwest African Air Force attacked the airfield at Povdonika in Yugoslavia yesterday, an air communique said, while in Italy, medium, light, and fighter-bombers hit road and rail targets north of the battle area on the east and west coasts.

All the raiders returned safely from Yugoslavia, but two planes were lost in other operations.

Berlin's announcement that Allied heavy bombers which struck into Austria Sunday had come from Italian bases and then shuttled on to Britain was a new indication of Germany's concern over bombing of the Eastern Reich from Italy. But Allied headquarters simply let the Nazis worry as to whether the bombers had come from Foggia or North Africa, or whether they went on to Britain or returned here.

Pasmore's BRONCHIAL MIXTURE

CHECKS CHEST COLDS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Oct. 26 (AP)—Rabaul, the heart of Japanese air might in the Southwest Pacific, has been strewn with the wreckage of 311 planes in four recent daylight assaults by hundreds of Allied bombers and fighters. Today's communique disclosed the results of the third and fourth raids by nearly 300 planes Saturday and Sunday — 123 enemy aircraft certainly wiped out and 45 others probably destroyed.

This mounting disaster at Japan's New Britain air fortress over a 12-day period, from October 12 to 24, has been achieved at a price of only 12 raiders.

Total air losses of the Japanese listed in today's communique accounts of widespread operations were 203 which raised to approximately 800 the number of enemy planes bagged within the last two-week period in the South and Southwest Pacific.

50 Bombers Take Part.

Nearly 50 heavy bombers, heavily screened by fighters, opened the latest attack on Rabaul Saturday afternoon. Twenty grounded planes were destroyed for certain, seven others probably.

Fifty enemy planes swarmed to the attack. The bombers downed four for certain, eight probably. The fighters bagged 11 certainly and claimed five probables. There were no Allied losses.

Sunday, more than 50 medium bombers, escorted by nearly 100 fighters, attacked Rabaul.

The bombers wiped out 45 bombers on the ground, probably accounted for 10 others.

Upwards of 70 Japanese planes battled the raiders, in a one-hour running fight. The fighters bagged 35 of these for certain and the bombers eight. Fifteen others probably crashed.

Today's communique also reported the destruction of 22 planes in Allied air raids last Friday in the Bougainville-Choiseul sector of the Solomons and the sinking of a Japanese destroyer off Cape Orford, New Britain.

Batter Kahili.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 26—(AP).—A 172-ton bombardment of Kahili airfield has left that Bougainville Island airbase practically useless to the Japanese for the present, a spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey said today.

This spokesman said the last of three savage smashes on October 22 showed Kahili inoperative. Large bomb craters had not yet been repaired and planes were unable to use the strip.

Three raids on Kahili and a fourth against nearby Kara field were carried out in lightning fashion by Allied planes over a four-hour period October 22.

Bougainville, top rung of the Solomons ladder, is the last remaining major stronghold for the Japanese in that area. The last semi-official estimates placed 40,000 enemy troops on the island. It is now the primary objective of the Allied sea, land and air offensive east of New Guinea.

LONDON, Oct. 26 — (CP). — German forces lost their last heavy industrial centre in Bosnia today when Yugoslav Partisans captured the steel manufacturing city of Vares-Maydan, 20 miles north of Sarajevo, a communique of the Yugoslav National Liberation Army announced today.

The city fell to the guerilla warriors of Gen. Josip (Tito) Broz after a fierce 12-hour battle, the communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, said. German losses in men and material were heavy, the bulletin added. Two nearby railway stations were also destroyed.

In another battle far to the north, the Partisans were said to have stormed into the town of Brcko on the Save River, but were forced to withdraw after the Germans rushed in 20,000 troops and strong formations of bombing planes from Serbia to reinforce the 5,000 men defending the town. The Partisans said they blew up a strategic Save River bridge before retreating.

It should be mentioned in regard to the Victory Loan progress at the Quaker Oats, Western Clock and Canada Packers that it was known last Friday they had reached their objectives, the 100% level.

Hirohito Claims Situation Grave

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP). — Emperor Hirohito, in one of his infrequent utterances on the progress of the war, told a special session of the Japanese Diet to-day that "the present situation is truly grave," a Tokyo broadcast disclosed. The broadcast, reported by the United States Office of War Information, said the Emperor's statement was made in an Imperial rescript read to the House of Peers in his presence as the Diet was convoked.

Another Tokyo broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press in London, quoted Premier General Hideki Tojo as telling the Diet that Italy's withdrawal from the war had not made an eventual Axis victory any less sure.

"There is not the slightest doubt that the ultimate victory will be ours," the Premier said.

Tojo also expressed sympathy "for the plight of the Indian people" and gave assurances Japan would offer India all possible support in her "struggle for independence."

"The present war situation is very complicated," Tojo said. "The enemy, who was defeated at the beginning is, in fear of the richness of our conquered territory trying to overwhelm our nation. The enemy is overcoming many difficulties and dangers and the war is growing in intensity."

Because there "is no time to be slack in war," Tojo said, the government has decided on a new industrial and manpower mobilization program to "strengthen the production of war materials, especially of airplanes, so that our defensive structure may be made unwavering."

Douglas Wolfe Dies In Crash

Word was received here Monday by Miss Francis Wolfe, that her brother, Acting Sub Lieut. Douglas Wilfred Wolfe, the only Peterborough boy serving with the Fleet Air Arm in Florida with the Royal Navy, had been killed at Pensacola Saturday, when his plane collided with another while flying in formation southwest of Foley, Ala.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wolfe of London, who formerly lived in Peterborough, and there are two other sisters, Janet and Betty in London. He had recently won his commission.

On joining up he was sent to England to get his seamanship. After three months there he returned to get his flying training at Grosse Ile, Michigan, and then to Pensacola to take a difficult course in dive bombing, which he had just completed. He was to have gone to Miami. Sub Lieut. Wolfe is an ex-student of the Collegiate.

His father was associated with the London Life Insurance Company.

The last company said this brings its holdings of Canadian Government Bonds to $78,000,000, of which $11,000,000 was subscribed to Victory Bonds this year.

C.P.R. Eastern lines employees, 9,962 of them, put in $1,033,140, 46 per cent more than in the same period in the last loan. Their quota is $2,000,000. C.N.R. Central region had 20,012 bond-uyers for a total of $1,074,450. At the same stage of the last loan they had 13,843 subscribers for $1,166,900. The C.N.R.'s grand total, including Trans-Canada Air Lines, had reached $4,551,040.

The Royal Canadian Navy announced its Atlantic command now is $10,000 beyond its $140,000 objective. More than 75 per cent of ships and shore establishments reported passing their quota.

Concert Group Seeks New Members

An enthusiastic and well attended campaign dinner was held at Hooper's to usher in the community concert campaign being held this week. General indications point to a successful season. The chairman of the meeting was G. R. Langley, president of the association, who reported briefly on the progress to date. He then introduced Miss Beatrice Patterson, who gave a splendid talk on the growth and spread of music for the masses in Britain, Russia, China, and the Americas.

"The morale on the home front is as important in its way as the morale on the fighting front, and one of our greatest morale builders is music. Great artists can only continue to give their services to our fighting men if their regular means of livelihood is maintained," she said.

Mrs. Ford Turner, campaign chairman, spoke briefly and was followed by N. W. Finnie, the secretary, who gave instructions to the workers.

A pleasant feature of the dinner was a musical crossword puzzle, won by N. W. Finnie and a scramblegram won by Miss M. Corkery.

The directors present were G. R. Langley, Mrs. Cameron, Dr. C. B. Waite. A list of the campaign workers follows: Misses M. Cox, Hicks, M. Widdis, Hurley, M. Rome, M. Westbye, A. Langley, M. Corkery, M. Harstone, Talbot, L. McCarrol, L. Roche, O. Lacheur, Mesdames Brain, C. Crowe, Dobson, A. L. Green, J. Lowe, H. A. Mitchell, G. Richmond, R. Williamson, W. Tullis, C. Turner, W. B. Brown, and McDonald, Messrs. A. Noftall, J. Bradshaw, N. W. Finnie, Hale, D. Munro, H. Northrop, St. Jacques, Q. McKinney.

The campaign for memberships is open this week only, and anyone wishing further information telephone the secretary, N. W. Finnie, 8634, or headquarters at the Y.M.C.A. 5684.

The list of artists is determined by the size of the association membership, but there are three well-known artists on the prospective list, and it is hoped to have at least one if not more of the following three: Piatigorski, 'cellist, who is rated as the greatest in the world; Rose Bampton, leading soprano at the Metropolitan Opera and the Barry String Quartette.

Fire Levels

Started At Back.

It is believed the fire started at the rear of the building, and the only suggestion as to the origin came from Arthur Dubay, the manager, who said defective wiring might have caused the fire. Mr. Dubay was able to save $1,300 in cash from a new safe in the building, installed just six months ago, and Mr. Howell salvaged his tools. The gasoline pumps at the service station were empty and are undamaged, but the canopy directly over them took a bad beating from the flames. This morning Bell Telephone men were busy replacing telephone lines which were put out of commission by the fire.

The employees left the warehouse at seven in the evening and at that time everything was shipshape. Mr. Howell was working at the front in the service station until around 9 o'clock, and when he left everything was in order too.

Traffic was re-routed from Hunter Street between Mark and Rogers Streets to protect the maze of fire hose along the road, and police were on duty all night, directing motorists.

Hundreds Gather.

The blaze attracted hundreds of people, who marvelled at the size of the sheet of flame that erupted from the building. Many citizens living close by, dressed just in case the fire should spread, but precautions taken by the firemen, reduced this possibility. The office of McCarthy and Johnson, coal merchants, was given a generous dousing and escaped the flames.

This same service station was operated for several years by Norman Edgar, and was known as Edgar's Service Station. The building is on the south side of Hunter Street, due east of the C.N.R. spur line serving the coal yard, and halfway between Rogers and Mark Streets.

Red Cross Ladies Open Display Of War Activities

Demonstrations and displays of the work that is done by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Red Cross are being shown this week in an exhibit that opens today at 159 Hunter street West and continues through Saturday. Afternoons and evenings the exhibition will be open to all who are interested in obtaining an insight into the services of the Red Cross in this community, both in the interests of the men in uniform overseas and the people at home and in Britain who are backing them up.

The services of the Red Cross are many and a visit to this exhibition gives an idea of the all-embracing character of its work. For the men who fight there are the capture parcels which form the prisoner's first link with the outside world after he has fallen into the hands of the enemy. These parcels, of which there is a display at the exhibition, contain many articles essential to the comfort of every man—soap, shaving-kit, underwear and other things. Reserves of them have been established in neutral countries nearest to the scenes of fighting and the prison camps, and batches are despatched immediately upon receipt of information by the Red Cross that a certain number of soldiers have been captured by the enemy.

This service is not confined to Canadian men alone by the Red Cross. As an example of the far-reaching scheme of its good work, only Monday a telegram was received by the Canadian government from Gens. Giraud and De Gaulle expressing the deep gratitude of the French Committee of National Liberation for the recent decision to forward 100,000 Red Cross parcels to French prisoners in German hands. "Through these parcels," the telegram said, "the situation of our prisoners cannot but be materially improved."

Blood Donations

One of the best known of the works the Red Cross performs for the gallant men who are in the fighting overseas is the collection and preparation of blood plasma for wounded servicemen. Most of Peterborough is familiar with its Blood Donors Clinic, and many, if not actually acquainted with the complicated processes of preparing blood for shipment overseas, are at least aware of the expert handling and infinite care that must be exercised. This work, which continues week in and week out as all Red Cross activities of mercy do, is a job that is never done, and now more than ever the call is for more and more blood donations with which to save lives.

Correspondents have testified to the difference that blood plasma makes on the battlefield of modern war, and a statement broadcast Saturday by Gen. Eisenhower should reinforce recent appeals for greater numbers of donors.

"Time is precious out here," Gen. Eisenhower said. "For lack of plasma, men die. To it they owe the gift of life itself. Our reserves of plasma are being drained by the growing offensive. Give your blood that we too may be assured our chance for life."

In the exhibit this week visitors may see samples of hospital supplies and garments for bomb-stricken families, refuge children and all those who have been tragically unsettled by the ill fortunes of war in Britain. Peterborough, like other communities, has its quota of articles to send, and the devoted work of Red Cross workers throughout the district is responsible for meeting these quotas in full and on time. All along the line the recognition of the importance of Red Cross boxes is general, shipment is provided gratis by the railways, and boxes are stowed in small amounts in vacant space on ships about to make the crossing overseas so that losses from possible sinkings are cut to a minimum, averaging less than three per cent for all materials forwarded by the Red Cross. Arriving on the other side, the invaluable articles are distributed by military authorities where the need is most urgent.

Food Important

Another display laid out at the exhibition of the Red Cross in town emphasizes the vital importance of proper nutrition, a problem at all times but never so essential as in wartime. One must eat the right kind of vitamin-rich foods and sufficient amounts of them to keep healthy and stay on the job, and here again the Red Cross performs a service of education worthy of its fine accomplishments in serving mankind.

In its nutrition program the Red Cross works in cooperation with the Government's national nutrition committtee, which found that 40 per cent of the rejections from the armed forces could be traced to conditions of faulty nourishment. A nutrition committee was formed in Peterborough last fall and under its sponsorship courses have been given in War Economy Nutrition; advice is given as to balanced diets for factory workers and school children; other courses show how to make the best and most economical use of rationed products.

Home nursing is an important part of Red Cross work both in peace and war, and in these strenuous times a vital adjunct is the emergency nursing courses which have been given in Peterborough during the past year. These courses fit the layman to deal with possible epidemics and to treat emergencies in the home; and practical refresher courses are given once each month embodying latest developments in coping with accident and disease. Home nursing courses, which have been given for a number of years at the Normal School and the high schools, consist of a series of 12 classes and six lectures under the direction of graduate nurses.

Much of the work of knitting, sewing and preparing hospital supplies is conducted in the Red Cross rooms in the Public Library. Here sewing is done each week-day afternoon, and supervisors are on hand to explain and allot jobs, of which there are many for both the inexperienced and the expert. Here wool, is given out and articles made for the Red Cross are inspected and prepared for shipment. But many independent organizations meeting in their own quarters are simultaneously busy turning out work of the same type and the same high standards as are demanded at Red Cross headquarters and their contributions, along with donations from many individual sources, make up an essential part of the united effort which makes the wartime Peterborough Red Cross all that it is today.

Victory Loan Meeting At Lakefield

The Young Women's Missionary and Service Club of the United Church at Lakefield held last night an open meeting at the Town Hall. Rev. G. Kelly was chairman, with Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., and C. L. McCutcheon of Toronto, divisional organizer for the National War Finance Committee in the Trent Valley-Quinte Division, as guest speakers.

The meeting was prefaced by a short band concert by the R.C.A.M.C. Band from Camp Borden, under the direction of Bandmaster Albert Croasdale, W.O. 1. Films were also shown and delightful solos were given by Miss Mona Gibson and Charles Hemsley, both accompanied by Mrs. G. Kelly.

"In the last year," said Mr. McCutcheon, "we have had some successes, but we are a long way from having won the war. There is no room for complacency. We are not yet close to the German borders, and as the steel rim that we are gradually narrowing around the Hun closes in on him, we will see that he can still fight.

"In Canada to-day there is more money in the banks than ever before in its history. Eighty per cent of our national income goes to the nine out of the ten of our working population whi make $2,500 a year or less. That is why it is necessary for the smaller buyers in Canada to subscribe to Victory Loans to the full extent of their ability.

"In Canada to-day there is $15 of available spending money for every $10 of domestic goods produced and if we are to avoid inflation, which is just another word for disaster, it is absolutely neecssary that as much as possible of this spending money be tapped off into Victory Loan Bonds.

Victory Bonds return 3 p.c. interest as against 1½ p.c. in the bank and I say that any man is a foolish man who puts his money into the bank at 1½ p.c. when he can obtain 3 p.c. on Victory Loan bonds. Let me illustrate. Suppose a man bought a $1,000 first Victory Loan 3 p.c. Bond just two and a half years ago. In that time he has had $75.00 interest as against $37.50 on the same amount left on deposit in the bank. In other words, he could afford to sell his Dominion of Canada bond for $962.50 and still be just as far ahead as if he had left his money in the bank. But, is this th ecase now. On the contrary, he is able, should the occasion arise and it is necessary for him to sell the bond, to sell it at to-day's market, which is approximately $1,025—in other words, he is $62.50 better off for having invested his money in Victory Loan bonds as against leaving it in the bank, and in addition, these bonds in bearer form, are as readily saleable and can be realized on just about as q;uickly as one c%an cash a cheque.

The total cost of these Victory Loans is less than 1c for every $1.00 subscribed ,and this includes printing and distributing these bonds, all of the printing of the publicity material and stationery which is used, all of the office expense, the remuneration to banks and trust companies for handling all the details in addition to cashing your coupons for the next 15 years without charge, the remuneration to salesmen, most of whom make a personal sacrifice during the period of the Victory Loan, the remuneration of some three thousand investment dealers across Canada who give up their entire staff and office furniture and typewriters for the full period of the Victory Loan.

Officials said Lonergan could either waive extradition proceedings or a court order could be obtained ordering his extradition to the U.S.

The district attorney said Lonergan had a misunderstanding with his wife six weeks ago and left New York to join the air force.

Was Policeman

John Loehr, Deputy Assistant District Attorney from New York, questioned Lonergan for three hours last night.

Lonergan was said to have spent Saturday night in the New York apartment of John Harjes, who told police the young flier left a note saying he had borrowed one of Harjes' suits because he had meet with an accident which destroyed his R.C.A.F. uniform.

Jean Murphy Jaburg, 28, former actress, told police she attended a show with Lonergan Saturday night. She said he wore his uniform then but was wearing an ill-fitting grey civilian suit when she saw him again Sunday.

(In New York today, Thomas Farrell, a magazine editor, said in an interview that the night before Mrs. Lonergan was slain she expressed a desire to avoid meeting her husband.)

Lonergan attended school here and for a time was a lifeguard here. He served as a special constable with the Ontario Provincial Police in 1935 and also worked for a time with the International Nickel Company in Northern Ontario. His father, Thomas Lonergan, was a native of Norwood, Ont., and his mother came from Saginaw, Mich.

Victory Bond Interest Double Bank's

In the fourth address of the Bankers' Broadcast series over CHEX, Fred F. Potter, manager of the Bank of Toronto discussed yesterday evening the subject: "Victory Bonds as a Reserve or Emergency Fund."

"First of all, the question arises, "What is a reserve or emergency fund?" Mr. Potter began.

"A Reserve fund is usually set up to provide for evenutal replacement or repair of an asset which, in the ordinary course, losses efficiency through wear and tear over a period of use—for instance—any well managed company reserves from earnings, sufficient amounts to replace worn out machinery and make necessary repairs to buildings . . . Likewise, you should build up a reserve against the day when you will have to reshingle the roof of your house, replace a worn-out furnace or other things which are a continual source of comfort and enjoyment. It is, therefore, logical that the wise planner will systematically save some of his earnings in order to build up such a reserve.

Unforeseen Expense

An Emergency reserve is a fund established to provide for some loss or expense which cannot be foreseen. This may be caused through accidents, sickness, or financial reverses due to circumstances beyond your control.—The hazards of our daily life and the risk of business are many and varied.

You will all agree that a sense of security is one essential for happiness. You will also agree that there can be no sense of security without the knowledge that a reserve fund is available for the emergencies.

Now we come to the question—"What are the qualifications of a good reserve fund investment? — First of all, Safety — next — Marketability — then, Income. Dominion of Canada 5th Victory Loan Bonds possess ALL these features . . . As stated by previous speakers in this series of braodcasts, these bonds constitute a first mortgage on all the resources of Canada. They can be quickly converted into cash, and pay interest at double the rate paid by the chartered bank on your savings balances . . .

The banks, our insurance companies, industrial concerns and businessmen from coast to coast have demonstrated their faith in Canada by investing millions of dollars in Victory Bonds. They consider it GOOD business to carry their reserves in this prime security. —It is also good business for YOU to do so . . .

Convert Your Savings

Many people carry their reserves in the form of bank deposits. As Dominion of Canada bonds yield double the present rate of interest, it is to your advantage to convert these savings into Victory Bonds.

One contingency which we should all constantly bear in mind is the danger of inflation.—Every dollar you divert from personal spending to purchase Victory Bonds is a contribution to the fight against that most INSIDIOUS enemy on the home front—INFLATION.

As a representative of the banks in Peterborough, I heartily recommend purchase of Victory Bonds as an investment which will serve the double purpose of placing your dollars in the firing line and also setting up a sure and certain reserve against your financial needs in the future.

Therefore — Buy bonds to protect your future—to increase your income—to fight inflation and — Speed The Victory.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Land Crews Seeking Lost Bomber

Missing a Week Search Narrows To Wooded Area

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

ANCIENNE LORETTE, Que., Oct. 26 — (CSP). — With distress signal reports narrowing down the search area to 40 square miles extending roughly between La Tuque and Shawinigan Falls in Laviolette and St. Maurice Counties, land and air expeditions to-da ywere pushing into this wild hinterland in the hopes of establishing an early contact with the missing R.C.A.F. Liberator and its 24 passengers.

Morning and afternoon aerial searches yesterday in the first clear weather since the hunt began on Wednesday morning, nine hours after the plane was last checked over Mont Joli bound from an East Coast airbase to Montreal, reported overhearing SOs signals on the "500" emergency frequency such as would have been emitted from a portable "Gibson Girl" hand-cranked transmitter which the big ship was known to have carried.

Get Many Calls.

(In Montreal, military radio experts intimately connected with the search said that SOS signals from aircraft or shipping were "an almost hourly occurrence" for powerful Canadian ground stations.

(They said that such signals, originating in the Atlantic, the North Sea and even the Mediterranean, might conceivably have been picked up by the sets of searching aircraft. The powerful, sensitive ground stations in this area, with special operators on duty at all times, had not picked up any S.O.S. from the area in which the search is centred, they added.)

Night searchers reporting in this morning said that they had spotted lights in unexpected places during the night, but in each case a logging camp was considered the most likely explanation although each reported light position will be rechecked today.

Searchers at the end of the day who overheard the signal said that it became almost indistinct and experienced airmen offered the suggestion it might have been caused by hands, unfamiliar with wireless equipment, not winding the crank fast enough. Some of the plane's passengers were not aircrew.

On the other hand a radio amateur near La Tuque called to report he had overheard a strong, continuous S.O.S. at various times during the day. It too was on the emergency frequency.

CAMPBELLFORD

St. John's Church Celebrates 78th Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26. — (ENS).—Special music and speakers combined to make the seventy-eighth anniversary services at St. John's United Church on Sunday one of the most impressive in many years. Both morning and evening services were largely attended by members of the congregation as well as by many visitors.

As a cordial gesture the evening services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church were cancelled, in order that the congregation might join in the anniversary observance. Rev J. O. Ralston of St. Andrew's assisted with the evening service at the invitation of the pastor, Rev. G. N. Maxwell.

Guest speaker for the morning service was Rev. G. D. Campbell of Colborne, who took as his text, "They Limited the Holy One in Israel." His message followed along the line that God's instruments were sometimes beyond human power of comprehension, yet on these instruments God depends for His service to humanity.

Laval Failure.

For the evening service Flt. Lieut. Russell O'Brien, chaplain at the Trenton air station, was the guest speaker, and he spoke on "The Things by Which We Are Known." As an example he cited the manner in which Pierre Laval had miscalculated in dealing with the German Chancellor Bruening in the early 20's. It was the failure of France to co-operate which had brought about the collapse of democracy in Germany. It was by this act that Laval would be known, and conversely, by their brave deeds the people of Poland, Norway, Russia and England would be remembered for years to come.

An outstanding feature of both services was the music sung by the choir under the capable direction of organist and choirmaster Chas. Howey, A.L.C.M., and especially appreciated were the contributions made by the guest soloists. During the morning the choir gave the anthem, "Judge Me O God" and two guest soloists, Miss Alma Blanchard of Peterborough, sang, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and Samuel Castle, also of Peterborough, offered, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

At the evening service the anthem, "Beside Still Waters" was given by the choir with George W. Lucy taking the solo part. The guest soloists of the evening were Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol and Mr. Francis DeCarrol who sang a duet, "O Divine Redeemer," and Mr. Gordon Stephens of Trenton, who sang "Near to the Heart of God."

Prisoners Claim Bombing Cracks Nazi Morale

LEITH, Scotland, Oct. 26 —(CP)—British and Canadian soldiers who have just returned from Nazi prison camps say that German hope and morale is cracking under the strain of the steadily increased Allied air attacks on their key cities and war factories.

Without exception every one of the repatriates who talked with interviewers after landing at this port yesterday expressed a similar belief —that the Germans realize they are licked.

"Even German newspapers are sparing them nothing now," said Rev. G. R. Grundy, 64-year-old veteran who lost an arm in the First Great War but who nevertheless volunteered for service and was captured at Boulogne in May, 1940.

"Depression and fear lie over Germany today, Mr. Grundy declared. "The feeling of the German people is that Great Britain once again will be victorious. However, German civilians do not appear to fear Britain as much as they do Russia. Russia is the skeleton behind their door."

The clergyman declared the "bombing of the Reich is terrible," saying that "whole towns have been destroyed, whole factories have been blown to pieces and whole areas have been laid waste."

Two Canadians in the group—Sgt. D. H. Jordan of Swift Current, Sask., and Cpl. Geoffrey Pasquill of Neepawa, Man., shared similar views, saying the Germans knew they were beaten and wanted the war to end as quickly as possible.

"There are no more young guards at the camps," Jordan said. "They've been replaced by old men, some of them over 60, and officers too seriously wounded to return to the front."

William Howson Dies Overseas

MILLBROOK, Oct. 26.—(ENS).—Wireless Operator William Harold Howson, R.C.A.F. overseas, has been killed in action according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Howson, of Millbrook. His wife is the former Madeline West, of Toronto, and he has a son six months old.

He went overseas in June of this year, and although the family received three letters from him on Saturday, they contained no indication that he had taken part in any offensive action. Prior to enlisting he had worked on a farm. He is the third Millbrook airman to be killed overseas, the other two being P.O. Kenneth Harker and Flt. Sgt. Jack Arundel.

William Howson has two other members of his family serving in the R.C.A.F. His brother, LAC. Thomas Howson, is stationed at Dafoe, Sask., and his sister, AW1 Eva Howson is with the Women's Division R.C.A.F. at Davidson, Sask. Rotarians Hold Service For Fallen Heroes

Rotarians paid a tribute to the memory of Canadians who have made the supreme sacrifice in the present war and heard an eloquent plea to re-dedicate themselves to service for Canada as the Peterborough Rotary Club staged a memorial and Victory Loan meeting at the Empress Hotel on Monday.

The memorial ceremony was in charge of Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart of St. Paul's Church who led in a brief but impressive service that was climaxed by the observance of one minute of silence in memory of the unreturning brave, ending with a mass repetition of the Lord's Prayer.

Rotarian James Dutton reviewed the Canadian war effort as a preface for an earnest appeal for full-hearted support for Canada's fifth war loan.

"I have an idea," said the speaker, "that when history comes to deal with this period the record of what this population of 11,500,000 people was able to accomplish in this war effort will be astonishing."

Wonderful Effort

Rotarian Dutton stressed the fact that Canadian seamen were patrolling the seven seas, Canadian airmen were filling the skies over every continent and Canadian soldiers were guarding the Motherland and taking an important part in the battle in Italy.

The growth of the Canadian navy from 15 vessels to over 550 with an enrolment of 67,000 sailors, providing more than half the escort of convoys crossing the Atlantic, the expansion of the Canadian army from 4,500 to 460,000 highly-trained and highly equipped soldiers, and the Royal Canadian Air Force from a little body of 4,000 men to the present strength of more than 200,000 were described by the speaker.

The part played by Canada in supplying implements of war was also outlined by Rotarian Dutton who told the graphic story of the vast volume of war materials that was pouring out of Canadian factories.

Cost Mounts

The cost of the war to Canada was also stressed by the speaker, who said that it was estimated that by the end of the present year the cost of the country's war effort would be 12 billion dollars as compared with a total cost of $1,700,000,000 in the first great war.

Declaring that Canadians were determined that freedom and justice should prevail and men should be left free to live their own way of life, Rotarian Dutton urged hearty support for the Victory Loan, pointing out that investment in the loan represented not a gift but a saving.

"It is the greatest challenge we have ever known," he said, adding that while he believed that the tide had turned, it was no time for complacency for the toughest struggle still lay ahead.

Rotarian F. C. Paterson expressed the thanks of the club to Rev. Dr. Smart and to Rotarian Dutton for their contribution to the program.

Children Contribute To Mission Bale

GORE'S LANDING, Oct. 26—(ENS)—The W.A. of St. George's on the Hill met at the home of Mrs. Melville Harris and packed four boxes for overseas men belonging to the church.

Each contained a luscious fruit cake besides other food and necessities. At the next meeting in two weeks time, the members will quilt two quilts for th bale which is to be sent again this year to the rector, St. Helen's Rectory, Fairview, Alta. This minister has 9 Christmas trees for which he provides gifts and has written his appreciation of former bales.

The Red Cross workers met on Friday afternoon in the Public Library and packed eight boxes for overseas men of this village. About 12 ladies were present and devoted the entire afternoon to this work.

The Sunday morning service of St. George's-on-the-Hill was exclusively a children's service. All the small children were present and sang the 23rd Psalm to chant 115. The rector, Rev. Lloyd Delaney, preached a sermon for the children and during the singing of a children's hymn, the scholars walked up to the altar and left their white gifts in the white basket provided for that purpose. These white gifts will be included in the bale for Fairview, Alta.

Youngster On Farm Charged With Theft

COBOURG, Oct. 26.—(ENS). — Arrested yesterday by Constable Frank Atkinson of Brighton, a boy from Bowmanville Training School who had been working on the farm of Manley Maybee of Frankford, was brought to Cobourg charged with theft. He was remanded in custody on Monday until next Thursday.

It is alleged that the boy broke into Wright's garage in Brighton on Sunday night, stealing $10.64 in cash. The lad was found sleeping in a railway tool shed at Smithfield, having broken in via a window and after lighting a fire went to sleep. Police stated that the $10.64 was recovered with his arrest

Love-Letter Astray

COLLEGE PARK, Ga., Oct. 26 — (AP). — Miss D. Fishburne wrote a letter to her fiance, Sgt. Paul Hathaway, in North Africa. By mistake she sent it through San Francisco, where she addresses mail to her soldier-brother, instead of New York, and the letter was delivered to another Sgt. Paul Hathaway in the Pacific. Wrote back the Pacific sergeant, "I think you write nice letters. You say you are sending some pictures. Maybe I will get them, too." He promised to forward the letter. Miss Fishburne is sending pictures to both Sergts. Hathaway.

Council Vetoes Plan To Fire Chief Of Police

TORONTO, Oct. 26—York Township Council yesterday voted down 6 to 1 a motion by Councillor William Beech to ask the Police Commission to request the resignation of Police Chief Robert Alexander. The motion was the sequel of recent charges of breach of the Lord's Day Act laid against three York Township market gardeners and 25 helpers for bringing in war-needed garden produce on Sunday.

Councillor Beech charged that the chief had made the township "the laughing stock of the world" by the charges which are being withdrawn in face of public disapproval. Councillor Beech also was critical of the number of the men who had left the force—45 since the war began, and of the chief's demand for resignations of men who joined up. This was said to have been done under council instructions over which the chief had no control.

While the council voted down the motion to ask for the chief's dismissal, it was agreed that Councillor Beech could present his complaints to the Police Commission for a report.

Reeve Urges Caution

Reeve F. J. MacRae declared he didn't think any of the charges were true and strongly advised Councillor Beech not to give publicity to his brief. One letter complaining that a man had been compelled to resign from the force on enlistment, the reeve pointed out, had been sent in 1942 when this was the policy set out by council, and for which he did not think the chief could be criticized.

Reeve MacRae thought also that criticism of the number of men who had left the force was "a little unfair."

Of the prosecutions of the market gardeners for Sunday work, Chief Alexander explained that he had given no orders, but that there had been an understanding that if gardeners wanted to bring in produce on Sunday nothing would be done to stop them if they finished their work before noon. The names of those working had been taken at 4:30 p.m.

Chief. Alexander said he advised one of his detectives, a brother-in-law of one of the gardeners, "that he was going in the wrong direction to getting others to break the law." He said the law was there, and it was up to police to enforce it, whether butcher, baker, druggist or other employment was concerned.

Police Question Flier On Murder Count

TORONTO, Oct. 26 — (CP). — An official of the New York District Attorney's office planned today to continue questioning of AC2 Wayne Lonergan in connection with the murder of his estranged wife, 22-year-old Patricia Burton Lonergan.

It was not until after midnight that John Loehr, deputy assistant district attorney from New York, broke off a three-hour interrogation of the 26-year-old Toronto airman. From police headquarters Lonergan was taken to extradition cells at Claremont Street Police Station.

As the airman left headquarters a reporter asked: "Do you still maintain your innocence of murdering your wife?"

Lonergan replied: "I most certainly do."

Previous reports that there were scratches on Lonergan's chin and neck were confirmed by Loehr, scheduled to be joined here today by Detectives William Predergast and William Lorrman of the New York Police Department. Loehr arrived last night.

Lonergan was taken from a Bloor Street room of a friend to headquarters for questioning Monday, a day after the bludgeoned body of his socialite wife was found in the bedroom of her exclusive New York apartment. The Toronto police said Lonergan was dressed in civilian clothes and that he told them his R. C. A. F. uniform had been stolen in New York.

Lonergan told police he returned from New York Sunday night. He told them he was born in Toronto, that he had lived in New York for the last five years and that he came to Canada to join the R.C.A.F. three months ago. He said his mother and his father, both dead, were United States citizens.

Born In Toronto

Wayne Lonergan was born in Toronto on January 14, 1918, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lonergan. His father was a native of Norwood, Ontario, and his mother was born in Saginaw, Michigan.

He attended De La Salle College and St. Michael's College and later took a course at a Toronto business college. In 1935 he was a special constable attached to the Provincial Police Department and later worked for the International Nickel Company in Northern Ontario.

Apple Day Taggers Receive $75.00

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26 — (ENS).—Citizens of this twon responded generously to annual appeal made by Scouts who on Saturday held their annual Apple Day. According to Acting Scout Master Jack Connor, receipts of the day were $75, which was twelve dollars more than their appeal brought a year ago. Eleven of the 20 enrolled in the Troop spent the day canvassing citizens in their homes and on the streets and offering in exchange for their help a MacIntosh apple. They handed out seven bushels during the day and the leading salesman was Jack Cournyea who turned in $16. In addition to their regular activities, which the money will help to support, it was announced a contribution would be made to the Baden Powell Chins Up Fund for the assistance of Scout Troops in England.

Where We Stand

At the end of the first week of the Victory Loan drive in the city and county of Peterborough 46.05 per cent. of the total objective had been subscribed. At first glance that seems to be an excellent record, but there are circumstances in connection with it which we must keep in mind.

First of all, we must remember that in the first week of a Loan drive a great deal of what might be called the easy money is gathered in. The people who have decided to buy Bonds usually buy them early in the campaign; they do not need to be persuaded. The hard selling comes in the second and third weeks of the campaign. Next, we must bear in mind that the general high subscription of the first week includes 74 per cent. of the Special Names objective, which again is a sure and easy source of money. The Peterborough (city) employees' canvass has realized 48.57 per cent. of its objective, and this again must be regarded as fairly easy money as the majority of workers here subscribed without much effort being put forward to sell them the Bonds. The point which we want to make clear is that the first week's excellent record was due to the fact that great numbers of the regular subscribers to the Loans bought their Bonds without any fuss, and we must not expect things to go so smoothly this week or next. There is less easy money to be gathered in, and the fight for the hard money is sometimes long and exhausting.

The reports from the county districts are varied, some being most encouraging, and others giving cause for apprehension. It is in the General Canvass that the hard work will come; Special Names and Employees are made up of men and women who are in the thick of community life, who infect one another with enthusiasm for the Loan and who are, as a usual thing, convinced of their duty before the salesman approaches them. But included in the General Canvass are many people who live remote from this communal feeling, who are reluctant to sacrifice any more to the war than they are compelled to do by law, and who are hard subjects for the salesman's art. Some of these are to be found in the city and the towns of the district, some in the rural parts; a great part of the total objective must come from them and it is going to take hard work to get it.

We may offer ourselves sober congratulations on the good showing for the first week of the Loan, but let us also remember that the really hard work is yet to come.

Indecent Periodicals

From time to time a breeze blows up about some of the magazines which are sold freely in Ontario, and which are said to be indecent. There is usually some ground for the excitement; quite a number of magazines could be classed as indecent without stretching the definition of indecency too far. But the Province and the Dominion very sensibly refuse to take strong action in these matters, because it is impossible to tell where a campaign to suppress indecency will end; and there are few popular magazines which do not offend the sensibilities of the susceptible at times.

What interests us particularly is that allegedly funny indecency is resented more than the serious kind. That is to say, a magazine which attempts to be humorous by printing off-colour or positively smutty jokes is more likely to find itself in trouble than a magazine of serious "confessions" which is highly pornographic in content. We are not sure why this should be; so far as we can judge one is quite as likely to upset the equilibrium of the feeble-minded as the other.

For we do not think that these magazines have much attraction for any but the feeble-minded. They are too coarse, too vulgar in their appeal, to attract anyone of taste. We cannot imagine anyone being corrupted by one of them who was not corrupt already. And their sale is really very small, when compared with magazines of more savoury repute. Why bother about them?

Pop Goes a Prophet

Some time ago we reported in these columns that a Maltese monk had made a prediction about the end of the war. Our information came by a roundabout route from the Egyptian paper, Al Ethnein, which gave the monk quite a build-up. He was reported to have predicted the end of the First Great War, the abdication of King Edward VIII, and the end of the North African campaign with astounding accuracy. He also predicted the recapture of Smolensk, the occupation of Sardinia and Crete, the death of the King of Italy, war between Bulgaria and Turkey, and the invasion of Poland by the Red Army.

Now any one of these things, or all of them, may come to pass in time; two of them are in the bag, indeed. But where the monk fell down badly was in his prediction that the war would end on October 13 last. Unless the news has been unaccountably delayed, he was wrong. We have given him a few extra days to allow for variation of watches and calendars, but we are now convinced that the monk was talking through his cowl.

Our contemporary, the Brantford Expositor, which is so sceptical about prophecies that it does not even believe its own weather forecasts, has done some heavy moralizing about this monk and has summed up his brave guess as "delusion or humbug". Still, we have a kindly feeling toward the old fellow. As a journalist, we deplore any prophecies but our own, and we hate people who talk in a loose and inaccurate way about the end of the war. But the monk was a sport; he backed his hunch. If he had said: "The war will be long and hard; there will be much suffering; the worst is yet to come; do not look for a peace for many moons; when it is all over everyone will be too tired to cheer; the victors and vanquished will suffer alike; woe is everybody!" we should have applauded him as a realist, and the Expositor would doubtless have commended him for his firm grasp of the war situation. But though the monk's inspiration was wrong he stuck to it; there is integrity in that. He did not snatch at the easy fame which comes to anyone nowadays who will deal in wholesale gloom. Brave—though mistaken—little monk!

A Mean And Detestable Trick

Elsewhere on this page we print a letter telling of a particularly mean, poor-spirited, detestable, heartless and repellent practical joke which was played on a Peterborough family on Saturday night. The only thing which we have heard in this line which surpasses it is the account of the wag in Halifax who used to call up the families of service men to tell them that their sons had been killed.

Practical jokes are occasionally—very occasionally—funny. Practical jokers of genius sometimes produce first-rate results, but the practical joker of genius is a rare bird. As a usual thing the practical joker is someone of high spirits and low intelligence, with a blunted apprehension of the feelings of other people. Only a stupid oaf could think that it was funny to rouse a family at midnight and awaken in them the strongest feelings of affectionate excitement, only to disappoint them afterward.

But unfortunately there are always a number of stupid oafs in every community who have nothing better to do than make mischief. Whether the joker in this instance was a boy at St. Peter's High School or not, we have no way of knowing; apparently he had the voice of a lad of High School age. Boys and girls of that age are not often remarkable for their sensitive appreciation of the feelings of others, and particularly feelings of parental affection; their sense of humour, too, is seldom fully developed. Perhaps the joker knew no better.

And why did he know no better? And what was he doing playing with the telephone at midnight? Did his parents know where he was, or care? We cannot answer these questions. Will something of this kind happen again? We hope not, but we do not know what anyone can do to prevent it. Fools, like the poor, we have always with us, and no one is so heartless as a fool.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The man with community spirit these days is the one who plays a Loan hand.

"Spinach Belittled As A Vitamin Source", says a headline. Don't waste pity on spinach; it has plenty of grit.

John W. Dafoe has referred to Winston Churchill as "The greatest man the race has produced in a thousand years". Quite a claim, and Churchill himself might wish to put in a word for Shakespeare or the Duke of Marlborough; but then, Churchill can fight and write too, so we shall let the statement stand.

Old-Fashioned Fallacies

From the
WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

WITH a view to having its opinions upon Canadian public questions more widely known, L'Action Catholique of Quebec periodically distributes among the papers of Canada a selection from its editorials translated into English. This is a praiseworthy custom, since it makes known to a wider audience the opinions of a newspaper which represents what must be regarded as a very considerable body of Quebec opinion.

In the last batch of opinions thus circulated there appears an article headed "Our Foreign Policy," dealing with a public address delivered by Brooke Claxton, M.P., parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister. It is important because, accepting it as typical, it reveals how far from reality is much of the thinking upon this question by many well-intentioned and intelligent Canadians of French origin. They should endeavor to bring their knowledge and their deductions from this knowledge up to date; unless this is done Canadians of all kinds cannot find themselves on common and solid ground.

THE remark by Mr. Claxton, with which L'Action Catholique is particularly annoyed, was that Canada should "join in the defence of Great Britain." This is interpreted as being an assertion that Canada as a colony owes to Great Britain as overlord the duty of joining in its defence. To this supposed contention L'Action Catholique enters a vigourous denial. "Our duty," it says, "is in the defence of our territory first, of our continent after and conjointly with the United States." It adds that "Canadian unity will be impossible as long as a certain number of political leaders of the English language consider the defence of Great Britain or the British Empire as an integral part of Canada's foreign policy." It questions whether "the United States will ever make the defence of Great Britain an indispensable and constant article of their foreign policy."

THE mentality of a generation ago is displayed in these protestations and affirmations. Why has the United States twice within thirty years joined Great Britain in the second and decisive stage of a great world war? It was not to rescue, on grounds of sentiment, a country whose defeat would not have injuriously affected the future interests of the United States. Instead it was a recognition, somewhat belated in both instances, that world civilization was in mortal danger, and that in the disaster of its destruction they would share. When they moved to the defence of world freedom they found themselves beside British nations, which had been on the job for two years and more.

THIS statement of the fact is, of course, an over-simplification, but it is roughly true; and it is difficult to understand how it is possible for persons of goodwill and intelligence to see in the American intervention nothing more than a sentimental desire to give aid to a country which could have been destroyed without any untoward resulting consequences to the world at large and to the United States in particular. Some such idea must be firmly fixed in the minds of those responsible for the views of L'Action Catholique; or it would have no grounds for its display of hostility to the policy which Mr. Claxton outlined, and which he thus summarized:

As I see it, Canadian foreign policy as declared by the Prime Minister or other leaders or necessarily implied by their statements on the needs of the case has clear-cut positive purposes.

(1) Win the war.
(2) Promote the friendship of Great Britain and United States and their association with the Soviet Union and China in leading the United Nations.
(3) When possible establish the organization of the United Nations.
(4) In the meantime give nations representation on administrative boards on a functional basis.
(5) Support the organization of force against aggression, and for this purpose being willing to make all necessary commitments and contributions.
(6) Join in the defence of Great Britain and of this continent.
(7) Join in measures to promote trade by removing restrictions, etc., and by co-ordinated domestic policy to promote maximum employment and maximum production at fair prices.

IT will be seen that Mr. Claxton was not pleading for special consideration for any particular country, which was the ground upon which the criticism of L'Action Catholique was based. He was urging an organization of all countries which desire a continuing peace, thus making possible policies of social betterment. His reference to Great Britain, to which exception is taken, was not exclusive; he spoke of "the defence of Great Britain and this continent." He put them together because, so far as defending civilization is concerned, they are an integral whole; Great Britain is but the outlying bastion upon which the storm has first fallen heretofore, and upon which it will first fall in the future if this issue has to be fought out again thirty years hence, which may well be the case.

If in such a war Great Britain falls, the fall of North America will follow; and Quebec, like all the other parts of this continent, will be buried in the ruins. None of the civilized countries can have a "foreign policy" of its own which will determine the extent of its contribution to the common safety. World freedom in the future, as now, will be indivisible; and it will be for the common judgment to direct defence against a common foe.

Socialism and Taxes

If the C.C.F., as Mr. M. J. Coldwell states, intends to take over what he calls monopolies, vested interests, industrial enterprises, banks, insurance companies, mines and timber mills, where will he get his taxation? If he does take them over he cannot collect income taxes from the men who formerly owned and operated them, for the simple reason that these incomes would not exist. The advocates of socialism, of course, claim that the state would not need the taxes of these industries and institutions, inasmuch as it would have their profits. But what if there were no profits? As The Ottawa Journal in an editorial on this subject says 'What if, due to world conditions or to inefficient management by inexperienced planners, the socialists found themselves with a lot of deficits? Whence then, the money the socialists would need to finance all the expensive Utopian things they promise us?"

A Case for Universal English

DREAMS of a universal language that would bring the nations to better understanding have, of course, for centuries haunted the imaginations of the generous-minded. Laments for the decay of Latin, proposals for renovating and reviving it, enthusiasms for Esperanto, Ido, Novial, Nulango—with these we are familiar. The trouble is that these generous designs are too rarely balanced by a concrete, living sense of actualities and practicalities. "Crackpot schemes!" is the current description of them in the mouths of hardhearted persons. This is a serious matter, since it is to hardheaded, practical men that we must look for effective action. We shall do well to examine the grounds for this adverse opinion as to artificial languages before considering the proposals to use some form of an existing language.

The root criticism of any revived or artificial language, however well designed, is that the immediate incentive which would make enough people learn and use one is lacking. We all want a better world. We may all agree that a world auxiliary language would help....We may all wish that everyone would learn such a language. But these wishes, however strong they might be, will never be strong enough to make enough people put enough time into learning an artificial language as a speculative investment. If you are to go to the trouble of learning a language you need to feel that you will get a return for your toil this very year. A man may plant an orchard and wait six years for his apples; but six months is long enough to wait for verbs and prepositions to bear fruit. You do not want access merely to a limited and artificial literature, or to a few other speakers and correspondents. You want a vast and undelayed expansion of your contacts.

If there is to be a common language it must be a simplified, but not denatured, form of one of the world's existing major languages. That would give the learner immediate access to innumerable speakers. It would lead into the parent language and so give the learned—up to the limit of his capacities—admission to a vast literature. Being part of the major language, it would take from it the resourcefulness and interdependence, the hard-won mutual adjustment of its parts, needed if it is to serve the general purposes of mankind....

The world's need for a common language will quite certainly be augmented beyond measure in the very near future. The airplanes of tomorrow will see to that. So will the resultant needs for world-wide controls of all kinds—sanitary, economic, commercial—and for the supply and distribution of information and news. We are only at the beginning of the reporting age. All this will call for (is already calling for) an immediately available common language. And the most immediately available language is English. Furthermore, English is in many ways the language best suited to the task. It is not merely prevalent, but it is prevalent for good reasons.—From "Basic English and Its Uses," by I. A. Richards. (New York: Norton.)

New Zealand's War Role

(N.Z. WASHINGTON BUREAU)

SOME significant facts about the gallant part New Zealand is playing in the war is shown in a document issued by the New Zealand Legation in Washington and published herewith:

New Zealand ground forces are now in action in the South Pacific, side by side with Americans in the main drive through the Solomons towards Rabaul.

New Zealand infantry, including veterans from the Middle East, played the major role in the taking of Vella Lavella Island.

This fact has been announced in Wellington, New Zealand. It was stated, "New Zealand forces on Vella Lavella have been in contact with the enemy and have played the major role in the taking of this island."

New Zealand's role in the South Pacific war has until this action in Vella Lavella, been played by her air forces, which have operated from the Solomons since October, 1942, and by her naval units, which have operated with American task forces since the earliest days of the Pacific war.

The main New Zealand ground forces were concentrated partly in the Middle East where the New Zealand division under Sir Bernard Freyberg, V.C., played a leading role in the Eighth Army, and partly as essential garrison troops in the main South Pacific islands. It was not until recently, as more American troops arrived in the South Pacific, and as the Japanese threat to the islands lying along the Pacific supply lines was lessened, that the New Zealand ground forces in the Pacific could be concentrated into a fighting division for offensive operations against the Japanese.

New Zealand had, however, always wanted to play as full a part in the ground fighting in the Pacific as she had done in the Middle East.

The New Zealand Prime Minister, the Right Hon. Peter Fraser, on October 9, 1942, said: "We in New Zealand visualize our role in Pacific strategy as an offensive one."

Mr. Walter Nash, the New Zealand Minister to the United States, speaking last February in New York, said: "We want to see a blitz against Japan that will knock her out of the war the moment such a blitz becomes a strategic possibility, and we want to play our full part in that action."

The present New Zealand Pacific forces have Major-General H. E. Barrowclough, D.S.O., as their commanding officer. General Barrowclough served with the New Zealand forces in the Middle East, in Greece, Crete, and Libya, where he commanded the famous New Zealand 6th Infantry Brigade. He was recalled early in 1942 to lead the New Zealand forces in the Pacific Islands. A number of his officers are also Middle East veterans. The division has been training hard for months and has been very anxious to get into the fight in the South Pacific.

Squadrons of the New Zealand Air Force have been operating from Henderson Field in the Solomons since 1942. During a recent month one New Zealand fighter squadron destroyed at least 22 Japanese aircraft. The New Zealand cruisers Achilles and Leander have served with distinction in actions in the South Pacific with American task forces.

Off Guadalcanal in January, 1943, two 530-ton New Zealand corvettes Kiwi and Moa, fought a gallant and successful action with a 1,600-ton Japanese submarine, which returned fire with her 5.5-inch gun. After three rammings by Kiwi the submarine was wrecked.

The Moa has since been lost in action off the Solomon Islands.

Letter To The Editor

A MEAN TRICK

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—On Saturday October 23 our phone rang at 11:30 p.m. and upon answering we were told that Long Distance was calling from Toronto. We have had a son in the R.C.A.F. for over two and one-half years. He was attached to 'Ferry Command' for a long time as wireless mechanic but, for a year at least has been on 'beam' installations and inspection. His work has taken him out of the country, and over North and South America. We have seen him for only a few hours last New Year's. He enlisted before he was eighteen and he has always been much in our thoughts.

When the above mentioned call came a voice said "Emile Armstrong calling." You can imagine how his mother felt, getting up to hear her son's voice—how his sister and brothers, and myself (his father) felt. We all remarked how his voice sounded so young and unlike our son's voice. He remarked he had a cold and had just landed in Toronto from South America and would be there for only a few hours. He bid us good-bye.

Ten or fifteen minutes later the phone rang and a young boy's voice said that it was not our son calling—that it was a boy going to St. Peter's High School who had called. Ha! Ha!

Imagine the effect of this practical joke on all of us, particularly the mother. We called Central and they could not trace the call and informed us there had been no long distance to us from Toronto.

If you could write an editorial on this mean type of joke perhaps parents who read it could warn their children and save parents some of the heart-ache of this war.

Thanking you in advance, I am, Sincerely,

EDW. R. ARMSTRONG.

Peterborough, October 25.

School Discipline

Many of our more modern educational theories seem to be relegating discipline to a secondary place. There is something of a mania for "self-determination" on the part of the young, and in the hands of fanatics—and our school system cannot claim entire freedom from these—it can be carried to ridiculous extremes.

Premier Drew believes that pupils should be kept under control and that obedience should be forced on them if necessary. It may be an old-fashioned view, but thousands of splendid men and women are products of an era in which the teacher was the boss in the school room and no child ever challenged his authority with impunity.—Windsor Star.

THIS WAS MY BROTHER
AT DIEPPE,
QUIETLY A HERO
WHO GAVE HIS LIFE
LIKE A GIFT, WITHHOLDING NOTHING.

HIS YOUTH . . . HIS LOVE . . .
HIS ENJOYMENT OF BEING ALIVE . . .
HIS FUTURE, LIKE A BOOK
WITH HALF THE PAGES STILL UNCUT—

THIS WAS MY BROTHER
AT DIEPPE—
THE ONE WHO BUILT ME A DOLL HOUSE
WHEN I WAS SEVEN,
COMPLETE TO THE LAST SMALL PICTURE FRAME,
NOTHING FORGOTTEN.

HE WAS AWFULLY GOOD AT FIXING THINGS,
AT STEPPING INTO THE BREACH WHEN HE WAS NEEDED.

THAT'S WHAT HE DID AT DIEPPE;
HE WAS NEEDED.
AND EVEN DEATH MUST HAVE BEEN A LITTLE SHAMED
AT HIS EAGERNESS!

SHORTAGE OF VETERANS GIVE COACH HAP DAY HOCKEY HEADACHE

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Most fans are going to Brock St. Arena tonight wondering just what is going to happen in the main bout between Palermo John Katan and Gentleman Jack Clayborne. Much is going to depend upon this new referee, Tommy Nelson, formerly of Ireland. If Nelson rules that Katan's favorite hold, the unconscious chin lock is merely a strangehold in disguise and orders the Panther to cut it out there will be plenty of trouble with Katan who is likely to blow his top if robbed of his pet bit of strategy. On the other hand if the new referee follows Bert Maxwell's example and permits Katan to get away with the chin lock strangle or strangle chin lock or whatever it is, it will probably spell curtains for Clayborne and cause a demonstration of protest from the large section of local fandom who pull for the Black Comet in season and out. In any event the battle promises to supply plenty of action and thrills, no matter who wins and no one will be surprised if the thing blows up into another storm before the winner is finally decided—or perhaps afterward. As for the preliminaries they, too, should provide a few surprises for the fans. Rowdy Dick Hogan will undoubtedly have thought up some to use against Freddy Steele and Flight Sergt. Ted Miller who has learned a lot of new commando stuff since he joined the Tunney circus will probably make it hot for long Joe Christie. With the rink comfortably heated and a red-hot bill scheduled the attendance should be about the biggest of the season.

Rich Jackson's Colts who have been practicing faithfully and have been showing good form in their workouts expect to be seen in action here Saturday when the Lindsay Bears, a football squad representing the Lindsay Arsenal will be here for an exhibition game to be played at Riverside Park. The Lindsay outfit has some experienced rugby performers in the lineup and they expect to provide plenty of opposition for the Peterborough squad, some of whom will be playing their first game of organized rugby. Jackson has a nucleus of youngsters who learned the game in the interscholastic series including Bob Crowe, Red Outram and Tommy Craig who played rugby at Peterborough Collegiate and Bill Edgar who formerly performed in the uniform of Bowmanville High in the Lake Shore group. One of the rookies upon whom the Colts are counting largely on is Joe Stewart of basketball and softball fame. Stewart has been working out at flying wing and it is not surprising that he is showing great promise as a pass receiver. Softball fans who saw him covering acres of ground in centre field this summer for the 4th Battery will realize that in football he is proving equally adept in gathering in long tosses. Rugby fans will welcome the opportunity to see some action on the football front at Riverside Park this Saturday.

An Important Meeting

It is to be hoped that all the local hockey players and officials as well as any others who are interested in hockey will be on hand Wednesday night when the annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held at 8 o'clock in the Duffus' Board Room. The fate of O.H.A. hockey in Peterborough this season will be decided at that gathering so that is of vital importance that everyone who is interested should be present to state his views on this all-important matter. Obviously if the decision is to remain out of O.H.A. hockey this season that seals the fate of the game so far as local participation in the Ontario series is concerned for the duration and until such time afterward as it takes to provide Peterborough with a modern arena. That is a matter that deserves a lot of consideration and it should not be determined by a hand-

Expect More Wrestling In Main Bout

With the new referee, Irish Tommy Nelson, on the job, Gentleman Jack Clayborne and his bitterest mat rival John Katan hit the deck in the Brock Arena tonight. It is expected that anything can happen, and probably will. This is the final bout between those two unpredictables and, under the restrictive hand of Referee Nelson, more wrestling and finally a definite superiority by one or the other is looked for. Clayborne proved beyond all doubt last week that, once he is thoroughly roused, he can be a veritable tornado. In that bout he really ran amok and certainly showed himself capable of trampling under, not only Katan but half the audience as well. If he starts off that way "Killer" Katan may be turned into a nervous kitten instead of the "Palermo Panther" he is so fond of being called. Anyway they'll be at it along about ten o'clock this evening and this is one we wouldn't miss. And in spite of his reputation, we don't envy Referee Tommy Nelson his officiating chores.

In the other two matches on this professional wrestling card Bunny Dunlop meets Fred Steele and Joey Christie grapples with Ted Miller.

Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

It's just about unanimous now Coach Frank Boucher of New York Rangers says he believes the new red line at centre ice will improve National Hockey League competition by preventing power-play tactics of previous seasons. Adding his voice to approval expressed by other N.H.L. coaches and managers, Boucher declares teams will forsake the shinny of corner scramble plays because attacking defencemen will be forced to remain behind the rival blueline. At the same time, Boucher says, pretty passing plays should be revived.

Coach Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks says he has only one major worry — whether amateur goalkeepers Hec Highton, 19, of Vancouver, and Clem Harnedy, formerly of Southern California University, will stand up under pressure of the professional game.

Mud Gets Two.

Modere (Mud) Bruneteau, veteran captain of Detroit Red Wings, scored two goals last night as the Stanley Cup champions thumped Indianapolis Capitols 8-5 at Toledo. George Defelice of Timmins, Ont., scored one of the Indianapolis tallies.

Manager Jack Adams says he intends to keep 18 or 19 players on hand in Detroit. Four or five of them—termed by Adams his "swing shift" players—will not be able to play on the road because of war jobs in Detroit.

"Our home team and our road team may look far different," he said. "It's certain we'll have forward lines playing at home which will be different from the ones we'll be able to ice on the road."

Comes For Tryout.

Montreal officials said last night they expect Bobby Walton to arrive to-day from Ottawa for a tryout with Canadiens. Walton formerly played with Quebec Senior League clubs, with Kirkland Lake Blue Devils and with Sydney Millionaires of the Cape Breton Amateur League.

Defencemen Otto Heller, veteran of 12 N.H.L. seasons with Rangers, says shoulder injuries are the most common type of hurt suffered by pro rearguards. Even the best of pads are little help in preventing this type of injury. They guard against shin bruises but not against torn ligaments, fractures or sprains.

New York announced that Ken McAuley, 21 year old Edmonton athlete, has been given the nod for the Ranger goal job. He'll make his debut against Leafs Saturday night in Toronto.

Toronto Leafs Look Anaemic Minus Star Players

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 26. —(CP).—Boy! Whistle up an aspirin for Happy Day. His headache is pretty bad.

But never mind the ice pack! Coach Clarence (Hap) Day's cranium is throbbing much less than before Babe Pratt and Mel Hill got rejection papers from the Army and moved into Toronto Maple Leafs hockey camp.

Before arrival of the 27-year-old Pratt and Hill, 29, only three veterans of National League play were in camp here—Lorne Carr 23, and a couple of 31 year old stake runners named Bucko McDonald and Bob Davidson.

Nevertheless the coach can still be seen moping in the corners occasionally as the familiar training quarters conjure up memories of some fair journeyman players who wore Leaf livery only last year but who now wear the King's uniform, laddies like Syl Apps, Sweeney Schriner, Billy Taylor, Turk Broda, Hank Goldup, Bud Poile, Gaye Stewart, Bobby Copp.

Take away stars like that and the heavens look a bit anaemic but Day's skies are not all gray. He has the three Jacks, McLean, Hamilton and Ingoldsby, and Defenceman George Bootham, all of whom saw service with Leafs last season. And he has at least five rookies who seem of major leagle timber. These are Ross Johnstone, Elwin Morris, Gus Bodnar, Ted Kennedy and Red Carr. The rest are youngsters who may run hot or cold.

Has the Makings.

Bodnar is likely to make the long jump from Fort William juniors to centre Lorne Carr and Davidson on Leafs' "big" line. Only 20 and an army reject, Bodnar shows uncanny hockey sense.

There's an over-abundance of right wingers so Day figures he'll use Hill either at centre or left wing. Hill, in fact, is the club's utility man. Chances are he'll centre one line and Hamilton another. Jackie, though only 17, did well when he replaced Apps last winter.

One right winger is sure to be Kennedy, 17 year old scoring sensation of last season's Port Colborne senior club. Another will be either Jackie McLean, University student available only for home games, or Ingoldsby, another Toronto product whose physical status is under review by the army.

Leafs' big question mark is in goal. A team is only as good as its goalie and Day can't say yet how good that will be. He will try two Owen Sound boys, Benny Grant, 35, who made a cook's tour of the minors in 14 years of professional play; and Don Sutherland, 18, a standout with Owen Sound intermediates last season. Sutherland has looked best in practice but Grant has the experience and will get the first call.

Some other players, all teen-aged, are still under consideration including three Ontario boys Centres Ken Schultz of Preston and Johnny Ubriaco of Sault Ste Marie and Left Winger Dol Prentice of Timmins.

The team actually looks impressive in practice. Day's headache is easing.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS SETTLE EAST-WEST RUGBY TITLE IN GERMANY

Leo Durocher To Manage Dodgers Again

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—President Branch Rickey today dispelled the fog obscuring Leo Durocher's future with the Brooklyn Baseball Club by announcing that the peppery pilot again will manage the Dodgers in 1944.

The contract is for one year, and is to manage only. The terms were not disclosed, but Durocher said "it is the best contract I've ever had since I've been in baseball." Rickey himself, in response to a suggestion that the document, which replaces a player-manager contract Durocher had this year, called for a substantial salary cut, warned that he wouldn't advise any one to "go out on a limb on that."

The announcement, made at a press conference, terminated Durocher's mugwump status of the last month. Rickey released him from the player-manager contract late in the season with the explanation that he wanted to be free to negotiate with Durocher as a free agent. Since then rumors were heard to the effect that Durocher was through as a Dodger.

Rickey said Durocher had not approached him concerning a 1944 contract, and that he himself had not considered any one else, although he later admitted he had talked at length to Bill Terry, whom he said he greatly admires, and Terry might have gained the impression he would be considered for the job if Durocher was not rehired.

Rickey also said the gambling situation in the club, which had been the big problem faced in the hiring of Durocher for 1943, did not enter the picture this year, as he felt that Durocher did a thorough job of cleaning up that situation himself.

Asked if he felt that Durocher could regain the control and confidence of the players, which appeared to be slipping from his grasp following the Bobo Newsom incident last summer, Rickey said he was "terribly hopeful he can," and added that he had talked to all the players except one personally.

Durocher summoned to the conference, said he was certain he could settle any differences he might have with players before next season, and that with the exception of one unnamed man he liked every player.

TORONTO, Oct. 26 — (CP). — Calgary Navy in the Alberta Service Senior League may have one of the top lines of amateur hockey this season. Sweeney Schriner and Doug Cairns already are stationed there and Pete Atkinson is reported on the verge of enlisting. Cairns and Atkinson, both North Battleford products, have been sought by professional clubs for years.... An axiom of hockey is that a team is only as good as its goalkeeper and, for that reason, the experts are reluctant to forecast the result of the National League race this year. They're waiting to see how the rookie goalkeepers turn out because it's almost certain that each club will have a newcomer in the nets.

Tar dust:

If Victoria Navy lands Eddie Wares of Detroit Red Wing fame the Tars will have a right smart hockey team. Eddie is with the Sea Cadet Corps at Calgary and Victoria seeks his transfer....Other Victoria Navy notables include Leo Reise, Alton McGadzen, Jack Tomson, Chuck Rayner, Glenn Richardson, Hal Brown, Gordon Petrie, Bernie Strongman, Murdo McKay, Gib Nordin, Joe McArthur, Charlie Kraiger, Jack McLeod, and Church Russell. Reise, incidentally, is the 21-year-old son of the former Saskatoon and New York Americans player.

Tuesday topics:

Al Hoptowit, Washington State College lineman who played football for Calgary Bronks before the war, is regular right tackle for the Chicago Bears in the National Professional League...Tony Graboski, the one-eyed whirlwind who had a short term in the N.H.L., now is with the U.S. Army Chemical Corps in Louisiana....Phil Edwards, Canada's great Olympic runner who has been practising medicine in Trinidad, is back in Montreal seeking enlistment in the Canadian armed forces.....A. G. (Scotty) Kennedy, 1942 secretary of the Winnipeg Football Club and owner of the 37-cent filly, Omar's Gift, has enlisted in the Army.... Ever hear of the boy power shortage? Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning predicts every bowling team soon will include an official sixth or extra man—to set pins.

Thorpe Seeking College Position

SHAWNEE, Okla., Oct. 26—(AP).—Jim Thorpe, Oklahoma's great Indian athlete of yesteryear, disclosed today his longing for a berth in the athletic department of the University of Oklahoma.

"I want to help the state any way I can and I could do so there better than any other place," he declared.

Thorpe recently returned to Shawnee, his old stamping grounds, to be near his boys who are attending Indian schools in the state. His home recently had been in Detroit.

He has been offered a number of jobs in Oklahoma. But, he said, his heart is still in sports.

The Olympic victor and all-time football great said he would remain here no matter what kind of a job he gets as long as it is "suitable in a financial way" to permit him to be near his sons.

Essex Scottish Capture Softball Crown

By The Canadian Press

The East vs. West gridiron championship of the year has already been decided and there is no need for the Prairie challengers to come to Toronto to meet R.C.A.F. Hurricanes or Hamilton Flying Wildcats or, perhaps the team from the Quebec unit for the Dominion honors. All of this is another way of saying the issue was settled recently in Germany when Canadian prisoners of war organized a classic of their own—with the pigskin-chasers of Western Canada winning by the close score of 13-12. This was revealed yesterday when repatriated Canadian soldiers arrived at Leith, Scotland, in the exchange for so-many Nazis.

The returning Canucks also recounted there was no faster softball league anywhere than had been conducted in the prisoner-of-war establishments. Pte. Joe Brenner of Windsor, Ont., brought out the fact that the fastball title had been captured by Essex Scottish with whom he was serving when he fell into the hands of the enemy at Dieppe more than 14 months ago.

Only three or four of the 17 eligible horses are expected to line up next Saturday at Baltimore for the $25,000 Pimlico Special because but seven of the qualifying thoroughbreds are now in training and only four are in Maryland. The field will include Shut Out, Thumbs Up and Anticlimax.

Starts Tonight

The opening of the American Hockey League at Cleveland tonight between Barons and Pittsburgh Hornets will be a war benefit game with $1,000 of the gate to be donated to the Dieppe Relief Fund of Windsor, Ont., and the balance to the Cleveland Stage Door Canteen.

President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers announced last night at New York that all is forgiven with respect to Leo Durocher and the latter had signed a one-year contract to manage the team once more. Durocher exclaimed it was the best contract he'd ever signed.

The South African WAAFS defeated the U.S. Army Nurses in a women's softball game 7-3 in far-off Cairo, Egypt, yesterday before a noisy crowd of Allied troops.

Gracie Undecided

Bob Gracie, Toronto veteran of the N.H.L. and more recently in American League competition, declared last night he was sitting tight of an offer to play with the Pittsburgh Hornest because of lack of information on how much would be sliced from his salary for U.S. income taxation. He formerly starred for Leafs and Maroons.

The race for the scoring leadership of the Ontario Rugby Football Union series appears to have settled down to a two-way battle between Annis Stukus of Toronto Balmy Beach and Joe Krol of Hamilton Flying Wildcats. Scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Stukus increased his lead over Krol in the last week from two points to seven. The big Beach quarterback scored 16 points in two games to bring his season's total to 46 while Krol added 11 in two games for a total of 39.

Notre Dame continues to head the Associated Press' weekly poll of football specialists to determine the top college team, it was announced at New York last night. Army and Navy were the choice for second and third, followed by Purdue, Southern California, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Duke, Iowa Pre-Flight and College of Pacific.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 26— (AP). — Chalk up another score for Deacon Branch Rickey....Plenty of baseball club presidents have tried to take the sting out of a disappointing season by firing the manager, but the Branch that grows in Brooklyn is the first one to figure out how to fire the manager and still keep him....Rickey gave Leo Durocher the heavo-ho as player-manager just before the Bums staggered home at the end of the season, allowed a month for the fans to argue about a new manager and to remember that Leo never led the Dodgers any lower than third in his five seasons, and then took his right back again without the "player" tag....That probably proves Rickey prefers a manager who generally is in hot water to one who might never get hot.

To-day's guest star:

Hank Wolfe, Richmond (Va.) News-Leader: "Don't tell me that schoolboy footballers aren't war-conscious. We ballyhooed a local prep game with full force recently because it matched two undefeated teams. One player, after scanning a few writeups, muttered: 'All that stuff is just propaganda for the opposition.'"

Laughing Latins:

During the recent Pan-American tennis tournament at Mexico City, Referee Ernesto Lopez, who distinguished himself by calling foot faults against the visiting players, started exchanging wisecracks in English with the players during an exhibition match between Pancho Segura and Pauline Betz and Jack Kramer and Berta Garcia ....The results were so hilarious that Bera, a chubby little girl from Havana, laughed so hard she could not serve and the spectators were more than a trifle puzzled.

Half-Way Flag Passes In Victory Loan

Three days ahead of schedule, Peterborough opened on Monday the second week of its Fifth Victory Loan campaign by passing the half way flag with total subscriptions of $2,443,500 of its $4,600,000 objective, equivalent to 53.12 per cent. Obviously, if the city and county can maintain that momentum down the back stretch to the turn for home, —but, with $2,156,500 still to be invested, it is better perhaps to wait until the chickens are out of the shells.

Returns from the Peterborough employees' canvass was another big help to the Loan cause yesterday as its aggregate for seven days advanced from $461,450 to $664,100, a gain of $202,650 in that division, and a corresponding advance in the percentage column from 48.57 to 69.91.

The Bond buyers in the city's industries are more than two-thirds of the way along their course, and their composite record is not yet complete.

The Special Names committee contributed an increase of $25,000 for their day's effort for 75.67 per cent of their objective.

At the same time city and county subscribers combined for a day's gain of $97,750.

Asphodel Second

While Smith was holding its leadership in the county, Asphodel strode up into second place, with Havelock third, North Monaghan fourth and Belmont-Methuen staying up with the leaders in fifth position. Otonabee added 13.5 to its percentage as the township with the biggest rural objective moved into the sixth spot.

Other percentage gains in the county list were as follows in the Monday report: Havelock 15.53 points; Belmont-Methuen 9.8; Dummer 7.95; Douro 7.86 and North Monaghan 2 points.

City Teams' Standing

Gordon Monkman's team with 55.2% was still leading the eight groups of city canvassers as the seventh day of the drive closed.

Charlies Ray's team was second with 43.58% and Ken Smylie is captain of third team with 35.18%. The others were as follows: W. J. Hamilton, fourth, 32.1%; Alex Sollitt, fifth, 31.62%; E. G. Pridham, sixth, 31.33%; Charlie Elliott, seventh, 29.55%; and Norman Hamley, eighth, 26.25%.

Leading in the individual sales report last night was J. Curtis $16,850; followed by Victor Tully, $16,700; James Skinner, $12,400; W. E. Metheral, $11,400; Stanley Darling, $8,250.

And the leading salesmen in the county were: Gordon Hancock, Smith, $28,150; J. Henderson, Otonabee, $23,800; T. P. Lancaster, Havelock, $13,250; A. I. Edmison, Smith, $12,550.

Seventh Day Summary

The summary of the returns from the city and county for the first seven days of the Victory Loan, reading across the column, in order, objective, amount subscribed and percentage.

Claxton Urges Post War Tariff Ceiling

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (CP). —A ceiling on tariffs was advocated today by Brooke Claxton, Canadian Member of Parliament, as a means of ensuring post-war economic prosperity.

In a speech to the National Foreign Trade convention, Mr. Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the latter's capacity as president of the Privy Council of Canada, outlined a two-point program "to meet the challenge of peace."

He said the requirements were security at home and abroad, saying 'freedom from fear and freedom from want must be translated into legislative terms," and stability.

"We need a ceiling on tariffs and multilateral progressive reduction of restrictions supplemented by bilateral action particularly between contiguous or closely associated countries," said Claxton.

Personal Views

He told the convention he was voicing his own views rather than those of the Canadian government.

"A multilateral agreement imposing a ceiling on tariffs and progressive reduction of restrictions by agreed stages would of course involve effective agreements to prevent the competition of subsidized goods and would leave it open to countries which wished to go below the agreed levels."

He said Canada had a vital interest in the growth of trade on a multilateral basis, due to "the specialization of our resources and our dependence on marketing our surplus products abroad in order to keep our population employed and to obtain the wherewithal we required to maintain a decent standard of living."

Claxton said during the war Canada and the United States had achieved a degree of co-operation never seen before between two countries.

True Co-operation

"This year we are buying from the United States $1,350,000,000. We are selling to the United States $1,087,000,000. Canada has become the largest producer of materials of war and probably the largest per capita producer of food and raw materials for the United Nations."

He said efforts to reconstruct a workable economic system in Canada are likely to be successful only to the extent that a high level of employment and a high level of income are maintained after the war.

Claxton declared that after the war creditor countries wishing to continue to export on a larger scale and to avoid reorganizing the whole structure of their economies must be prepared to provide other countries with means of payment by increasing their imports.

Yugoslav Army 2nd Corps, but were sharply repulsed. The communique said, with 250 officers and men being killed. Widespread local fighting was reported from other fronts.

Bad Blood

The Free Yugoslav radio has repeatedly charged that Yugoslav patriots fighting under General Draja Mihailovic, field commander for King Peter, have joined with the Nazis in fighting Tito's Partisans and cited several clashes around the Montenegrin border in which units of Mihailovic's army were allegedly identified as being brigaded with the Germans.

Cairo dispatches yesterday quoted a radio message from Mihailovic in which he countered with a charge that Tito's Partisans were not only attacking his army but that Tito had claimed victories over the Germans for which his men alone were responsible. The message was issued through King Peter's government in Cairo.

This is the first time that Mihailovic, who also holds the rank of Minister of War in the Yugoslav Government headed by King Peter, has personally disputed claims of the Free Yugoslav radio although King Peter's spokesmen in London have condemned its communiques as exaggerated and misleading.

"V" Flags Are Awarded Employees Of The C.G.E. And Genelco Works

V flags with three stars attached are flying from the mastheads to-day of the Canadian General Electric plant and the Genelco plant. These flags were presented at short ceremonies held on Monday afternoon immediately following the five o'clock whistle.

The flags proclaim the fact that both the C.G.E. employees and the Genelco employees had obtained in a period of six days the sum of $575,000 subscribed for the Fifth Victory Loan. The objective had been set at $500,000, but the employees rallied so splendidly to the cause that they went $75,000 over their objective, and when the complete returns are in this may go a few thousand dollars higher.

The flags also proclaim, Ian McRae, works maanger of the two organizations said, that the employees are not only working for victory in their own field of endeavor, but are also in the top flight of companies "Serving by Saving" through the payroll plan purchase of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates.

"The flag is evidence that you employees fully support the payroll savings plan and rank among the leading companies across Canada in its operation. It is a flag to be flown with pride.

"The public," declared Mr. McRae, "will become familiar with the V award and its significance, and I want to express my thanks to all those who worked so faithfully in putting this campaign across, and to the employees for rallying behind the drive."

The flag denotes that 90 per cent or more of theemployees are investing 12½ per cent or more of the monthly payroll in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates.

The splendid band of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps from Camp Borden, which is spending the week in this city and district, was on hand to play several selections. The first ceremony took place on the lawn in front of the C.G.E. and while several thousand employees were gathering the band played a group of numbers. Mr. McRae made the presentation speech, the band played "O Canada," the flag was run to the top of the masthead, and the band played "God Save the King" to conclude the ceremony.

The band then paraded to the Genelco section of the works where the same ceremony was repeated.

Turkey Anxious As 3 Envoys Talk In Moscow

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 26—(AP) —The Turkish press and public are watching with keen interest the three-power conference taking place in Moscow to see how, if at all, Turkish neutrality will be affected by the decisions of the representatives of Great Britain, the United States and Russia.

Newspaper editorials have almost unanimously expressed the belief the conference bodes ill for the Germans, but have avoided any analysis of its eventual effects on Turkey.

Turkish public opinion seems to fall into three distinct categories.

One group, which is distrustful of Germany and Russia alike, feels the conference may pave the way for an invasion of the Balkans.

A second section, the largest, believes the success of the conference would mean the elimination of German influence in Eastern Europe, knocking out of consideration Germany's wishes in the formation of Turkish policy. This group believes, however, the conference will have few immediately significant results.

There is also an insignificant group, which said that the conference would never be held in the first place and which now predicts it will deal only with supplies and equipment. It also sings the familiar Nazi tune the conference may sell out Europe to Bolshevik expansion.

Lancashire Cotton Industry Worries About Its Future

By PROF. JAMES A. ROY

(Editor's Note: Following is the 23rd in a series of articles written for The Examiner by Prof. James A. Roy of Queen's University, Kingston, on wartime conditions in Britain.)

When, some time ago I suggested that there was no regional point of view in Britain and that the war effort was a total one, what I said may have been unintentionally misleading. It is true that the British war effort is a total one but most of the basic industries of Britain have their anxieties with regard to the future. I instanced the case of Scotland and what is being done to ensure, as far as possible, a continuance of the industrial prosperity which the country is experiencing in wartime. The other day I had lunch with the vice-chancellor of Liverpool University and with some prominent Lancashire business men. The vice-chancellor assured me, and the others who were present agreed with him, that only two professions or perhaps three were assured of full employment in the post-war reconstruction period — dentists, teachers and solicitors. The solicitors are assured of employment because of the vast increase in government legislation which has to be untangled by the trained legal mind.

Vast shipping centres which, before the war were almost distressed areas, have regained lost prestige and are one hundred per cent busy. It is perfectly amazing what I have been shown. Shipping centres have become manufacturing centres. But, what of the future?

The future of the cotton industry gives the men of Manchester much cause for anxiety. Today that incredibly "blitzed" city is working at full blast. But what of the future? That was the question I heard in Lancashire. The cotton workers, and cotton workers who are doing more immediate war work have no faith in Utopian promises for the future. They are like the miners and the jute workers and the shipbuilders; like the farmers too. They are afraid and are not timid about saying what is in their minds, that after the war there will be an industrial slump and that unemployment and misery will be the common portion of the worker whose skill is so urgently needed just now.

The president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, in his presidential address last February, put the problem of the Lancashire cotton industry succinctly in these words:

"To sum up, therefore, I have tried to stress three main issues. First, that we should continue to hammer at the point that cotton should have a prominent place in the Government's plans for post-war trade recovery. Secondly, that before we are able to take full advantage of arrangements ultimately made to that end, there is much to do within the industry to put our house in order; and thirdly, that we have yet to find the most ideal method or methods to ensure what I have termed a reasonable volume of export trade for Lancashire goods. . . .

"The objective we all have in mind is clear. We want to find the means whereby mass unemployment can be avoided in the future. In my judgment it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of this question. . . . It is encouraging to have some indication that the Government, although the conduct and direction of the war must be the first consideration, is devoting time and study to this matter."

The president went on to discuss the proposals brought forward by the foreign secretary for the reform of the foreign service.

"The measures envisaged are comprehensive in character and will answer a great many of the proposals put to the Government by trade and industry from time to time. . . . We have consistently pressed for a widening of the scope for entrants to the services and have repeatedly urged the importance of our representatives abroad being more intimately acquainted and concerned with questions affecting British trade and industry.

In the vote of thanks to the president the Lord Mayor of Man-

They went into action Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. They hit their quota Friday morning, and at noon Saturday they were all through with total subscription of 131% of the plant's objective. Any comment on that performance would be superfluous.

Canvass was carried on by a plant committee, and obviously they did not waste any time in getting things going.

And a summary of their action is as follows: C. P. C. . . . objective $27,150; total subscriptions $35,600, representing 131% of what the plant was asked to subscribe. And there is the further feature that 96 per cent of employees are Victory Bond investors.

Juveniles Grace Court On Theft Counts

A twelve-year-old boy whose father is overseas and whose mother did not put in an appearance at the hearing pleaded guilty in juvenile court here Monday afternoon to a series of charges involving recent breaks-ins in Peterborough.

The lad who was formerly in the Bowmanville Boys' School admitted breaking into the C.P.R. freight sheds, into a C.P.R. refrigerator car, into the Johnson Motors premises in the Duffus building and into the Weston Bread Company, as well as to the theft of a bicycle.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. sentenced him to the Bowmanville School for an indefinite period.

A nine-year-old Peterborough boy was charged with breaking and entering a residence and committing theft but was remanded to the Shelter until his parents could be notified to attend the hearing.

This little fellow had pleaded guilty some time ago to a series of sneak thieving counts and at that time the cases had been adjourned for a month to see how he behaved himself on a farm to which he was sent too.

Now he is charged with a similar offence.

Quaker Company Over Top

Although they reached their objective last Friday morning, the employees of Quaker Oats Company have kept the ball rolling to the 113 per cent mark, and even with a Victory flag raising this afternoon at five o'clock they have not yet decided to say that they are all through for this campaign.

The Quaker staff were asked to accept a quota of $48,000, and today their subscriptions stood at $54,200, or 113 per cent.

And 98 per cent of their employees have bought the new Bonds of the Fifth Victory Loan.

The big mill was divided between twenty-four Victory Bond salesmen and women and the fine work they have done is to a considerable extent a credit to their organization for the Loan. However, reports from the cereal plant say the employees made a spontaneous response, and had every last goal in sight by Thursday night.

Friday morning bowled the quota over, and since then the campaign has continued to spread some thick icing on the cake.

The Victory Flag raising this evening at 5 o'clock is an honor that is paid to industrial groups who contribute in Bonds and with a certain percentage on the payroll savings plan.

Rappaport Freed On Suspended Sentence

Marcus Rappaport, Toronto, was allowed to go on suspended sentence in police court Monday afternoon after he had pleaded guilty to two charges of having obtained money under false pretences, the amount in each case being $10.

When S. Goldstone was called to give evidence in the first case he stated that the accused had asked him to cash a cheque for $10 and asked him to hold it for a few days until he would have money in a Toronto bank.

"That would not be false pretences at all," declared Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. "However he has pleaded guilty."

On the second charge of obtaining $10 from the Meyers Studio under false pretences Bert Krugel stated that he had cashed a cheque for Rappaport and there had been no funds in the bank to cover it.

Rappaport agreed as a condition of probation to make restitution and to pay $10 for police expenses involved in bringing him to Peterborough.

Allan Marshall Overseas

PO. Allan Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Marshall, Reid Street, well known as an athlete here, has arrived overseas. He received his training at Toronto, Goderich and Camp Borden and graduated at the end of July. He was the Canadian 200-yards breast stroke champion in 1940 and 1942 and holds the Canadian record of 2 minutes 33 4-10 seconds for 200 yards which he set at Verdun, Que., in 1940. Before enlisting, PO. Marshall worked in the drafting department of the C.G.E.

Lakefield Man Facing Theft Charge

Evidence of sled marks in the snow featured the hearing in police court this morning on a charge against Hilliard Crowe of Lakefield of breaking and entering the plant of the Brown Canoe Company, Lakefield, in February, 1940, and stealing a number of tools.

Crowe who pleaded not guilty to the charge was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Mrs. Kathleen Brown, owner of the property, said that she had been away from Lakefield during the winter of 1939-40 returning in the Spring. At that time she had learned that the canoe factory had been broken into and some tools stolen. Mrs. Brown said that she could not positively identify the electric jointer and jointer knives produced in court as those taken from the factory but they were similar.

Lance Corp. Ivan S. Clements, now a soldier at Camp Borden, testified that he had been looking after Mrs. Brown's property during the winter in question. One morning in February he had accompanied Constable Wallace Hendren of Lakefield to the factory and noticed that the rear door which usually was shut tight was open a few inches at the bottom and looking through snow could be seen inside. Witness said that the padlock and hasp on the door had not been disturbed. Inspecting the building inside Clements stated that he noticed that the tool box seemed to be in a different position.

Saw Sled Marks

The witness said that he had seen foot prints and sled marks leading to the back door of the factory. There were marks as if the sled had been left leaning against the wall.

The building was all right two days before when he inspected it witness stated.

Mr. Clements swore that the opening in the door was not big enough for a human being to get through. He also said that he himself had been in the building two days before and might have carried snow in himself at that time.

Provincial Constable Wallace Hendren, now of Minden, but chief constable at Lakefield at the time of the offence complained of, told of seeing sled marks leading to the back door of the Canoe Company plant. He had investigated and when he looked inside and saw snow that looked as if it had dropped off some one's boots he had called Clements and they had inspected the building. The night before, he said, he had seen Crowe on the street some distance away from the Canoe Company plant.

To Mr. Carley, Constable Hendren said that he had searched Crowe's house in February and again in April after the return of Mrs. Brown and failed to find on either occasion anything that had been stolen from the Brown Canoe Company.

The case is proceeding.

Training Centre To Take Part In Loan Parade

Peterborough is going to hear some martial music, other than bugle bands, this week as a result of the interest displayed by Lt.-Col. Walter Bapty, the new officer in charge of the local training centre at Morrow Park.

A band of 26 pieces from the A22 Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Band at Camp Borden arrived in the city Monday afternoon and added jubilant sound to the Victory Loan flag raising event down at C.G.E.-Genelco, signifying splendid accomplishment by the employees in their response to the nation's appeal for more money to prosecute the war.

To-night there will be a Victory Loan parade if the weather holds without rain.

Soldiers March.

Warrant Officer Albert Croasdale, director of the Medical Corps Band, soldiers from the training centre and the Prince of Wales Rangers and band will take off from the armouries at 8 o'clock, over a route down George street to Charlotte, to Aylmer, Simcoe, George and Murray streets, returning to the armouries.

That is to-night at 8 o'clock.

The band is going to Keene Wednesday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock; will give a concert at Norwood at 7 p.m., and at Havelock at 8.30 p.m

Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., will be the speaker at Havelock, and moving pictures will be shown.

Thursday afternoon the visiting band with soldiers from Morrow Park are parading from the trainig centre at 2 o'clock, up George to McDonnel and should be up town about 2.30 p.m. Their route in the centre of the city will be McDonnel, Aylmer, Murray, George, Charlotte, Aylmer and south to training centre on Aylmer street.

Plants May Get Merit Flags

Considerable interest has been aroused during this Victory Loan Campaign, in the "V" Flag.

"V" Flags are recommended by the National War Finance Committee for Companies who have first—90 per cent or more of the employees investing 12½ or more of the monthly payroll in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates as at the close of the Fifth Victory Loan Campaign.

Second—The purchase and retention of Victory Bonds and the War Savings Certificates must be continuouly promoted by the company's Payroll Savings Committee.

Three - Star Companies. — To those establishments 90 per cent or more of whose employees invest 15 per cent or more of monthly payroll in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates, a special award of three stars will be made. The three stars will be affixed to the lower right-hand corner of the flag and these companies will be known as "Three-Star Companies."

The War Finance "V" award is a decoration to be displayed with pride. It proclaims the fact that the company is not only working for victory in its own field, but also is in the top flight of companies "Serving by Saving" through the payroll plan purchase of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. The award is evidence that the company's employees fully support the Payroll Savings Plan and rank among the leading companies across Canada in its successful operation.

Biddle Family All Buy Bonds

A record of 100% in the purchase of Victory Bonds is the contribution of the family of Frank Biddle, 431 Rogers street, it was reported by Lou Brooks on Alex Sollitt's team in the Victory Loan drive. Every person in the household bought bonds, repeating their performance of the Fourth Loan, and their contribution is the more remarkable in that the family is helping in other patriotic ways to "Speed the Victory." Mr. Biddle, himself a sergeant in the last war, has a son now stationed at Camp Borden, and a daughter, Eileen, who is a lieutenant in the CWAC and recently married a lieutenant in the Army. There is a grandson who is a member of the R.C.A.F. and another daughter, living in Hamilton, does war work at the Westinghouse factory while her husband serves with the Royal Canadian Engineers.

With Boys In Services

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

AW 2 Reta Toley graduated from No. 7 Manning Depot, Rockcliffe, recently, after which she was posted to Dafoe, Sask., where she begins studies in aerial photography. Prior to enlisting with the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F., she was employed in the Genelco plant. She has met many other Peterborough girls and says they enjoy being in the service very much.

An engineer's life is anything but dull, Lieut. John G. Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pierce, 492 Homewood avenue, has discovered since he went overseas. Besides the engineering, he gets some thrills out of chasing around the countryside on motorcycle trips and doing inspection jobs.

"The Navy makes things interesting by making us clear off while they have a few practice shots. They have a target, but I suspect that they are either training a bunch of raw recruits on the guns or else they are working off a grudge against us, because they have blown one of my 'jobs' pretty well to pieces."

A friend and he visited Corfe Castle, which is rich in historical lore. He wrote that although there were only a few rooms intact, the thickness of the walls, its layout, and its position were all most interesting.

The castle was built about 800 AD. he said, and in 876 the Danes landed at Swanage and swept over the peninsula and captured Wartham. Alfred the Great sallied forth from Corfe Castle in 877 and drove the Danes back to Swanage. Queen Elfreda plotted the death of her stepson at Corfe Castle. It was so strong it could stand against any attack and it was such a danger in the hands of the opposing force that Cromwell ordered its destruction.

Another old building that Lieut. Pierce visited was an Anglican Church dating back to the tenth century. The soldiers had a church service there.

Ted Moore, who has been fighting in Sicily and Italy, recently wrote to his brother Aiden in England about Africa and the letter was sent on to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Moore, 43 Frank street.

"Air mail letters are only given out here once a week and we have been too busy to do much writing. This is a pretty hot place and there is lots of war talk, but not entertainment except a show once in a while in tents or in the sun. You eat it, drink it and sleep in it.

"The water is always warm so some have been trying the champagne, and finding it not so good. The grub is out of cans, for of course food will not keep in this temperature. What the others went through who were fighting here is beyond me. Flies are bad and if you want your wine you have to drink it quickly or they will do it for you.

Tough Training

"The Arabs are very dirty and are always surrounded with flies, so that you don't know whether they are alive. The Arab 'kids' are natural shoe shiners and there is no passing them by. You either get a shine or they catch hold of your clothing and make you feel as dirty as they are.

"If you thought we were in good shape when we were in England, you should see us now. The boys look like grey hounds. If you can live through this training you are hard enough to stop a bullet."

His brother Aiden Moore, added a note about England. Looking out of the tool stores he wrote that he saw a scene with wooded hills very much like those around Chemong. The unit had just had a little excitemnet as two of the artillery's largest guns had just come in for repairs, the first to be fixed there, and the men were all there to find out how they worked.

Gum is still popular with the forces, and also with their English friends, Aiden related. He recently citement as two of the artillery's pub by playing darts with some of the "old boys." He also had an opportunity to visit an unusual beauty spot hidden away near his camp. It was a beautiful home, with tennis courts and swimming pools which had been converted into a hospital, and the only reason he discovered its existence was because he drove two patients down. Along with many of the other soldiers, he comments on the bombers sweeping overhead in waves at night, looking like minnows from the ground.

AC2 JAMES McCORMICK

A former employee of the Outboard Marine, AC2 James McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCormick, 67 James street, is at the Galt Aircraft School, having enlisted in July of this year. His brother, Stan, formerly with the C.G.E., has been overseas for 2 years. Both were Examiner carrier boys for several years.

James Hawthorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hawthorne, 163 Antrim street, has been home on leave and he returned to Toronto today to take part in the Navy show which is being put on at Massey Hall in aid of the Victory Loan. He has been in the Navy for three years, and he is a member of the troupe which will be touring the country.

Life aboard a Navy training ship in Canada is not so bad, according to Max Paterson, son of Mr. and N. L. Paterson, 748 George street, who is on the H.M.C.S. Queen in Regina. He writes that they are well supplied with equipment as they are issued everything but their coats and trousers, and they can wear it at any time. This equipment is known as "gear."

"The overalls are worn in barracks and the suite when we go ashore. This terms means when we leave the ship. When we go ashore we leave in 'liberty boats' which leave the ship twice a night. If we are late back we are penalized for being 'adrift.' The ship is divided into three watches: red, white and blue. Each watch lasts from noon one day to noon the next thus putting us on duty every third day. About all we have to do on duty is set the table and wash dishes at mealtime and clean the ships after supper. On our nights out, we have to be in by 10:15 except one night when we get a late pass until 12:30."

The day begins at 5:45 when the boys take a half hour of strenuous P.T. At 7 they breakfast, and begin the day's work at 8 o'clock Mornings and afternoons are divided into three periods of from one to 1½ hours. These periods include squad drill, rifle drill, semaphore and morse signalling, lectures on boats, knot tying, navy time and watches, recreation, swimming and school. In school all that is taught is simple English and arithmetic.

Nice Pool

"We swim once a week for about two hours at the R.C.M.P. swimming pool. It is a fine place with the pool 40 to 50 feet wide and 90 feet long and containing 3 diving boards, one 8 feet in the air. The purpose of this visit is to teach boys to swim, the rest have a good time.

"The meals are good and a canteen keeps the sailors supplied with minor necessities. Lights are turned out at 10:30 and while they have been sleeping in bunks, Max said that they were about to change over to hammocks. This basic training will last for 8 weeks, and then the boys will be sent to other stations in Canada."

Gnr. Roy Rome, former Peterborough violinst, is now on tour with the Y.M.C.A. Army troupe, as violin soloist. Travelling by bus, they play ten towns and finish their campaign November 3. A 12-piece band and other singers are instrumentalists are with the troupe.

PO. Arthur Holt, brother of Mr. Maurice Holt, 469 Water street, recently graduated in Montreal as a navigator, at the head of his class and received his commission. He was also presented with a black leather wallet, by the Chief Justice of Quebec, a gift from a civilian air company to the man leading each class. PO. Holt is from Vancouver.

Back In Canada

Able Seaman Jack Larkman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Larkman, formerly of Lakefield, and now at Burleigh Falls, has returned home after two years overseas. He is attached to the Royal Navy and before enlisting worked at the Bonner-Worth. AB. Larkman has been in the Navy since he was 16½ years old.

Night Workers Give Aid To War Victims

As groups by themselves, night workers who do their bit to keep the hive of industry on behalf of the war rolling on a twenty-four hour basis, have not been prominent in the list of donors towards helping the victims of air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, although most likely they have done their full share with other groups when their turn came to be on day shifts.

For the first time, a group at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. on night work has sent in a contribution by themselves, this distinction going to the Automatics Department per C. Hunt, who number only twenty-two people, and were able through the medium of passing around a box which they made, to raise they sum of $10.50 listed in today's receipts.

Should this catch the eye of other workers similarly situated perhaps it may inspire them to take a leadership in like manned, so that they too may have a share in the Christmas donations to give British kiddies a touch of Christmas Cheer all the more acceptable since it comes from Canada, of which they have now heard so much by reason of the part this country is playing in the successful prosecution of the war.

From Lakefield

With a regularity comparable to the certainty of the passing of the days and months, a personal donation for $7.50 has come in every April and October from Mrs. Lilian S. Abbott who lives near Lakefield, and has transmitted this amount, the the returns from a Government Bond every time, through J. McKerchar who represents the fund in that place, ever since the fund began to operate.

Two other personal gifts are listed to-day, both of them coming from citizens who have supported the fund on many an occasion in a similar way. These and others yet to come will take their place in the special donations for Christmas, to bring cheer to many a soul afflicted through the misfortunes of war.

Softball League Draw

This effort by the Ladies Softball League is getting close to the culminating point, and if you have not yet given them a helping hand, there is yet still time to procure a ticket on a chance for three prizes, the first of which is a ladies or gents suit, the second being a war saving certificate of $10.00 par value, and the third prize, a $5.00 war savings certificate. The proceeds of which are to be equally divided between two distinctive Peterborough and District Funds assisting the war effort, of which this fund is one.

Navy Men Get Commando Work

DEEP BROOK, N.S., Oct. 26 — (CP). — There are 18 obstacles in 320 yards in Canada's first naval commando obstacle course now in operation at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, huge new training establishment of the Royal Canadian Navy here—and the record for the course is one minute and 52 seconds.

"Believe me, that travelling," said Lieut. Alex Park, R.C.N.V.R., of Toronto, the physical and recreational training officer in charge of the course and supervised its building. The course isn't intended to train men for commando duty — its purpose is to make the boys tougher, harder and better fighters in any field.

All new entries — officer candidates and officers - in - training work out on the course regularly—and the odd one goes to hospital for a day or two with a sprained ankle or a "charley horse" knee, for the course is tough.

It is designed to develop qualities of co-ordination, alertness, strength, endurance, agility, speed and balance. No one is allowed to go over the course unless an instructor is present, and the few minor accidents which have occurred have resulted largely from the brash, unauthorized attempts of too-enthusiastic lads.

To pass the 18 obstacles requires hand - over - hand work, jumping, running, climbing, vaulting, dodging, swinging, crawling, hurdling and balancing.

New Commander

Mrs. M. Moncrieff Hostess To Aid

FOWLERS CORNERS, Oct. 26—(ENS)—The Lakewale Ladies' Aid held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Melville Moncrieff on Thursday afternoon with thirteen members present. Roll call was answered with a verse containing the word Faith.

Mrs. Irwin took the scripture reading and Mrs. Moncrieff gave a very interesting talk on her trip to British Columbia.

Personals

Messrs. Harry Deyell, Jack White, Roger Price and Robert McAdam have returned from Perth having attended the sessions of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East.

A very pleasant time was spent on Monday evening at the home of Foster Eggleston in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Tully whose marriage took place recently. The evening was very pleasant spent dancing to the music of George Rutherford. At midnight Mr. and Mrs. Tully were asked to come forward, when Miss Lois Windrim read an address asking them to accept the many gifts on behalf of the community signed by Roy Hooton and John Casey.

Mr. and Mrs. Tully made suitable replies. Dancing was then continued bringing a very pleasant evening to a close.

CHANGE OF ARMS

It is reported that all Home Guards in the London area will be issued with regular army rifles and ammunition, replacing the old United States rifles and ammunition which they have been using since 1940.

NO SUGAR NEEDED IN EASY-TO-MAKE ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

Here's an already favoured recipe that's gaining new wartime fame. The flavoursome crispness of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN gives these delicious muffins a texture and taste that cannot be equalled by ordinary bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening	½ cup milk
½ cup corn syrup	1 cup flour
1 egg	½ teaspoon salt
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran	2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and corn syrup thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in ALL-BRAN and milk, let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 8 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2½ inches in diameter.

Point System Mooted For Soldiers After The War

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 26 — (CP). — Demobilization of Britain's armed forces when the war is done has become a prime topic among servicemen, parliamentarians and the puolic. Latest proposal is a "points program."

It is one of several plans suggested, but so far the Government has not come forward with an all embracing scheme. Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, has advocated a "first in, first out" plan, but this has met disapproval, mainly by industry which would like to see skilled workers released early so reconstruction could start as soon as possible.

Under the novel "points" proposal, contained in the first interim report of the Conservative sub - committee in demobilization and resettlement, the "high scorers" would be the first back.

Here is how the plan would work: If, for example, it was decided 15 per cent of the personnel of a unit could be demobilized, the Records Office would forward the names of those who had the highest score, calculated on a basis of so many points for service on before certain dates, service overseas, steps of promotion, age group, marriage, number of children, employment immediately available, demand for personnel in trade or profession and interruption of education. There would be a subtraction of points for desirability of a man's retention in the service.

To operate such a scheme, however, there would have to be close liaison between the Service Departments and the Ministry of Labor on the question of what trades could establish the best claims for an increase of manpower. The plan's biggest asset would be that while it made possible a fairly complete review of the circumstances affecting each individual, it would also enable a serviceman to know precisely what consideration governed his retention or lease.

All Tentative.

The committee, headed by Sir Edward Cadogan, made clear that only tentative recommendations could be made at present because it was impossible to forecast circumstances at the end of the war. It suggested that the early stages of reconstruction should be regarded as a state of emergency during which action would be necessary in conference with the Dominions and United Nations for planning an economic policy to ensure prosperity.

Preference in demobilization should be guaranteed to those on active service, particularly those separated from their families for long periods. the report continued. Fears of overseas men that they were disadvantage must be allayed.

Priority should be given those having previous association with the export industry and almost coequal would be the building industry and its ancillaries.

Euchre Party Held In Hastings Hall

HASTINGS, Oct. 26 (ENS). — Progressive euchre in Parish Hall under auspices of the Sewing Circle of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish was held on Friday night. A very fair crowd was present. Prizes were won as follows: Ladies' first prize, Mrs. J. Calberry; ladies' second prize, Mrs. Penny; men's first prize, Mr. W. Armstrong; men's second prize, Mr. N. McFadden. The chair prize, a lovely seven-pound chicken, was won by Master Jack Lamey of the Cobourg Road. A very enjoyable evening was had by those present.

The ladies sew every Friday afternoon, and while the hall is warm and comfortable, hold a euchre in the evening. In this way they are able to purchase material for their sewing. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Mr. Chips

A real sea dog "Mr. Chips," mascot of a U.S. navy transport, was first smuggled aboard ship by a member of the crew. Discovered and ordered ashore by the executive officer, he was "rescued" by other crew members who managed to soften the heart of the "executive." Since then "Mr. Chips" has participated in the actions at Attu and Kiska.

Oldest Lawyer In Canada Dies At Age 93

SRATFORD, Oct. 26 —(CP). — George Gordon McPherson, K. C., native son and dean of Stratford's legal fraternity died at family residence here Sunday night. He was 93 on October 1.

Oldest living member of the Canadian Bar Association, and believed to be oldest practising lawyer in Canada, having enrolled as a barrister at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, on May 21, 1892, Mr. McPherson had been indisposed since the latter part of last month. Prior to that he had attended his office duties regularly. He had been practising since 1872.

Born in Stratford on Oct. 1, 1850, Mr. McPherson was the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Thomas McPherson, his father being minister of Knox Presbyterian church.

Mr. McPherson was created Queen's Counsel Oct. 2, 1899, during the 63rd year of Queen Victoria's reign.

At the time of his death, Mr. McPherson was the president of the Perth Mutual Fire Insurance Company. For years he had been a member and chairman of the General Hospital Trust. He was a member of Knox Presbyterian church.

Mess Room Chatter

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 26 — (CP). — Twenty-five years ago five young airmen photographers attached to the Middle East Command were close friends. In 1926 one went to Canada and joined the R.C.A.F. as airman photographer. A year later the second went to Australia. The remaining three stayed on in the R.A.F. but after posting to various stations they lost touch with each other.

Recently the three who remained in the R.A.F. made a rendezvous in the mess of a technical training command photographic station. They had just met when an officer from Canada and another from Australia walked in and the five were reunited.

The Canadian officer was Flt. Lt. Thomas Henry Bell of Ottawa. The others were Sqdn. Ldr. David Stirling of Stirling, Scotland, and Flt. Lts. Arthur Hales of Gillingham, Kent, William Saxby of Hastings in Sussex, and Alexander Baine of Perth, Australia.

Bambi, a Canadian-born French poodle, white and only two months old, is in England now, the live memorial to an R.A.F. bomber that never came back. Bambi came to Britain with a Canadian crew that flew the first Canadian-built Lancaster across the Atlantic. Officially the dog is the property of Flt. Sgt. Reg Burgar of Traynor, Sask., mid-upper gunner of the bomber, but he belongs to the whole crew. Before going to Canada to pick up the Lancaster this crew was attached to an R.A.F. squadron and had its favorite plane, B for Bambi. One night another crew took it out and never came back. So when the boys were presented with the white poodle, they named it after their missing aircraft.

Incidentally, in connection with the arrival of this first Canadian-built Lancaster two of the crew learned when they got to England that they had been awarded the D.F.C. while they were absent in Canada.

They are Pilot Offs. Steve Poczar, co-pilot from Saskatoon, and Jean Carrere of Cochrane, Ont.

When Canadian Bomber Group sent a number of planes to Montlucon to blast a French rubber factory one aircraft carried a message from Louise who lives somewhere in Canada and is the girl friend of Sgt. Vic Poppa, Hamilton. He is an air gunner.

Poppa came back to say in the light of the flames from the burning rubber plant he could see the railway siding where the factory was located and added: "On our block buster I write my girl friend's name. I put down 'from Louise—sending Adolf her best regards.'" and don't worry about vitamins and minerals.

Build him up

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight, and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals.

But don't worry about vitamins and minerals! Children who eat 3 average-good meals including fruit juice, and drink 2 glasses of Ovaltine each day, are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals they need. In addition to its well-balanced food values, Ovaltine adds significant amounts of Vitamins A, B_1 and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron. So, if your child is not developing normally, remember this rule:

3 good meals plus 2 glasses of Ovaltine every day.

Couple Observes 56th Anniversary Of Their Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Brown, at 267 McDonnel Street, who were born within 1½ miles of each other in Alnwick Township, celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary on Monday, and in spite of their years both take a keen interest in current events and the progress of the war.

One of the unusual things about Mrs. Brown is that she did not change her name when she married. Both she and her husband were the children of men by the name of James Brown, and they were no relation. Her father came from Scotland and his from England.

The Browns were married at Harwood in 1887, and they lived on a farm near Roseneath until four months ago when failing health brought them to live in Peterborough with their son Alexander Brown.

Although Mrs. Brown is 76, she has managed to do quite a bit of war work until recently. She has pieced six quilts for the people in bombed Britain, four of them within the space of two weeks when there was an emergency call from hospitals there. Her husband, 85, is blind, but his keen mind follows the latest happenings. They both enjoy listening to the radio, getting the news, good speakers and sermons, but they cannot abide the serial stories which are so popular.

The Browns have four children, Mrs. W. N. Stephens of Newtonville, Alexander of Peterborough, Ray who lives next to the old homestead in Alnwick, and Cephas of Cobourg. They are all married and have families, and there are seven grandchildren.

Both recalled that things were slightly different around Roseneath in the earlier days, with not as many settlers, but they did not experience severe hardships in shopping since they only lived about 2½ miles away from Roseneath. Before coming to Peterborough they attended Roseneath United Church.

Girls Advised To Save Polish

Here's a new idea for the girls who like to experiment with new nail polishes, and who find their style somewhat cramped by the new restrictions on the number of shades of nail polish on the market. It is a good thing to save all the old bottles. Don't throw them away when they are about two-thirds empty, just because it takes too long to fish down to the bottom to get enough polish to cover a nail. The bottle should be kept and sealed carefully, and when there are three or four, pour all the contents into the same bottle, and there's a brand new shade.

Another good plan is to coat the thread of the top of the bottle of polish with cold cream. This little trick keeps the bottle sealed, and also enables on to unscrew the top with a minimum of trouble and effort.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, October 27

A SUDDEN, probably spectacular about face from prior depressions and discouragements, is indicated by the "friendly stars."

Decisive ingenuity of thought and action, should have the support of powerful friends, perhaps in public or community places. The result may be a gratifying appreciation of unusual talents, creative ability and practical skills. The radical change should not be permitted to have inharmonious reactions on domestic or romantic ties.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a sudden and radical change in their affairs, of far-reaching influence on the fortunes and destiny. The turnabout may be quite unprecedented and unpredictable, but may culminate in a financial stability, with increased prestige and popularity, entirely unlooked for. Powerful friends seem involved, who may have some sort of public preferment or benefice to bestow. But in this breath-taking rise to fame and fortune, be careful to maintain the harmony and wellbeing of home and social amenities. Romance and adventure complete the glad crises.

A child born on this day may have some conspicuous creative talent, scientific, or inventive ability, which may lift it to public station, increasing popularity, with romance and adventure as well.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: My recipe for Beef Rice Croquettes I got from a chef in a Philadelphia Short Order restaurant in 1928. I consider it started me on the road to making my leftovers better than the original—your recipe for Quiche Lorraine was another addition— it uses up my scraps of ham so well I buy ham to have leftovers because my husband likes it so well.

Mrs. C. Stills Beef and Rice Croquettes.

You will need one cup each thick white sauce, ground beef and cooked rice, ½ tablespoon chopped or grated onion, and salt and pepper to season. Mix these and spread out on a plate to chill. Form into cylindrical croquettes. Dip into 1 beaten egg mixed with 1 tablespoon water; roll in dry crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat at 375 degrees Fahr. until golden and drain on kitchen paper towels.

I sometimes serve these with Tomato Sauce or a rich egg Sauce; I sometimes change the shape of the croquettes to make them look differently — but the one thing all cooks must watch is the temperature of the fat. If it is too cold the croquettes will be soaky— not soft inside and crusty outside. I hope you think these are good enough to print in the food page. —C.S.

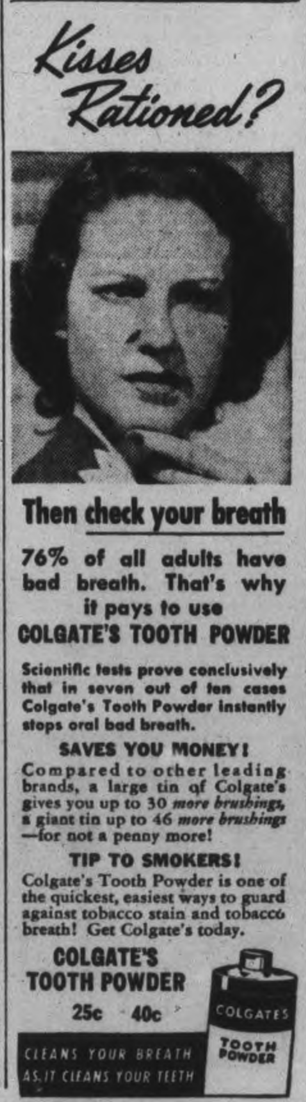
Cheese sauce is good on these, too, and adds to their nutritive value — a little cheese in them would be nice—but in which case you would not serve a cheese sauce over them. Send us more like this and thanks.



DOROTHY DIX . . . .

CHILDREN SHOULD BE TAUGHT CONSIDERATION FOR MOTHER

Parent Would Not Be Left To Shift Helplessly If Youths Had Not Been Spoiled.

DEAR MISS DIX—I was left a widow with two small boys. I remained at home and devoted my life to them, using the insurance money my husband had left me to educate them, in the fatuous belief that if I took care of them while they were young they would take care of me when I was old.

But as soon as they began earning money they left me and got married, and I was thrown on the world to shift for myself, as my daughters-in-law told me frankly that they would not tolerate a mother-in-law in their homes. I had never worked outside of my home before, but I managed by doing any kind of work I could find to keep body and soul together.

My sons not only did not help me, but they did not even come to see me when I was sick. Finally, I got a job cleaning an apartment for an elderly man who was also alone and who was very lonely, as his children had treated him pretty much as mine had treated me. He asked me to marry him, which I did, and to my surprise I found out that he was a rich man.

Well, you never saw such a miracle as this worked. My sons and their wives cannot show me enough attention now. I am "dear Mother" to who they are so devoted, but I am not deceived by their protestations of affection and am mean enough to get a thrill at dressing better than they do and living in a finer house.

As the sum of my experiences I would like to say to all mothers: It is a great mistake to pamper children too much. It only serves to make them selfish and invites disaster to the parents themselves.

REJUVENATED MOTHER.

ANSWER—I print this letter in full because it is such a brave and pathetic human document, and because it carries such a warning to mothers who give everything to their children and ask nothing from them in return. For the story that this woman tells has its counterpart in the experience of millions of mothers who have toiled and slaved and sacrificed for their children, and whose bitter fate is to have their children turn them out to starve when, like poor old work horses, they are too old and feeble to serve them any more.

The mother who goes shabby so that Johnny may have the latest thing in sweaters; who works her fingers to the bone so that Sally may keep her hands soft and have lacquered finger nails, comforts herself with the optimistic belief that when she is old her grateful children will repay her by cherishing her and giving her the warmest seat by their fires, but it rarely happens that way.

Mother has made herself a doormat for them, and it is human nature to kick a doormat around. She reaps as she has sown. She has never taught them to respect her, or to appreciate her, or to try to help her, or that they have any responsibility towards her. And they merely live up to their rearing when they neglect her.

The moral of all of which is that mothers should teach their children, from the very cradle, to honor them and to feel that they have duties to them. And, above all, that mothers should not spend every cent they have on their children. They should keep something for themselves. And they should hold with a death grip to their pocketbooks.

For between Mother with gifts to bestow and Mother who is a dependent, is a great gulf fixed. As is proven by this woman's letter.

DEAR MISS DIX—The girl and boy are in love. Both mature enough to realize what it is all about. She especially, as she has been through two heartbreaking experiences which have materially affected her life, but in making the effort to come back she has fallen in love with this young man. He is devoted to her. But the trouble is he is in the army and does not feel that they should get married until after the duration; while she wants desperately to get married at once, regardless of consequences which might come from the war.

He believes it is wiser to wait. She wants him now. What do you think?

AN INTERESTED FRIEND.

Girls Force Hurry-up War Marriages

ANSWER—I fully and entirely agree with the man and think he is acting like a man, instead of an irresponsible boy, in wanting to put off the marriage until it can be entered into sanely and soberly and with a fair chance of making it a success. Not even the casualties of battle are going to bring about so many tragedies, and drench the world so in woe, as are the millions of war marriages that impetuous young people have been swept into on the wave of sentimental hysteria that has inundated the country.

And girls have been responsible for most of these hurry-up weddings. The boys have been willing to wait. They wanted to wait. But the girls have put the pressure on them until they have driven all but the strongest-minded of them to the altar. The boys knew that a soldier, who was soon going to be fighting for his life, had plenty of things to worry over besides wondering if his bride was having dates with other boys; and that even in his brief experience of army life he has been molded into a different sort of person from what he was when he enlisted.

He knew he would be gone for a long time, and he wanted to go free, without any strings on him and be able to make his choice of a wife when he got back, without having one whom he might, or might not, want hanging like an Old Woman of the Sea around his neck.

But the girls have been determined to marry at any cost. Whether they thought that there wouldn't be enough men to go around after the war or this was their last call to the dining car; or whether they thought it was so romantic to have a husband at the Front; or whether they wanted a war marriage because all the other girls were doing it, nobody knows. It is just one of those things, and one that millions of them are going to regret.

The girl in this particular case who is bent on marrying her man, regardless of consequences, is probably motivated by the fact that she has had two unhappy love affairs, and she doesn't want to take any chances on losing out on a third.

But she is wrong about that. No woman should marry a man who isn't more eager about setting the wedding day than she is, for if she does, he will always feel that he has been shanghaied into marriage, and resent it. Worse still, he will always throw it up to her in every domestic brawl. There are few jokes that a wife enjoys less than having her husband tell, as his pet dinner party story, how his wife married him against his will.

If girls would only look on the matter realistically, they wouldn't be so determined to marry boys before they went to the Front. They would know that the unmarried girl has a much pleasanter time waiting for her sweetheart to come home from the war than does the temporary war widow, who has to either sit at home with Mama and Papa of an evening, or else get talked about.

Lancashire Cotton

chester said what all thoughtful people I have met throughout the length and breadth of Britain are thinking:

"The predominant task of everyone at the moment is to obtain the greatest possible volume of production for our war effort and to win the war. We are fighting to live, to survive; we are giving up those things which to us in normal peacetime seemed necessities. We are making sacrifices; economic laws are being distorted; we are living perilously; and all these things are necessary to the victory which we know will be achieved. When this victory comes, we shall have to adjust our way of life so that it may be one of decent standards, arranged with justness and fairness to the people of all nations. By the Grace of God, there are plenty of goods in the world to go all around, if only the human race will face up to the international task of organizing their production, exchange and distribution.

"While we are waging war, I think it is sound policy that we should, at the same time, plan generally for the future, to have some sort of framework, around which to build when the bells of victory ring out . . . In all that is done towards post-war planning, there will be need for large unified, specialist bodies to speak out determinedly on behalf of the branches of industry in which they are particularly versed . . . Lancashire's cotton industry . . . should and must occupy a prominent place in post-war planning."

That is the clearest summary I have read of Lancashire's present position and her future problems.

Topics of Conversations

What is the average person talking about in Britain these days? What does the average person talk about in Kingston or in Peterborough? Just about the same things. About ration cards and points and coupons; about beef and butter and eggs and clothing; about movies and grocers and bus service; about cheeky young clerks who are temporarily employed on Government jobs; about strikes and stoppages, about miners and shipwrights; about the call up of older women and about young people who seem to have escaped being called up for the national service. Now the wives of certain officers are under fire. Why, people are asking, can these women afford to live in hotels near their husbands and get away with it? They have neither children nor household responsibilities. Why are some university students allowed to finish their M.A. degrees and get jobs in the Foreign Office while other girls are taken from their classes and shoved into some form of national service? Why can't something be done to put a stop to the alarming increase in juvenile delinquency? (Something has been done as I explained when writing about the report by the Board of Education's Youth Advisory Council.) What is being done about girls who stay away from school to have their hair waved, or who leave their jobs for the verilest whim? According to the London County Council, one child of 15 has held 75 different jobs! What is being done about undesirable dance halls, trashy and suggestive magazines, and films with the wrong slant on life? The Youth Advisory Council has an answer.

People in the "blitzed" areas in the Midlands will talk about their experiences readily. They have sunk deep and left their mark. Some of the people I met had lost everything. The other day I had tea with three people. One had lost his wife and been bombed out of two houses; another had lost her husband and been bombed out of her house and was a nervous wreck. The third had been bombed and blitzed but had been able to stick it although bombs had fallen in her garden and one incendiary had glanced off the roof of her house. The "common people," as they are called, are all longing for the end of the war, but there is not the slightest question of ending the war until Germany and Japan have been utterly crushed. What will happen to Germany? People discuss that problem in pubs, they discuss it at home, they discuss it with their friends. Germany must be dismembered. "We were too soft with the Germans after the last war," is a statement one often hears. "That is our national weakness. We forgive and forget too easily. We mustn't let that happen this time." And everybody, people in Scotland especially, are proud of the Eighth Army, for the 51st Division, Scotland's own ,is in it and has been fighting since El Alamein.

Fleet Air Arm in Kingston

When I was talking to the welfare supervisor in the Merchant Navy House he asked me what part of Canada, I came from. I told him. "Oh," he said, "I am delighted to meet you. My boy has just come back from your city where he has been training with the Fleet Air Arm. He had a wonderful time there. He tells me the Canadians couldn't do enough for him. I wish you'd tell them how much my boy and the other boys appreciated the kindness of the Canadians. Funny thing my boy tells when he was in Canada, after a meal he used to wonder how on earth he'd find room for another one. The food was so very satisfying. Here, especially in England, he's no sooner had a meal than he begins to wonder when the next one is."

But all the same everybody tells me: "I think we have very little to grumble about in this country and an awful lot to be thankful for. Just think what would have happened to us if the Germans had landed after Dunkirk!"

One daren't think what might have happened to Britain if they had landed, But, thank God, they never did. And now, they never will.

MADE IN CANADA

It isn't time to count 'em yet!

THIS WAR ISN'T OVER YET! The Allied Armies have the biggest part of the job still ahead of them. The stronghold of Europe has yet to be stormed and won.

This means that we, in Canada, have to lend all we have—make every sacrifice to see the job through. We are not asked to give—only to lend for Victory, for Peace, for Freedom.

IN MEMORIOM

GRUBBE — In loving memory of Robert William Radcliffe Grubbe, who died at Peterborough, October 26, 1923, son of Captain William Henry Grubbe of the Honourable East India Company Artillery, grandson of Captain John Grubbe, Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Buckingham, Lord of the Manor of "Horsendon" of "Abbot's Hold" and of "Princess Risborough" of "The King's Manor" Buckinghamshire, England.

Even as he trod that day to God
So walked he from his birth
In simpleness and gentleness
And honour and clean mirth.

BURNS — In loving memory of Ronald George Burns, who passed away, October 26, 1939.

We do not forget him, we love him too dearly,
For his memory to fade away from our lives like a dream,
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

— Ever remembered by Daddy, Mom, Beverley and John.

HUNTER, John R. (Dick Hunter) —In loving memory of a swell Dad.

We have only your memory dear Dad,
To remember our whole life through,
But the sweetness will linger forever,
As we treasure the image of you.

— Fondly remembered by his Sons and Daughters.

HUNTER, John R. (Dick Hunter), Lakefield, Ontario. — In loving memory of a dear husband who passed suddenly away one year ago today, October 26, 1942.

When days are dark and friends arfew,
are few,
Dear Husband how I think of you,
Friends are friends if they are true,
But I lost my best friend when I lost you.

—Ever remembered by his Wife.

Small Children Are Heard In Radio Quiz

The fifth in the series of Quiz programs for pupils of the city schools was held over CHEX Monday evening. Dr. Charles M. Scott was the guest speaker and spoke on behalf of the National War Finance Committee to assist in the sales of Victory Bonds.

This particular contest was very interesting in that it was very hard to have the questions difficult enough to "weed" the children out. The judges decided that it was a tie, but gave first place to Maureen Masterson, age 8, grade 3, 264 King street, and a pupil at St. Mary's Convent, because of her poise before the microphone and her manner in answering questions. Second prize winner, Teddy Reid, age 10, 709 George street north, pupil at Queen Alexandria School in grade 3. Third, Bruce McColl, age 7, grade 3, 15 Oxford street, pupil of Immaculate Conception School.

Judges, Miss Margaret Whittaker, B.A., staff of Central School; Miss Hazel Guerin, Immaculate Conception School; Mr. Harry Gainey, chairman of the Separate School Board.

C. D. Munro is chairman of the school committee for the county of Peterborough.

ful of enthusiasts but by a representative meeting. And after that decision has been made something should be done to encourage 'teen age hockey groups in the city so that the game can be kept alive by the youngsters. If we are going to fold up in major hockey we should at least do what we can to give the kids a chance to play the game.

People's and the Hamilton Majors who are trying to settle the Senior A championship of the province are having their own difficulties in getting the final series played. People's won the first two games of the last round but the Hamilton outfit came back with a win Saturday and now there is an argument as to the fourth game. Hamilton wants to play at 4 o'clock tomorrow but the Toronto gang claim that they can't get a team out at that hour. On the other hand they want to make it a night game but Hamilton quite justifiably protest that they don't want to play in inadequate lighting. The argument stresses the absurdity of prolonging the playoffs until the end of October. It has been much too cold even in the afternoons for championship ball and to ask anybody to play night games at a season of the year when the thermometer hits for the freezing mark as soon as the sun dips behind the horizon is ridiculous. Senior finals can surely be speeded up so that the championship would not have to be settled in near hockey weather.

A Hockey Mystery

Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star hints at a hockey mystery in the following paragraph: "Sometimes it is dangerous to speculate, but we can't help wondering if there really isn't a lot more behind the sojourn of five members of the New York Rangers in a local hotel than the reasons given out by silver-thatched Lester Patrick, boss man of the Rangers. The five, who came here direct from Winnipeg, where the Rangers are training, are Bryan Hextall, high scoring right-wing and twice winner of the National League scoring championship; left-winger Bill Gooden, Portage La Prairie, Man., youngster who joined the Rangers late last season from the Niagara Falls senior amateur club; Max Labovitch, right-winger who has previous pro experience with the New Haven Eagles of the American League; Jack McDonald, another Portage boy, who played right-wing last winter for the Flin Flon Bombers of Manitoba, and Jack Mahon, a centre from Winnipeg who spent the 1942-43 campaign with that strong British Columbia amateur team, the Nanamic Clippers. As senior member of the invading forces, Hextall does the talking, but not very much of it. He insists, gently but firmly, that he and his young mates are here solely for the reason of getting acclimatized. As Hextall explains it you can skate like the dickens in the dry cold and on the fast ice in the West but at the start of the season when you have to come East and play in steam-heated rinks and on soft ice your effectiveness is impaired until you get used to the change."

Hub Macey scored two goals and Pere Nicholls figured in another in the 8 to 3 win of Kingston Army over Cornwall Saturday night. Joe Blewett did not break into the scoring summary. Bill Walshe comments thusly on the game: "If spirit, speed and scrap can be continued all winter Kingston's Frontenac Army should win many games in the O.H.A. senior series. A combination of the three, with an aggressive fore-checking style of play, gave Kingston a decisive victory over Cornwall in the opening game of the hockey season here Saturday night. The result reversed the decision of the night before when the teams met in Cornwall and aroused a hope for Kingston hockey fans that the army would present a team worthy of support, and a credit to the home of Hockey's Hall of Fame and the headquarters of one of Canada's most important military districts. While the Kingston team lacked the name-class boasted by other service teams the players earned double credit for their fighting style. Expert hockey judges, looking at the long O.H.A. senior schedule and realizing the class of the opposition, wondered if Kingston's present team could stand the long grind. The team played inspired hockey Saturday, following the leadership of its coach, Red Hamill, but it's impossible to lift a team to the peak of its performance twice a week all winter. That is when class will tell. A hard hitting defenceman and good scoring forward would make a big difference in the Kingston club and it is understood that somewhere among the 15,000 or more troops stationed in the Kingston area there is the required talent."

These Home Plants Can Bloom Again

Poinsettia, Azalea Together?

Such gorgeous plants bloom at Christmas time, the scarlet poinsettia of the tropics—strange and beautiful — and the lovely rosy-flowered azalea. So start them now to have them for the festive season.

Put your poinsettia where it gets real warmth—not with your azalea. Sunlight, a kindly room temperature, no draughts, plenty of water, and your poinsettia thrives with the hardiest.

When blooms stop, don't be alarmed. It's natural for a plant to need rest. Lay it on its side in warm, dark place and let it dry back without shrivelling. Then prune it, re-pot and watch new branches start!

Our 32-page booklet tells you how to have blooming plants in your home all winter, greenery all year round. Describes simple care of begonias, cinerarias, bulbs, ferns, many other favorites; how to grow plants in water.

For your copy of MAKING PLANTS AND FLOWERS GROW INDOORS send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

16 Boxes Are Packed For Bailieboro Boys

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 25 —(ENS). —About twenty members of the Women's Association of the United church met in Bateson's hall, packed sixteen boxes for local boys in the armed forces and also quilted one 'star' quilt.

Victory Loan Program.

James Lewis, the newly-appointed Victory Loan canvasser for South Monaghan township, was introduced at a program held in Bateson's hall this week.

School children provided choruses, musical numbers and readings. Judges were chosen and in the quiz contest Donald Dunford won first place and Kenneth Falls second, and Betty Gallipean won first for the grils.

Joint Shower.

A joint community gathering of Bensfort, Bailleboro and Christ church members was held in South Monaghan municipal hall on Thursday evening to honour Miss Jean Moncrief and Joe Armstrong with a miscellaneous shower and presentation prior to their marriage October 30. About 150 guests were present and Melville Wood acted as chairman for a short program, which consisted of community singing, a duet by Velma and Marlyn Barnard and a trio by Dorothy Jackson, Gwen Beebe and Betty Joan Howson. Miss Morton was piano accompanist.

Miss Yvonne Lee read an address for the miscellaneous shower and James Johnston read an address from Christ church, while Howard Fair made presentation of a beautiful occasional chair in wine tone. Joe made a very suitable reply on behalf of Jean and himself.

Messrs. Harold Beebe, James Lewis, Arnold Brown and Mrs. Douglas Fisher each spoke a few words of well wishes and afterwards dancing was enjoyed, the music being furnished by Harold Moncrief's five-piece orchestra.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LATE FORCE—LONG SUIT

WHEN YOU make a bid which guarantees game strength on your very first chance to call, such as an original two bid of a suit or a single jump over your partner's opening bid, you advertise a hand which is powerful generally, with a large share of high cards. But if you make some kind of minimum call on your first turn and then later jump one level to indicate game-going ability, you proclaim a hand favored with wonderful distributional values or great suit length, but not so extra strong in high cards.

North: ♠ 8 ♥ 8 3 2 ♦ 10 9 7 ♣ K Q 10 5 4 2

West: ♠ J 2 ♥ Q 9 4 ♦ A J 8 6 4 ♣ 9 8 6

East: ♠ A 10 5 ♥ 10 5 ♦ K Q 5 3 2 ♣ A J 3

South: ♠ K Q 9 7 6 4 3 ♥ A K J 7 6 ♦ None ♣ 7

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

	South	West	North	East

	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
	4 ♠	Pass	5 ♥	Dbl
2.	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♦
	3 ♥	4 ♦	4 ♥

In each of the two cases indicated by the bidding shown, the declarer took ten tricks, losing one each in spades, hearts and clubs. That enabled South at Table 2 to have a game, whereas the chap at Table 1 was set a trick doubled.

A study of both bidding sequences will disclose several interesting facts. At the first table, South's 2-Spade opening warned East not to enter the auction at all, and made it simple for him to adopt waiting tactics until his opponents got too high, where he sand-bagged them. At the second table, it was easy for East to show his diamonds as an overcall at the range of two without any particular fear, and also West was able to denote his fine fit with the suit.

As it eventuated, a sacrifice of 5-Diamonds would have paid East at the second table, but he refrained from it because he thought he saw a good chance to set the 4-Hearts.

But the principal difference in the bidding tactics between the two Souths was in the way the first one made his hand seem powerful in high cards, whereas the second gave a much more accurate picture of fair honor strength and great suit lengths.

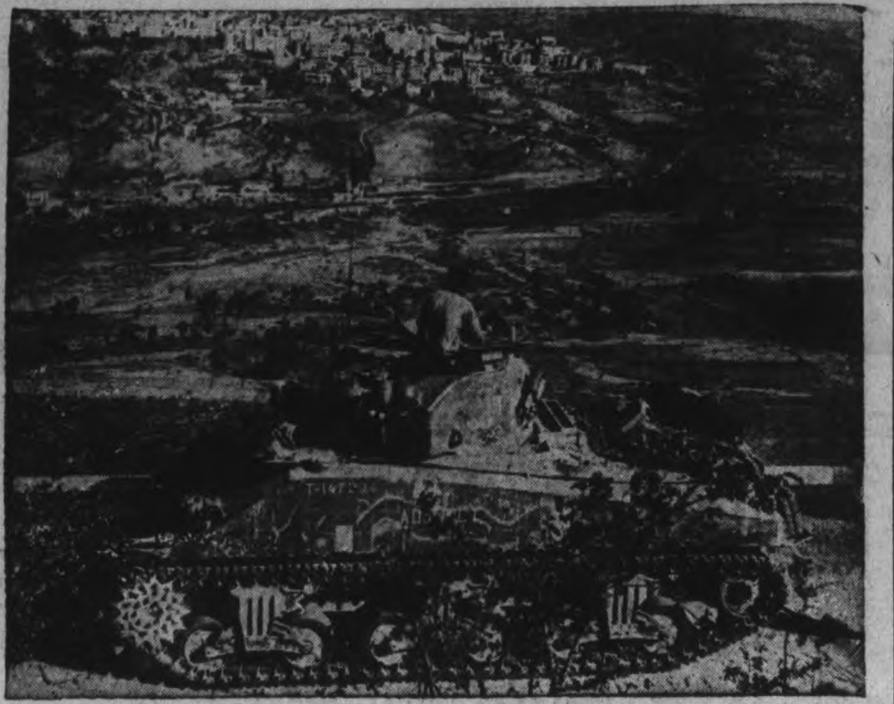
Canadian Tankmen Keep Vigil Over Captured Italian Town



Riding along the rim of Potenza, a Canadian tank crew casts a watchful eye over this war-torn Italian town, shortly after the Canucks had spearheaded its capture with the British 8th Army. Tanks like this one took up positions on the outskirts of the town, and with support of machine-gunners, blasted away at cleverly-concealed German positions while sappers cleared the mines and speedily built detour roads.

German Armies Destroy Russian Forests

Written for The Canadian Press By ALEXANDER YAKOVLEV.

MOSCOW, Oct. 25 — (CP). — If the Germans could, I believe, they would tear up the fields of Russia and her black earth soil and disperse them to the winds in order to do the Russian irreparable damage. In their fury the Germans burn down Russian towns and villages, massacre inhabitants and even destroy forests.

I walked through the forests in the Zvenigorod and Istra districts near Moscow where 18 months ago stern battles were fought. These forests contain some of the finest timber around Moscow. Before the war felling was done according to a strict plan and the denuded areas were immediately replanted with pine and fir trees.

From a high hill on which is perched the village of Pidikovo dense old pine forests may be seen stretching to the north and west as far as the eye can see. I descended to the verge of the forest and a harrowing scene confronted me.

The largest and thickest trees had been felled in disorder across the road. When the Germans retreated from Moscow they made these log wall barriers to halt the advance of Soviet tanks, guns and vehicles.

Tank Blocks.

Heavy fighting took place here on the edge of the forest. The ground was strewn with cartridge cases and machine gun belts. In one place stood a high stack of shell cases. Some trees were smashed and splintered, evidently hit by shells or mortar bombs. It must have required a big effort on the part of the advancing Russian troops to negotiate this barrier.

The roads were impassable. The trees were sawn not at the roots, but at the height of a man. The remaining part of the trunks being left to serve as tank obstacles.

I found the same thing in all forests I have visited. Five miles from the town of Istra the Germans camped in the woods. They lived there a month and a half.

It was an exemplary camp. The walls of dugouts were made neatly of hewn timber as well as the floors, while the roofs were made of solid logs.

Yes, the Germans made a good job of their temporary homes. But what they did to the surrounding forest.

Within the radius of a quarter mile they had felled trees in haphazard fashion, only selecting what they needed for their temporary dwellings. From a huge tree they would take only to or three small blocks and leave the rest where it fell. It is that sort of picture one sees wherever the Germans have been and the farther west from Moscow you go the worse it is. In some places the Germans cut the best timber and shipped it to Germany.

The Soviet Government has given collective farmers permission to take whatever timber they need to rebuild their burned homes, felled timber to be used first. The log wall barriers, accordingly, are gradually disappearing.

An estimate of the damage caused by the Germans to Russian forests would run into billions of rubles. Nature, however, seems to be anxious to make good the loss; during the last two years the timber growth has been quite unusual, but it cannot compensate for the damage done by the Germans.

Kassel Loses Heavy

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 26 — (AP).—At least 6,000 persons were killed and few houses escaped damage during the R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raid on Kassel Friday night, the newspaper Allehenda said Sunday in a dispatch based on information heard from a clandestine German radio station. Kassel was described as "blasted from the earth's surface with enormous fires raging—and terrified citizens leaving the burning hell in an endless caravan."

Victory Bond Is Mortgage On All Canada

Investors in bonds considers first the quality of his investment and second the rate of yield, said H. G. Fitzgerald, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in the Bankers' Broadcast over CHEX Saturday evening in his recommendation of the Fifth Victory Loan to the people of Peterborough city and country.

"The rate of interest which the security yields to the investor is dependent upon a number of important factors—the primary factor is the protection which underlies the investment. Every Victory Bond is a first mortgage on all that Canada owns. It is your country's promise to return your money to you with interest, a promise backed by all the wealth and resources of Canada. The interest rate of 3% per annum is an exceptionally high one when the unquestionable soundness of the security is properly recognized.

"There are two kinds of bonds available; the long term 3% bonds which most people will purchase, and the short term lower interest bonds which are usually bought by business firms and corporations. For the benefit of the individual buyer, I might explain how interest is paid: Interest is payable every half year at due dates clearly shown on each bond. Bonds in bearer form and bonds registered as to principal both carry interest coupons, one of these falls due every six months—maturity date being shown on each coupon. The chartered banks of Canada negotiate without charge these coupons on their respective maturity dates. Interest on the fully registered bond is paid by cheque sent direct to the owner of the bond by the Government half-yearly. This cheque is also cashed by the banks without charge.

Need Greater Now

"Canada's need is greater now that the armed forces are on the offensive. Therefore, the objective of the Fifth Victory Loan is higher than on earlier loans. Our country is asking for a minimum of $1,200,000,000. The objective for the County of Peterborough is $4,600,000; it can be raised if each and every one buys to the limit. It should not be necessary to urge fellow Canadians to lend their money to their country. The purchase of this prime bond security, at par value, surely involves no sacrifice. The present appeal directed to Canadians is, however, necessary to insure that the funds will quickly be provided to enable our Government to maintain the intensified war effort, so that our military forces who risk life and limb actively confronting the enemy can be spared a needless prolongation of the sacrifice they so readily make.

"Lend As They Fight"

"There is no holding back over there. Sailor, soldier, flier, they are giving you action with ships, tanks, planes and guns talking to the foe in the only language he understands. This is our chance to give them support. Buy bonds. Back our fighters as you have never backed them before. Lend as they fight. You will be doubly glad of every bond you bought when the victory is won and the dollars you lent to speed its coming are still your dollars to protect your future in the post-war world.

"When and whether victory will be ours depends on the battles yet to be fought, where the full weight of our men and weapons will be brought to bear. This certainly is no time for Canadians to ease up in their personal efforts to speed the victory."

TIPS FOR TEA-STRETCHERS

Steep three to five minutes; get all the "tea" out before you throw the leaves away.

Use only the young TENDER leaves. There's more fragrance, more flavor, more "tea" in them. Ask... by name... for Tender Leaf Tea.

Airmen Crank Portable Radio

OTTAWA, Oct. 26 (CP). — An airman sitting beside a damaged airplane turning the crank of a bulky radio apparatus between his knees, was visualized by R.C.A.F. spokesmen here to-day following a report a search plane had heard an SOS belived to be from a Liberator bomber missing nearly a week with 24 persons aboard.

The automatic SOS signals sent out by turning the crank on what appears like a big, old-fashioned coffee mill, may be heard 150 miles under favorable conditions. The transmitter was designed primarily for sea-rescue work and is carried by practically all aircraft making an ocean crossing.

The apparatus is approximately a foot square, with a "waist" which quickly won the name of "Gibson Girl," after the wasp-waisted girls of other years.

Ring Worth $31,500 Stolen From Hotel

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 — (AP).—Police today were investigating the disappearance of a 14-carat diamond ring, valued at $31,500, from a hotel suite occupied by Mrs. Virginia Tucker Kent Catherwood, daughter of A. Atwater Kent, radio manufacturer, of Ardmore, Pa.

Mrs. Catherwood, divorced wife of Cummins Catherwood of Philadelphia, told detectives she last wore the ring October 14 and did not discover it was missing until last Thursday.

The ring was a gift from her former husband.

Major-Gen. G. Vanier Canadian Envoy

OTTAWA, Oct. 26 (CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today announced the appointment of Maj.-Gen. G. P. Vanier, D.S.O., M.C., Canadian Minister to the Allied governments established in the United Kingdom, as Canadian representative to the French National Committee of Liberation at Algiers.

Pierre Dupuy, counsellor of the Canadian Legation to the Allied governments in London, will become Charge d'Affaires "ad interim" following Gen. Vanier's departure for Algiers and pending the appointment of a new Minister.

At the time of Gen. Vanier's appointment as Canadian Minister to the Allied governments in London last November he was also designated representative of the Dominion to consult with the French National Committee in London on all matters of mutual interest related to the conduct of the war.

BIG NAZI ATTACK EXPECTED IN ITALY

Nazis Start Big Push In Balkans

Try To Reconquer Slovenia District Freed By Partisans

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(CP).—(CP).—Strong German forces have launched a major offensive to reconquer thousands of square miles in the Yugoslav proviince of Slovenia liberated by the Partisan forces of Gen. Josip (Tito) Broz, a communicate of the Yugoslav Liberation army reported to-day.

The communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, described the fighting for this rich northwestern area of Yugoslavia as heavy, with the Germans making intensified efforts to drive the peasant patriots south into Crotia and Dalmatia. Slovenian Artisans were said to be active in the German rear, destroying Nazi fortified strongholds and cutting communication lines.

Sharp fighting was reported on the Hungarian frontier between German troops and Partisans. The war bulletin said Tito's forces were operating successfully and had destroyed four strategic railway bridges—two near the town of Chachinic and two near Zdenci.

Forced To Retire.

Partisan troops, which have been reported fighting German columns and "Albanian Quislings" in Montenegro, were forced to retire from the town of Andrijevico oy increasingly heavy enemy pressure.

In Northern Bosnia sharp fighting continued on the right bank of the Sava river near the town of Brco, wtih the Partisans holding theier own against German forces aided by reinforcements rushed in from Serbia.

Yugoslav guerillas entrenched near town of Vrgorac in Dalmatia repulsed a series of Nazi attacks, the communique said.

Cairo dispatches said German occupation forces in Greece had opened up the Pindus road, important communications route through the Pindus Mountains, by setting two guerilla armies to fighting each other.

Advices reaching Cairo said the "Edes" army of Col. Napoleon Zervas had clashed with the "Elas" forces led by Col. Seraenhis, as well as the Greeks' common enemy, the German forces of occupation.

Verdict Sets Up Law Precedent

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 27 —(CP).—Magistrate R. J. Gillen today handed down his decision regarding the claim that a motor vehicle driver is immune from prosecution if he and his vehicle are on private property. In the case of Leonard Fitch, local trucker, a conviction was registered, a sentence of seven days in jail, the truck impounded for three months and the license to drive suspended for a like period, being the penalty.

Earlier it was argued that Fitch, who admitted being in charge of a truck and under the influence of liquor, was on the Bow Park Farm Road, a private lane leading to the premises from the Cockshutt Road.

Magistrate Gillen read from Section 2854 of the Criminal Code that "everyone who while intoxicated drives any motor vehicle or automobile shall be guilty of an offence."

Mrs. Lonergan And Estranged Husband

Locked in a bedroom with windows and door fastened from the inside the nude body of beautiful Mrs. Patricia Burton Lonergan was found beaten to death at 313 East Fifty-First Street, New York. She was the 22-year-old estranged wife of Wayne Lonergan, a Royal Canadian Air Force Cadet. Mrs. Lonergan was the daughter of the late William O. Burton, heir to $4,000,000, brewery fortune, and well known in Paris play spots before his death. Her husband, Wayne Lonergan, whose father was born in Norwood, is in custody of U.S. Deputy District Attorney John F. Loehr, who flew to Toronto to take over from Toronto police, who had held the R.C.A.F. recruit until his arrival.

Police Seek Flier's Uniform To Solve N.Y. Murder Case

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—(AP).—Every available detective was detailed today to search for Wayne Lonergan's missing Royal Canadian Air Force uniform as authorities awaited his arrival from Toronto for further questioning in the slaying Sunday of his 22-year-old heiress wife, Patricia.

The renewed hunt for the uniform was ordered by Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet who has described it as one of the most important clues in the killing.

Lonergan, in custody of two New York detectives, was scheduled to arrive in New York via train early tonight from Buffalo, where the three spent last night because of inability to obtain seats on earlier trains.

No charges have been placed against the husky airman.

Police disclosed that a paper-wrapped mystery package, which Grumet took to a police station last night, contained stained towels from the apartment of John Harjes where Lonergan told Canadian authorities he stayed Saturday night and where he said his uniform was stolen by an American soldier he befriended.

Examine Towels.

The towels were turned over to city toxicologists for analysis.

Police also revealed that additional fingerprints had been taken from bed-posts, walls and the blood-spattered staircase leading from the bed chamber in the Lonergan home in the Beekman Hill section where the woman's nude and battered body was found. Prints already had been taken from an antique brass candlestick believed to be the death weapon.

Authorities continued questioning of persons having a knowledge of the movements of Mr. and Mrs. Lonergan prior to the slaying, including Harjes' butler, Emil Peters, from whom they sought to learn the exact time Lonergan arrived at the apartment and what time he left.

Nazis Bolstering Russian Front

MOSCOW, Oct. 27.—(AP).—The Nazi High Command has moved in troops, planes and tanks from Italy, France and Germany and is taking the utmost measures to halt the mounting disaster in Southern Russia, front line dispatches said today.

In one instance in the Krivoi Rog area where the Germans were cut off transport planes hurried into the sector, dropping tanks of fuel for war machines, Red Star, the Soviet army journal, reported.

There was no indication from any quarter of Southern Russia that the Germans were trying to make a planned withdrawal. They were fighting hard on every front and thousands of new troops, tanks, guns and planes have been rushed up since the breakthrough southeast of Kremenchug and the collapse at Zaporozhe and Melitopol.

The Russians said the Nazis lost 10,00 dead in the Dneprodzerzhinsk and Zaporozhe sectors alone. This does not include thousands of casualties which they must have suffered—but which the Soviets have not announced—north and south of Melitopol.

Canadians Form Spearhead As 8th Army Moves Up Huns Wait At Mountain Line

Nazis Poised To Launch Major Drive Countering Russian Gains 5th Army Holds Two Large Ridges

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 27—(AP).—Allied troops advancing three to six miles have taken two more towns south of the Trigno River in Italy, but fighting generally subsided as the last of the German rearguards were pulled back into the massive new mountain line guarding Rome, official reports disclosed today.

Air warfare intensified with smashes at Greek airfields and hammering of enemy supplies and transports in Italy.

The Nazis are withdrawing to the left bank of the Trigno River near the Adriatic coast, headquarters said, and British 8th Army units inland on this flank have taken Civita Campomanara and Acquaviva Collecroce, both about seven miles south of the Trigno.

Troops of the Anglo-American 5th Army to the west occupied high ground facing Massico Ridge, an anchor of the new German line. They established themselves on "Mad Dog Hill" near Raviscanina and on another ridge near Francolise.

In Heavy Fighting.

The only heavy fighting yesterday was in the 8th Army advance to the two towns.

Canadian troops were in the thick of the fighting and acquitted themselves well, front reports said.

The German emphasis on their defences in the centre of the front was undoubtedly based on the realization that the road running north-westward from Vinchiaturo to Isernia was of vital importance in holding their new mountain. It is in the Vinchiaturo area that the Canadian 1st Division has been reported operating, on the 8th Army's left flank.

An Allied advance along this road, which runs through the main north-south valley of the Italian Peninsula, would threaten Venafro, a key point in the new line.

Withdrawal of Nazi rearguards into the mountain defences might be likened to the pulling up of ladders by a medieval army as it gathered behind the walls of its fortress to defy an enemy threatening to batter them down.

A Mountain Fort

Taking up of a new mountain line does not necessarily mean the German plan is simply to try to hold it. It is quite likely they will try to raise the siege of fortress Europe by a terrific counter-offensive. In the opinion of some Allied leaders, there are many reasons why the Nazis may gamble on such a move.

With no prospect of major victories on the sea or in the air, and with winter coming to the Russian front, Italy offers virtually the only opportunity for the Germans to deliver a smashing blow at the Allies.

(A BBC reporter, Robert Dunnit, said that both sides are manoeuvring into positions for a battle that, when it breaks, will prove one of the biggest and fiercest that the Anglo-American armies have yet fought against the Germans." The broadcast was recorded in New York by CBS.)

R.A.F. and U.S. bombers attacked the main road between Bojano and Isernia, blowing up a large enemy ammunition dump. Nazi motor transports moving eastward from Isernia toward Pescara were raked by night bombers, and the other airmen raided Terracina on the coastal highway to Rome.

Fighters and bombs ranging behind the enemy lines were credited with destroying at least 18 vehicles, besides damaging many more, destroying a locomotive and leaving a coastal schooner afire.

Dive-bombers blew up a 50-car German ammunition train south of Rome Monday, it was disclosed, and damaged 38 freight cars east of Rome.

French Spitfire pilots are operating from new bases in Corsica, it was disclosed, and probably downed a German bomber between Corsica and Sardinia.

The photographic reconnaissance showed Allied fighters and bombers were giving effective and close air support to Yugoslav Patriots, shooting up German barges and motor vessels.

Bomber Flies So Low Almost Hits Horseman Wings Sheer Cornstalks From Farm Field

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP).—American bombers flew so close to the ground during their August 1 raid on the Ploesti oil refineries in Rumania that they scraped up cornstalks, writes Capt. John S. Young in the November issue of Air Force, published by the U.S. Army Air Forces.

"Five bomb groups made the raid," he says.

"Colonel (John R.) Kane and I were piloting the lead ship of the first element.

"About 35 minutes from our target we lowered to 20 feet off the ground: And I mean 20 feet. We were coming in so low our plane actually had to pull up to avoid hitting a man on a horse. . . ."

During this attack, Capt. Young said, the plane's radio operator suggested more altitude because "we were collecting a mess of branches and cornstalks." The Colonel investigated and "I'll be damned if (Lieut. R. B.) Hubbard didn't hand him a cornstalk!"

Continued Saturation Raids May End War In 2 Months

By HENRY B. JAMESON—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 27—(AP).—The third and final phase of the first prisoner-of-war exchange with Germany in this country—involving almost 6,000 Allied soldiers and protected personnel—was proceeding today at Barcelona, where approximately 1,000 British nationals were trading ships with German soldiers captured in the Mediterranean war theatre. No Canadians were among the personnel being repatriated at Barcelona.

The exchange at the Spanish port was delayed for 24 hours by the late arrival of the Aquileia, one of the two German exchange ships, which pulled into harbor late last night. The other ship, the Djenne, had arrived earlier in the day. Both came from Marseille.

Among this last group of repatriates were approximately 500 wounded British soldiers. Most of the remainder were civilians. The majority of the soldiers were Australian, New Zealand, South African or Indian nationals.

Exchange 5,000.

During the past two days nearly 5,000 Britons and Canadians who have been confined to prison camps in Germany for periods ranging from a few months to more than three years have been welcomed at British ports.

Virtually all who could be interviewed said they firmly believed that German morale is cracking under the stress of the heavy Allied bombings of German cities and factories.

This view was summed up in a statement by Thomas Johnston, Secretary of State for Scotland, who said after talking to many of those who landed at Leith:

"It is the profound conviction of the great majority of them...that if our bombers can continue until Christmas the war is over."

One British soldier who came off the ship at Leith replied to questions about conditions inside Germany in typical army language. He declared:

"Believe me, Jerry is in a bad way. They are flogging their pants in Germany now."

Among the British women repatriates who arrived at Liverpool was Mrs. Theodore Sandall, who described German rations as "hopelessly insufficient, although I believe they were the normal civilian rations.

Murder Hearing Nearing Climax

By E. V. W. JONES
Associated Press Staff Writer

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 27—(AP)—as the murder trial of Alfred de Marigny moved toward a climax, Chief Justice Sir Oscar Bedford Daly brought out today that the weapon used to kill Sir Harry Oakes never was found, and Capt. E. W. Melchen, Miami detective, changed part of his testimony about the vitally-important fingerprint with which the Crown seeks to convict the accused man.

In his day-long testimony yesterday, Melchen had said that he first learned of the fingerprint long after De Marigny's arrest when Barker told Lady Oakes, the widow, about it the day after Sir Harry's funeral.

Under questioning by Sir Oscar today, Melchen changed his statement to say:

"On the ninth of July Barker and Pemferton (Major Herbert Pemberton of the Nassau police) went to the R.A.F. photolab to process a print they said was that of the accused."

While reading his long-hand account of yesterday's testimony, Sir Oscar inadvertently brought into the record the fact that the weapon used by the attacker to strike Sir Harry four times on the head was not found.

No Footprints.

The Chief Justice also brought out that no footprints were found inside Sir Harry's estate, Westbourne, or on the porches despite the fact that it rained heavily the night of July 7-8, about the time of the slaying.

Recognizing the importance of the fingerprint, the defence has sought through cross-examination of prosecution witnesses to show that De Marigny was taken to the second floor of Westbourne for questioning during the investigation, and this might then have touched the bed-screen on which the print allegedly was found.

Questioned by a juror, Melchen said today that the defendant had no opportunity to touch the screen when he took him upstairs about noon July 9.

In reading back his longhand account of Melchen's testimony yesterday, Sir Oscar inadvertently drew out the information about the murder weapon.

Weapon Missing.

Soviet Pincer Attack Dooms Nazis

Tank Battle Rages For Krivoi Rog Hun Reports Gloomy

LONDON, Oct. 27 — (CP). — With Soviet troops storming the outskirts of Krivoi Rog, the German command today took the gloomiest tone toward the Russian front since Stalingrad, in an apparent effort to stiffen the public and army alike for an impending military catastrophe.

"A large German withdrawal movement" in the Dnieper bend was announced by the Berlin radio and by their own accounts the Nazis were being pounded back from the Melitopol area all the way up to the region west of Smolensk.

A fateful tank battle was being fought from Krivoi Rog, important iron and steel centre, northward to Kremenchug as the Germans attempted to retard the Russian advance. But even this big counter-attack could do no more than score a few isolated defensive successes at heavy cost.

This was taken to indicate that the Soviets were broadening the base of their triangular salient driving down upon Krivoi Rog and the fall of the city, key to German defences in the Dnieper bend, was imminent.

Spearheads of one Soviet force—the northern arm of a great pincers designed to entrap those enemy units still inside the Dnieper River bend—already have captured Karnovatka, main rail centre for the Krivoi Rog area on the north bank of the Saksahani River, a Russian communique said.

The southern arm of the pincers, operating out of Melitopol, was said to have captured Veseloye, 24 miles to the northwest, after "particularly fierce fighting," and was believed surging ahead to close the gap which would seal the fate of the Germans trapped in the loop of the Dnieper between Melitopol and Dnepropetrovsk.

Advance From Mlilitopol.

Other Soviet columns were fanning out of Melitopol into the steppes above the Crimea. The Moscow war bulletin said they captured nearly 100 towns yesterday in advances of four to 12 miles.

Sunday Charges Killed In Court

TORONTO, Oct. 27 — (CP). — Charges against four York Township farmer and 24 helpers of working on the Lord's Day were withdrawn today in York County Court.

'I would like to have the charges against these farmers and helpers withdrawn," Township Police Chief Robert Alexander said as Magistrate William Keith read the charges.

"Apparently the Crown does not wish to prosecute and I do not wish to seek permission to do so. But the police believe these persons are technically guilty of a breach of the Lord's Day Act.

Magistrate Keith commented that "conditions of this war have caused this thing to be done."

"It may be necessary for people to do this kind of work on the Sabbath and so I am content to withdraw the charges."

The charges were laid last week after the farmers and their helpers worked Sunday, October 17, harvesting vegetables.

Must Open New Supply Route to China

Engineers Buck Tremendous Odds To Push New Road Across Mountains

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

He is a daring person who undertakes to explain the nature of warfare in that primeval zone of China's Yunnan province which abuts on Northeastern Burma.

In this wild region of mountains and gorges that lies high up under the roof of the world, as someone has labelled Tibet, the key to the military operations is a visionary road which would cut across the wilds of northernmost Burma to form a new lifeline for China to the outside world.

Japs Astride Route

The ocupation of Burma by the Japanese gave them possession of the lower reach of the Burma road, China's only feasible route to her allies. After the road crosses from Burma into Yunnan it runs along the upper Salween river for a way and then swings east across the river and on to Kunming and Chungking. That portion of the road east of the Salween is in the hands of the Chinese.

The only way to reopen the old Burma Road is to recapture Burma—a terrific and perhaps long operation. And before Burma can be captured the Allies must reopen the Burma Road—or its equivalent. The point is that military supplies of all kind must be moved to the impoverished Chinese so that they can strike against Burma from the north at the same time that the amphibious invasion takes place in the south from the Bay of Bengal.

So the Allies have been developing an alternative route to take the place of that part of the Burma Road which is in Japanese hands. The substitute is a road that runs through Indian Assam, northwest of Burma, until it is close to the Burmese border in the far north. From that terminus engineers have hewed an extension south-eastward right into the enemy-held territory of Burma. The official name of this extension is the Lido Road, but the boys call it the "Tokyo Road," for obvious reasons.

To Join Burma Road

Now the Allies want to link the Lido Road with the Burma Road on the other side of northern Burma—a tall order. They also aim to connect with the town of Myitkyina, which is the rail-head for Mandalay to the south and is the main Japanese base in the north. The only way to do that is to clear the Japanese out of that neck of the primeval world. And that brings us up to the present fighting in Yunnan.

The middle of this month the Japs suddenly started an offensive against the Chinese on the Salween. It now seems that the Nipponese were striking defensively, to prevent the Chinese from making a drive of their own into northern Burma and clearing a route for the extension of "Tokyo Road." The forces engaged are not large, but there has been heavy fighting.

So there's the solution. If and when land communication between India and China can be restored, supplies will pour over it to our Chinese Allies.

Soldier Aids Bomb Victims

Former Scout Dresses Wounds Of Tiny Tots

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 27 (CP)—The lives of two little Italian girls of four and 12 whose mother and father were killed when a German shell struck their home were saved by a Canadian scout who laid aside his Tommygun to tend the tot's wounds.

The soldier was 29-year-old Pte. Alan Cameron of Vernon, B.C. He was advancing cautiously into the town when someone approached and asked him in broken English if he could find a doctor. There were no medical officers so Cameron volunteered to do what he could.

He was led to the shelled house where he found the youngsters bleeding profusely from leg wounds.

Cameron, who is trained in first aid, cleaned the wounds and applied dressings.

"The little girl of 12 didn't want to go to sleep and when someone told her I was English she forgot all about being hurt," Cameron said. "She opened her eyes, put her tiny arms around my neck and hugged and kissed me.

"Had I seen any Jerries then," he added, slapping his gun, "I would have murdered them."

When I met Cameron he was walking along the road towards the town, on his way to see how his patients were making out.

Hammer Used To Slug Guard

Four Guelph Inmates Make Escape

GUELPH, Oct. 27 (CP)—Slugging a guard with a hammer, four inmates of the Ontario Reformatory made their escape from the institution laundry today. They are: Norman Pringle, 20, Oshawa; George Whitefoot, 17, Sarnia; Lyle W. Banks, 18, Sarnia and Lawrence Johnson, 21, Sandwich West.

The guard, John Nevin, veteran member of the staff is in the Reformatory hospital suffering from head wounds the extent of which have not been determined. Five other prisoners who had been taken to the laundry under Nevin's charge made no attempt to break custody.

Following ordinary routine of the reformatory, Guard Nevin, after breakfast, took the party of men to the laundry to start their day's work There four of the younger men attacked him, and one, so far unidentified, hit him over the head with the hammer knocking Nevin unconscious.

The other five apparently had no part in the attack. The guard was removed to the reformatory hospital, where he regained consciousness.

On their way through the laundry the men snatched up clothing which they later donned, it was indicated in reports reaching police. Two army battle dress uniforms and two civilian suits were missing from the laundry. One was a zoot suit and one brown with a green stripe.

LUMBERMEN ADVISE WRECKAGE SIGHTED MERELY OLD LANDSLID

Ground Party Believed On False Trail

ANCIENNE LORETTE, Que., Oct. 27—(CP)—Lumbermen in the La-Tuque Area, about 100 miles from here, said today that markings on a wild hillside in that district were caused by a landslide and not by the big R.C.A.F. Liberator missing with 24 passengers for eight days, believed to have been forced down somewhere in Quebec.

Meanwhile, a searching party was still heading towards the markings, through a forest wilderness in that part of the province. Lumbermen said it was impossible to reach the party to tell them they were following a false clue.

Planes continued to scour the area, but they have not returned to report finding wreckage.

A big bonfire was kept burning all night long by the ground party who still believe the broken trees were caused by the crash of the big Liberator. Almost inaccessible bush country kept them from reaching the gash in the ridge, two miles away, where they believe the plane wreckage is lodged.

The reports of searching pilots returning at noon from the La Tuque area tended to bear out the report of the lumbermen. The pilot said they had flown over the area around the hillside markings without finding any trace of anything that would indicate a crashed plane.

The pilots said they had again picked up faint calls on the 500 kilocycle band, the standard international distress band, but that the signals had been jumbled and could conceivably have originated in points far removed from the search area.

The ground party had reached a lumber road along the Rat River, roughly 25 miles south of La Tuque when they spotted what looked like wreckage through binoculars. It was in the same 40 square mile area where searching planes have been concentrating after picking up signals on the emergency frequency which could be coming from a portable transmitter with which the missing craft was equipped.

The party did not attempt to push on to the site of what looked like the wreckage but kept their fire going to guide night searching planes to the scene. The planes found the bonfire and dropped parachute flares but poor visibility hid any sign of wreckage.

The fire was also kept blazing in the hope it would cheer the Liberator passengers if they are actually in that vicinity.

Five Employees Double Quota

The Goodwin Machine Tool Company, Edinburgh street, have boosted their total subscriptions in the Fifth Victory Loan to 239 per cent of their objective, according to the report from Bruce Sargent of C. H. Elliott's team of city canvassers.

The owner of the plant is Mrs. Mary Goodwin and the manager is Harry Long with five employees all participating individually.

Mr. Sargent said the staff of Goodwin's was most co-operative. During the last Loan, when the quota for their district was trailing, and a second call was made at the Edinburgh street plant, the staff doubled their original subscriptions. Furthermore, their present 239 per cent of the objective is more than double their participation in the last Loan.

Another very commendable Victory Loan sale was made yesterday and the recipient of the Victory Bond is worthy of praise in the opinion of Bruce Sargent, canvasser.

A chair-ridden chap in "B" Section yesterday subscribed for his Victory Bond. This chap has one leg off and the other paralyzed yet he still wanted to do his duty in helping his country put the Loan over.

JOHN L. HAY

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 27 (ENS) — Funeral services for the late John L. Hay of Trent River were held at his late residence, Trent River, on Monday. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilkinson and Rev. Mr. Kemp of Havelock, and interment was at Mount Pleasant cemetery, Campbellford, where burial services was conducted by Rev. Mr. Kemp.

The late Mr. Hay's sudden passing last week was a shock to the whole community as he had apparently been in good health prior to his death. He was well known throughout the district and a respected citizen and business man of the community.

He was born in Seymour township, 63 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hay. As a young man he farmed for many years near Stanwood, later moving to Campbellford where he was engaged in real estate business. In 1935 he moved to Trent River where he farmed for a couple of years and then built a service station which he operated until his passing.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving husband, brother and father, are his widow, the former Ella Carnrite, four sons, Garnet of Seymour, Gordon of Colborne and Fred and Gerald at home; three daughters, Mrs. Mortimer Stewart and Mrs. Jack Stephens of Oshawa and Helen of Campbellford. Two sisters, Mrs. R. Waddell and Mrs. F. Hendy of Seymour West and three brothers, Edward, Warren and Thomas, all of Seymour, survive.

The large number of floral tributes testified to the respect in which the late Mr. Hay was held, and pallbearers were Garnet Hay, Gordon Hay, Gerald Hay, Fred Hay, Jack Stephens and M. Stewart, four sons and two son-in-laws.

Flower bearers were Reginald and Ralph Hay, Stewart and Bruce Hay, Mack Hay, Gordon Carnrite, Angus Brunton, George Richardson, H. Hendy.

MRS. J. E. THOMPSON

WARKWORTH, Oct. 27 (ENS) — There passed away on Saturday, Mary M. Angus, beloved wife of the late J. E. Thompson in her eighty-sixth year.

She was born in Percy township and all her life has been spent in Warkworth and vicinity, and had been in failing health for sometime.

Mrs. Thompson had a cheerful, kind disposition which endeared her to all who knew her. As long as health permitted she was an active member of St. Paul's United church and belonged to various organizations of the church.

Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper conducted the funeral service, which was held in St. Paul's United church Monday afternoon.

She is survived by three sons, Bruce of Toronto, Donald of Warkworth, Neil of Oshawa, and one daughter, Mrs. O. E. Kelly, Brighton; also three sisters, Mrs. T. A. Thompson, Coronach, Sask., Miss Edith Angus and Mrs. Jean Mattress Rochester, N.Y., and three grandchildren, Patricia Kelly, Edward and Margaret Thompson.

The pallbearers were W. B. Baker, C. Sherwin, G. L. Walker, G. B. Bowen, O. B. Phillips and Cyril Churchley. Flower bearers, Frank Boyce and Grant Allen.

Interment was in the Warkworth cemetery.

Those attending the funeral from out of town were Mr. J. Mattress, Miss Mary Mattress, Roseneath, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Twiddy, Trenton and Mrs. Ruth M. Thompson, Cobourg.

THOMAS H. LITSTER

Thomas H. Litster, a member of one of Toronto's oldest families, and stepfather of Lt.-Col. G. Murray Fraser, medical officer of health, died Tuesday in his 84th year. He was a manufacturer's agent for many years and was well known as a tenor soloist.

Born in Toronto, he was the son of the late James and Agnes Litster. He attended the Model School and Jarvis Collegiate. He was a member of the old Toronto Lacrosse Club and a member and founder of the Thistle Lawn Bowling Club. He was a member of the Toronto Male Chorus Club, with which he served as secretary. Formerly one of the founders and an elder of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, he had latterly been a member and elder of Glenview Presbyterian Church. He was also a member of Zetland Lodge, A.F. and A.M. Recently he was honored with the presentation of an illuminated scroll by the Grand Lodge of Ontario in recognition of musical compositions of which he was the author and which are used in ritual ceremony in Masonic lodges in Ontario.

THOMAS FRENCH

BANCROFT, Oct. 27 (ENS) — The funeral of the late Thomas French, who passed away at his late residence Saturday morning in his eighty-second year, was held at his home Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Reverend Robert McLaughlin of St. Paul's United church conducting the service. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery. The late Mr. French leaves to mourn his loss his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Andrew Hawkins of Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. Cecil Laundry of Bancroft and Miss Lulu French of Cobourg.

MRS. THOMAS R. KENNEDY.

Mrs. Thomas R. Kennedy, who has lived in Peterborough and district all her life, passed away early this morning after a short illness at her home, 241 Princess Street. She was in her 84th year.

Formerly Eliza Fowler, she was born in Fowler's Corners, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fowler. She came to this city from Bridgenorth and has been a member of Knox United Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss a daughter, Mrs. George Wallace of Peterborough, and three grandchildren: Ronald, Evelyn and Barbara Wallace of this city. There is one brother, John Fowler, of Carberry, Man.

The funeral will be held on Friday from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter Street, at 3.30. Rev. H. J. Mahoney will conduct the service and burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

gains of nine miles or more were recorded by Red Army columns which drove the demoralized Germans back further west toward the rapidly closing jaws of the overlapping pincer armies. Forty-three towns were liberated, including the district centre of Solenoye.

A fourth Russian army group was blasting its way toward the Znamenka-Nikolayev north-south railway, a possible escape hatch for the Dnieper bend Nazis, and the Moscow bulletin said this force was within 15 miles of severing the line yesterday.

Red Army air squadrons ranged up and down the front from Kremenchug to Melitopol and far to the west, blasting concentrations of fleeing Germans.

The Russian communique reported only minor reconnaissance and artillery action in the far north, but Berlin said the Red Army had launched an attack west of Krichev in White Russia.

Hard fighting was reported from Gomel northward to Orsha, but neither Berlin nor Moscow had anything to say regarding the situation around Kiev, Ukrainian capital, 150 miles northwest of Kremenchug, where Russian forces are said to have the German garrison practically isolated.

Raybestos Wins 3-Star Flag In Record Time

Canadian Raybestos Company received Tuesday afternoon its three-star "V" flag from Bill Reid, representing the National War Finance committee.

The employees were assigned an objective of $16,000 in the Fifth Victory Loan campaign, and to date their sbuscriptions amount to $20,700.

Their record is 130 per cent of their objective with 97 per cent of the staff subscribers of Victory Bonds.

William Cowell was head of the employees' canvass, and from all accounts he and his assistants did a "swell job." To inject a special interest in the plant drive, Canadian Raybestos arranged for a draw for a $50 Victory Bond and four $10 War Savings Certificates. Each subscriber was given a number and the draw was made yesterday afternoon. The winners were: Fred Shewell who held the number that won for him the $50 bond, and the Certificates went to Frank O'Toole, Mrs. H. Hawley, George Hewitt and Bert Howden.

Robert Abbott, general manager of Raybestos accepted the "V" flag on behalf of the staff, and turned it over to Harry Miller of the shop committee. The band of the R.C.A.M.C. from Camp Borden played a short program including "O Canada" and "God Save the King."

At Sister Concern

Mr. Abbott attended the ceremony of presentation of the U.S. Army-Navy "E" award of excellence in war effort to the Bridgeport, Conn., plant of the Raybestos Company. Three others of the company's units had previously won this coveted honor which originated in the United States Navy. Since the outbreak of the Axis war, the "E" award was extended to industries whose contribution to the nation's war effort has been conspicuously outstanding.

Among those who spoke at the Bridgeport ceremony was the Governor of the State and an employee who was with the United States Army fourteen months on Guadalcanal. He was stricken with malaria, invalided home, and is now able to resume work with Raybestos.

Employees of the Inspection Board of the United Kingdom and Canada is another group of Peterborough subscribers of the Fifth Victory Loan who have bowled over their objective as reported to headquarters here by Maurice Smith.

Ninety-five per cent of the employees bought Bonds to the extent of 110 per cent of their quota. They were assigned an objective of $8,500 and their Bonds amount to $9,350.

Murder Hearing

Chief Justice turned to Melchen and asked:

"What was the weapon"

"I don't know sir," replied the detective.

"Oh," grunted the Chief Justice, resuming his reading.

Sir Oscar referred to a part of Melchen's testimony which was at variance with the statement the officer gave at a preliminary hearing for De Marigny.

'If you had not known about the evidence given by Lieut. John Douglas," asked the Justice, "would you have changed your testimony about taking the accused upstairs between three and four o'clock?

"The time element is important, you know."

"Yes, sir," said Melchen. "I believe I would."

Screen Unguarded.

The Chief Justice required Melchen to tell exactly how he took De Marigny upstairs July 9, warning. "If you don't remember, say so. You have made one mistake already."

Melchen said Corporal Knowles of the Nassau Constabulary was guarding the door to Sir Harry's bedroom.

"Was anybody guarding the bed-screen?" the Justise asked.

"The screen was directly opposite Knowles Sir."

Sir Oscar raised his voice:

"That is not what I asked. Was anyone guarding the screen itself?"

"No, your honor."

A murmur spread through the audience.

The jury foreman asked:

"Could the accused, in going up and down stairs, possibly come in contact with that screen?"

"No, sir." replied Melchen, firmly.

"Could the clothes given you by the accused have been used the night before?"

"No, sir."

Used High Test Gas

Melchen had testified that De Marigny was unable to produce the shirt he told of wearing the night of the slaying. The detective said the trousers and coat which the accused man declared he wore were perfectly pressed and the crease of the trousers was not disturbed.

Melchen estimated that one quart to three pints of high octane gasoline was used by the attacker in setting the fire in the bedroom. The attempt at arson was very clumsy, he added.

Cpl. Bud Sanders Killed Overseas

CPL. BUD SANDERS

Word has been received that Corporal Bernard Sanders (Bud) formerly Pearl Crowe, resides at 149 Hart avenue, has been killed in action in Italy while fighting with the British Eighth Army.

He enlisted in the Prince of Wales Rangers and then transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward units as a reinforcement. He joined the Army in April of 1942 and went overseas in the following October. Prior to enlisting he was employed as a machine hand at the Johnston Motors.

Surviving besides his wife, are his mother, five brothers, Edward, Frank. Fred, Sgt. Instructor Lawrence in Canada, Jack, and two sisters, Mrs. E. Robertson of Peterborough, and Mrs. T. Lowe, Detroit, Mich.

Major Ralph Honey, second-in-command of the Prince of Wales Rangers, who is home on furlough, said that Cpl. Sanders was very highly regarded in the regiment and that he was a member of the first draft that left the unit for overseas. When he answered the call for overseas he was due for promotion which promotion came to him before leaving England for Sicily.

The Navy became the second service to go over the top when the Atlantic Command reported an additional $337,400, bringing the Navy's grand total to $2,612,750 against an objective of $2,580,000. While the Navy as a whole has not reported since its five-day total of $2,275,350 for 91 per cent, the addition was more than enough to pass the quota.

A late report from No. 1 Training Command, Toronto, showing $2,351,100, pushed the R.C.A.F. grand total to $8,969,650, or 103.3 per cent of its $8,682,000 objective.

Reports to Headquarters told of St. Thomas, Ont., Technical Training School shooting at $75,000 and getting $114,200.

The cumulative total went to $487,279,20 yesterday on the basis of collections of $70,135,000 Monday This compared with a grand total of $436,345,250 and a one-day total of $63,800,350 at the same stage of the Fourth Loan campaign.

Last night's official statement said official statistics coming through the headquarters' recording system showed that general sales and payroll subcriptions totalled approximately 28 per cent of the $525,000,000 quota for that division with a little more than 38 per cent of the time passed.

Slowing Up

Although some employee's applications are believed to be slow in coming through, the statement said those figures were interpreted officially as "indicating that neither the public nor the loan organizations can regard the loan's success as a foregone conclusion and relax."

The headquarter reported that Shawinigan Falls, Que., with 88.8 per cent, has pulled out in front of Brantford, Ont., in the general canvass and payroll savings race. Brantford has 84.3 per cent. Owen Sound has 53.2 per cent.

The R.C.A.F. is over the top, taking just seven days to shatter its overall objective of $8,682,000. By Monday midnight, the Airmen had raaised $8,773,450 for 103 per cent. of their quota. Subscriptions in Canada stand at $8,625,050, 108.7 per cent. of the $7,932,000 home-front objective.

Among large subscriptions reported yesterday were:

Penmans, Ltd., of Montreal and Paris, Ont., $600,000; Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co., Ltd., $1,000,000; T. Eaton Co., Ltd. and subsidiaries, Toronto $6,000,000; Electric Metallurgical Co., of Canada, Ltd., Welland, Ont., $500,000; and Quaker Oats Co., of Canada, Ltd., Peterborough, Ont., $750.000.

Aunt Lizzie Who Winked At Gen. Sherman Ready For Victory And 113th Birthday

SAPULPA, Okla., Oct. 27 —(AP)— Aunt Lizzie Deevers is "sure as shooting" that she'll live to celebrate her 113th birthday in six months, and probably live to see a victory over "them hyenas—the Germans and Japs."

"I've lived through four wars and I mean to give this one the works, too," she said.

Aunt Lizzie, who went through Indian territories in the 19th century selling patent medicine, explained that she's Cherokee, Irish and Dutch —"and that's the meanest mixture they is."

"Reckon I'm too mean to die," she said, twisting her wrinkled hands—hands that once waved at General Sherman as he marched through Georgia.

She said she even winked at Sherman, who didn't wink back. But one of his soldiers did and Aunt Lizzie later married him. She outlived that husband and eight others.

She attributes her long life to minding her own business. She lives in an atmosphere of absolute demomracy; her chickens, goats and pigs have free access to her little house on a hilltop overlooking Sapulpa.

"Shucks, no, I don't feel old," Aunt Lizzie insists. "I'm still just a giddy girl."

Full-Scale Battle Rages In Dodecanese

ANKARA, Oct. 26 (Delayed) — (AP).—A reliable report today said that the Dodecanese Islands of Kos and Kalymnos both were packed with German wounded from a full-fledged air and sea battle which has flared again between large forces of Germans and Britons.

Another report said that five days ago the Germans were beaten back with severe losses when they attempted landing operations on an undisclosed Aegean island.

A report from Kushadasi, south of Izmir, said that for three days the Germans had been carrying out concentrated air attacks on Samos, matching the round-the-clock Allied raids on Kos and Rhodes. One raider was reported brought down by anti-aircraft fire.

COBOURG

Victory Loan Sales Only 24 Percent.

COBOURG, Oct. 27—(ENS)—The first week's results for the Fifth Victory Loan campaign in the County of Northumberland was not quite up to the expectation of the Victory Loan officials in Cobourg. Total sales for the county reported for the first week were $422,500 or 24.85% of their objective. For the same period in the fourth loan, the amount obtained was $436,400 or 27.6% of the objective last spring. In order to meet the county objective this time of $1,700,000 the county have to obtain $566,000 per week. At the rate the campaign is now going, we were behind $145,500 the first week of the campaign.

At the present rate with which the subscriptions for the Town of Cobourg are coming in as compared with the town of Port Hope which challenged Cobourg through Mayor Stephenson, that Port Hope would meet its objective by a greater percentage than Cobourg, it appears that Cobourg is going to lose the challenge. The first week of the campaign Port Hope obtained $129,200 or 29.4% of its objective as compared with $93,100 or 18.6% of objective in Cobourg. The only cheerful part of the Victory Loan results in the county are the results obtained in the Payroll Savings Section under the chairmanship of Mr. R. G. Parker. Out of the nine plants in the county, five of them have already completed their canvass and have reported that in each case, their objectives were exceeded by a wide margin. The following plants have gone over the top:

	Obj.	Amount Obt'ed
Campbellford Cloth	$15,000	$15,350
Breithaupt Leather Co.	6,700	7,050
Cobourg Dyeing Co.	5,800	6,350
Cobourg Matting Co.	3,500	4,500
Cooey Metal Products	9,000	10,100

Out of the 14 canvassing districts in the county, only one district had obtained a third of its objective the first week of the campaign. This was the village of Colborne with an objective of $70,000 and had obtained $27,000 or 38.57% of its objective. "It is quite apparent that the people of Northumberland will have to get behind the campaign to a greater effort in the remaining weeks of the drive than they have in the first week if the county objective is to be met" stated Victory Loan officials.

Reports coming in to Victory Loan headquarters from salesmen in the field indicate that the going is harder than in previous campaigns. They state that a larger majority of the people in the county seem to be slow in making up their minds this time as to whether or not they will purchase Victory Bonds. This necessitates our salesmen calling back and using up considerable amount of their time as well as gasoline. In view of the shortage of gasoline and the fact that the Victory Loan salesmen have large territories to cover, the people are asked to subscribe to as many Victory Bonds as possible when the salesman first calls around.

Cobourg Girl Bereaved In Air Crash

TORONTO, Oct. 26—(CP)—LAC. Winston McCatty, 31, well-known Canadian swimmer, was killed yesterday in the crash of an Anson training plane at Chatsworth, a few miles from Owen Sound, his family here were notified today.

Three other Toronto men aboard the plane are in hospital at Owen Sound with injuries. Cause of the crash has not been determined but it was believed to have struck a tree during a forced landing.

LAC. McCatty represented Canada in swimming in the British Empire games at Lodon in 1934. He is the son of Mrs. Alice McCatty and the late Mr. McCatty of Toronto. He married Miss Shirley Naylor of Cobourg about a year and a half ago and she lives here with his mother. He was born in Jamaica but was brought to Canada when in his 'teens.

Deserted Children

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP).—Judge Donald Menzies yesterday sentenced Mary Kerr of London to three months in jail for deserting her five children. He said he did not want the sentence to stand "as a precedent for harsh treatment, warning that "women who leave their children without care may be sent to the reformatory."

Cavan Farmer Threatens To Burn House Of Man Who Stole His Girl

COBOURG, Oct. 27—(ENS)—Wilbert Smith of Cavan Township, 29 years of age, threatened to burn down the house of Roy Brackenridge of the same township because he felt "hurt and insulted" and because Brackenridge had been taking his girl out, Smith told the court yesterday when he appeared on a charge of sending a threatening letter. The accused pleaded guilty and Magistrate R. B. Baxter remanded him until Thursday for sentence.

Smith was arrested by provincial constables Alex MacLeod of Cobourg and H. Pollard of Port Hope.

Constable MacLeod told the court that he checked the letter received by the complainant with the writing of Smith and found that they had been written apparently by the same person. The statement given by the accused, related that he had sprinkled tractor oil on the verandah. The constable found a broken window in one of the rooms with a can of oil sitting inside the window. The telephone wires had been cut at the nearby house of Brackenridge's father and glass had been scattered on the driveway, but this had not been Smith's work, the accused had declared.

"Why did you do this? Did you intend to carry out your threat?" the magistrate asked Smith.

"No, I had no intention of setting the place on fire. I wanted to give him something to think about. I had been hurt and deceived. I didn't care to be insulted," replied Smith.

The accused mentioned that he and Brackenridge had been going with the same girl.

"I guess you have been reading too many wild west stories," commented the magistrate.

In view of the Presbytery Congress of the Cobourg Presbytery which is to be held on November 3 it was announced the meeting for next Monday would be cancelled.

CAMPBELLFORD

St. John's Young Folk Have Costume Party

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27 (ENS) —Young People of St. John's United church held a Hallowe'en party and program at their meeting Monday evening.

Attired in a variety of costumes the young people marched in couples through a long dimmed out passage in the basement of the church. At the end of the route they were paraded before the costume judges, Miss Pearl McComb, Miss Mae Phillips and Murray Maxwell. Misses Esther Meiklejohn and Greta Spencer were chosen as the best dressed couple, and Miss Ruth Waters got the prize for the most original costume. The best clown was Peter Hennessy and the best comic costume was worn by Gerald Sloggett while Miss Trumpour and Miss Cole were awarded a prize for their costume as bride and groom.

The program included a sing song led by Glenn Gemmell and William Watson; a poem on Hallowe'en by Jean Arnold; musical number by Helen Young and Betty Green. Prizes for the cat game were won by Miss Trumpour and Miss Cole.

Home-Mixed Syrup Relieves Coughs Quickly

Saves Big Dollars.
So Easy. No Cooking.

A pleasing surprise is waiting for you, in your own kitchen, when it comes to the relief of coughs due to colds. In just a moment, you can mix a cough syrup that gives you about four times as much for your money, and is splendid for quick results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup, and you have 16 ounces of really effective cough medicine. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing. You'll say it's very satisfying in its action.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

HERE are the dotted lines on which I'm glad to place my name. To me, to us all, it's the Victory Line.

With my name and the names of all true Canadians on this line we can speed the Victory.

Without a sufficient number of names on this line now, we can't have a speedier Victory.

Our country needs more and more individual people signing on the Victory Line and buying more and more Victory Bonds.

That is why I'm urging my family and all my friends and acquaintances to sign up and buy to their full limit.

I'm buying Bonds two ways—first with ready cash—and then instalment buying out of current income. In the past I bought my home on the instalment plan—today I'm buying Victory and my needs of the future in the same way. This way I can buy more Bonds—and help bring our boys back in a shorter time.

Therefore, you are urged too, to buy to your limit. Indeed, beyond your apparent limit in an all-out effort to help win the war in quicker time!

Buy more and more Victory Bonds.

HOW TO BUY A BOND

Give your order to the Victory Loan salesman who calls on you or place it with any branch bank or trust company. You can also buy Bonds through your employer for cash or on the Payroll Savings Plan. Or send your order to your local Victory Loan Headquarters. Any one of these agencies will be glad to give you every assistance in completing your application. Bonds may be bought in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger

Canadian Pork For Britain

The new arrangement by which Canada will supply pork to Britain will permit a wider distribution of pork products in our own country; Britain is now able to manage with less of our pork than she needed formerly, and both countries will benefit by the new plan.

As always the outbreak of war made it necessary for us to improvise a number of plans, our plan for supplying Britain with meat among them. Now the period of improvisation is over, and we are able to enter into a two-year agreement with the certainty that it can be carried out, and the knowledge of what we have available for our export and domestic markets.

The announcement of the plan, also, gives hope that a balance may at last be struck between livestock and grain production in Canada. During recent years the farmers in the Canadian West have been urged to take up livestock production, and some of them have done so with a thoroughness which upset the feed supplies of the areas in which they lived. Now it seems that a balance may be established, with the East raising the greater number of beasts, and the West taking care that the supplies of feed do not fall below the requirements.

There is some suggestion in the Hon. James Gardiner's announcement that he expects the new contract with Britain to extend into the early days of peace. If this were so it would give the Canadian farmer a good market during the early days of peace, which would have an effect in stabilizing farm prices at that critical time. And it would also give Canadian farmers an early start in the competition for the British trade in meat—a start which might prove of the greatest value. Altogether the new contract seems to be a most satisfactory piece of business.

The News As a Narcotic

In a recent address to the Advertising Club of Montreal, Mr. Eric Hodgins, the vice-president and general manager of the news magazine Time, roundly condemned the press of his country for reporting what he called "dream battles in which nobody but the enemy ever gets hurt". Such reporting, he said, amounted to dosing the public with a dangerous and insidious narcotic.

As an American with an influential position in the publishing world Mr. Hodgins is privileged to make these criticisms. Certainly the American press allows its optimism to govern it in a way which Canadian newspapers cannot afford to copy. The American press tends to extremes more than we do. Before the U.S. entered the war, when things looked black for Britain and her allies, the American press was very gloomy indeed; it foresaw the fall of Britain and her Empire with striking clarity. The Canadian press did not permit itself to take such an extreme view. Now that things are going well for us, the American press is jubilant, and once again the Canadian press is more conservative in its origin. The fact of the matter is that Canada's association with Britain makes us more international in our outlook than our neighbour; we are part of a world-wide commonwealth, and we have for that reason a sense of belonging to the world as a whole which the U.S., as a single great nation, lacks.

But the euphoria which Mr. Hodgins complains of in the press of his country has another explanation, also. The U.S. entered the war at a time when things were not going well for the Allies, and almost immediately the U.S. had a series of hard knocks. But then matters began to improve, and for the greater part of the time that the U.S has been an active belligerent the war news has been encouraging, and often extremely good. No wonder that her press has been somewhat unguarded in its optimism.

Canada has been in the war since the beginning, up to the neck, and we had some bad spells which we shall never forget, even when the victory is ours. Has anyone forgotten the anxiety of those days between the assault on the Low Countries and the end of the blitz on Britain? We were too near the bitterness of defeat then to become victims of uncontrolled optimism in better times. The U.S. has no similar period of worry to look back on, and the optimism of its press may be explained thereby.

Suitable War Memorials

The suggestion has been made that when this war is over our memorials to the fallen should take the form of libraries, community halls, auditoriums, schools, playgrounds and housing developments. We think that there is great merit in this idea. After the last war every community which could afford it put up a monument to its men who had died in the common cause; some of the memorials were handsome and worthy, and a great many of them were undistinguished; a few were monstrosities which should never have been foisted on the public. To put up another memorial in each community after this war would surely be foolish, and would look as though we meant, in the course of time, to turn our country into a forest of cenotaphs.

The custom of putting up monuments is a European one. In the old cities of Europe monuments are esteemed for their decorative qualities. Here in Canada we need many things worse than we need monuments. We must build our beautiful cities before we begin to ornament them. There is no Canadian town or city, to our knowledge, which does not need something for the living worse than it needs a stone pillar for the dead. A necessary building, a park or playground, a really satisfactory community hall—these are the things that Canadian towns really need. Every one who uses such a memorial will think of the dead for whose sake it was built. But who uses, or thinks about a Cenotaph, except on special days of observance?

This is not a plea that we should invariably confine ourselves to things which are "useful". But it is against the spirit of the men who are dying, and will die, for Canada in this war, that we should neglect things which are needed to build up fine Canadian communities in order to put up pillars and lozenges of marble. A building which fills a gap in a town's equipment, and which is specifically named as a war memorial, is better than the majority of cenotaphs.

Last Week For Parcels

If you are sending Christmas parcels abroad for men in the services, or for friends and relatives who are civilians, you should get them away before the end of this week. Shipping, the uncertainty of ocean travel, and the great amounts of mail which have to be moved before the Christmas season all make the job a difficult one. Do all you can to help our overloaded mail services.

If you have left your parcels until now, be sure that you have them in the post before the end of the week. If you wait longer your parcels may not arrive overseas in time, and someone will be disappointed. And be sure that your parcels are carefully packed and wrapped; a parcel which contains broken goods is a danger to the other mail. Do not try to send things which are fragile; particularly, do not send anything which is likely to cause a fire, such as matches or lighter fluid. The Red Cross sews all its bundles up in canvas wrappers, and you might be well advised to copy their plan.

The City Council has prepared a handsome pamphlet, which bears Christmas greetings from the whole city to the receiver of your parcel; on the pamphlet are some of the best photographs of this city that we have seen. Be sure to put one in your parcel. The churches have them for this purpose, and if you cannot get one there we are sure that a phone call to the City Building will tell you where a card may be found. The idea of sending a community card of this kind is an excellent one, and the Council is to be congratulated on the appropriate and pleasant design which it has chosen.

Remember: this is the last week for parcels!

The C.B.C. Gives Us Oratorio

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

FOR the past four Sunday evenings the CBC has given us an excellent three-quarters of an hour of oratorio after the ten o'clock newscast, and this program is scheduled to continue for some time. The CBC is often criticised severely for the matter and manner of its programs; I have joined the critical chorus myself; but it must be given full credit also for the first-rate programs it gives us, and these are more numerous than many of the critics seem to realise. Not long ago we had an excellent series of concerts in which Wanda Landowska played a group of hitherto unknown harpsichord concertos; the recollection of that series will not soon fade. We have had good programs of light opera; we had a promise of a series of Gilbert and Sullivan broadcasts, although it faded away and died in mid-course; we had a good series of ballad-operas. For a time we had the excellent weekly concerts of Chuhaldin's string ensemble, though this has not been heard recently. The CBC has given us a very fair proportion of good stuff.

NOT long ago, also, we had a series of concerts of eighteenth century music performed under the direction of Ettore Mazzoleni, who is now associate conductor of the Toronto Symphony; the present oratorio performances recall it to memory. The oratorio series is possibly the most ambitious thing of its kind that the CBC has tackled yet. For oratorio makes demands on its performers quite as stringent as those of grand opera; the singing, indeed, should be better, for an operatic singer can yell unashamedly and call it "dramatic declamation" but the oratorio singer must keep his tone pure even when he is most moved. Not, of course, that he always does so; the gap between his desires and his performance is sometimes a broad one.

FORTY or fifty years ago there flourished a whole race of men and women who specialized in singing oratorio, and rarely performed any other sort of music. When every city of any size or pretentions maintained a choir, like the excellent choirs of London, Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto, an oratorio soloist could count on a full season of engagements singing in their various performances, and might be as widely known for his Judas, or his Sampson, or Elijah as any operatic star for his Count di Luna or his Rigoletto. Some of these oratorio singers had great art, and others had great voices; a very few had both. In collections of old gramophone records it is still possible to hear Evan Williams singing—with a Caruso sob—"Total Eclipse" from Sampson, or David Bispham robustly rebuking the Almighty in Elijah. Oratorio was very popular in those days.

THE decline in its popularity is not hard to explain. Oratorio is a comparatively chaste form of musical art, and chastity in art is not highly valued by the general public today. The demand for what is nervous and stimulating, rather than for what is exalted and powerful, almost rules out any large public for oratorio. Many people who call themselves music-lovers today go to the concert hall merely to have their ganglions assaulted; they demand a febrile ravishment rather than a quieting of their senses. It is not the purpose of oratorio to supply the equivalent of the bombardment of Leningrad. And it is of course true that a majority of oratorio themes are taken from the Bible, and acquaintance with the Bible and enthusiasm for edifying religious entertainment is not so great as it was in the time of our grandfathers.

ORATORIO is an acquired taste, like olives. It is drama without acting, and drama without a relieving touch of comedy; the funny bits in oratorio can almost be counted on the fingers of one hand. And the gigantic shadow of Handel lies over all oratorio written after his time; even Mendelssohn was unable to shake off completely the compulsion to write in the Handelian idiom. Many a mediocre Victorian composer assumed the mantle of Handel, to be smothered in its voluminous folds. Only in recent years have men of the stamp of Honegger and Walton exorcised the Handel bugaboo. For a bugaboo it was; to try to write like Handel without Handel's genius or his noble faith is to be haunted indeed.... Of the present series of concerts given by the CBC it is enough to say that the standard of performance is good, when we remember the difficulties of preparing several oratorios for performance, of chopping them down to make them fit the time available—the old Procrustean fault of radio, of which it must rid itself as soon as possible—and of making the best of soloists who are not always capable of singing the decorative passages in Handel's music. But the important thing is that the CBC is giving its listeners a chance to hear several oratorios performed, and is thereby making a notable contribution to the development of musical taste in Canada, and preparing for the day when oratorio will certainly be restored to popularity.

Unconsidered Trifles

Judge: "What's the charge against this man, officer?"

Officer: "Bigotry, yer honour. He's got three wives."

Judge: "I'm surprised at your ignorance, officer. That's trigonometry, not bigotry."

Lion Tamer: "If you want to take up this line, remember the first thing you've got to do is to make the lions believe that you're not afraid of them."

Cautious Charles: "Well, guv'nor, on second thoughts, I'll give it a miss. I couldn't never be so deceitful as that!"

Two men, neither of championship class, and whose knowledge of the rules of golf was no more accurate than their technical knowledge of the various shots, were standing on the first tee on the Mudtown course. The first fairway was bordered on the right by a row of oak trees.

One of the men teed his ball and, taking a swing, sliced to such an extent that the ball struck one of the trees fairly, and came bounding back across the tee, so that the player in question without moving from his stance, caught the ball in his hand as it was bounding past.

With a bewildered look on his face, he turned to his opponent and asked: "What shall I do now?"

His opponent, without studied effort or inclination to make a joke, replied: "Tee it up, hit it again, and then put your hands in your pockets."

A Room With a Fire

IT IS MOST interesting to trace, in Norway, the persistence of the characteristics of the primitive human dwellings. The very old houses with their central fire are rare, but the same features may be found in the "ildhus," or "rokhus," an outbuilding adjoining some of the old farmhouses. The names signify in Norwegian "fire-house," or "smoke-house," and the buildings were formerly in general use for smoking and preserving meat. Like all primitive houses, they contain one room with a fire in the center and an opening in the roof to let out the smoke; the only other opening is the door. This rodkus serves as an excellent example of the old Norwegian dwelling of saga and Viking days, though in those times it would, of course, have been furnished with a table, benches, and a bed, or beds. Over the fire there would have been a pot or kettle hanging, and benches would have been built against the walls. The benches would, doubtless, also have been used for sleeping, but the chief persons occupied the beds, which, in some cases, were partitioned from the room, and are known in the sagas as "closed beds." There would also have been a means of closing the smoke-hole in the roof, for use when the smoke from the fire had died down and only the hot embers remained; in this way the heat was retained in the room. In the larger houses the fire would run right down the room....From the beginning of the twelfth century this custom was dropped, and the fire was removed to one side or a corner of the room, and a chimney was erected; for many years the position of the stove in the corner of the room was retained. Then windows were added. In old Norse, the name of the dwelling would be "bur" or "stofa," and in modern Norse "stuva." It is, in fact, the same as the English word "stove" and the German "stube," signifying a room with a fire in it.—From "A Wayfarer in Norway," by Samuel J. Beckett. (New York: McBride.)

At the Centre of Empire

(By D. E. BURRITT, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct. 27 —(CP)—Possibly the people most puzzled by Italy's latest role of "co-belligerent" are the Italians themselves, particularly those in London's bizarre community of Soho.

In their garlic-permeated buildings that house numerous restaurants and "continental" grocery and wine shops, the Italians heard about their country's latest status and then recalled that eventful evening of June 30, 1940, when the radio announced Mussolini's latest handiwork — war against Britain and France.

Crowds of Londoners wandered that night through the strange little community, which boasts that there you can eat the national dish of any country, tossing the odd brick through the odd window and causing other minor disturbances. It was far from a riot and it would be exaggeration to say the crowds "surged" or "raced" through the narrow streets.

As a matter of fact, the crowd was almost leisurely in its action. But it was sufficient to frighten the bewildered shopkeepers. Many closed their places to await developments. Strange signs appeared where once had flared unpronounceable Italian names. They disclaimed any association with Italy. But many of the owners were interned.

Many others were left and gradually they were re?absorbed into the varied life of Soho. They re-absorbed into the varied life of Soho. They was any need to remind them that their homeland was an enemy of their adopted country.

Came the puzzling developments. Their homeland had joined and was fighting with the United Nations. They, too, were in the war against Germany, and they expressed satisfaction at that.

What they want to know now is why their individual status doesn't change. They consider themselves Allies, but find themselves still under the strict curfew law, still listed as enemy aliens. None of their relatives or friends has been released from internment, some of them in Canada.

If the government has reached any decision as to the future of these people, it hasn't made it known.

Pub owners are complaining of a further cut in the food they used to display on snack bars. Say they: "The snack bar is not disappearing. It has disappeared."

Food supplies now are being given mostly to "sit-down" places, which led the publicans to demand: "When the country was short of beer, did they stop 'sit-down places' from selling beer? Not ruddy likely! But they're making it impossible for us to re-stock our snack bars.".

If fair play is to be considered, say the publicans, why don't they confine the sale of food to restaurants and the sale of beer to pubs?

'Oldest Inhabitant'

It is pretty generally agreed that when the war is over quite a number of our mushroom Ministries will promptly disappear. The bureaucrats are striving industriously to dig themselves in, but public demand for economy will speedily sweep away some departments.

It is a tragic fact, however, that one Ministry at least will find its work increase rather than diminish when the Armistice comes and the "cease fire" sounds. That must be the inevitable experience of the Pensions Ministry, over which Sir Walter Womersley presides.

When the war started its list of pensioners, disabled or partly disabled in 1914-18, was beginning to show inevitable shrinkage though the longevity of men in receipt of a State allowance is almost proverbial. I am told that the "oldest inhabitant" from the Ministry's point of view is a man who sustained wounds in the Zulu campaign of 1879.—Nottingham Evening Post.

Is Not This the Limit?

A newspaper need not betray its fealty to advertising principles if it calls attention to a vulgar example of cigarette advertising in the current issues of possibly the two most widely circulated weekly magazines on this continent. We hardly need cite their names, but the example in question occupies a full page in each magazine, the outstanding feature being a picture of the Duchess of Windsor with the reproduction of a letter of hers headed "Government House, Nassau," in one upper corner, and in the other a coat-of-arms, the letter being addressed to the makers of a brand of cigarettes for which "Wallis Windsor" says smokers at the United Services Canteen at Nassau, where the lady officiates more or less, show their preference to the extent of 80 per cent. The spread is embellished otherwise in recognition by the cigarette advertisers of the exceptional tribute obtained (and perhaps paid for) not from any mere Hollywood actress but from a woman who had aspired to be Queen of Great Britain, Ireland and the Dominions beyond the Seas, and married an abdicated King of Great Britain who is now Governor of the Bahamas.

At the time of the abdication of King Edward VIII some British newspapers plainly intimated that public opinion in Britain would never tolerate a lowered standard of queenship from that set by Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria, to which they had been accustomed for the previous century. At present no one need wonder what the attitude of Queen Elizabeth would be toward overtures from a cigarette firm for a letter in their interest; it is equally impossible to imagine Princess Alice, wife of our Governor-General, being accessible to such overtures.

Health In Britain

While Britain's general health in the past year continued to be good, and was, in some respects, even better than in peace time, there was an increase in minor and short-term illnesses, it was revealed in the Ministry of Health report, for England and Wales, for the year ending March 31, 1943.

Such an increase, said Mr. Ernest Brown in a foreword, might well be expected after more than three years of war, with all its anxieties; long hours of employment, often on heavy and unusual work; shopping, travelling and housing difficulties; Civil Defence or Home Guard duties; lack of holidays and the black out.

There can be no doubt that the nation's prodigious war effort has imposed a severe strain upon the health of the people, a strain which they have in general withstood with dogged determination and astonishing success....

"But, as has often been emphasized, the strains of war are progressive and their effects on health may be long-term," says Mr. Brown. — London Evening Standard.

A Bible Message

The wicked in his pride doth persecute th poor: let them be taken in the devices that the have imagined. For the wicked boasteth of hi heart's desire, and blesseth the covetous, whor the Lord abhorreth. The wicked, through th pride of his countenance, will not seek after Go God is not in all his thoughts.... He hath sa in his heart, God hath forgotten: he hideth hi face; he will never see it.

Arise, O Lord; O God, lift up thine hand: for get not the humble.... Break thou the arm o the wicked and the evil man: seek out his wick edness till thou find none. (Ps. 10: 2-4, 11, 1 15.)

The wicked worketh a deceitful work: but t him that soweth righteousness shall be a sur reward.... Though hand join in hand, the wick ed shall not be unpunished: but the seed of th righteous shall be delivered....

He that diligently seeketh good procureth fav our: but he that seeketh mischief, it shall com unto him. (Prov. 11: 18, 21, 27.)

Righteousness keepeth him that is upright in the way: but wickedness overthroweth the sinner. (Prov. 13: 6.)

Letter To The Editor

INCONSIDERATE SHOPPERS

Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—Allow me a little space in your dail paper to voice my grievance about housewive going to the store—particularly the grocer stores. Now when so many women are workin until five o'clock, or nearly five, why can't th women who are at home go to the store som other time in the day except at five o'clock? myself am working, and when I came home an went to the store at ten minutes to five one da last week it was just twenty minutes to six be fore I got waited on because of the women wh were in there, that I know for a fact som of them were visiting all afternoon. Now I sai some of them were visiting—and more of them will say—well I don't have time to go any othe time; I have work to do and children to loo after and I don't get dressed up until nearly eve ning. Well, just try for the duration and see i you can't do better; make a little effort to ge there some other time.

And mothers who send children to the store— which is quite alright as the store employee give them as good service as adults—send them when they come from school and not at fiv o'clock, and why not send one or two, not l half a dozen to fill up the store? And in passin I might suggest when sending children write th order down. It is better for the child and store keeper and, by the way, if some women's memor ies are not the best, why not write down th order too, as some women go in the store an buy a few things and the waiter says, Is ther something else? "Oh, I do want some mor things but what are they?"—and start lookin round the store to see if it will come to you memory, and a line up waiting to be served And the men folks waiting for supper. Don't d that please.

See if we can't have a little co-operation unt after the war is ended and stores will be able t get more help.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

WORKING HOUSEWIFE.

MILLBROOK

Rev. G. Williams Speaker At 61st Anniversary

MILLBROOK, Oct. 27 — (ENS). —Rev. George Williams of Toronto, departmental secretary for the Missions and Maintenance Fund of the United Church of Canada, was the guest speaker for the sixty-first anniversary of St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday morning and evening, the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, B.D., being in charge.

Baskets of gold and bronze 'mums were at the chancel entrance and on either side of the altar. Included in the special music furnished by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston, were three anthems for the day, and selections by the male quartette, G. Might, W. H. Coombe, A. Muspratt, and H. Oulette, who sang "Go Through the Gates" during the offertory in the morning, and "The Name of Jesus," following the sermon at night.

Church Invincible.

For his morning theme Rev. Mr. Williams chose "The church, Militant and Invincible," based on Matthew 16, 18: "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock shall I build My church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Delivering a ringing challenge to the spirit of defeatism which is widespread to-day, the speaker emphasized three facts: 1, The church is not just a human institution, but divine, which God Himself has brought into being, and the things for which the church stands were never more needed in the world than they are to-day; 2, the church is an indestructible institution; denominations will go, buildings will go, Hitler will go along with the rest, but the church will be sustained; 3, the church is an invincible institution; never think that God is losing His power; it is never well to question what the Lord hasn't finished; the church will triumph and "He shall see of the travail of His soul and be satisfied." But His people will have to sell the garment and buy the sword, and putting aside personal comfort and convenience, be actuated by the same spirit that sends the boys forth to fight and die for a great cause, Mr. Williams declared.

Cadets Present.

The congregation of Grace Presbyterian Church withdrew its service to worship with a sister church on Sunday evening, their minister, Rev. Walter Patterson, taking the prayers. The local Cadet Corps, under Cadet Instructor Percy Hamilton, and Cadet Lieut. Ted Stinson, attended in a body, Cadet Captain Donald Knight being absent due to a fractured ankle.

Rev. Mr. Williams spoke on the theme, "The Greatest Love Story in the World," from John 3, 16, and in an inspiring message presented the romance of missions, telling in a fascinating story how life has been transformed in other lands as Christian missionaries have taught modern methods of agriculture, have brought healing to multitudes hope in place of despair, and have established the dignity and status of womanhood.

"And it is still an unfinished story; the one thing that binds us all together in all the world is the Christian religion which exemplithe love of God."

D.F.C. Winner.

Rev. Mr. Williams had three sons in the armed forces, one of whom, enlisted in the R.C.A..F and was squadron leader in an attack on Norway and lost his life. He was the first Canadian to receive the D.F.C., and was attached to H. M.S. Glorious when it went down. An only daughter is in training for a nurse with a view to the active service. Mr. Williams was for some years a missionary in Korea.

The trustees asked for a thank-offering of $500 on Sunday, and a goodly proportion of that sum was received.

TAMBLYN DISCUSSES HOARDING

There is no practice so universally frowned upon and rightly so—as that of "Hoarding." That is, Hoarding in respect to civilian products on short supply. We all know or should know that this practice—if generally carried out—would result in a most uneven and unfair distribution of these essential commodities and would naturally react greatly to the detriment of a large proportion of our fellow-citizens. There is, however, a type of "Hoarding" that is to be highly recommended to all—the "Hoarding of Health" and "Energy" with the resultant maintenance of a high standard of "Physical Well Being." Your Tamblyn Drug Store is equipped and prepared at all times to assist you along these lines and suggests that you avail yourselves of this "Service for Health." Their stocks of Vitamins, Cough and Cold Remedies and other products—so very necessary at this season of the year—are most complete and available for your selection at any time. CLAYBORNE ZOOMS THROUGH ROPES AT BROCK LOSING ROUGH TILT

By FRED D. CRAIG

That was a lucky duck Killer John Katan made in last night's bout at Brock St. Rink when he eluded a flying tackle by Gentleman Jack Clayborne so successfully that the Comet took off, hurtled through the ropes and landed heavily on the hard floor of the Arena. Had Katan remained to be hit he probably would have lost the argument then and there but he shifted just at the right moment and as a result he won the bout and the right to meet Whipper Billy Watson, pride of Toronto in a championship match bout for the British Empire title. Promoter Frank Tunney hopes to stage that battle here next Tuesday although there will not be a definite announcement until later on in the week. It should be the biggest wrestling attraction of the entire season. Watson, one of the most-in-demand grapplers in the game today and a claimant for Wild Bill Longson's world title is fast, clever and powerful and Katan on his showing here will be no mean opposition. The Panther has been around a lot and knows his stuff. He is not afraid of Watson's reputation and figures this is his chance to get to the top shelf in the wrestling game. A Watson-Katan brawl would be a natural.

Every organization in sport has its problems and five-pin bowling is no exception. The City Five-Pin League is wrestling now with a rather important matter that is to be settled at a meeting of the team captains to be held in the Duffus Board Room at 8 o'clock on Thursday night. It is whether or not the league shall arrange for foul line boys to be used. So far this season the loop has been operating without the use of foul line judges and according to many of the bowlers no difficulty has been experienced for the reason that the City League trundlers rarely go over the foul line. They have been rolling for years and have learned to watch the line so well that they do it automatically. For that reason there seems to be a strong current of opinion that judges are not needed and could be dispensed with this season, especially in view of the shortage of powers. However the whole problem will be threshed out Thursday night and the team captains are asked to come to the meeting prepared to give the views of the members of their teams, in order that the final decision may represent the opinion of a majority of the league rollers.

A Minority Report

As might have been expected Scribe Bill Walshe of Kingston has filed a minority report in the matter of soldier athletes, differing from the majority of sport commentators on the question. Here is how he looks at the matter: "With army headquarters at Ottawa issuing orders about a change in the hockey control the future of soldier play is uncertain. The notice from Ottawa Saturday was that hockey must not interfere with the training of soldiers, which is as it should be, but there is the danger of prominent players being rushed overseas as a grand example of efficiency although thousands of other soldiers are waiting in Canada for the same chance to get overseas. Just because a soldier is well known in sports does not seem any reason to rush him away if it is not necessary while others are excused. The P.W.O.R. First Battalion has been organized and waiting to get overseas for two years, first as a machine-gun unit then re-equipped and trained for infantry but now most of the officers and men are back in Kingston with their unit disbanded and waiting and wondering about the next move. The next week or so will prove if the Ottawa order has teeth in it regarding hockey. Kingston may get a few name players if recent recruits in the army are rushed to their basic training camps. Whoever tattled to the R.C.M.P. to have Turk Broda snatched off the Montreal bound train may have actually decided the Allan Cup in favor of the R.C.A.F. or Navy."

* * * * * *

Incidentally Bre'er Walshe likes what he has seen of the new hockey rules after watching the Kingston-Cornwall game the other night and his impressions are interesting. Here they are: "Kingston fans favored the new hockey rules if Saturday's game is a sample of what will follow. The long pass to centre ice by defending teams reduced the scrambles by setting up a threat of easy counter attacks while the new face-off also reduced mix-ups. Until some team devises a system to beat the new rules they will be the solution of the unpopular ganging game that developed in hockey. The long pass makes a premium on good skating and should also revive the lost art of stick-handling. Saturday Kingston adopted an advance type of defence, breaking up Cornwall plays before they were organized and using fast moving defencemen to guard against the rival pass to mid-ice. If Saturday's style of hockey is repeated all season the Jock Harty Arena will be packed every Saturday night and fans will have a team to enthuse over as an escape from the usual worries of war and work. That is one of the main reasons major sports are encouraged in wartime."

His 1,000th Winner

Says Bobby Hewitson in the Toronto Telegram: "Back in 1930 at Bainbridge Park track in Ohio, a long shot—38 to 1—named French Brigade came winging home as the winner. The fans who supported the horse were naturally delighted with their financial success. But none was as excited as the young rider who brought that winner home. His name was Patrick Remillard. His was the glow of a young jockey winning for the first time in the real action. Last Saturday afternoon at Duffering Park, as dusk settled, the same Patrick Remillard, now a lot more experienced and a lot older, swung home as the winner of the last race of the last meeting of the fall 1943 racing season. His mount was the veteran mare Cabin Gal, whom Remillard had ridden on many occasions before into the winner's circle. But when "Pat" dismounted from Cabin Gal in front of the steward's stand at Little Saratoga, he perhaps didn't realize that when he brought the mare home he had earned his 1,000th winning mount over 13 years of action. Yes, if our figures are correct—and we believe they are—it was the 1,000th winning mount for Remillard."

Hockey players and fans are again reminded of the meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club tonight that will probably settle the fate of O.H.A. hockey here this year and in fact until the war is over. The get-together will be held in the Duffus Board Room at 8 o'clock and it is hoped that all the players as well as others interested in the game will be on hand so that the whole question can be talked over thoroughly. It is felt that the final decision should be made by the players themselves. They know what the situation is and the kind of a campaign they would have to carry on if they decide to operate again this season. If they are willing to put up with another season like last year it would probably be possible to run a team for the club has been assured of backing that will take care of the financial problem. However tonight will decide the thing.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The fourth game in the senior softball finals has been called for Thursday night under the lights in Toronto.... There may be no battle....The Hamilton Majors are threatening to drop out of the series which was to have been a best four-of-seven affair.... Crowd at last night's wrestling bout was one of the largest of the season. .....It will be bigger again next week if Promoter Tunney succeeds in booking a match between British Empire champion Whipper Billy Watson, the Toronto idol and Killer Katan next week....It would of course be a title bout....Beaches have to win against Hurricanes tonight to keep alive their chances of getting into the O.R.F.U. playdowns....At that Big Stuke and his pals are likely to prove decidedly tough opposition for Bill Jackson's Air Force athletes....Wrestling fans are saying that if Gentleman Jack Clayborne is going to take many more of those flights through the ropes they had better get him equipped with a parachute.

Katan Victor As Opponent Injures Leg

Both Gentleman Jack Clayborne and his hopes of meeting Whipper Watson in a British Empire title match sailed gracefully through the ropes of the Brock Street Arena ring shortly before 11 o'clock Tuesday night and landed with a dull thud on the floor outside the ring. The Bounding Black hurt his leg in the crash and was counted out before he could climb back.

It was a dramatic ending to a bout that had started out with one of the quickest falls ever registered here, with the Black Comet throwing Palermo John Katan in exactly 40 seconds.

Katan came back to take the second fall after 37 minutes hard wrestling when he twisted Clayborne like a pretzel with a punishing crab hold and Referee Tommy Nelson stopped the bout and awarded the fall to the Panther.

It was anybody's argument at that stage and honors were even in the first nine minutes of the third round. Then came Clayborne's undoing. The Black Comet had used the flying tackle to grab off that first quick fall and he decided to try it again. Twice he bowled Katan over and it looked to be the end of the trail for the pride of Palermo. A third time Clayborne launched a flying tackle at the apparently helpless Katan but on this occasion the target was not there. The Panther ducked quickly and Clayborne flew over him through the ropes and landed heavily on the arena floor. He hadn't a chance to get back into the ring before the count of ten and the bout was over.

Referee Nelson raised Katan's arm in token of his victory and while the Panther drew a round of booing as he left the ring, he had earned a crack at Whipper Watson and that was plenty of satisfaction.

A Quick Fall

In the early stages the bout looked like a Clayborne triumph. Right off the reel the Bliack Comet electrified the crowd when he turned a Pearl Harbor attack by the Panther into a 40-second fall. As the battlers were in their respective corners with their back to each other waiting for the bell Katan suddenly dashed across the ring in a surprise attempt to get the jump on the South African. The crowd shouted a warning and Clayborne turned around just in time to crash into Katan with a flying tackle that sent the Palermo grappler sprawling. Two more tackles followed in quick succession and then Clayborne pounced on the bewildered Katan and pinned his shoulders to the mat.

There was nothing like that in the second round, although Clayborne did most of the pressing and had a distinct edge. Katan managed to clamp his unconscious chin lock on the black grappler three or four times but on each occasion Referee Nelson ruled that the grip was a stranglehold and made Katan release his opponent, much to the Panther's disgust. Clayborne had his rival in trouble for a long time with a neck scissors but Katan finally managed to escape. Finally however the Palermo artist, grabbed the colored star by the legs and using the painful crab hold on him, bent his body back and held him in that position until Referee Nelson decided that the punishment had gone far enough and awarded the fall to Katan.

That evened up the match and 9 minutes late when Clayborne crash-dived out of the ring the Panther

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct 27 — (AP). — The hoss racing industry seems to be all tangled up in a two-bit problem......At least, that's the impression we get from reports of a meeting of racing secretaries from all the big tracks to consider the "claiming problem."......The problem seems to be how to run a $2,000 horse in a $1,250 claiming race without having it claimed.... The hoss owners howl every time they lose a horse by running him for less than they think he's worth. The two-buck bettors, who don't care whether a horse is claimed or not so long as he wins some dough for them, howls at times, so why not ignore the owners' yelps just like those of the fans?....Racing is a howling success, anyway.

One-minute sports page:

The Penn State Publicity Department reports that transportation difficulties forced its football team to make all its trips by automobile this fall......Yet in some towns you can't even take a taxi to a football field....When movie director William Berke wanted a boxer for a bit in one of his pictures, he needed only to turn to his assistant cameraman, Art Lasky, a former topflight heavyweight.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 27 — (CP). — Sprightly at 61, Sam Heapy succumbed to the lure of the turf and took out a jockey's licence. He's riding a couple of good things at the Windsor track this month and it's worth a two-bob bet if only to recognize sheer pluck.

Sam figured he was all washed up as a jockey when he escaped to England after Germany invaded Belgium. He had been riding on the Continent for 43 years and holds what is believed to be a world's record in that he has been astride 3,260 winners. He has trained almost as many.

Recently Sam did a bit of exercising on racers owned by Gerald Deane. That did it. Sam figured his still-supple frame would stand the pace.

"One of my reasons for starting again as a jockey," said this old fellow, "is that I think Newfoundland is a stayer and I'm being given a chance to prove it. I have ridden in between 15,000 and 16,000 races, the total distance of which would, I estimate, stretch halfway around the world."

Sam will hold the distinction of being the oldest jockey on British tracks when he goes to the post. Only once before has his racing career been interrupted. That was during the First Great War when he was interned for three years in Germany.

Over in neutral Eire, a colt owned by a Scottish patron of Irish racing won the Irish Cambridgeshire at The Curragh outside Dublin.

Astrologer, supplementing James McVey's victories with Suntop in the Irish Oaks and Solferino in the Irish St. Leger, took the lead 50 yards from the finish of the mile grind to win by a head from Dunseverick.

At just about the same time, Dick Sullivan, who manages McVey's bloodstock, announced that Suntop and Solferino will be retired to stud and mated. Racing circles consider it a fortunate circumstance that the blood lines of the Oaks and St. Leger winners is suitable for combining.

The King will have some choicely-bred two-year-olds racing for the finish line next season. They'll be trained by Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochfort, who took over the majority of His Majesty's racers following the death of Willie Jarvis.

One batch of six yearlings included colts by the successful sires King Salmon, father of this year's Derby Winner, Herringbone; Hyperion, Fairway and Foxhunter.

Best of the King's two-year-olds this season has been Knight's Daughter although the Royal Stables had only a few runners and none in the classics which His Majesty's runners all but monopolized last season.

First—to use age-resistors in rubber tires

SAVES MILLIONS OF DOLLARS FOR CAR OWNERS EVERY YEAR

LONG BEFORE THE "AUTOMOBILE AGE" the village blacksmith knew the art of tempering steel to make it tough. But until B. F. Goodrich Research engineers tackled the problem of toughening rubber, all tires back 30 or 40 years ago, aged so quickly that you could gouge out huge hunks of rubber with your fingernail . . . only a few months after the tire was manufactured. Again B. F. Goodrich came through with another "first" in rubber . . . this time a marvellous "AGE-RESISTOR" that compounded with rubber made it t-o-u-g-h . . . added months . . . years to a tire's life . . . was to save motorists millions every year.

Today B. F. Goodrich research facilities are being used to solve the problems of war. B. F. Goodrich developed the first practical airplane de-icers, developed the first endless rubber track now used for war vehicles, the first automatic control valve for airships.

But the lessons learned in war will be of use when peace comes. New developments will be ready when increased supplies of rubber are available.

And no matter what kind of rubber is available—guayule, plantation crude, reclaimed, or any other—B. F. Goodrich will continue to make the finest tires from it, as they have done since 1870.

* * * * *

SAFETY FIRSTS... that make your tires last longer

Drive below 40 M.P.H. . . .
Check tire inflation weekly . . .
Have your tires inspected regularly.

These are firsts in safety for your present tires . . . which very likely must last you for the duration. There is still no prospect of sufficient rubber for ordinary civilian needs. So don't take chances with your present tires.

SAMMY ANGOTT PICKED TO DECISION SLUGGER WHITE IN 15 ROUNDS

Here Are The Top Tackles In Eastern States

Two top tacklers in the eastern States are Francis Merritt of the Army, LEFT, and Don Whitmire of the Navy. Whitmire is the former Alabama star. Merritt was an outstanding star last season.

Title Holder Reported In Top Form

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP) — Charlie Jones, who has spent 29 years in boxing and managed Sammy Angott to the lightweight title, says Sammy may knock out Luther (Slugger) White of Baltimore before the 15th round of their championship go tonight in Hollywood Baseball Park.

"One thing I am sure of," Charlie hastens to add, "and that is Sammy will retain his championship. He's the strongest lightweight in the business, is in perfect physical condition, and doesn't lose to fellows like White.

"He was inactive for six months, then stepped right in and whipped Willie Pep, who had won 62 straight."

Henry Armstrong thinks Sammy is too good an infighter, too rugged for White, and that the Baltimore boy will be a big target. But Armstrong's manager, George Moore, says Angott doesn't hit hard enough and that White, a ceaseless borer, will pile up enough points to win.

Angott gets a flat guarantee of $15,000 for tonight's affair. White, who came here broke and has done fairly well in winning eight in a row, doesn't get anything unless the gate goes over $25,000. He takes 60 percent of everything over that figure. Promoter Joe Lynch will have to do better than a $50,000 gate to make money. The crowd may go to 12,000 or 15,000.

It will be the first outdoor night fight since the United States entered the war.

Petawawa Joins Ottawa Circuit

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 — (CP). — Admission to Ottawa Senior City Hockey League of Petawawa, Ont., military camp has given the league a five-team circuit.

Three civilian clubs are in the loop — Canadiens, Montagnards, and Hull Volants—and the service clubs are Petawawa and the R.C.A.F. team from Arnprior, Ontario.

The O. S. C. H. L. has rejected an application for admission by Ottawa Combines, member clubs feeling they could not support a sixth team, it was learned yesterday. The 20-game schedule is expected to open November 11 here, and will most likely match service against the civilian clubs, leaving one of the three civilian clubs on the sidelines the first night.

Col. E. A. Wiggs who represented the Petawawa Club said he expects Spr. Louis St. Denis, who played with Ottawa Commandos last season, and Roy Giesebrecht, who played with Kingston in the O.S.C.H.L. last winter, will play with Petawawa this year.

Beaches Must Defeat Airmen

TORONTO, Oct. 27—(CP)—The season's first meeting between Toronto Balmy Beach and Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes—under floodlights tonight at Maple Leaf Stadium — may reduce the Ontario Rugby Football Union play-off race to a two-team struggle between Hurricanes and Hamilton Flying Wildcats.

Currently trailing Hurricanes by three points and Wildcats by five, Coach Alex Ponton's Beachers must defeat the Airmen or join Toronto Navy, Toronto Indians and Ottawa Combines in the discard. The contest marks the half-way point in a busy week of competition for both Beaches and Hurricanes, since both played last Saturday and are scheduled to go into action again this Saturday, Beaches against Combines and Hurricanes against Wildcats.

Beaches won't be idle entirely Thursday either, the date set for hearing of their protest against Hamilton's 18-17 victory on the latter's home grounds last Wednesday. The protest is based on an official ruling awarding Beaches an extra play when Hamilton fans surged on the field during the last play of regulation time.

While Beaches will be close to full strength tonight, Hurricanes have lost several linemen through posting and at least three of the front wall troops may be forced to play the full 60 minutes.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 27 — (CP). — Pre-season opinion is that Montreal Canadiens wil start the National Hockey League campaign as favorites. Coach Happy Day of Toronto Leafs says: "Canadiens should finish on top after a tough fight with Boston and Chicago." Days opinion is based chiefly on newspaper reports of lineups which show each of these three clubs with nine or more of last year's team available. Toronto, Detroit, and New York each have five of last season's starters in the fold again.

Actually, though, neither Day, Jack Adams nor Lester Patrick can say with assurance that their own teams won't be in the thick of the title hunt. If their young rookies pay off, any one of the clubs might prove a contender. So far they're absolutely unknown quantities.

On his way to Winnipeg to open Rangers' training camp, Patrick asked Day how the Leafs looked on paper. "Lousy," quoth Day. Patrick came right back with: "You think Leafs are lousy. I'll swap teams and give you $5,000 extra and I haven't even seen your outfit.'"

Clancys version:

After refereeing a Boston Bruins exhibition, King Clancy put the okay on hockey's new rules. "I'd say it was the biggest change hockey ever made and perhaps the best," he said. "That red line in centre ice and the added freedom in passing up to it from either end is bound to make the game better. It's just about certain to end a lot of that ganging into the corners."

Day's version:

Leafs' Happy Day doesn't think the rules will make much difference. "After all," says Hap, "it wasn't hard for a team to hold six men inside their own blue line under the old ganging play. The defending team frequently was unable to shoot the puck up the ice for minutes on end, particularly when they were a man short due to a penalty. What chance would they have if they posted still another man out at centre ice for a possible pass? Even if a defending team does manage to get a pass out to centre, the pass receiver has to get the puck on his stick and get under way. His check will usually catch him before he can get going."

We'll see who is right Saturday night.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

By The Canadian Press

The great new naval training establishment, H. M. C. S. Cornwallis, at Deep Brook, N. S., is already boasting of its athletic personnel which includes many former sport stars from Ontario preparing for naval service. Commanding officer of the training unit, Capt. J. C. I. Edwards, himself has been a hockey and football star and a top-ranking tennis player.

Among the Ontario lads in uniform, one of the outstanding in the sports arena is Bill Shill, formerly of Toronto, who played with Boston Bruins only last season. Jack Nash of London, now a probationary sub-lieutenant, was one of Canada's featured golfers, while Al Lennard, an officer candidate, was famed in O.R.F.U. circles around Hamilton and Dundas.

Chuck Millman played football with the Calgary Broncs and the Vancouver Grizzlies and previously was well-known at Stratford. Lieut. J. Edwards formerly was a pigskin-carrier for the Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argos. AB. Harvey Dubs, a pro boxer in civilian life in Western Ontario, holds the Canadian inter-services welterweight title.

Joseph E. Widener, 71-year-old turfman and financier who died yesterday at his Philadelphia suburban home, was the principal owner of Belmont Park and with his nephew, George D. Widener, held major ownership of Hialeah Park in Florida. He owned a Kentucky estate which was famed as a thoroughbred stock farm.

Hamilton finalist in the Ontario Senior softball championship series formally refused last night to meet Toronto Peoples at Toronto on Thursday night in the fourth game of the set, as ordered by Charles Lewis, convener of the O. A.S.A., after consultation with George H. Spooner, the Association president in Galt.

The most aggressive line-bucking aggregation he has handled since going to Winnipeg in 1938 is the description which Coach Reg Threlfall has given to his current R. C. A. F. Bombers, now leading the Western grid league. "They're not fancy," declared Threfall, "but for putting together a series of first-downs the hard way, they're good."

Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, yesterday announced at Chicago he would not approve reserve contracts for players entering baseball employment while on vacation or leave from defence work or from military service because such procedure controlled players over the war period and they would not count in the club's player limit.

The annual meeting of the International Baseball League will be held November 29 in New York City, two days before the December meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs. Delegates of the International club gathered yesterday in Gotham to discuss the agenda, including several proposed changes.

Chicago Hawks Have Strong Outfit

By MARSHALL BATEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 27—(CP)—Don't be surprised if Chicago Black Hawks jump out in front in the six-team National Hockey League and stay there. That's the expectation of Manager Paul Thompson who appears not to have an immediate manpower problems.

Reinforced with 11 experienced professionals—a steadying influence for the sprinkling of youngsters—Black Hawks' chance are "a little better" than any of the other clubs.

"I believe we're apt to go all the way right from the opening game, if we can stand up at the net," said the manager.

Like most other teams, Chicago will start with an untried netminder —either 19-year-old Hic Highton of Vancouver or 29-year-old Clem Harnedy, former backstop of the 1936 Olympic sextet. Tonight's exhibition game here may be the deciding factor on who starts in the opening contest against Toronto Maple Leafs at Chicago next Sunday night.

Up front, Black Hawks have hard-knocking experienced defence pairs and a dozen men from which to pick attacking trios. The big veteran, Earl Siebert, with Jack Dyte, 200-pound rookie from Toronto, are likely to bounce many an incoming juvenile speedster before long.

Dyte is one of the two young defencemen. The other, Bill Ingram of Edmonton, has been working alongside George Allen. Art Wiebe, is starting his 11th season with the club, and the sixth defenceman is Virgil Johnson, veteran American Association performer.

While the dash and zip of the triple brother act—Max, Reg and Doug Bentley, will be lost to Chicago this year, Thompson figures the surviving member, Doug, will give a good account of himself.

Doug now patrols the left wing with Bill Thoms at centre and Bill Mostenko, Winnipeg boy, on the right lane. "I'll have the fastest line in the N.H.L."

Barons Win

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27 — (AP).—Firing three goals in the last five minutes of play, the Cleveland Barons trimmed the Pittsburg Hornets 6-3 in opening the American Hockey League season before 4,772 fans in the Arena last night. Eddie Emerton, 17-year-old rookie forward from Cornwall, Ont., and the veteran Alex (Bud) Cook, who will report to the United States Coastguard on November 5, scored two goals apiece for the Barons. Lou Trudel and Pete Horeck tallied the others.

Canvass Slipped On 8th Day Of Victory Loan

Peterborough added $175,050 to its aggregate subscription on the Fifth Victory Loan on Tuesday in another general advance all along the easy front of lending money to the Government at the interest rate of 3 per cent to sustain through the fall and winter months Canada's tremendous activity in the war.

The totals still tell an agreeable story of progress from a grand total of $2,443,500 to Monday night up to $2,615,550 at the close of Tuesday for a percentage of 56.93 as against the peexcted percentage as against the expected percentage of 44.42 for the first eight days of rather awesome reminder, the objective for the county and city is $4,600,000, leaving Peterborough with the still big undertaking of digging up another $1,981,450 to level off at the 100 per cent.

Only one disturbing note sounded in the Tuesday evening summary at headquarters, a decline of 1.76 in the percentage surplus. That is, Peterborough was 14.27 ahead of the expected percentage at Monday night as compared with 12.51 points in excess of the cumulative percent of objective at Tuesday night. However, the percentage column still shows that comforting margin of 12.51 as Peterborough begins the ninth day of the campaign, the half-way flag to Saturday, October 30.

City's Big Day.

This now that Tuesday advance of $175,050 was made up: $77,300 in the general canvass of the city, the outstanding stride of the day; $48,950 in the employees' canvass; $30,000 in the special names section and $18,800 in rural Peterborough.

Totals were as follows: City general up from $456,500 to $533,800 or $77,300, which is 34.44 per cent of the city's objective of $1,550,000. In other words the city general canvass is trailing its required percentage by 10 points in the percentage column.

Employees' canvass advanced rom $664,100 to $713,050, a gain of $48,950; and the total represents 75.58 per cent of the objective of $950,000. The industrial group is three-quarters of the way home.

Special names increased their total from $1,135,000 to $1,165,000, an advance of $30,000, to 77.67 of their objective of $1,500,000.

And the rural canvass moved from $187,900 to $206,700, a gain of $18,800 to 34.45 per cent of the rural objective of $600,000.

The city general and the rural returns are almost exactly at the same percentage of their respective objectives, the city 34.44 and the village townships 34.45.

Improvements in the percentage standing of these groups on Tuesday were: Employees' canvass 5.67 per cent, city general canvass 4.94 per cent, rural canvass 3.13 per cent, and special names 2 per cent.

The grand total percentage on Tuesday night was 56.93 per cent, as compared with 53.12 per cent Monday night. And, again to repeat, the required percentage last night was 44.42.

Peterborough has subscribed 56.93 per cent of its objective, as against the required 44.43 as at Tuesday night—still out in front.

Havelock Leading.

Havelock wrested first position from Smith Township in Tuesday's returns, and both are beyond the 50 per cent level. Two others, Asphodel and North Monaghan, are ahead of the required percentage of their objectives for the eight days.

The order of the rural leaders is: Havelock, Smith, Asphodel, North Monaghan, Ennismore, Belmont-Methuen, and Otonabee.

Tuesday's Standing.

Results as tabulated last night were as follows, reading in order across the column, the objective, amount subscribed, and percentage of the objective for eight days' campaigning:

City of Peterborough, general ...	$1,550,000	$533,800	34.44
North Monaghan..	35,000	15,750	45.
Otonabee	130,000	41,850	32.19

to Ottawa equipped with the majority and minority reports of the War Labor Board's inquiry earlier this year into wage conditions and labor relations.

The government has withheld publication of these documents—a majority report signed by Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, chairman of the Board, and Leon Lalande of Montreal, employer representative, and a minority report submitted by J. L. Cohen, K.C., of Toronto, labor representative, who was subsequently ousted by Cabinet action.

Following receipt of these reports the government understood to redraft a multitude of orders-in-council affecting labor into a consolidated code. Proposals, it is understood, include an entirely new wartime wage control order tightening the restrictions on general wage increases and provision for the encouragement of collective bargaining between employers and unions.

Will Have Teeth

Officials who have had part in drafting the recommendations which the government has had under consideration say it is likely both employers and unions will face new, more clearly-defined responsibilities in legislation better equipped with "teeth" for its enforcement than is present legislation.

With labor one of the peacetime responsibilities of the provinces the government has recognized for some weeks that consultation with the provinces is a proper course, although under the broad powers of the war measures act the Dominion itself could introduce the new legislation.

Mr. Mitchell's announcement of the conference lent strength to recent reports that the cost-of-living bonus may disappear, with the money the workers now receive as their bonus becoming part of their basic wage rate.

The bonus, put into operation as a safeguard against inflationary tendencies, is believed to have been a major subject of government consideration in the new wage and labor program. It is understood no definite decision has been reached on the part it will play in the program.

Lonergan Says Didn't See Wife On Sunday

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 — (AP).— New York police today awaited the arrival of Wayne Lonergan with the hope that the husky R.C.A.F. aircraftman would supply needed information to piece together the facts of the murder of his vivacious 22-year-old wife, Patricia.

Lonergan, in the custody of two New York detectives, was expected to take a train today from Buffalo, N.Y., where, it was reported, the three spent the night because they were unable to get seats on two early morning trains for New York.

Lonergan 26, appearing tired but composed, arrived at Black Rock, a Buffalo suburb, early today accompanied by District Attorney John Loehr and the detectives after he had waived extradition in Toronto.

The handsome aircraftman was temporarily detained at Fort Erie in Ontario by Canadian officials on a technicality, believed to have been that Lonergan did not have a money declaration form. This technicality was waived in ninety minutes.

The four men then headed for the New York Central Railroad station.

Seek Uniform

Meanwhile, in New York, two developments were disclosed in the case which has baffled police since the comely Mrs. Lonergan found dead in her richly furnished apartment at exclusive Beekman Hill Sunday.

Police revealed they had disclosed fingerprints on the base of one of the antique brass candlesticks with which the heiress to a $5,000,000 brewery fortune was believed beaten to death.

Authorities said they were trying to identify the prints.

Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet arrived at police headquarters with a mysterious package, wrapped in heavy paper and securely tied.

A reporter asked if the two-foot-long package contained a uniform, referring to the R.C.A.F. uniform Lonergan said had been stolen from him while in New York last week-end.

The prosecutor replied with a blunt "no," and refused to reveal the contents. Grumet has called the missing uniform one of the most important clues in the case.

He stopped at the side of the road to inspect the equipment and three southbound automobiles came along and swerved to avoid the trailer. The third car, driven by Arthur Dwyer, Dalhousie street, failed to clear, however, and the trailer was hurled off the road. The damage was not extensive.

ourt Dismisses harge Against illiard Crowe

claring that while it was a case grave suspicion the Crown had led to make out a case against accused, Magistrate O. A. Lang- K.C., in police court Tuesday ernoon dismissed a charge against liard Crowe, Lakefield, of break- and entering the factory of the own Canoe Company, Lakefield, February, 1940, and committing ft.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who repre-ted Crowe, did not call any de-ce witnesses.

The Crown, which had called ee witnesses at the morning ses-n, introduced further evidence er the adjournment, including timony from Provincial Constable ce Morris and Chief Garnet mis of Lakefield. These officers ore that the electric jointer and tor and the jointer knives that d been introduced as exhibits had n found by them in Crowe's house October 1 of this year when searched the place.

rown Attorney V. J. McElderry omitted that the fact that no len property had been found en Crowe's place was searched 1940 and that a motor and joint- had been recovered in the re-t search might indicate that the used had thought that the coast s now clear, and that it would safe to have the things at his me. He argued that the articles e of an unusual nature, not the d of thing that changes hands quently.

n this argument Mr. Carley said t there was nothing in the evi-ce to show that there had been break-in at all. The hasp and padlock, he said, had not been erfered with and there was no dence that any windows had been ced. He argued that there was identification of the motor and nter.

ence Thin

The only thing that comes close directly connecting the accused with the alleged break-in," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in giving judgement, "was the evidence that he had been seen some distance away from the Canoe Company's plant, dragging a sled."

His worship declared that even if it could be held that possession of stolen articles was recent possession after three and a half years, in this case the exhibits produced had not been positively identified as articles stolen from the canoe factory.

On that account, while there was grave suspicion, there was no evidence on which a conviction could be made and the charge was dismissed.

Youth Faces Serious Count

Robert Blackwood, sought for several days by the police, on a charge of having assaulted Constable Allan Edmison in the execution of his duty last Friday night at the Legion Hall, was arrested yesterday by Officers John Naples and C. J. McGillen.

This morning he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court and pleaded not guilty. He was defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., stating that there were charges involving other persons arising out of the same disturbance that were to be tried on Monday and he asked that Blackwood should be remanded until that time. "We can make a day of it, then," he said.

Blackwood was released on bail of $500.

efinite Tendency Being Noted o Cut Down In Hog Production

"Brood sows continue to go to rket in large numbers," says the mbton county agricultural repre-ntative in the weekly report from e Provincial Department. "There a definite tendency to cut down g production," Peterborough com-nts.

The Grey and Bruce Yorkshire ders' Club sale at Paisley re-ed $86 for the highest priced w; average for brood sows was .25; and highest priced boar $70. uce also reports that large quan-ies of western feed grain are arriving in the county. Dufferin remarks that the filling of orders for western grain is behind schedule. And the Hastings comment on that detail is "Large quantities of western grain continue to arrive in the county."

This heavy buying of western grain evidently indicates that many farmers believe in this expedient in a short grain season at home, and that they can operate satisfactorily on a feed buying basis.

Milk flow has declined in Hastings owing to the condition in which some of the cheese factories are operating now every other day. Prince Edward says: "Heavy cold rains over the last week-end caused a drastic slump in milk flow."

South Simcoe says: "Young pigs are being offered in large numbers due to the feed situation."

A sale of 300 feeder cattle in Middlesex brought lower prices than a week ago, "but the demand was keener with numerous buyers." Northumberland reports most of the apples picked, potatoes harvested and silos filled. Pumpkins and cabbages are moving to canning factories.

Many farmers in northern Frontenac are busy cutting wood. Dairy cows are still in good demand in Glengarry. One farmer in Grenville harvested 3,000 pounds of red clover seed.

OmemeeConcert Gives Aid To War Victims

For the second time, an event held in Omemee to give an impetus to the monetary needs for carrying on the war to a successful conclusion, has been made the means of giving help to the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims fund.

The public schools of Omemee and the Township of Emily recently joined hands to hold a Concert and Quiz Contest in connection with the Victory Loan campaign, at which a silver collection was taken, which is responsible for a contribution of $13 appearing under that name in today's receipts, through Rev. R. M. Patterson, fund representative for that place.

Pupils from the Omemee Public School and S.S. Nos. 4, 5, 6, 11, 13 and 15 were represented in the quiz contest in which the winners were David Weir of Omemee in Group A., Evelyn Ruth of S. S. No. 13 in Group B, and Marie O'Leary of S.S. No. 4 in Group C.

With R. B. Harle of this city as accompanist, several chorus numbers were given by the Omemee High School and Public School pupils and an address was given by Mr. Coppice of Lindsay, while further entertainment was provided through the showing of motion pictures.

In a previous Loan campaign, a similar event gave assistance to the fund, to which the people of this district have now contributed the splendid total of $602.53, through the Rev. R. M. Patterson, whose help in this matter is much appreciated.

Empress Hotel Box

This one box has appeared more frequently in this column for the fund than any other, and in the aggregate must have contributed in a large way to the receipts for this one activity. Today its latest donation is the sum of $11, keeping up the good work it has sustained through the entire period the fund has been in operation.

The penny box total from all sources now stands at $1,915.91 and is the second highest amount to come from any one source that has given assistance to help the people of Britain.

London Girl Gives Thanks

From Christ Church School in Thessaly Road, London, S.W. 1, Dorren Blaber, 8-year-old pupil, writes to express her thanks for the money sent them at Christmas in the following words:

"Dear Canadian Friends: Thank you for the lovely time you gave us, the entertainment was lovely, and Archibald (a conjurer) made us laugh. We would like to send one of your soldiers to see us in school and we thank you for all you have done in the war. We hope that the war will soon be over and we can live in peace and the Germans have all the wickedness out of them."

To people situated as far as Peterborough is from the scenes of hostilities, there would seem to be a touch of humor in this letter, but this young eight-year-old girl is evidently very serious in looking forward to better days from the midst of the pleasure made possible through the generosity of the people of this city and district last Christmastide.

Man Acquitted On Charge Of Beating Dog

A charge against Arthur Metcalfe, Bridgenorth garage operator of having beaten and tortured a dog was dismissed in police court Tuesday afternoon after considerable evidence had been heard by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Metcalfe who pleaded not guilty to the charge was represented by J. F. Strickland, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Mrs. Phyllis Hartman who said she was about one hundred yards away testified that she had seen Metcalfe beating his cocker spaniel dog in the dog run on his own property. She said that Metcalfe was using a piece of rubber hose about 30 inches long and that he had struck the dog about ten times at least. She described the beating as "severe."

Mrs. Hartman swore that after being beaten a number of times the dog had run into his kennel and had been pulled out by Metcalfe and beaten again.

To Mr. Strickland the witness said that she had heard since that the dog was a chicken killer and she agreed with the defence counsel that such actions should be punished.

Three children, Fred and Joyce Ray, and Frank Heard, gave somewhat similar evidence. The first-named asked to describe the beating received by the dog said that it was a lot harder than he himself would have liked to have received.

Mrs. D. McKay who lives nearby testified that on the afternoon in question she heard the dog howling three times in succession but did not go outside to see what had happened.

For the defence Clifford Hartman said he had lived next door to Metcalfe for some years and that the accused had three dogs on this premises and he had never heard of him abusing any of them.

Metcalfe, who said he had kept dogs all his life, testified that on the afternoon in question he had been told that his cocker spaniel had been killing chickens. When he went into the dog-run he saw the dog had a chicken between her paws and she showed resentment when he tried to take the bird away. Metcalfe stated that he had a piece of windshield wiper rubber and had attempted to chastise the spaniel with that but that the dog had been too quick for him and most of the blows missed, although he admitted striking the animal a number of times.

"This is a case that never should have been laid and having been laid, should now be dismissed," said Mr. Strickland in asking for the acquittal of his client. "It is a case of an over-zealous inspector."

Mr. McElderry did not argue the case and Magistrate Langley, K.C., dismissed the charge, stating that while the dog might have been punished a little harder than some people might have done it, the evidence showed that the hose used was not of a nature to cause any serious injury.

Bus Company Offers Revenue Split

The city treasury would receive $5,250 this year instead of $2,968 from the Peterborough Bus Lines by alterating the basis of remuneraation to the municipality as outlined in a first draft of a revised agreement as it was considered by the legal and transportation committee yesterday afternoon with Alderman Sands presiding.

It will be remembered that the council discussed terms of an agreement with the company a year ago, as preliminary to submitting a bylaw to the people on New Year's day providing the company with a ten-year franchise.

As the end of the year approached the council saw prespects of dispensing with an election. The financial position of the city was stronger than in the preceding year, arministration of the various departments was going along smoothly, and citizens generally were preoccupied with war work. It was then suggested that the Bus people might present the bylaw themselves, paying the voting expenses, but the council's discussions had extended to a late stage in the year, leaving insufficient time for advertising the proposed vote as required by statute.

Difference In Terms

The agreement has been revived in amendment form, the most substantial change being in the proposed terms of paying the city for opating on the streets and for the franchise.

The company proposed in the 1942 draft to pay the city $7.00 a seat-year. For each seat in at least fourteen buses, and probably more, the rate would be $7.00 a seat for the year, amounting to something like $2,300 to $2,500.

But on the present proposal of a sliding scale of percentage of gross revenue the city would receive an estimated $5,250 this year.

Although the company did not get a franchise to begin 1943, they voluntarily commenced paying the city on the $7.00 a seat-year basis.

They also increased their rental of the car barns on King Street to $1,200 a year and $500 license fee.

The terms of payment as discussed at the transportation committee meeting yesterday with Alderman Sands presiding were as follows:—

2% of gross revenue between $50,000 and $75,000; 3% of gross revenue between $75,000 and $100,000; 4% of gross revenue between $100,000 and $125,000; 5 % of gross revenue over $125,000.

Reduction of Fares

Alderman Gordon said that if there was to be an increase in financial advantage he would rather see it extended to the people who use the cars rather than to the public as a whole. He suggested that some consideration should be given to a reduction in the fares charged by the Bus Company, rather than their idea of increasing their annual payment to the city treasury. People who used the buses, made the earnings possible. They used the cars, and should be entitled to sharing directly in financial returns by the company.

As to the ten-year franchise, Alderman Gordon said he was still opposed to involving the city in so long a period.

"As far as I am concerned there won't be any ten years," he said. "That is beyond anything I'd be willing to agree to. Frank Mitchell is getting along all right. He has been operating here about twenty years without a franchise, getting along on a resolution of the council, and I don't see any great need for a franchise especially for ten years.

"I am not so sure that a boom time such as the present is in transportation is the best time for the city to enter into a ten-year franchise agreement."

Alderman Bradburn pointed out that a franchise brought the company under some control of the city.

"What he wants" said Mayor Hamilton "is an exclusive franchise."

Ed Humpage, city auditor, and A. H. Lewis, were present at the request of Alderman Sands for accountancy advice, especially on the financial clauses of the proposed agreement.

All of the nineteen or twenty clauses were disposed of yesterday except three. They were deferred for anothr meeting probably within the next week.

Woman Who Look After Child Of Mother Who Is Working Buys Victory Bond

Victor Tully on Ken Smylie's team of canvassers in the Fifth Victory Loan, doesn't let the grass grow under his feet. Tuesday the R.C.A.M.C. Band from Camp Borden was playing in the vicinity of Cambridge Street and he thought that possibly music would have charms in that it would instil more of a patriotic spirit in his potential customers.

He called at the home of Arthur E. Robertson and found, when talking to Mr. Robertson that he had already bought his Victory Bond through his employers, Adamson & Dobbin.

Mrs. Robertson, his wife, was in on the conversation and said she would like to buy a Bond and asked of her husband whether she could. He told her to use her own judgment, which she did. It seems that she is kept pretty well to her home looking after her family, and in order to release another mother for warwork, Mrs. Robertson looks after this other lady's child.

Mr. Tully explained the application form to Mrs. Robertson and she is now subscribing to the Victory Loan and putting the money she receives each week for looking after her neighbour's child into her Victory Bond.

Col. Everett Birdsall Re-elected President Of Conservative Party

Before a crowd of delegates from the townships in Peterborough County, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., expressed the belief that John Bracken, leader of the Conservative Party, will be elected in the next Federal election. He was speaking at the annual meeting of the Peterborough County Progressive-Conservative Party Association, held in the Co-op Hall Tuesday night.

The party elected officers for the coming year and they are: Honorary presidents, John Bracken, Col. George Drew, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., Harold Scott, M.P.P., and Senator Iva Fallis; Col. Everett Birdsall was unanimously re-elected as president; secretary, Mrs. Floyd Curtis; treasurer, Col. Douglas Lawrie; corresponding secretary, W. R. Philp; 1st vice-president, Fred Marshall; 2nd vice-president, Frank Erskine, Lakefield; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. John Cridland; 4th vice-president, Ernest Leeson, Havelock; 5th vice, Mrs. Charles Bolton.

Several delegates were named to attend the provincial meeting in Toronto. The women representatives are Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Cridland, and alternates are Mrs. Harold Scott and Mrs. E. Birdsall. The other delegates are T. P. Lancaster of Havelock and Alderman Floyd Curtis, with alternates Mr. Marshall and Col. Birdsall.

During the evening Mr. Fraser, Col. Birdsall and Mr. Scott emphasized the importance of organizing, as the other parties were doing. They pointed out that it was this organization that had helped elect Mr. Scott, and that future successes depended upon the co-operation of party members.

Mr. Scott told what had been accomplished to date by the government in the matter of implementing the party's 22 points. He spoke of the cancellation of the timber contracts of large companies which had not fulfilled the conditions of the original contracts, so that millions of acres reverted to the Crown, making a saving to the province. The speaker also dealt with the appointment of committees on agriculture and mines.

Col. Birdsall gave a short introduction and discussed matters of organization, and pointed out how they could be improved.

Henry Parker Hurt In Crash

Henry Parker, Nogie's Creek, sustained cuts on his head that required hospital treatment when his car ran of Highway 28, a short distance south of Peterborough Tuesday night, crashed through a fence and came to rest against a cedar hedge.

Parker had a narrow escape from serious injury, as his automobile in hurtling off the highway grazed a large maple tree.

The elderly driver was on his way to visit his son and got over too far on the right side of the road. When he tried to straighten out his car, the machine shot across the highway plunged into the shallow ditch, tore through a fence on the property of William Michaud and then stopped against a hedge.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure who investigated the accident took Parker to Nicholls Hospital where his injuries were dressed.

It was raining heavily at the time of the accident.

Band Concert, Dance Are Being Planned

Thursday's program for the visiting R.C.A.M.C. Band from Camp Borden includes the following engagements:

2 p.m.—Parade from the Training Centre at Morrow Park through the centre of the city.

3 p.m.—Civic ceremony of raising the Victory Loan "thermometer" at the Customs House, George and Charlotte street.

4.30—Flag raising at The Examiner.

5 p.m.—Raising the "V" flag at the Quaker Oats plant.

8 p.m.—Concert in the drill hall at the Training Centre.

9 to 12 p.m.—Dance in the drill hall with music by the Band's dance orchestra.

Through the courtesy of Lieutenant-Colonel Walter Bapty, Officer in Command at the Training Centre Peterborough is being afforded several musical treats Thursday, principally the evening concert.

This concert will be given in the drill hall at Training Centre from 8 until 9 o'clock, followed by the dance.

There will be an admission charge of 25 cents, but all the proceeds will be turned back to the public in door prizes and lucky draws, when Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates will be given away.

This means the public gets something coming and going, concert, dance and a chance to win Bonds and Certificates.

The Medical Corps Band is under the direction of WO1 Albert Creasdale, and after its appearance here Tuesday and Wednesday it can be highly recommended to the public. In fact the big Drill Hall at the Training Centre should be packed Thursday night.

Tickets are on sale at CHEX and the Peterborough Examiner, and will also be sold at the Training Centre Thursday evening. Citizens who have to work all day should be able to take advantage of this program of recreation as an enjoyable break in the week's work, and the cost is only twenty-five cents.

The Afternoon Parade.

If the weather is favorable Thursday afternoon, the Victory Loan parade should attract another crowd. The soldiers in training will parade in battle order under the command of Lt.-Col. Bapty, leaving the Training Centre at 2 p.m., and proceeding up George street to McDonnel street, thence to Aylmer, to Murray, and down George to Charlotte street.

The troops will be accompanied by the R.C.A.M.C. Band with its leader, WO1 Albert Creasdale for the first appearance of Peterborough Victory Loan "thermometer" recording the progress of the city and county's subscriptions. The ceremony will be brief and will include several selections by the Band.

British Escape Island Of Kos

CAIRO, Oct. 27 (AP).— British forces have "successfully evacuated" the island of Kos in the Dodecanese groub under pressure of a German sea and air-borne counter-attack, a British communique announced to-day.

British troops occupied the island off the west coast of Turkey, along with several others of the group, in a surprise move last month following the Italian surrender.

The Germans were reported on Oct. 4 to have landed in strength in the island and Berlin claimed all resistance was smashed several days later.

The communique said two German planes were destroyed yesterday during an attack on Leros, and that R.A.F. bombers raided a port on Melos Island during the night.

CAMPBELLFORD

Canadians Lucky In Method Of Tax Collection

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27 — (ENS).—"Canada is just emerging as a nation and is destined to play an increasingly important part in post-war world," Lieut.-Col. Wilfred C. Dumble of Cobourg, who was guest speaker of the local Rotary Club here Monday, said.

His brief, crisp remarks were designed to focus attention to the importance of putting the Fifth Victory Loan across, and as a man who had visited Germany more than a dozen times between World Wars I and II, Col. Dumble was able to speak with authority on the contrasting automatic methods of financing used in that country.

He described a scene on the Rhine River 7 years ago as a steamer decorated with flags and filled with people went on a holiday as a part of the Reich 'Strength Through Joy' program. Turning to the porter who stood beside him, Col. Dumble remarked, "What a lucky chap you are to be living in such a fine country." The porter replied, "Are you serious? I have been in England. Do you know that this and other such government programs are costing me fifty per cent. of my income?" In Germany, there is no appeal. Government officials simply walk into a man's home or place of business, look it over and assess them accordingly, right or wrong and there is no appeal.

Gradual Increase.

As a democracy Canada raises money for its war effort in a fair way, first by a gradual increase in taxation and second by loans from its citizens. He pointed out that three-quarters of this income from taxation came from people with incomes of $2,500 or less. However, such taxation can reach the stage where it will take away the incentive to work, thus the government stops just short of this point and people are then asked to lend to the extent of their ability. This is the most equitable means of sharing the burden since the upkeep and maintenance of one man's household might be much greater than that of his neighbor for many uncontrollable reasons.

Rotarian A. J. Armour moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. Guests of the meeting included J. T. Shelley, Toronto, Victory Bond organizer for Northumberland county, and Mr. Roy Oddie of Niagara Falls. As a part of their war work it was announced the Club would this year fill twenty-five ditty bags for sailors and these to be delivered in time for Christmas. Rotarian Ronald Hazell was placed in charge of this work.

Lt.-Col. Sparling Now Brigadier

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 — (CP). — Promotion of Lt.-Col. Herbert Alan Sparling, 36, to rank of Brigadier and his appointment as the commander, Royal Canadian Artillery, of a Canadian division overseas was announced yesterday by Defence Headquarters.

Brig. Sparling, formerly of Ottawa, was born in Toronto. Educated in Saint John, N.B., he attended Royal Military College, in Kingston, from which he graduated in 1929.

He served as a regimental officer of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Kingston, and in 1933-34 attended the Gunnery Staff Course at Woolwich, Eng. For three years he was Instructor of Gunnery in Military District No. 10 (Winnipeg), and then came to Defence Headquarters as General Staff Officer (3rd Grade) in the Directorate of Military Operations.

Later he attended the Staff College at Camberley, England, and when the present war broke out was posted to the Directorate of Military Training and Staff Duties at Defence Headquarters. In April, 1940, he was appointed Brigade-Major to one of the formations of the 2nd Canadian Division and went overseas.

He returned to Canada 13 months later to become senior staff officer in military training, with rank of lieutenant-colonel and was Acting Director of Military Training part of 1942. In October, 1942, he assumed command overseas of a field regiment, R.C.A., and recently served in Italy with the Canadian Artillery.

His wife lives in Ottawa.

KEENE

Service Planned For Anniversary

KEENE, Oct. 27 — (ENS). — The anniversary service of Zion United Church will be held on October 31 at 7:30 p.m. when the Rev. J. E. Glover of Hastings will be the special speaker. The choir of Keene United Church will provide the music.

This congregation dates back to those early days when the work of the Methodist Church was organized under Rice Lake Circuit, which included places outside of Otonabee. It was in 1855 that the Keene circuit was organized with the Rev. Henry McDowell as the first minister and since then the work of the Church has been well maintained. In looking over the church records and comparing the names of membership of past days with those of today it is interesting to note some family names to the fore.

This congregation has been named the Church of Friendship and although not large in numbers it is doing an interesting work on Keene Charge under the ministry of Rev. George Murray. The official Board extends an invitation to former members and friends to attend this anniversary.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

A WORD OF CAUTION

TO MEN OF MILITARY AGE AND TO THEIR EMPLOYERS

National Selective Service Civilian Regulations authorize the Minister of Labour to require that male employees furnish their employers with evidence that they have not failed to comply with National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations (i.e., the Military Call-Up).

It is intended that an order will be issued shortly, requiring employers to carry out the necessary check on their male employees, and to report any men who do not produce the required evidence of compliance.

The check up will cover every male employee who has reached the age of 18 years and six months and has not reached his 38th birthday. The man will have to show evidence in one of the following forms:—

(a) A man discharged from the Armed Forces following service during the present war should have his discharge certificate. A discharged man who has not a certificate should apply for one in the following manner:—

Army—District Officer Commanding, Military District in which discharge took place.

Air—Records Office, R.C.A.F. Headquarters, No. 5 Temporary Building, Ottawa, Ont.

Navy—Secretary of Naval Board, Ottawa, Ont.

(b) A man who has responded to a direction from a Registrar of a Divisional Mobilization Board, to report for medical examination under Mobilization Regulations, should have either a certificate of unfitness or an order for postponement of military training from the Divisional Registrar. (A man entitled to either document who has lost his copies should immediately apply to the Divisional Registrar who issued the original, for a duplicate.)

(c) A man who has been rejected on application for voluntary enlistment in the Army since the beginning of the war, should have a certificate showing that he was rejected through medical unfitness. (If a man entitled to such a certificate does not possess it, he should apply to the District Military Headquarters of the District in which he applied for enlistment, in order to procure the necessary form.)

(d) A man in the designated classes who has not reached his 38th birthday, who was married as at July 15th, 1940, or who, having been married before that date, is a widower with children, must be prepared to furnish evidence, such as a marriage certificate or birth certificate of a child, to show that he was married before July 15th, 1940, and that he is now either married or is a widower with children.

(e) A man who has reported for enrolment in the Army under an Order—Military Training issued under the Mobilization Regulations and who has been rejected should have a certificate showing he was rejected through medical unfitness. If a man entitled to such certificate does not possess it, he should apply to the District Officer Commanding the Military District in which he was rejected.

(f) (i) A man who is not subject to the Mobilization Regulations because he is an enemy alien who has not made application for naturalization may obtain a certificate from a registrar of his Divisional Mobilization Board indicating that the Mobilization Regulations do not apply to him and such certificates must be obtained by all such enemy aliens;

(ii) A man who is an alien and neither a national of Belgium, Czechoslovakia, The Netherlands, Norway, Poland, the United States nor Yugoslavia and has not applied for naturalization may be relieved of his duty under Mobilization Regulations, but he gives up his right to future Canadian citizenship after the war; where such men have applied for such relief and been granted such status, certificates will be issued by registrars in appropriate cases.

This caution is issued to facilitate compliance with the order which is proposed. A reasonable interval will be allowed to permit men to provide themselves with whatever document, as referred to above, they may be entitled to hold.

Employers are requested to give notice of this proposal to their male employees, to facilitate the operation of the order when issued.

Council Ready To Support Claraday Plea

If ratepayers of the Claraday section of North Monaghan apply to the Ontario Municipal Board, the city council will support their action, according to the recommendation of its special annexation committee Monday afternoon

A motion by Alderman Swanston and Sands instructed City Solicitor Huycke to appear before the Municipal Board in the event of an application from the Claraday suburb.

Alderman Gordon, chairman of this sub-committee, reported the recent intimation which it had received from the south end neighbors in the area bounded by Park and Lansdowne streets, and the Otonabee River that they were planning to circulate a petition for annexation. It was also said that copies of the proposal have been drafted and that interested residents are already carrying on house to house interviews. If the petition obtains a majority support in the Claraday area, it is understood that they would submit their appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board.

In the meantime the city council would pass a resolution declaring it expedient to annex the area and that finally the Municipal Board would hold a meeting here for the purpose of hearing any objections which might be presented from township residents.

To Proceed

The committee decided Monday day to proceed with the petition for annexation by the residents of Ann Street, south of Charlotte Street, and virtually an extension of Bolivar Street, west of Monaghan Road. This request was deferred by the city in the possibility of the proposed western annexation proceeding and thereby including the Ann Street project

However, the North Monaghan overtures for the addition to the city of the area west of Monaghan Road and south of Weller Street seems to have become stalled somewhere along the line of waning negotiations.

"Apparently that's dead," Alderman Gordon remarked yesterday "They've got a lot of quicksand down on the flats that would cost the city a heavy bill of expense if we started to lay sewers on those streets, and personally I'm not in favor of taking in that area."

Equal Terms

Alderman Gordon said he felt that he was simply performing a duty he owed the ratepayers of the city in avoiding an expensive undertaking.

The chairman said he expected the canvass in Claraday to be completed in a week or ten days. He reported that no concessions had been offered to the people of that area, and none was sought by them. They were informed that if they joined the city they would come in on equal terms with the city ratepayers.

Expert Called In Murder Trial

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 27 — (CP). — Capt. James O. Barker, identification expert trained by the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation, awaited a call today as an important crown witness in the murder trial of Alfred de Marigny to tell of a fingerprint found in the bedroom of the slain Sir Harry Oakes.

The Crown charges the defendant beat his father-in-law on the head, set fire to his room and left the mark of his little right finger on a bed screen.

Barker is the only police expert able to say if the fingerprint came from the screen, unless the crown produces a surprise witness who did not appear at the preliminary presentation of evidence against the accused.

Maj. Herbert Pemberton, the Nassau officer who assisted in the investigation, already has testified he did not see the fingerprint.

Barker, called to Nassau by the Duke of Windsor when Sir Harry's body was found, "raised" the fingerprint and swore it was de Marigny's.

The defence has acknowledged the importance of the testimony strenuous efforts to show in cross examination of crown witnesses that the accused man may have had an opportunity to leave the print on the day after the slaying.

Mrs. Dorothy Clark declared early in the trial that she saw de Marigny go upstairs at the Oakes home July 9, some time after the investigation had been started.

Speculation about immediate developments in the trial was widespread in Nassau and there were rumors that the defence might bring in a motion for the trial verdict.

Attorneys, however, would not comment.

Allied Bombs Demolish Three Airfields

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, the Southwest Pacific, Oct. 27 (AP).— Three vital airfields on which Japan had depended to block the Allied march up the Solomons to Rabaul have been bombed into uselessness and enemy planes have abandoned them.

Whether the Japanese ever will try to restore them remains to be determined but headquarters disclosed today that, for the time being, Allied bombs have knocked out the big enemy airdrome of Kahili and the Kara strip, both on Southern Bougainville, and the Ballale fighter strip in the Shortlands immediately south.

Methodically last Saturday a mighty force of 230 Allied bombers and fighter tore up Kahili and Kara with 130 tons of bombs.

Kahili has been the core of the Japanese air resistance in the Solomons since the big Allied push which has driven the enemy from all except the Northern Solomons, opened June 30.

Since that date, communiques have listed almost daily raids against Southern Bougainville's air defences during which more than 400 Japanese planes are known to have been destroyed, the bulk of them at Kahili.

Such a stripping of air power poses new problems for the Japanese armies on Bougainville, which last semi-official estimates have placed at 40,000. Bougainville must be held by the Japanese or the front door approach to the Rabaul, New Britain, stronghold will be laid open.

On New Guinea, four bitter counter - attacks by Japanese jungle troops northwest of Allied held Finschhaffen were bloodily repulsed a spokesman for the Allied headquarters said today. These Japanese recently were hurled back by Australians in an attempt to reach the coast for a possible flight north.

In the second photo the U-boat is seen down by the stern with smoke pouring from her aft. Immediately after this picture was taken the enemy underseas craft blew up and sank vertically by the stern.

Christian Church Has War Role

KEENE, Oct. 27 — (ENS). — The Young People's Society of the United Church met Sunday evening with Tom Gall in charge of the opening exercises. The minutes were read by Anne Brown and it was decided to hold a Hallowe'en Social on Friday, October 29. The program was in charge of the Christian Citizen Group with Thomas Weir presiding and giving an interesting topic on "Citizenship and the Ten Commandments. Lois Humphries read the Scripture lesson. Rev. George Murray led in prayer and Lois Wright was in charge of the charge of the music.

Owing to the anniversary service at Zion United Church the Y.P.S. will not meet next Sunday.

Last Sunday the sermon at the United Church was the first in a series dealing with "The Church of Christ in Our Modern World." It dealt with the Witness of the Church taking the words of Isaiah, chapter 12 and verse 2, "Behold, God is my salvation" and Paul's great affirmation "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ."

The Rev. Mr. Murray pointed out that God has always had His witnesses and the Church today is the custodian of all that the Kingdom of God stands for. In the present world struggle the Allies are fighting against the powers of darkness and wherever there is Godlessness there is wickedness, it is then essential that the Church put on the whole armour of God that she might stand against the wiles of the devil," he said. Reference was made to what General Dobbie of Malta said when he addressed a large gathering in Edinburgh recently. "The people of Malta were magnificent, the Royal Navy, the Army with its anti-aircraft gunners, the Merchant Navy which kept up the supplies and those brave young men of the R. A. F. played an important part in the defense of Malta. But if it had not been that the Lord was on our side, the enemy would have swallowed us up."

Council Elects Officers At Annual Meet

BONARLAW, Oct. 27 (ENS). — The annual convention of the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Township Religious Education Council was held last week in the Springbrook United Church.

The worship period in the afternoon was conducted by Rev. J. R. Holden, pastor of the church. The president, George Watson of Wellman's Corners, acted as chairman. Following an address of welcome by George Williams, superintendent of Springbrook Sunday School, a financial and statistical report was given by the secretary-treasurer, Rev. J. R. Holden. Of fifteen Sunday Schools in the district, 12 had reported to the secretary, showing a total enrolment of 975 pupils. The guest speaker, Rev. G. N. Maxwell, of Campbellford, was introduced by Rev. T. F. Townsend of Stirling, who had known him during college days and as a comrade overseas in the last war.

Discuss Problems.

Mr. Maxwell led in an interesting discussion of Sunday School problems. A well prepared lesson was demonstrated by Mrs. Burton Morton of Wellman's Corners, with nine Springbrook Sunday School girls acting as pupils. Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher of Marmora, who has for many years been an outstanding leader in religious education, gave an informative talk on literature available for Sunday School workers. A duet was sung by Rev. T. F. and Mrs. Townsend.

The convention met again at 8 o'clock, and a demonstration of Religious education in a Public School was given by Rev. R. F. Gardam of Stirling to senior pupils of Springbrook Public School.

After the opening service conducted by Rev. W. H. V. Walker of Stirling, the report of the nominating committee was received and the following were elected as officers for the ensuing year:

Honorary presidents, J. F. Baker, Bontrlaw, and William Johnston, Harold; president, W. J. Cottrell, Marmora; vice-president, George Williams, Springbrook; secretary-treasurer, Rev. J. R. Holden, Springbrook; Department superintendents — Children's Work, Miss Evelyn Bailey, Harold; Boys' Work, J. L. Good, Stirling; Girls' Work, Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Stirling; Young People's Work, Mrs. Burton Morton, Wellman's Corners; Adult Division, George Watson, Wellman's Corners; Home Department, Mrs. Jason Baker, Bonarlaw; Leadership Training, Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher, Marmora; Missionary, Mrs. Harper Rollins, Stirling; Temperance, Lorne Johnston, Springbrook.

The officers were installed by Rev. A. B. Caldwell of Marmora in a brief ceremony, and W. J. Cottrell then took charge of the meeting. A resolution was adopted thanking the minister, the church officials, and the ladies of the Springbrook congregation for the kind hospitality extended. An anthem was contributed by the Springbrook Church choir.

The next annual convention will be held at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw.

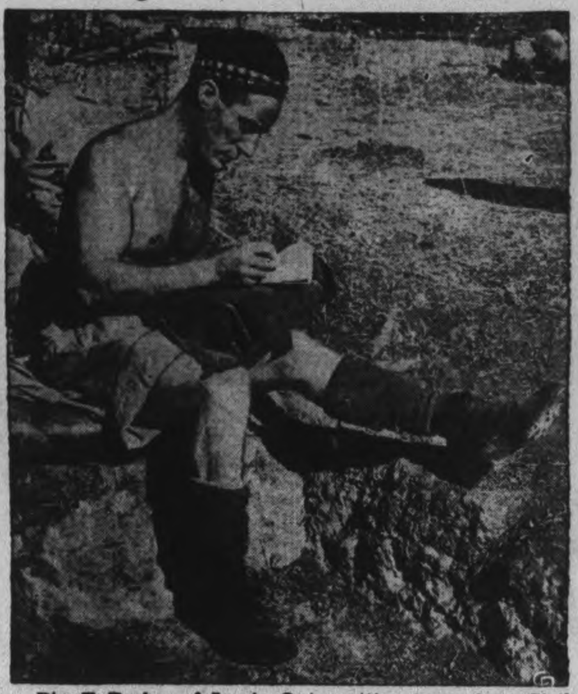
Reds Name Girl Hero

LONDON, Oct. 27 (CP). — The famed woman sniper, Lieut. Ludmila Pavliuchenko, credited with killing 309 Nazis, has been awarded the title of "Hero of the Soviet Union," together with the Order of Lenin and the Gold Star Medal, the Moscow radio said last night.

Something To Write Home About



Pte. E. Barber of Jarvis, Ont., writing home from Sicily, has plenty to write about. The soldier who receives his Christmas parcel when he should—before Christmas Day—will have something to write home about, also. But it should be mailed before November 1.

Hun Admission Angers Swedes

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP). — Admission by a German air attache in Stockholm that a Nazi plane had shot down a Swedish air transport last Friday, causing the deaths of 13 persons, brought sharp reaction from the Swedish press to-day, the United States Office of War Information said.

Although the German official was quoted in broadcasts recorded here by the U.S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service as expressing "deep regret" over what he said was "a mistake," leading Swedish newspapers called for a re-examination of the agreement allowing Germany to fly courier planes over Swedish territory.

The Swedish radio said Sweden "will take up the matter through diplomatic channels in Berlin."

The Stockholm Dagens Nyheter, according to O.W.I., said that "something else besides protests and apologies is required — something that will obviate similar disasters and cause the Germans to behave differently toward neutral countries."

The Swedish people are "deeply shocked," said the Nya Daglight Allehanda.

British Papers Feature Debate

LONDON, Oct. 27 (CP). — The opening of debate in the United States' Senate yesterday on the Connally post-war resolution drew prominent play to-day in British newspapers, which generally held it to mean there would be a clear-cut decision on the issue of isolationism in the United States.

"Senate opens debate to end U. S. isolation," read the Daily Sketch headline; "The hour has struck for U.S.," said Lord Beaverbrook's Daaily Express; "Senators open debate on isolation issue," was the news Chronicle's headline.

Among the early editions of this morning's papers to reach the street, the Yorkshire Post owned by Foreign Secretary Eden's father-in-law, commented editorially:

"To-day, whether it is admitted or not, the United States has foreign commitments. Maintenance of world peace, which depends upon the action, harmonious or otherwise, of the great powers, is a United States concern."

The Daily Mail asked, "Will the United States play her part in maintaining the peace after the war or withdraw into isolation as she did after 1918 That is the subject of the debate."

Defence Counsel Grills Detective

By E. V. W. JONES
Associated Press Staff Writer.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 27 — The torch used by the slayer of wealthy Sir Harry Oakes in an effort to destroy clues to the crime by fire claimed the attention of defence counsel to-day in the trial of Alfred de Marigny, the baronet's son-in-law, for murder.

Detective Capt. E. W. Melchen of Miami, summoned here by the Duke of Windsor to investigate the case, was subjected for the second day to gruelling cross-examination by W. E. A. Callender, associate defence counsel.

Callender directed his fire against previous testimony by Melchen concerning burns on a bedscreen and the burned bed in which Sir Harry's body was found.

Callender, learning Melchen had made notes at the time of the investigation, asked crisply:

"Why didn't you bring them?"

Notes Not Allowed.

"Because I was advised by the Honorable Attorney-General (Eric Hallinan) I would not be allowed to refer to notes in court," Melchen retorted.

Turning his questioning to the burned bed and a scorched lampshade, Callender asked how they were set afire.

"By a match or torch," said Melchen.

"What kind of torch?" asked Callender.

"Any kind, maybe a piece of paper," answered Melchen.

The stocky detective, veteran of hundreds of murder trials, testified yesterday that the fire could have been caused by an ordinary spraygun converted into a flame thrower.

"Wouldn't you have expected greater burns on the accused if he had been in that room?" asked Callender, referring to previous testimony by Melchen that he found burned hairs on De Marigny's arms and beard the day after the slaying early last July at the baronet's Westbourne estate.

"Not necessarily, if his clothing were burned, although you would expect burned skin," the detective answered, adding that two or three out of each 10 hairs on De Marigny's forearm were burned.

Manvers Red Cross Holds Fine Concert

BETHANY, Oct. 27 (ENS).—On Friday evening a splendid concert, comprised of talent from Port Hope, and assisted by some local numbers, was held in the town hall, Bethany, under the auspices of the Manvers Red Cross. A picture was shown, entitled "Bombing at Night," also produced by Port Hope. The objective, the sale of Victory Bonds and funds for Christmas parcels for boys overseas.

Miss Evelyn McBride of Port Hope, sang two beautiful numbers, with encores, with Miss Campbell, of Port Hope, at the piano, accompanying. Miss Campbell contributed two splendid piano solos.

Bethany school children presented two splendid choruses, under direction of their teacher, Mr. Lenard McNeil. Raph Preston and Miss Winnifred Preston at the piano, gave several humorous numbers, with encores, which were deeply appreciated.

Rev. Mr. Mason of St. Paul's Anglican church, acted as chairman for the evening and gave a very interesting talk for victory, while Rev. Mr. Harding spoke on behalf of Peterborough blood donors.

The sum of $26.90 was the result for the cause, during the evening, as all talent was voluntary.

Miss Irene Fallis, of Toronto, spent the week-end with her mother and sister Laura, Mrs. Richard Fallis, Wilson street.

Miss Muriel McKinnon, of Toronto, with her friend, Miss Carscadden, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McKinnon, Wilson street.

NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE

In a year the average woman worker loses 9.5 days' time and average man 8 days' time because of illness or injury.

London Raided Almost Daily

LONDON, Oct. 27 —(CP)—German aircraft swooped over outlying districts of London last night to set capital's air raid sirens screaming for the ninth time in 10 nights, but veered off without passing over the city itself drawing a sputter of anti-aircraft fire.

A few enemy raiders also appeared over southeast England and East Anglia during the night, dropping bombs at two widely-separated places, but no casualties and only minor damage were reported.

There was no indication of any night activity by the R.A.F.'s heavy bombers.

Yesterday, an air ministry communique said, R.A.F. Typhoon bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked a Nazi airdrome near Cherbourg and power station at Caen, while R.A.F. Mitchells and Netherland naval planes bombed an airfield near Brest.

Six planes, including two medium bombers, were lost in these operations, the bulletin said.

Personals and Social News

Mr. Robert Goodfellow, 583 Park street, has just returned from a week's holidays at Gull Lake.

Mrs. William Russell, Millinocket, Maine, is spending the week with Miss Francine MacMillan, 377 Water street.

The engagement has been announced of Isabelle Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman M. Bolton of Burleigh Falls, to Roy Eldon, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Adlam, of Peterborough. The wedding will take place quietly in November.

Mrs. Murlton Hazel, the former Edna Garland, was presented with a floor lamp from her associates at the Western Clock Company, and the girls of a knitting club of which she is a member gave her two lovely pictures. Sgt. and Mrs. Hazel were married recently at George Street parsonage. Sgt. Hazel lived formerly in Windsor, Nova Scotia, and is now stationed at Camp Borden.

Mrs. R. D. Baker Honored

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27 (ENS) Mrs. R. D. Baker nee Hazel Waters, whose marriage took place in Seymour township recently, has been entertained at a number of showers given in her honor by friends in this community. Among the various events were a miscellaneous shower at which Miss Eleath Vincent was the hostess; the presentation of an occasional chair by members of the euchre club at an affair arranged by Misses Annie Parks and Pearl McComb. Employees on the night shift at the Campbellford Cloth Company presented the bride with a silver tray and her friends in the Weave Room held a cup and saucer shower in her honor with Miss Effie Dickie and Mrs. Jack Runions as the hostesses. Mrs. K. P. Waters entertained for the bride with a kitchen shower and members of the Trent River Sunday School presented her with a hymn book on another occasion.

Luffman—Lewis

HAVELOCK, Oct. 27—(ENS)—A quiet wedding was solemnized in Trinity Anglican Church, Shannonville, by Rev. P. C. Heaven, when Wilma Blanche Lewis Reg.N., formerly of Havelock, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lewis of Benton, Alta., became the bride of Glen Joseph Luffman, eldest son of Mrs. M. Luffman and the late Mr. E. Luffman, of Belleville.

The bride, a graduate of 1941 Belleville General Hospital, was attired in a romance blue wool suit, with matching hat, black accessories and a corsage of talisman roses. She was attended by Miss Margaret Plumpton, Reg. N., of Belleville, wearing an ensemble of beige with brown accessories and corsage of white mums. Mr. Gordon Elliott of Belleville was best man.

The happy couple left on a wedding trip to points west and upon their return will reside in Belleville.

The bride received her public and High School education here, when she resided with her aunt Mrs. Joseph Ditchman.

Junior League Opens Thrift Sale

The "Thrift Sale" of the Junior League opens to-day. This is the third annual "sale," and promises to be even better than the previous one. Continuing through until Saturday, beautiful, unusual and useful articles will be on display at the headquarters for the sale, 323 George street. Mrs. Donald McTavish, president, and all members of the group have been working industriously to make this event a success, and are expecting a great response to this latest endeavour.

There were no special committees appoitned. Mrs. H. Eastwood, Mrs. Keith Lech, and Mrs. A. Nobbs make up the regular publicity committee, but the members all worked together in this effort.

The window display was in charge of Mrs. Herb Bradburn, and Mrs. Keith Lech. Pieces of silver, antique vases, smart costume jewelry, fine wine glasses, a pair of brass candlesticks, and other items of glass, china and silver are tastefully arranged on a red, white and blue striped ground. This window is designed to catch the eye of the passer-by.

There is a wide variety of other items for sale. Children's clothing and underwear, clothing for men and women, black and white satin dancing shoes and an assortment of slippers and boots for children and grown-ups. Costume jewelry, odd dishes, pictures, picture frames, curtains, games, books and parsley plants are some of the articles to be seen on the counters. There are two fur jackets, one of silver fox and the other of brown caracul. Christmas cones, tipped with red lacquer and silver paint, ideal for decorating the home for the holiday season, are being offered. All the goods are donated, and therefore every purchase benefits the organization.

The proceeds of this third "Thrift Sale" will be divided among war charities and the Junior Welfare League itself. The League is primarily interested in the welfare of children, and their funds are used to provide milk, cod liver oil and other essentials for those children who would otherwise be unable to obtain them. The people who visit the store, and who buy whatever they can, will not only be taking advantage of attractive prices, but will be helping a most worthy cause.

They're Scarce-

So Make the Most of Them

AMONG the foods we've all had to go easy on are Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings. So when your grocer is able to let your have some—s-t-r-e-t-c-h them with one of the many clever Jell-O recipes. Here are two—you'll find others printed on the packages.

JELL-O APPLE BOB

1 cup red cinnamon candies
8 small apples, peeled and cored
1 package JELL-O, any flavor
2½ cups hot water

Combine cinnamon candies and ½ cup water in saucepan and heat until candies are dissolved. Place apples in syrup and cook gently until apples are tender. Place in sherbet glasses.

Dissolve Jell-O in 2 cups hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Pour over apples in sherbet glasses. Chill until firm.

This recipe makes your Jell-O go twice as far—and remember that you still get all of Jell-O's famous quality and delicious fruity flavor.

JELL-O ICE BOX CAKE

1 package JELL-O Pudding
2 cups milk
½ cup evaporated milk, whipped
Lady fingers or cake strips

Prepare Jell-O Pudding with milk as directed on package. Cool. Fold in whipped evaporated milk. (To whip evaporated milk, chill it icy cold, then whip vigorously.) Line bottom and sides of mold or loaf pan with waxed paper. Arrange layer of lady fingers on bottom and sides of mold. Turn ½ pudding into mold; cover with layer of lady fingers. Turn remaining pudding into mold and place another layer of lady fingers on top. Chill in refrigerator 12 to 24 hours. Unmold. 6 to 8 servings.

TWO GRAND DESSERTS— Limited in supply just now, but unchanged in quality.

"Fine or superfine?" Asked Mr. Jones

"Oh, Superfine definitely," answered Mrs. Jones.

"Hmmmm, cup of something hot. Wouldn't be coffee?"

"No," answered Mrs. Jones, "though some people are still under the mistaken impression that it is a coffee substitute."

"Does it taste like coffee?" asked Mr. Jones.

"It certainly doesn't," said Mrs. Jones sharply. "And it doesn't taste like tea, either. It has a hearty flavor all its own."

"Well, if it tastes so good, probably it's not very good for me," said Mr. Jones slyly.

"It is indeed good for you. No caffeine to give you headaches or to keep you awake. Just a cup of wholesomeness . . ."

"It's POSTUM," cried both Mr. and Mrs. Jones at the same time.

And so Mr. Jones had no forfeit to pay. And you will pay no forfeit if you make Postum a regular mealtime beverage. Nothing in it to upset nerves or digestion. Wholesome for the whole family. Economical (costs less than a cent a cup) and easy to prepare.

There are two forms of Postum—Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup simply by adding boiling water; and Postum Cereal Beverage, prepared like coffee in pot, percolator or glass coffee-maker.

MEDAL FOR GRANDMOTHER WHO MUST RESUME FAMILY CARES

War Puts Scampering Little Ones in Home Just When Quiet Should Be Her Reward.

THERE is not one of us who does not thrill with pride when we hear, as we so often do in these war days, of some soldiers or sailor being decorated for an act of conspicuous bravery and unselfishness, but if I were giving out awards for valor and courage and sufferings uncomplainingly borne, I should pin the finest and largest and shiniest of all the hero medals on the breast of the grandmothers who have been drafted by their daughters and daughters-in-law into being nursemaids for the duration.

There are millions of elderly women who have spent long and toilsome years in bringing up their own children by hand. They have walked hundreds of miles with colicky babies. They have passed sleepeless nights watching by sick beds. They have gone shabby so that Jimmy might have a sweater exactly like the other boys', and Sally as perky a hair-bow as the girl at the desk in front of her. They have washed and scrubbed and sewed and cooked to give their children good food and decent clothes and help them get a start in life.

Peace After Struggle

And when their children grew up and got jobs and husbands and wives of their own, and went about the business of life for themselves, the mothers drew the first free breath they had drawn in twenty-five years. They felt that their task had been accomplished. They had done an honest day's work, and that now they could settle down in peace and comfort and take things easy.

The income that had required so much stretching to cover the needs for a growing family would be ample for two old people. The cooking that had made mother the slave of the gas range would be child's play when there were only her and Papa to cater to. Above all, overworked Mother would have a chance to relax and do the things she had always wanted to do, to read the new books, to dawdle in the stores, to belong to clubs, and go to the movies in the day time.

Then came the war, and Mother's dream of a quiet old age was bombed into a thousand fragments. Her sons and her sons-in-law went into the army, and their wives and children descended on Mother like wolves on the fold. Bag and baggage and babies until the little house bulged with the crowding and became a bedlam of childish shrieks and yells and whoops, and Mother found herself once more washing didies and fixing bottles and settling fights and cooking from morning until night in a vain effort to fill up hungry little tummies.

Youthful Chores Hard On Weary Bones

Only now Mother was too old to take the turmoil in her stride. Her feet got tired running after baby. Her old bones ached with weariness so that she couldn't sleep after a hard day's work. She adored the children, but their noise got on her nerves, and their ceaseless activities beat her down.

But through it all untold numbers of mothers have carried on without flinching, without whining, without complaint. They have given up their comfortable bedrooms so that Mary and the baby might get the morning sunshine. They have taken care of Sally's obstreperous and undisciplined youngsters while she went off to visit her husband at camps and have a big time. They have done without the new coat they had set their hearts on because Lucinda's sickly little girl had to be fed on vitamins that cost as much as champagne.

They have worn themselves to a frazzle trying to keep Maud's kids entertained while she spent her time dancing with soldiers whom she felt it her patriotic duty to make merry. They have even stood for the criticisms of the young mothers who told them how to rear babies. And if that doesn't take heroism, I would like to know what does.

Grandmother Shoulders Burdens of War

Granted that in many cases the daughters who rush home with their children to their mothers have no other alternative. They have nowhere else to go. The war has broken up their own homes. They have not enough money to finance even a modest establishment. They don't know how to live alone and, bewildered and confused and helpless, they take the line of least resistance and fly back to the home nest, secure that Mother will welcome them and divide with them her last morsel of food.

And because they have never thought of their mothers as anything but a first aid to their own pleasures, they do not realize what a hardship they may be inflicting upon their parents. On the contrary, they think that they are giving Mother and Father a treat in having their children and grandchildren with them for such a long stay, and that there is nothing that old people enjoy so much as listening to babies cry and youngsters play Commandos, with appropriate sound effects up and down the hall.

So daughter goes off with a clear conscience to the job she has taken because she was bored looking after the children herself, while Mother uncomplainingly sustitutes for her as nursemaid. Which is why I say that Grandma deserves to have a few hero medals pinned on her bungalow apron.

LAC. Jack Quirk Wed in St. Peter's

Yellow mums and ferns formed the setting for the wedding of Marcella Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Donnell, Park Hill Road, to LAC. Jack Quirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Quirk, Downie street, at St. Peter's Cathedral Tuesday. Reverend Father Finn officiated. The music was played by Mrs. Cyril O'Donnell, and during the signing of the register Mrs. D. Campanero sang "Ave Maria."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and she wore a floor-length gown of ivory brocaded satin with a fitted bodice, flared skirt, and a slight train. Her veil of embroidered silk net reached the floor and was caught in a halo style. She carried a bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

She was attended by her sister, Rita, who wore a frock of aquamarine sheer, a white feather cap, white accessories, and carried white roses. The best man was AC. Paul Lynch, and the ushers were Freddy O'Donnell, cousin of the bride, and Morley Geraghty. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Kawartha Club, where the bride's mother received, wearing a dress of black silk crepe and a corsage of American Beauty roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of navy blue sheer, with a corsage of pink roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Montreal. For travelling the bride wore a brown tailored suit with matching accessories.

THE STARS SAY ....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 28

PARTICULARLY propitious are the promises and prospects for this day, on which there may be a decisive and energetic marshalling of forces for a solidification of the affairs in all directions. There may be an urgent effort at enterprise and initiative; not only in the launching of new projects and programs, but in sweeping away all static and impeding obstructions to future constructive work. Business, finance, literary and artistic skills should be under exceptional impetus for such ambitious purpose. Forge ahead indomitably.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are assured promise of a definite and decisive success in the way of progress on new ambitions and propositions; aimed at a consolidation of the resources and opportunities, making for future comfort, happiness and prosperity. Exceptional initiative and energy should be applied toward this determined goal, and while personal industry, resources and skill should be of signal worth, there may be assistance from a legacy, gift, or other windfall. There may be travel, adventure and romance. The business as well as cultural talents are highly stimulated.

A child born on this day should be so bounteously endowed with multiple talents and skills, in business, professions and arts, that it should attain the goal of heart's desire and enjoy long and stable good fortune.

The Villain Triumphs

A new referee failed to cramp the style of Rowdy Dick Hogan very much. The Housepainter, matched with Freddy Steele of Glendale, Cal., in the semi-final trotted out all the mean bits of business in his repertoire and while Nelson made him cut out some of his skulduggery he got away with enough to give the clean-cut Steele a bad thirteen minutes.

Hogan has only one plan of campaign: keep handing it out and eventually you will cut your opponent down to your size is his fixed strategy and he demonstrated last night that it brings results. He gouged and half-strangled Steele, pulled his hair, and slipped in a few punches and kicks for good measure. The California handed out a bit himself and several times had Hogan scurrying for shelter, but rowdy Housepainter finally ended the argument. He crashed Steele to the mat with a body slam and nailed him for the fall, tossing in a couple of punches to make sure that there was no more resistance.

A Drawn Bout

Flight Sergt. Ted Miller of the R.C.A.F. and long Joe Christie wrestled thirty minutes to a draw in the opening bout. The boys worked the first twenty minutes as clean as a whip and earned frequent rounds of applause for their fast work, and for the sportsmanlike manner in which they broke instantly when ordered to do so by Referee Nelson. Then Christie cut loose with a punch that landed on the button and from then on the bout took on a different complexion. The battling roughened up considerably with some hair-pulling by Christie and some lusty punchin[g] by the Air Force representativ[e]. However no one was hurt and th[e] draw decision covered the case adequately.

The new third man in the rin[g] Referee Tommy Nelson made a goo[d] impression. He worked with plent[y] of authority and he escaped th[e] pushing around that Referee Max[well] has been getting. Fred Scate[s] did the announcing and as usua[l] was official timer.

An interesting exhibition o[f] weight-lifting by members of th[e] Peterborough Weight-Lifting Clu[b] was a curtain-raiser that entertain[ed] the early comers.

Develop Your Talent for Fashion Drawing

FUR ILLUSTRATION

Is your problem to be a fashion artist? Many girls and men also have become interested in this, especially in more recent years, because of the increasing popularity of the profession.

The fashion artist's objective in most cases is to sell merchandise. You must learn, therefore, to present a piece of merchandise as attractively as possible so that many women will want it. An example of fashion art is pictured above.

You must idealize and dramatize the figure underneath a garment.

Of course it must be realized that it is not a profession that one can step right into without any ability whatsoever. You do need an observant eye, a good imagination, good taste, accuracy, a sense of proportion and balance, plus a strong ambition to succeed.

You may not have excessive talent, but if you have a little you can develop it with work and patience. Our booklet helps the beginner, showing how to draw all sorts of fashion figures with diagrams clearly illustrating. The simple instructions are not at all difficult.

For your copy of FASHION DRAWING MADE EASY send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name and address and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FORCING AN OVER-RUFF

A DEFENDER who holds an honor in the declarer's trump suit, but without an adequate guard or guards to it, can sometitmes turn it into a winner by making the declarer over-ruff with one of his honors. Use of this procedure can flabbergast an apparently certain c[illegible]

That bidding was uniform at three tables of a duplicate tournament. At each of them the diamond 9 was led to the J and another diamond honor scored. In one case East then switched to the club 8. The declarer played low and the K won. But that was all for the defenders. The club 10 was returned and there was nothing to the hand after that. Two spade tricks made possible a discard of South's last diamond, and the heart K was trapped by the Q lead.

At the second table, after East won the second diamond trick, he noticed that his partner's cards had been the 9 and 5, South playing the 4 and 7. So he had his partner marked as being now out of diamonds, as he had played his lowest possible. Hence he returned a third diamond, and the heart 5 by West was enough to force the J from dummy in an over-ruff. When the declarer then led the Q from dummy, East covered with the K, forcing out the A and making his 10 good. Later that card and the club K beat the contract.

One East player said he would have done the same thing, after seeing his partner's 5, except that the 4 had not been played, so he counted his partner for it. The wily declarer, in that instance, had played his 7 and 10 on the diamond leads, retaining the 4 and thus making East think that West held three originally.

War In Balkans And Italy

Nazi troops brought from Italy have recaptured Ogulin (1) from Yugoslav Partisans and have begun an offensive against other guerrillas. However a Nazi attempt to land troops between Ragusa and Split (2) was foiled. On the Italian mainland (inset map) the Fifth army has driven forward to Dragoni, Roccaromana and Pignataro (3) and the Germans are expected to make a stand in the mountains (4) northwest of these towns. The British Eighth Army is fighting near San Stefano (5) and on the Adriatic it advanced beyond Petacciato (6) northwesterly. The war in the Balkans is hampered by bitter clashes between the rival Yugoslav factions, led by Gen. Josip (Tito) Broz and Gen. Draja Mihailovich.

Fire Damages Wheeler Home

BRIDGENORTH, Oct. 27—(ENS)—A fire of unknown origin caused considerable damage to the home of Mr. George Wheeler last week.

Mr. Wheeler is 80 years of age and resides alone, but at the time of the fire he was in Peterborough on business. Mrs. S. Forsythe who was passing the house noticed the smoke leaking out around the windows and doors. She immediately summoned aid from the neighbours and the fire was soon extinguished. Although the inside of one wall and a large hole in the floor, a morris chair, a lounge and the curtains from the window were burned.

HOT FLASHES then CHILLY FEELINGS

If you—like so many women between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, weak, dizzy, nervous feelings, irregular periods, are blue at times—due to this middle age period in a woman's life—start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It's one of the most effective medicines you can buy that's made especially for women, to relieve such painful distress.

In fact—taken regularly Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such symptoms. It also is a fine stomach tonic.

Thousands upon thousands of women—rich and poor alike—have reported benefits. Lydia Pinkham's Compound has proved some women's happiest days can be during their "40's." Made in Canada. Worth trying!

Airforce Cuts Requirements

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (CP). — Air Commodore J. W. Tice, Director of Medical Services, last night announced a new system of medical examination and assessment in which physical requirements for ground trades have been lowered with a view to allowing fully-fit personnel to be assigned to aircrew.

The announcement said the new medical examination system does not affect aircrew requirements.

Under the plan based on "job analysis," the physical requirements of each Air Force trade have been measured by physicians with the view of assigning the right type of man to a suitable task. In certain trades, men with certain physical deficiencies will be employed, releasing fit men for aircrew.

As an example, Air Commodore Tice said that visual standards for groundcrew have been reduced greatly, with provision even for a man with only one eye to be enlisted for restricted employment.

NAZI RESISTANCE STIFFENS IN ITALY

Russian Tank Units Nearing Last Railroad Serving Crimea

MOSCOW, Oct. 28—(AP).—Russian tank units and strong advanced infantry forces pouring into the desert steppe west of Melitopol today have seized all the little roads criss-crossing the area and are moving rapidly into the flanks of the fleeing Germans.

One column was moving south from Akimovka, 14 miles south of Melitopol along the railroad to the Crimea, which was within striking distance.

Another group was just south of Nikopol, manganese mining town, moving up to meet another force moving southwestward upon the town within the Dnieper River below.

The break-through between Zaporozhe and the Sea of Azov has recaptured upwards of 300 square miles south of the Dnieper and there is only a shred of German line falling back toward the Crimea in the south and toward Kherson in the west.

The Russians in this area were hourly nearing the Perekopkherson railway, the only remaining line out of the Crimea. This line leads to Nikolaev, just west of Kherson.

Fall of strongly defended Krivoi Rog, iron ore and rail centre already reported flanked on three sides by Red Army troops, was believed to be but a matter of hours, battlefront dispatches clearing through Moscow indicated.

Capture of Krivoi Rog, a pivotal base for the whole German defence set-up in the southern Ukraine above the Crimea, would enable the Russians to turn the northern army of their pincers in a southerly direction to close with the opposite arm pushing northwestward from the Melitopol sector.

The Germans were in slow but steady retreat along the entire southern front, according to a Moscow communique. The German high command threw in planes, tanks and men from Italy, France and Germany in a desperate attempt to stem the Russian advance, but to no avail.

Gain 48 Miles

The relentless drive carried the Red troops through more than 120 towns on the heels of the retreating enemy. The Moscow war bulletin reported Soviet spearheads at Novo-Alexandrovka, 48 miles west of Melitopol in south, and at Krinichki, 27 miles west of Dnepropetrovsk on the northern end of the fighting front. A secondary thrust carried other Russian troops into the town of Goreloe on the Sea of Azov, 20 miles from a narrow isthmus joining the Crimea with the mainland.

The Russians cleared the 70-mile-long railroad line from Zaporozhe to

Where Nazis Squirm In Traps

Fast closing German bottleneck where, so arrow indicates, Russian forces have been hammering southward since the fall of Melitopol and more successful each hour is the drive past Krivoi Rog, important mining centre. The trap closing on the Crimea allows but one chance for Germans to escape: by means of a rail line about halfway to the Bug River at Perekop, while to the northward German troops in the Dnieper River bend also face doom following the fall of Krivoi Rog. In this area from the Bend to the Sea of Azov some 750,000 Nazis are believed to be involved by the Russian strategy.

Searchers Fail To Find Plane

ANCIENNE LORETTE, Que., Oct. 28 (CP)—With hope dimming an intensive search is being pursued over a wide area for the big R.C.A.F. Liberator which disappeared Oct. 19 with 24 passengers on a flight from an eastern Canadian airbase to Montreal. Many clues as to the possible whereabouts of the missing plane have been tracked down, by R.C.A.F. search parties but officials stated today that they are still in possession of "nothing tangible."

There has been no direct message from the Liberator since 10 p.m. Oct. 19 when it signalled the base at Mont Joli, Que., that adverse conditions made it impossible for a landing there and that the course would be pursued to Montreal.

For the past week a systematic search by trained crews has been made from this R.C.A.F. base, stretching over a wide region of bush country deep into the Laurentian Mountains from the Lake St. John district to the Ottawa River. Wireless air gunners reported picking up incoherent messages on the emergency wave length from time to time, but R.C.A.F. officials stated there was no proof that any of these signals were from the missing airmen.

Bren Gun Carrier Blows Up Driver Crawls Out Unhurt

By L. V. HUNTER—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 28—(CP).—W. G. Kirkpatrick, a Bren carrier driver from Edmonton, figures he is tougher than steel and he has plenty to back up his claim.

The 22-year-old driver's heavy explosive-laden carrier was blown sky high when it hit three mines and Kirkpatrick came out of it with nothing worse than a shaking up and a few bruises. The carrier is nothing more than a twisted heap of metal now.

Kirkpatrick was in the carrier with Sgt. Henry Forgie, St. Paul, Alta., and Ptes Ken Rodger, 28, of Melfort, Sask., and Willie Demers of Medicine Hat, Alta., the latter two signallers.

When the carrier approached a bend in the road the Germans were shelling, the two signallers got out to do a recce, one walking a few feet in front of the vehicle and the other a few feet behind. Forgie was a little to one side of the machine.

The three of them were tossed into the air like ninepins, Rodger said, and the carrier was flipped over on its back like an egg.

A Premonition

"I don't know what made us get out of the carrier,' Rodger related, "but something or other told us to get off. Perhaps it was because the ride was pretty bumpy.

"When we heard the blast we ducked because we thought it was an anti-tank gun popping at us. None of us was hurt."

When they went back to the carrier to see what had happened to Kirkpatrick, they found him still in the driver's compartment, black as ink. His feet were tangled around the steering wheel and his head and shoulders were buried in the mud.

Kirkpatrick's companions dug him out and he sat down beside the carrier to smoke a cigaret. Then he was taken back to camp for a rest.

The driver said the explosion sounded like a dul boom away off in the distance.

"I could just feel the rear end of the carrier going up and the next thing I knew I woke up under the car," he said. "I kind of figured I was in heaven."

Record Sales Wednesday Boosts War Loan

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 — (CP). — Subscriptions to the $1,200,000,000 Fifth Victory Loan up to last night—halfway mark in the three week campaign—totalled $643,457,050 compared with $564,106,500 in the Fourth Victory Loan last spring when the total objective was $100,000,000 less, National Loan headquarters announced today.

Canadians invested $86,133,550 yesterday but Loan officials said they felt no "undue optimism."

"Although this is the largest daily telegraphic total reported in any one day thus far it was in large part accounted for by an unusual number of 'Special Names' subcriptions, including the $22,500,000 investment of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which was announced yesterday." Today's press statement from the headquarters reported.

In the nine days of the current campaign the daily average was approximately $71,490,000, with a nine-day average of roughly $62,670,000 in the last loan.

Need More Subscribers

"While the gross figures and the daily average show good promise, sales to the general public as distinguished from payroll and the Special Names have shown some signs of diminution during the last two days and it is hoped this section will show early improvement," said loan headquarters.

"If we are to have satisfactory quick recovery in the realm of the general sales to individual Canadians, it will be necessary for our own organization to work hard and to attack their task with new energy—and it is to be hoped that the public realizing the great desirability of the largest possible number of subscriptions as well as the largest possible amount of money, respond accordingly."

The Royal Canadian Navy's total was pushed higher by Atlantic Command's $1,701,250, more than $300,000 over the quota. All ships are flying the quota pennant and have contributed more than $217,000, and 98 per cent of shore establishments have exceeded their quotas.

Navy is just behind the R.C.A.F. on the eastern coast, having 121.5 per cent of quota against 126.09 for the air force. It started with a $100,000 handicap.

The army's eight day total is 95,441 applications for $8,392,450, or 84 per cent of quota.

South African Pilots Batter Barges Off Yugoslavia

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 28.—(CP).— With the Mediterranean virtually cleared of enemy shipping and the German air force apparently too far away to attempt further raids on North African ports, the Northwest African coastal air force has transferred its activity largely to the Adriatic.

Numerous losses have been inflicted in the past few weeks on German shipping creeping from port to port on the Italian and Yugoslav sides of that sea.

This traffic is vital to the Germans. On the Italian side the movement of troops and supplies to the front by land has been slowed by air attacks on roads and railways, and the Germans have resorted to coastal shipping to speed it up. On the Damatian coast many German garrisons can be supplied only by sea and air because of poor roads and guerilla activity.

Use Italian Ships.

The Germans are using Italian vessels manned by Italians under German guard for most of this shipping.

An R.A.F. reconnaissance squadron of Marauders under Wing Cmdr. H. Law-Wright flies over the sea from dawn to dusk seeking targets. In a recent instance the Marauders whistled up Kitty bombers which set afire or damaged two vessels of 5,000 and 2,000 tons, and in another they summoned a British destroyer which sank a 6,000-ton ship and captured another 5,000-tonner.

The Middle East air force, again active over the Aegean, caught Germans disembarking from a big Junkers-52 air transport at Kos, an indication the enemy was reinforcing that Dodecanese air base, and again bombed Antimacchia airfield there. The harbor at Porto Maltesana on Stampalia in the Dodecanese and the barracks on Gavdos Island south of Crete also were bombed.

Pilots returning from the Kos raid said 50 fully-armed Germans were caught by the surprise bomber and fighter attack, and an "officer with a row of medals and ribbons received a direct hit from a cannon shell."

Patriots Block Nazi Tanks In Montenegro

LONDON, Oct. 28—(CP)—Gen. Josip Broz' (Drug Tito's) Peoples Liberation Army has smashed back German tank attacks in Montenegro and the Sandjak area of Bosnia, and other Partisans have inflicted heavy losses on German units in sharp fighting only 10 miles from the northern border of Albania near Kolasin and Berane, a communique issued over the free Yugoslav radio said today.

The communique also said that former Yugoslav Gen. Djukanovic and 30 other officers described as Montenegrin Quislings helping the Germans have been captured and another 21 killed.

On the Greek flank of the Balkans the Paris radio reported that the islands of Samos and Leros in the Aegean Sea had been recaptured by German forces, but there was no Allied confirmation of the claim.

The Cairo radio announced that R.A.F. planes yesterday bombed the Antimacchia airfield on the Island of Kos.

Pierced Lines

Elsewhere on the Yugoslav front Partisans broke through the German lines to capture the town of Skofja Loka, northwest of Lujbljana, where they destroyed a large textile factory and railway line, derailed a German military train and severed all postal communications with the Ljubljana area.

Dr. Eduards, a German radio commentator discussing Prime Minister Winston Churchill's recent hint that the Allies were not planning an early, large-scale offensive in the Balkans, said: "Actually there is something going on in the eastern Mediterranean despite the unanimous Allied press declarations that nothing is afoot there."

In Slovenia, where the Germans had mounted a large-scale offensive to reconquer territory liberated by Peasant Patriots, Partisan troops hurled back numerous attacks by enemy motorized units with heavy losses, the Yugoslav war bulletin said.

The number bombed out or evacuated because of raid danger was said to be 6,953,000.

Allies Drive Deep Salient Into German Lines Push Doggedly Northward

8th Army Secures Trigno Bridgehead Build More Bridges Despite Accurate Artillery Pounding

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 28 (AP).—Anglo-American troops stabbing high up the valley of the upper Volturno River have driven a deep salient into the enemy's lines northwest of Raviscanina, while 8th Army engineers threw bridges across the Trigno River under heavy shellfire, Allied headquarters announced today.

Enemy resistance was reported jelling along the entire front as the two Allied armies punched doggedly forward over rough countryside, mowing down one strong outpost after another and approaching the new German main lines.

At the Adriatic end of the front, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's headquarters announced that his British troops had firmly secured a bridgehead over the Trigno River despite sharp and continuous enemy fighting to wipe out his position on the northwest banks.

Engineers Busy.

In the face of what was officially tetrmed "extremely accurate" artillery bombardment, 8th Army engineers continued to throw new bridges across the stream.

Artillery fire also was intense to the southwest of the 8th Army front, where 8th Army units in a four-mile drive from the last previously-announced positions captured the town of Torella Del Sannio, nine miles northwest of Campobasso. It was in this general area, on the left of the 8th Army's front, in the Apennine "backbone" country, that the Canadian 1st Division is reported operating. British troops near the Adriatic end of the front took Mafalda, seven miles southwest of Montefalcone and near the south-east bank of the Trigno.

(The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded in London by Reuters News Agency, said that Montefalcone, along with Torella Del Sannio and Montemitro, also had been abandoned by the Germans.

The town of Castelmauro, six miles northwest of Palata, was taken by 8th Army units after a relatively small-scale but extremely bitter battle in which British troops advanced a mile and a half beyond their former line.

Mass Artillery.

Still farther south the Germans employed harassing tactics against advance forces penetrating beyond Bojano along the vital main inland road toward Isernia.

The Nazis employed both medium and field artillery to hinder the thrust of the Anglo-American troops in the central and right sectors of the 5th Army front.

Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's troops, however, attacked and drove the Germans from more important high ground along both sides of the Volturno and widened the base of their salient by taking Riardo, nine miles southwest of Raviscanina and 11 miles northwest of Capua.

Kittyhawks of the South African Air Force, resuming their attacks to bolster Yugoslav guerilla opposition to the Germans, attacked four barges off the Yugoslav coast the Allied announcement said.

Nazis Soldiers Terrified Of Red Front

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A BRITISH HOSPITAL SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 28. — (CP Cable.) — German civilians scrambled madly for food tossed to them from trains by prisoners of war, and Nazi prison guards turned "white with fear" at the mere mention of the Russian front, some Canadian soldiers who had been wounded at Dieppe Aug. 19, 1942 and repatriated from Germany told newsmen here.

They came with some 5,000 Allied war prisoners who arrived in British ports this week in an exchange with Germany.

The Canadians said their impressions were drawn mostly from contact with camp guards and civilians encountered during the trip from occupied France to a Swedish embarkation port, but said the breakdown in morale was so obvious they had no hesitation in painting a dismal picture.

Bombers Thorough.

Pte. Glen Schwegler of Toronto, who lay without medical attention in a garage throughout the first night after Dieppe with his left leg mangled by a mortar shell, said "the prison guards were glum and spiritless."

Police Riddle Lonergan's Alibi

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Detectives who subjected Wayne Lonergan, 26-year-old R.C.A.F. aircraftsman, to a relentless 13-hour overnight grilling about his heiress wife's slaying claimed today they were "whittling down his story and cutting it to shreds."

A detective said Lonergan might be taken to the apartment where pretty, 22-year-old Patricia Burton Lonergan clung steadfastly to his bronze candlesticks and strangled to death last Sunday, and there questioned anew about his movements over the week-end.

"We feel that we have a very good circumstantial case against him right now," a detective said, "a case that will be extremely difficult for any defence to attack, knock down or shake in any degree."

The detective said that when discrepancies in his story were pointed out to Lonergan, the husky airman smiled or shrugged his shoulders.

Lonergan clung stedfastly to his story during the questioning stoutly maintaining he had no part in the slaying of his wife.

Japan Due For Big Raids

Noose Tightens Around Japanese Empire

HONOLULU, Oct. 28.— (AP).— The commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific Fleet confidently foresees the day when the same 'round-the-clock air bombardments now tearing at Germany will pound the Japanese homeland.

Declaring Allied victory is certain, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said in a Navy Day address that Japan's total air strength already has declined and her presently powerful armies inevitably must be pulled in as enemy shipping losses mount.

Once adequate bases have been secured close to the Japanese homeland—"this will be done"—Japan will "know what Germany suffers day after day and night after night in attacks from the air," the Admiral told the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

He said he did not know when the war would end but expressed belief it would be "over long before any gloomy prediction of 1949."

Taking an overall view, Admiral Nimitz said global strategy decisions to direct the major United Nations' efforts against Hitler while holding Japan were wise.

"Japan has not only been held," he added, "but has been driven back at important points and she has taken severe losses in the air and in her merchant fleet."

German Retreat in Russia is Orderly

Steadiness Of Well Trained Troops May Reduce Disaster

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The battle of giants in the great bend of the Dnieper has reached a magnitude and ferocity reminscent of Stalingrad, and like that epic struggle the present conflict casts a grim shadow of disaster across the Nazi armies on the eastern front.

However, I think we should go slow in forming judgment as to the extent of the German difficulties.

True, the picture is gloomy for the Nazis. Even Berlin has been forced to the unwelcome task of preparing the long-suffering German public for another catastrophe The only question remaining is what the extent of the calamity will be.

The Nazi capital has broadcast news of "a large German withdrawal movement" in the Dnieper bend. Worried Hitlerite Charlie McCarthys have passed on to the people the bitter information that a large part of their 1,000-mile line has been forced back.

Moscow tells us the Germans are throwing everything they have into the battle to stem the Red onslaught—fresh troops, tanks, aircraft and artillery. Indications are, however, that this bloody resistance is being made, not with the idea of holding the present positions, but to permit of the general withdrawal of the long, unwieldy front without a debacle.

Battle All the Way.

A huge number of Nazi troops—originally totalling maybe 500,000—have been or still are in danger of being trapped by the onrushing Reds in the Dnieper bend. Those German soldiers must be withdrawn so far as possible, and the only way for the Hitlerites to keep a gateway open for them is to stage the sanguinary counter-attacks now in progress.

The position is such that wholesale disaster might grow out of it. However, the chances are that scores of thousands of troops have been rescued from the trap, and that many more thousands will be pulled out.

When the German High Command has salvaged all that speeding time will permit, the Hitlerites will try to make an orderly withdrawal of the whole line and fall back to other prepared positions. Moscow indicates the Nazis are in slow but steady retreat on the crucial southern front. The invaders are suffering terrible casualties and loss of material—but it's significant that no debacle has set in.

List 4 Labor Priorities

First Two Classes Frozen In Jobs

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 — (CP). — A general list of four labor priorities for Canadian industry, long a closely-guarded secret of Labor Department officials, was made public for the first time last night by Arthur MacNamara, Director of National Selective Service.

The list included these priority ratings: "A" very high, "B" high, "C" low, "D" no priority.

Ofo the four classifications, male employees of two—"A' and "B"—have been frozen in their jobs by an Order-in-Council, announced September 20 by Labor Minister Mitchell, which provides they cannot leave their work or be discharged without written permission of a National Selective Service official.

Noting that only one priority is given to each establishment, Mr. MacNamara said in his announcement last night that more than one priority might be given to one firm operating more than one establishment, but those ratings would be in accordance with the "essentiality of the production or activity of the establishment.

Thus, certain occupations such as key men in laundries, pharmacists in drug stores, and key skilled men in machinery repair services, are given special classification.

Banker Urges Team Play To Help Loan

"Team Play and Finance" was the subject of the CHEX address broadcast by T. T. Rodger of the Dominion Bank on Wednesday evening in the bankers series of Victory Loan broadcasts.

His text follows:

"History unfolds for us many episodes of spectacular individual achievement notwithstanding the present age, by experience, accepts as fact that team work is essential to the success of most, if not all, large undertakings.

"The assembly line of modern industry would be impossible without the co-operation of labor, management and capital.

"Therefore co-operation— team play if you wish, is the keystone to success in this Fifth Victory Loan campaign, when $1,200,000,000, of which Peterborough's quota is $4,600,000, must be loaned to our Government, so that Canada's intensified war effort can be maintained in high gear, to speed the Victory.

Appeal to Depositors.

To activate and channel so vast a sum in the relatively short time of the campaign places a heavy responsibility on all, and not in the least upon financial institutions, chartered banks are entrusted with over two billions of dollars by their depositors whose number aggregate more than a third of Canada's total population. To those depositors whose thrift and enterprise has created this massive reserve, and to all other citizens, Canada appeals in the sure knowledge that now, while the enemy has lost the initiative and is giving ground under pressure of attack, our intensified effort will not only speed the Victory but also shorten in duration the ordeal of sacrifice required to be made by our soldiers, sailors and airmen who battle the enemy.

"It is an inescapable moral duty of every Canadian to support to the fullest measure of his resources this Fifth Victory Loan.

"The assignment entails no hardship, merely the lending of your dollars to your country, in return for which you receive its obligation, a security which carries an attractive interest rate, the collateral being the vast resources of Canada.

Banks Urge Bond Buying.

"To their depositors, all chartered banks have without reservation recommended the Fifth Victory Loan and urge buying to the limit of one's ability. Those who follow the recommendation not only fulfill a duty, but also enjoy benefit of the greater interest return, which Canada's finest investment pays.

"Total incomes received by individuals are presently at a high level. It is therefore expected individual classification purchase of the Fifth Victory Loan should exceed $500,000,000.

"The many and various groups covered under the heading non-individual subscribers, have a substantial commitment to meet to ensure the success of the Victory Loan. Insurance, trust and kindred companies normally have funds available from time to time for investment or re-investment and important amounts therefrom are used to acquire Government bonds, the prime security in Canada. Those charged with this responsibility are well aware of the necessity to have the Fifth Victory Loan fully subscribed. The early over-subscription of this Loan will be indicative not only to our Allies, but also to the enemy that Canada is relentless in its resolve to carry on without abatement of effort to Speed the Victory."

Delegates Told Production Now At Peak

By CHARLES LEOBOLDTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Oct. 27—(CP)—Delegates at the opening general session of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual two-day meeting heard a report of the national board of directors which declared "Canada has virtually attained its maximum output of war products and full employment of manpower and materials has more or less existed during the last 12 months."

Two further transition periods were forecast in the directors report. The first was "an immediate prospect of changing demands for specializing military equipment, equipment with emphasis on offensive rather on defensive types causing the influence of Governmental controls to be more severely tested than ever before."

The second period will be marked the report said, by "an almost imperceptible release of additional materials and facilities to essential civilian product."

The second period will end, the report added, by a transition to full peace-time productivity which "to be successful will depend upon the extent business is encouraged to use, and does use, its initiative and enterprise to meet the demands of the public."

The director's report covered the various activities of the Canadian Chamber during the past year with an emphasis on post-war planning, labor-management relations and a new Agricultural program for Canada.

Arbitration Panel

It also dealt with the co-operation which has prevailed between United States and Canadian business leaders. During the last year they worked especially on the establishment of arbitration facilities for the settlement of commercial disputes and a Canadian - American arbitration commission was set up as a result of their efforts and is scheduled to meet shortly in Canada.

A panel of arbitrators and clerks will be named in the near future.

President R. P. Jellett of Montreal, told delegates last night that the Canadian Chamber favors the setting-up of a national council of labor relations to work jointly with the Federal Department of Labor and the National and Regional War Labor Boards on labor problems.

He said he "did not believe that any uniform wage scale can be laid down for application throughout Canada" owing to the variety of living costs from district to district.

At the meeting of the joint committee of the U. S. and Canadian chambers of commerce, co-chairman Harper Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., envisaged world co-operation among business leaders.

President Jellett warned delegates against "unskilled and unsound people who already confidently assert that they have practically won the battle to take over the reigns of government."

He added "times call for carefully considered action since our whole country is threatened."

German guards," he added, "and they turn all colors of the rainbow, mostly white."

Sgt. Andre Michaud of Montreal who lay wounded on the beaches of Dieppe for 14 hours said, "German morale, as far as the army is concerned, is definitely broken." Ask them what they thought of the war, he went on, they would reply, "It is no good. But it will be finished in two or three months."

Eight British prisoners among the group brought back first-hand confirmation of the Allied air raid damage done to one industrial city.

"Everything was flattened on both sides of the railway line over a two-mile area" at blackened and burned Frankfurt, through which their train travelled, they said.

Pte. Carl Juhkle of Beamsville, Ont., was hit just after he landed at Dieppe and still limps from shrapnel wounds in his right leg. He said he lay on the beach for eight hours before being taken to a Rouen hospital.

"They did not seem to have much medical supplies to treat us with, even then," he said. "On the whole treatment was not too bad but it was a great relief to get to a camp hospital."

Juhkle who worked for the Ontario Department of Highways said "there wasn't much happiness among the German soldier guards at the camp. They used to tell us the war would be over shortly. I heard some say Germany would be finished by Christmas."

Pte. Jim Fleming of Windsor, Ont., who was shot in the right leg about seven hours after he landed at Dieppe, said:

Soldiers Bitter

"From what I saw on the way back, the Germans are a hungry people and their spirits are a lot lower than a year ago. The soldiers always have a fear of the Russian front and you could understand this fear if you saw the trainloads of wounded from Russia that we saw drawn up on sidings."

Fleming was limping heavily from a bad setting of a fractrued leg and expects to have another operation after taking a brief leave.

Pte. Norman Colley of Riverside, Ont., who worked in a distillery before joining the Essex Scottish, lost his right leg nine days after he was hit just as the Dieppe forces were withdrawing.

"Maybe it was just as well I got hit," he said. "A chum of mine who went in the boat I was trying to reach never got to England."

Colley was one of the few Canadians bitter about medical treatment. He said the Germans when they found him did not even change the bandage he had put on his leg. He was taken direct to prison hospital but it was too late then to save his leg.

Visiting Band Plans To Give Concert

Warrant Officer Albert Croasdale, conductor of the Army Medical Corps Band from Camp Borden, here for a week of accompaniment to Peterborough's Victory Loan campaign, has selected the following program for the public concert in the drill hall at the Training Centre beginning at 8 o'clock this evening:

O Canada

Hungarian Dances No. 4 and 5.... .... Brahms

Bandsman Eddie Chow, solo, young Chinese boy. Specializes in the Harry Lauder type of Scotch songs. Recently on Major Bowes' radio programme. Has sung over many radio stations.

Song of Love from "Blossom Time" .... Romberg

Col. Bogie on Parade............. ....Kenneth L. Alford

God Save the King.

The concert will be followed by a dance until midnight with music by the Band's orchestra.

Admission for the evening is 25 cents, and the entire proceeds will be distributed in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates as door prizes and in a draw.

The public is cordially invited to the Training Centre, and Peterborough can show its appreciation of the spontaneous interest of Lt.-Col. Walter Bapty in community affairs since he assumed charge of the Training Centre by a capacity crowd. The drill hall is a spacious auditorium and can accommodate a large number of persons.

Band Popular

The R.C.A.M.C. Band has made a fine impression in its local appearances, and the week has gone altogether too rapidly, and in adverse weather. It is a compact group of musicians whose work is plainly marked by a tone that has been fused of individual ability and sensitive leadership. Brasses and reeds are finely balanced and although the number of instruments is less than 30, Warrant Officer Croasdale has a surprising volume at his use. The Band has developed an excellence of harmony in "Abide With Me" that has become something of a reputation, a reminder which might suggest an encore in this evening's program.

Here a 162 "Percenter"

The staff of the British Admiralty Technical Mission on duty in Peterborough have completed their canvass returning the substantial result of 162 per cent of their objective.

Under the leadership of S. J. Hunter they set out to subscribe $1,750, and their total is $2,750 with a per capita subscription of $91.66.

The canvass was carried on by Mrs. E. Moore, and headquarters added the comment, as it has done all along Peterborough's industrial front, that she did a "fine job."

Turner's Final

The final result of the canvass at J. J. Turner & Sons is 132% of their objective.

Their total is $7,000 as compared with their objective of $5,300, and 92 per cent of the employees are listed as investors.

C.P.C.—132 Per Cent

G. S. Matthews, plant manager, received on behalf of the staff, the three star "V" flag awarded to Canada Packers for their response of 132%.

They piled up $35,600 with 96% of the staff participating. Their objective was $27,150.

Lt. Col. Walter Bapty was present at the flag raising and was introduced to the members of the staff. He is the new Officer in Command of Peterborough Training Centre.

A sound truck will be touring the city of Peterborough today in support of the Fifth Victory Loan. The truck was sent to Peterborough through the kind co-operation of Lt. Col. Peat, Acting Officer Commanding of the C.O.T.C., Barriefield Camp, Kingston.

The truck will be going to the rural sections of the county while in this vicinity. Corp J. Barrett is in charge of the truck.

empire-wide precedent for British courts.

The Chief Justice held that the fingerprint in question may be admitted, and that it is up to the jury to decide the weight of the evidence.

Chief Defence Counsel Godfrey Higgs attempted to knock out the vital print, figuring in the Crown's case against the slain millionaire's son-in-law, because Capt. James O. Barker, American investigator, testified he "lifted" the impression from a bedscreen which stood in the death room.

Lifted Prints

Barker explained he "raised" two prints onto adhesive rubber. One, which he said was an impression of de Marigny's little right finger, was offered in evidence because it was plainer than an earlier print which the Miami officer said was left by de Marigny's left little finger.

In the prisoner's dock, de Marigny grimaced as the Chief Justice made his pronouncement, then smiled.

Chief Defence Counsel Godfrey Higgs, whose dramatic attack against admission of the evidence threw the case into confusion, asked to see the fingerprint and it was handed to him by Barker.

Higgs and Leonard E. Keeler, investigation expert employed by the defence, studied the lifted fingerprint, while de Marigny stared at them. His face was flushed.

Barker told the Chief Justice that for the record only the lifted impression of the right little finger would be offered in evidence. He added that he also has a print from the left little finger.

Higgs had attacked the evidence with the statement: "There is no print on the screen now." He said the court had only Barker's uncorroborated testimony that the print came from the surface of the bedscreen.

Juror Joseph Johnson took to his bed last night with a cold, but Dr. Donald Graham was sworn to secrecy and named jury physician. He permitted the patient to come to court this morning and the 10th session got under way.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28 — (CP). — Rye futures closed ⅝ to ⅞ cent a bushel lower yesterday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in purely local trading.

Premiums were strong at the opening, but declined fractionally when selling by tired holders entered the market. Weakness in Chicago positions also influenced the values here.

Portugal made large purchases of wheat, presumably a result of an inquiry for 750,000 bushels Tuesday. A small quantity of No. 2 Northern wheat was also taken to fill old contracts with the United States Commodity Credit Corporation.

525 Jap Planes Lost In 13 Days Near Rabaul

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 28—(AP)—Rabaul, a keystone in the wall of Island outposts manned by the Japanese in defence of the Philippines, is staggering under aerial knockout blows which adready have destroyed or damaged 525 planes in 13 days.

In five raids there between Oct. 12 and 25, the enemy's network of airfields has been churned by more than 500 tons of bombs; the hundreds of attacking Allied bombers and fighters have shot down or damaged 175 of the 250 planes the Japanese managed to get into the air; and Rabaul's reputed anti-aircraft defences have been unable to halt the devastation.

This certain destruction of 377 enemy planes and probable damaging or destruction of 148 others at the very heart of Japanese air might in the Southwest Pacific has cost the Allies 13 planes.

The fifth and latest raid occurred Monday, marking the third straight day of assaults to smash the enemy's New Britain stronghold. The

Surprised When Syntona Gave Long-Sought Relief

Describes Tortures of Severe Rheumatic Pains and Sleep Disturbed by Kidneys. Had No Energy.

Every man or woman in Peterborough and vicinity who suffers from backache, sore joints and painful muscles; every person whose sleep is disturbed, should follow the example of other citizens who have taken Syntona and got grand relief. Here is another of the REALITIES of what Syntona can do for you, as reported by Mr. Alfred Stevenson, well-known farmer at Freeman, Ont.

"I had rheumatic pains so bad, I couldn't put on my own shoes or take them off. When I lay down I had to have my legs lifted and a pillow put under them so I could rest comfortably. I was troubled somewhat with constipation and my kidneys disturbed my sleep quite often at night. I felt all used up and everything I tried to do seemed so hard.

"I have only taken four bottles of Syntona and already I feel much better. I can hardly believe it. My joints are so much looser. I can dress myself with ease and I have more energy than I've had in years. I get more sleep now because my kidneys do not call me up."

MR. ALFRED STEVENSON

If you suffer like Mr. Stevenson did, make up your mind to begin taking Syntona to-day. See how it will help you, too. Sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store—(Advt.)

CAMPBELLFORD

Many Friends Pay Tribute To J. O'Sullivan

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 28 —(ENS). —One of this town's most respected citizens, and a member of the local council, John O'Sullivan, 78, was buried here following services at St. Mary's Church on Wednesday morning when the citizens and friends from over a wide area joined in paying final tribute.

The late Mr. O'Sullivan died while on the way to the hospital following an accident on No. 30 Highway early Monday morning when the car in which he was riding, driven by his cousin, George O'Sullivan, crashed into a parked car three miles south of this town.

The late Mr. O'Sullivan had spent most of his life in this district. He was born on the family homestead in Seymour Township, the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Sullivan. He spent his early life in Campbellford and in Seymour being particular interested in the thriving lumbering industry which at that time centred about this town.

As a youth of 18 he went to Michigan where he worked for some time in lumber camps before returning to his home town to work as a teamster with the Rathburn Lumber Company. In 1904 in partnership with Frank Golden, who died three years later he purchased the Rathburn Company's interests in this town. Mr. O' Sullivan carried on the business until 1911 when he sold the business to the late William Doxsee. It was while working for the Rathburn Company that Mr. O'Sullivan married Miss Eleanor Whaley who passed away in 1916.

Municipal Life

Mr. O'Sullivan spent a brief period in Western Canada and on his return purchased the Leeson Coal and Lumber business with Mr. P. J. Sarginson as his partner. Three years later, in 1922, the firm was sold to its present owners, A. C. Connor & Son.

Since that time his interests have been centred in his garden, properties and municipal life. He first became a member of the town council in 1926 and with exception of the years 1931 and 1938 when he was defeated at the polls he served continuously. Though he was perhaps best known as the chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, a position he held for five years, Mr. O'Sullivan had for the past three years been chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Speaking in tribute to Mr. O'Sullivan, Mayor Frank Long described him as one who had taken a deep interest not only in the matters of every day life but also in the affairs of the town. "He was the dean of the council both in age and in length of service, and the remaining members will certainly miss his words of wisdom when we are gathered around the council table."

Active In Church

The deceased was a devout member of the Roman Catholic Church, and had belonged to the Holy Name Society since its formation here. In all matters pertaining to the Church he was keenly interested and for a number of years he was a member of the Separate School Board. One of his contributions to the parish which will perhaps be best remembered was his constant endeavour on behalf of improvements to St. Mary's Cemetery, a work in which he had been interested for many years.

The late M. O'Sullivan is survived by two brothers, Michael of Seymour and Daniel of Toronto and one sister, Mrs. James Coughlin of Toronto. Another brother Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan of Wooler, predeceased him ten years ago. The funeral service which was held at ten o'clock, was attended not only by the Mayor and Council and town officials, but also by pupils of the Separate School and many floral and spiritual tributes attested further to the high esteem in which he was held.

Cousin Sings Mass

Solemn Requiem high mass was sung by Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan V.G., of Peterborough, a cousin of the deceased, and he was assisted by Rev. J. P. Collins of Campbellford as Deacon and Very Rev. Joseph Ferguson from Warkworth as Sub Deacon. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. J. V. McAuley of Lindsay and formerly of the Campbellford parish. He spoke of the deceased as "an old, esteemed and venerable member of this Parish and respected citizen of this town."

Rev. McAuley told the large congregation that it mattered little "where we die or how, so long as we are prepared to go before God with hearts and souls that are clean."

Other clergy present in the Sanctuary were Rev. J. J. O'Brien of Peterborough; Rev. J. J. Guiry, Port Hope; Rev. J. J. Garvey, Hastings; Rev. C. J. Carroll, Norwood. Interment was made in the St. Mary's Cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. J. P. Collins.

The pall bearers were E. C. Roberts, James T. McCann; P. J. Sarginson, Robert Lee, Frank Lee, Pat Shannon. Flower bearers were Samuel Bibby, Jack Anderson, Dan. Calnan, Owen Brahoney, Ernest Osier, and Edward O'Connor.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huppe of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. William Whaley of Peterborough; Mrs. Thomas Lansfield of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. John Godfrey, Toronto; Misses Margaret and Agnes O'Sullivan, Toronto; Mr. James Coughlin of Toronto; Mrs. Fred Atkinson, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. James T. McCann, Port Hope; Mr. Dan Whaley and Mrs. Annie Bolduc, Preston.

Nazi E-Boats Try New Tactics

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP). —Fast German E-boats, copying the methods employed by Nazi submarines, apparently have adopted wolf pack tactics in a stepped-up campaign against British shipping in the English Channel.

(This change in tactics—the E-boats formerly hunted singly or in groups of two or three—was viewed here as an attempt by the Germans to drum up some good news for the home front at low cost.)

The campaign parallels the resumption of light hit-and-run air raids on the London area, which are being built up by the German press as smashing, large-scale assaults.

The Germans sent out 30 E-boats last Sunday to intercept a British convoy off the English east coast. British naval escorts were credited officially yesterday with sinking four and damaging seven of the E-boats in the battle—the biggest of its kind to date—without losing a ship in the convoy.

One of the motor gunboats was commanded by Lieut. C. A. Burk, R.C.N.V.R., of Toronto.

Minister Claims Vatican Normal

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 28 —(AP)—Dr. Jose Manuel Llobet, Argentine Minister to the Vatican, today described conditions in the Vatican as "perfectly normal," but said the citizens of Rome were in a "truly pitiful situation."

Arriving here after a gruelling, six-day trip from Rome, Dr. Llobet said Pope Pius XII was in "good health" and that religious services were held daily in the Vatican "as in normal times."

(Reports filtering out of Rome have said that Pope Pius was virtually a prisoner of the Nazis who have ringed St. Peter's with an armed guard.)

Dr. Llobet expressed belief that food supplies, while not abundant, were sufficient for the present.

Keep Mayor Hamilton In Office

We hear that Mayor Hamilton has considered relinquishing his office at the end of this year, leaving the way open for the election of another man. In the opinion of this newspaper, such a move would not be in the best interest of the city at the present time, and we strongly recommend that the Mayor be asked to remain where he is. The position of chief magistrate in a city of this size in wartime is a full-time job, and the present Mayor gives many hours every day to the discharge of his duties, and to consideration of the complex and often tangled problems that come his way. At present he has a thorough command of a situation which it would take a new mayor at least a year to master; can we —to put it bluntly—afford a year for a new mayor to find his feet?

We do not imply that there are no aspirants to the position who would be worthy of it; there are three or four men who would make good mayors if matters were not so pressing at the moment. But if the affairs of the city are to run smoothly in these crowded days the mayor must have a thorough grasp of a thousand and one details which a new man could learn only through actual experience of them. The present mayor has shown that he has a thorough grasp of city affairs in all their ramifications; he has brought dignity to a dignified position. He is Chairman of the Southern Ontario Division of the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities; Head of the Executive Committee of the Ontario Federation, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee and Chairman of the Wartime Housing Committee; it is obvious that the mayors of other Canadian municipalities have a high opinion of his abilities. He has been engaged during the last two years in extensive post-war planning which has not yet been completed and can only be completed by a man who knows the needs and capacities of Peterborough in every aspect. Considering these things, the Examiner feels strongly that Mayor Hamilton should be urged to remain in office for another term, or for the duration, whichever is longer.

We feel that a great number of citizens share our opinion. The best thing for the city is for the mayor to remain in office; there is nothing to gain, and much to lose, in making a change now.

Mr. Jolliffe's Paronomasia

Mr. E. B. Jolliffe apparently believes in publicity, and he knows how to get it. He has the knack, uncommon among Canadian politicians, of summing up his opinions in catchy phrases that stick in the memory. He has more feeling for words than the average party leader, and he occasionally demonstrates it in a flashy paronomasia, as when he said on Tuesday night that "Today the rugged individualist is most likely to end as a very ragged individualist". Probably that remark brought cheers from his hearers. "Ed certainly 's a card" they murmured, nudging one another. But whether they looked behind the play on words for the real meaning of what Mr. Jolliffe said, we do not know. Suppose we examine it now.

Mr. Jolliffe was talking about co-operation, and we presume that by the rugged individualists he meant those people who do not want to co-operate with him and his party. His little joke implied that these stiff-necked folk would be made to co-operate, or they would find themselves beggared. In the sort of Canada that Mr. Jolliffe wants, our strength will lie in the union of large numbers of unremarkable people rather than in the initiative and ambition of remarkable individuals.

But it does not lie in Mr. Jolliffe's power to stifle individuality, and create a Canada peopled only with willing co-operators. He certainly has no intention of strifling his own individuality; indeed, we are sure that he means to develop it to its highest pitch; every party leader is obliged to do so, and would not seek power if he had not a deep-seated longing to become a superior being. No, Mr. Jolliffe has no quarrel with power as such; he merely wants to transfer power from one group of people to another.

At present much power in Canada lies in the hands of the governments, provincial and federal; much power also lies with the industrialists, many of whom are what Mr. Jolliffe calls "rugged individualists", because they want to retain control over the businesses which they have created through their own effort; and a great deal of power resides in the public, because it chooses its governors. Mr. Jolliffe wants to take all the power from the individualists and transfer it to the governments, and he wants to convince the public that, in the long run, such a system would be best for the country.

But as we see it, Mr. Jolliffe's immensely strong government would be made up of individualists over whom there would be little control; immense power would be concentrated in their hands. We feel strongly that the more power is spread about, the less dangerous it is likely to be; privately controlled industry can be regulated for the public good, if need be, but government-owned industry is practically uncontrollable. Mr. Jolliffe doubtless thinks that he and his colleagues could control government industry in such a way that Canada would never know want again, but we have our doubts and, as an individualist interested in the history of popular movements, we express them.

But we stray from our point, which is this: committees and co-operatives and gangs of all kinds work well enough in producing mediocrity and carrying out settled policies; but big ideas—the ideas which develop a country—come from exceptional individuals. In Canada we all want a chance to develop such individuality as we have, and we will not allow it to be stamped out by people who think that government leaders alone should have distinguishable characteristics, and that everyone else should belong to a coagulated and adhesive mass. Next time Mr. Jolliffe feels a paronomasia coming on, he would do well to examine it carefully before he fires it off.

A Black Othello

Slowly but surely the prejudice which exists against negroes in the U.S. is dissolving. Since the emancipation of the slaves negroes have been accepted as workers in humble positions, and they have built up a few educational and business institutions of their own in which they have complete control. But attempts on the part of talented negroes to invade the realms of art have not always been warmly received. That is why it is interesting to read that Paul Robeson is now playing the leading role in a production of Shakespeare's Othello in New York.

About ten years ago Robeson played Othello in London, with a distinguished English cast, Peggy Ashcroft being his Desdemona, Dame Sybil Thorndike his Emilia, and Martin Browne his Iago; his performance was praised for its fire and sincerity. At that time an attempt was made to arrange a presentation of the play for him in New York, but the story went that an American audience would not tolerate the spectacle of a negro playing the part of the lover of a white woman, particularly in a play which ends with a murder. Just why, in the circumstances, a man with a real black skin should be more horrifying than a man with a painted black skin was never made clear.

Now, apparently, the Theatre Guild has decided to brave popular prejudice, and the critics' comments on the play have been satisfactory. A negro artist of world renown has played a great role in the artistic capital of his native land.

Prejudice against negro actors appears to centre around Othello. In the recent play Native Son a negro was shown murdering a white woman, and no special objection was raised. Plays, particularly musical comedies with casts of negroes, have been very popular. But in most of these the negro is a hunted wretch, or a comic figure kept well in the lower levels of society. In Othello the hero is a great military leader and servant of the state, and a man to whom a nobleman gives his daughter without a sense of indignity. It may be worth mentioning that several negro actors have played Othello in England, and one, Ira Aldridge, founded a considerable reputation on his excellence in that part. And it is amusing to recall that when the great American tragedian Edwin Booth, played Othello with an otherwise black cast in Bermuda, he left his face white to distinguish him from the other actors!

If Robeson's Othello is a success, he will have done much to benefit artists among his people.

Balanced Education — What Hope ?

By EILEEN M'GONIGLE, M.A.
Humberside Collegiate, Toronto

FOR secondary schools, what are the essential aims of education? Recently over CBC, Professor Laycock of the University of Saskatchewan insisted that a balanced education for youth ranks next to our national existence as the most urgent of our problems.

Just what is this "job" of providing a balanced education? Certainly the health of body is part of our concern in developing responsible members of our democratic society. In Ontario what do our secondary schools do for health? We have classes in health education, physical training and sports. But are the results such that visitors in Ontario, like those in pre-war Denmark, will say that our youth "are perfect specimens of physical manhood and womanhood"? Rejections on medical grounds of many recruits to the services show how signally we have failed. How then have other nations built up their national health even through years of depression?

A NECESSARY part of physical well-being is the ability to earn a living. In Ontario today, as everywhere in North America, increasing stress is being placed on vocational training. There should be no rivalry between academic and vocational subjects which are allies, not enemies. The problem is whether specific skills needed in definite occupations should be an aim of secondary schools. According to Dr. Walter Kotschnig in a recent book, "Slaves Need No Leaders," some eighty per cent of the people working in the United States can learn the particular techniques of their occupations in less than three months. Recent experiences in teaching trades to enlisted men and war-workers indicate that in Canada too, particular technique can be learned better when teaching is concentrated and time is condensed. The fact that the student has a definite job awaiting him may have some bearing on the speed of assimilation—a point to be kept in mind in post-war reconstruction.

Our too-vivid experiences of the depression surely show that adaptability, as the British believe, is a more important educational objective than a knowledge of highly complicated and specialized skills. Would not a knowledge of the general principles of production and some practical training in the use of simple tools also be desirable for all students? With such fundamental knowledge and with greater adaptability, our young people could face more readily the problem of earning a living and quickly master the specific skill they find they require for their chosen vocation. Before we spend further large sums of money on vocational equipment in secondary schools, should not these aspects of the question be taken into account?

A REAL danger is that of favouring vocational subjects to the exclusion of the general education needed to make possible the fullest development of the individual. The need for a broad general education is increasingly important, for it is generally believed that in the post-war world the individual will have longer hours of leisure and less income to spend on entertainment and amusements. The result will be profound dissatisfaction unless he learns to draw on his own inner resources.

This brings us to the more complicated question of how best to develop those inner resources. In addition to the knowledge and specialized skills required for health and vocation, the individual must have such general education as will make him not only happy in his leisure hours but also intelligently effective as a responsible member of a democratic state. The schools then must provide training in Christian ethics; they must teach the use of our language and appreciation of our literature and culture; they must introduce the student to world history and show him the significance of the history of Britain with its political and social development; they must deal with the New World and its applications of democratic government; Canada's growth and her particular problems must be of vital concern.

In addition, real training in reasoning is an essential part of the work of the schools. The students must become capable of seeing the connection between cause and effect. With the knowledge they have acquired of political terms, of basic economic facts, of forms of human behaviour, they must learn with detachment to examine for their truth arguments presented to them and to be alert for fallacious reasoning. And finally, the deliberate development in the student of a sense of political and social responsibility is one of the most important services which society has a right to demand of our schools.

QUITE properly we desire the best possible education for all our young people. However, equality of opportunity is not identity of opportunity. If the latter is our aim, able students will inevitably be held back by those of lower ability. Often "easier" or "more useful" subjects are introduced into the curriculum with a consequent lowering of standard and accomplishment. How often today does this very tendency show itself in fulsome praise for aimless efforts, in credit for work only partially correct, in protecting our pupils from facing searching examinations, and in failing to let them learn the real joy in the accomplishment of a stern and difficult task.

If the schools make a balanced education available, they are providing our youth of varying and diversified abilities with a sound basis on which they may build a satisfying and useful life. If we fail to do this, should we not ask ourselves, in the words of the Corporation of Yale University: "Of what worth is freedom from want if our minds be on a lower intellectual level; or freedom from fear if we have a less cultured life to defend; or freedom of speech if we have poorer thoughts to express; or freedom of religion if we bring a less enlightened faith to the worship of God?"

Visit to a Coal Mine

A party of more than 20 Canadian Servicemen, representing the three Services, who are on a leave-course at Leeds University, visited Markham Main Colliery, Armthorpe, on the invitation of the Doncaster Amalgamated Collieries. For many of them it was their first experience of work underground.

After a short inspection of surface buildings, they descended 730 yards to the pit bottom and walked more than 1,000 yards before they came to the coal face. They saw miners working the coal and questioned them on the haulage system. —Leeds Yorkshire Post.

SHADRACH, MESACH AND ABEDNEGO?

Back to "Merrie England"

EMERSON, who visited it almost exactly a century ago, said of England that it had "a soil you could eat," and that there was scarcely a day in the year when you could not work out of doors. These two somewhat hyperbolic declarations were recalled by the latest copy to reach of London Calling, the overseas journal of the British Broadcasting Corporation. It contains an article on "Britain's Happy Harvest" in which it is stated that "taking Britain broadly, such conditions for harvesting have not been known for many years. Not a day was lost in many areas, and so most of the 'greatest ever' harvest has been lifted in almost record time."

The writer continues:

"The farmers are not patting themselves on the back for this. The thought of what might have been, if bad weather had laid that huge area of crops and left the volunteer harvesters kicking their heels in idleness in their camps, with cut corn sprouting in the stocks, and probably a big acreage that would never have been lifted at all—the thought of that has made them, at any rate, realize how much we owe to Providence for such a wonderful season in this of all years.

"It has been a very happy harvest. Good weather and good war news have greatly helped in this. But there has also been something more to account for it. There has been a great spirit of good fellowship abroad in the harvest fields, with so many working together for a common, clearly defined objective that was greater than any purely personal end.

"After years of dealing with the artificialities of a top-heavy civilization and each man for himself, they have found to their surprise that, by working together to do an essential job, the Merrie England we have all read about may not have been just a fable of the history books. In the difficult years of peace that are now drawing near to us, we shall do well to remember the Great Harvest of 1943. For not only can its lessons give reality from it that happiness is to be found in strange places where there is ground for the spirit of service to take root. Democracy rests upon diversity. But democracy only puts forth its true strength when that diversity functions in unity, and each in his own way works for a common end."

Perhaps, too, a new signficance has been given to the ancient prayer: "Give us this day our daily bread."

On the front page of London Calling is a picture of a West Sussex farmer, just married, driving away from a typical country church with his bride, one of his land girls who had been working on his farm since the beginning of the war. The happy couple and the wedding party were in a farm wagon drawn by two farm horses gaily decorated and driving tandem, with a wedding attendant, attired in a white smock and a silk topper, leading one of the horses. Instead of the usual flowers the bride carried a bouquet of wheat.

Whitehall Notebook

(By DOUG HOW, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP)—The Azores pact with Portugal brought the public eye to bear on the professional diplomat who put it across, a man of 36 who rides to the foreign office on a bicycle and gets home so late that the maid quit and left his Egyptian wife to do the house work.

It brought Frank K. Roberts out of obscurity and put him and his bicycle on London's front pages as the head of the foreign office central department who toiled eight weeks in Lisbon to obtain for the Allies a strategic Atlantic outpost to fight the U-boat.

His wife, daughter of Sir Said Shoucir Pasha, former financial adviser to the Sudan Government, describes their life since their marriage in 1937 as "a continual series of diplomatic crises."

Roberts works from 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., brings home his papers and works long into the night. He gets one Sunday off a month. They have had two holidays in six years, seldom attended the theatre or cinema.

The government has wrecked speculators' hopes of making millions of pounds in the sale of bombed cities. Its findings on committee proposals are nearly ready for presentation and will accept the principles of public acquisition of all land in reconstruction areas and compensation to landowners at the values of March, 1939. Land "sharks" have been reported busy throughout the country, buying up prospective building sites in the hope of selling them at inflated prices.

What they are saying:

Lord Bennett: "My confidence in Nazis, Germans of any kind, refugee or otherwise, is not very great. We should beware of so-called good people who suddenly see the light."

Prime Minister Churchill, getting involved in figures during the coal debate: "Neither I nor my father was ever any good at decimals." That recalled Lord Randolph Churchill's famous query as an intricate budget was explained to him: "What is the meaning of those damned dots?"

People:

Lord Beaverbrook was reminded by his dissatisfaction with an obituary that he had never seen his own. "We," explained a Daily Express editor, "have never even considered your death as an eventuality." That so pleased "The Beaver" that his remarks about the paper next day were the most flattering in weeks.

London was pleased with Australia's reappointment for a year of Stanley Bruce as her High Commissioner. There had been speculation that the Labor Prime Minister, John Curtin, would recall a man of opposing political faith. A former prime minister, Bruce has been here 10 years. He acts as Australian representative in the war cabinet.

Sensational Solution

A study of the situation convinces one that the Indian leaders regret their rejection of the Cripps proposals and are ready to compromise. However, we understand from important quarters that there is one thing which would work. It's sensational but probably practical, and it involves the king-emperor.

If His Majesty, acting on the advice of his prime minister, should call upon his people, both Indians and Britons, to bury the hatchet and form a coalition government in New Delhi for the purpose of the war effort, it's probable that all hands would turn to with a will. Such a government could be without prejudice to discussion of Indian claims after the war. It would in effect be a provisional government out of which the dominion status likely would grow. This plan naturally would involve the release of Gandhi and other leaders from prison.

The point is that most Indians regard the king-emperor as outside politics, and he means more to the average subject than the government itself.—Sudbury Star.

Mr. King's Dilemma

It is fair to say that one of the chief sources of dissatisfaction with Mr. King today on the part of English-speaking Canadians is that he has seemed to them to keep a too-lenient eye upon the whims of Quebec and ignored the wishes of the majority. His policy, in other words, they say, has been dictated by a reluctance to offend French Canada.

One might imagine under these circumstances that Mr. King must be in high favour in Quebec. But this is not true. There are many powerful voices in Quebec which say that he has truckled to English-speaking Canada and ignored Quebec. An editorial in Le Devoir uses such language as: "For two years his policy has consisted of mocking and deceiving our province." "Numberless are the measures he has presented in a false light to fool our population." "Our province no longer endorses his policy."

Thus Mr. King's task becomes even harder; his dilemma more pronounced. He has striven honestly to follow a course for Canada that would more closely hold together the two national elements. He may have succeeded merely in losing the confidence of both.

"Hey," interrupted a guest, "Dr. Smith isn't physician—he's a professor of economics!"

"Is that so?" exclaimed Gordon, complete unperturbed. "Well, then, tell me, Doc, do y think American Car & Foundry is a good buy?

The Goldfish

One service oaganization which has been le publicized than many others is the Goldfish Cl of the Royal Air Force. The entrance requi ments are arduous, as the club is composed airmen who have successfully completed an i voluntary "ditching drill" and have been fish from the great waters by the gallant boats of t British Air-Sea Rescue Service. It was recent reported that more than 100 American airm including the complete crews of several Fo tresses, are now qualified for membership....

Their organization has one particularly enga ing characteristic. Members are entitled to elaborately engraved certificate and a bad consisting of an embroidered goldfish. The la ter, however, must be worn underneath the la of the coat, in order "to give the goldfish, f the first time in his life, some privacy."

There is modesty in this logic; and it's unde standable that men who have ranged the pi less skies in their plexiglass cabins, exposed every enemy that flies, or drifted in the equa pitiless ocean, helpless against every animos of the enemy or of nature, could do with a lit privacy. Raybestos Employees Receive "V" Award Flag

Canadian Raybestos employees were asked to subscribe $16,000 in the Fifth Victory Loan campaign but ran their record up to $20,700, of 130 per cent. of their objective with 97 per cent. of the staff subscribing. Robert Abbott, general manager of the company, accepted the flag, and the band of the R.C.A.M.C. from Camp Borden provided a musical background.

Japs Bombed From China Bases

CHUNGKING, Oct. 28 (AP). — American bombers based in China have struck heavy blows at Japanese in Burma and Indo-China to support Chinese ground troops, a communique announced yesterday.

The China-based bombers dropped many bombs on Htawgaw, 75 miles northeast of the Japanese base at Mytikyina in southern Burma, to help the Chinese hold their front along the Salween River.

The Japanese are trying to push the Chinese across the river to minimize danger of an Allied counter-attack on Myitkyina, possession of which is considered essential for opening a land supply route ot China.

Other bombers with a fighter escort dropped 25 tons of bombs on Japanese installations and barracks at Cobi in Indo-China with successful results and all American aircraft returned safely.

At New Delhi a British communique said that R.A.F. bombers and fighters were busy over Burma Monday and that the Japanese had bombed the Cox's Bazar area north of Akyab causing casualties to a few civilians but no military damage.

R.A.F. Liberators bombed the Rangoon central station and Akyab, a principal port on the Bay of Bengal, and fires were started in the target areas at both places.

Americans Lose 14th Submarine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(AP)—The submarine Runner has been lost, the Navy announced today.

The submarine presumably was operating in the Pacific area where submersibles have been taking a heavy toll of Japanese shipping and cutting into enemy supply lines to their scattered bases.

Next of kin of all personnel on the Runner, listed officially as "overdue and presumed to be lost" have been notified, the Navy said.

Loss of the runner, a 1,525-ton ship, brought to 14 the number of American submarines lost since the United States entered the war.

Jap Subs Sunk In Kiska Raid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of the Aleutians area, disclosed today "quite a few" Japanese submarines were sunk by the United States destroyers while the enemy evacuated its garrison on Kiska Island.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox explained Kinkaid is in Washington prior to taking over new duties as comander of naval forces in the southwest Pacific.

Kinkaid described at a press conference how a destroyed force shut off Kiska and said, "we had some success in getting Japanese submarines. We hope some of them were full of evacuees, but we dno't know."

Admiral Kinkaid said he believed evacuation of the Japanese garrison on Kiska, previously estimated at some 10,000 troops, was carried out by submarines and that if the Japanese had not given up the island "heavy casualties" might have resulted when American and Canadian troops landed in August.

COBOURG

Rotarians Have Opportunity To Help In Peace

COBOURG, Oct. 28 (ENS)—"The mass attitude of a people unready and unconcerned with the making of the new and better world which they so much desire, is the greatest menace facing us at this, the crossroads of our future destiny," declared Rev. Bert Howard, president of Albert College, Belleville at the session yesterday afternoon of the inter-city Rotary forum. Delegates were present from the Rotary clubs of Picton, Belleville, Campbellford, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby, Peterborough and Lindsay. Harman Rice of Huntsville, District Governor, was the chairman. The sessions opened in the afternoon and concluded last night.

District Governor Rice gave a summary of Rotary membership in the local district at the outset of the meeting. Since July, the membership had increased from 1,595 to a total of 1,612 in September, comprising 33 clubs with an average membership of 49.27 and average attendance of 76.3. Throughout the world there were 5,208 clubs of which 214 were dormant in Germany, Italy and occupied countries, or in other words an active membership of 4,994 clubs or membership of [illegible] Rotarians. In North Africa [illegible] of the Rotary Clubs there had been re-established, he said.

Rev. J. L. Robinson of Trenton gave a talk on club service. Paraphrased from the Scriptures, club service was the "due act of each part [illegible] the body to grow and [illegible] up." Rotary was a whole thing, with every part working for unity, he said. Club service could be likened to the internal economy of Rotary and was made up of program, attendance, membership and publicity. The program should not be restricted to something interesting for the members but should also shed some definite influence in furthering the objectives of Rotary, Mr. Robinson declared.

Sacrifice Needed

A club could not function without members, Rev. Robinson said, and the members should be men prepared to sacrifice something for the general good of the club. Classification was importance but a club could make a fetish of it and he felt that it should bend a little when it was found desirable to include valuable men, who might otherwise be excluded. Publicity, he declared, should be less for outside consumption and more for the purpose of letting the members know what their clubs were doing, thus providing a source of information.

George Hart of Oshawa spoke on Vocational Service. It was the skeleton in the cupboard in more than one club and like a skeleton it was dead, he declared. Rotary taught its members to develop high ethical standards in business. In the past 50 years there had been an improvement in the standards of business but there was still plenty of scope in which to better business ethics. Competition was not wrong but there was some wrong in competition. Right now business was in the spot light and if business could not run a community successfully then the community would try to run itself, and the cost would be great. The speaker deplored the apparent lack of confidence between employer and labour.

Much food for thought was given in the address of Rev. Bert Howard of Belleville on "International Service."

He told his listeners that an ideal world would not be the outcome of the efforts of a small group meeting in Moscow, Washington, London, Ottawa or some other centre. Only when the people as a whole concerned themselves with the ideals which they so much desire to see throughout the world, would they see that state of condition come to pass. There was no question now of winning the war but the question was whether the Allies would win the peace.

Peace Great Effort

"We took an awful beating in the last peace and we may take another beating in this one. The peace must not be the battle ground for the big interests, economical or political. They are at work right now. But the greatest menace to a proper peace is the mass attitude of a people unready and unconcerned with the making of the new and better world which they so much desire. They must not sit back and expect in some mysterious and undefined way, the sorting out of our problems and the righting of the world.

In the last peace, we are told that France wanted a maximum of leisure and pleasure with a minimum of hard work and risk. It nearly destroyed the soul of France and the soul of Britain. In Britain they rose and met the danger before it could destroy them. This is a people's world which must be built by the people for the people. Racial hatred must not rear its head again. Rotary can set an example by showing its tolerance of all races. The day of crisis is upon us. We are at the cross-roads of our future destiny and in the shadows is not far distant the day of judgment. I know of no group facing a greater opportunity to meet this crisis and this challenge of race prejudice, than Rotary. Rotary should raise its voice, in a great chorus that will make itself heard. If we must pay for the tragedy that has happened in the past then we have a right to raise it to avoid its repetition," he declared.

Assessments Are Reduced In 25 Cases

Of the 37 appeals against assessments for 1944, the Court of Revision on Tuesday night confirmed twelve in the valuations determined by the assessment department.

Fourteen applications involved only changes in tenants of properties, the listing of new names of occupants, with some changes in designated school support.

Appeals granted by the Board, composed of T. C. Ephgrave, Fred Morrow and Fred Finnie, amounted a total reduction of $4,300 in assessed values. The largest amendment was $3,000 decrease in the assessment of the house at 300 London Street owned by George A. Macdonald of Chicago, from $13,000 to $10,000.

The Board deducted from the assessed value of the house owned by Hubert S. Sills, 542 Gilmour Street. House and land are now combined at $5,500.

A reduction of $200 was granted in the assessment of the house at 572 Weller Street owned by Senator Rupert Davies. Another $200 was taken off the assessed value of the house owned by Mrs. J. A. Gibbs at 19 Charles Street.

Mrs. Josephine Hiland, of 557 Homewood Avenue, was allowed a reduction of $100; and Howard W. Outram, 560 Chamberlain Street, $200; M. J. O'Brien, 360 Downie Street, $100.

The appeal of Walter Windsor, 477 Wellington Street, in Wartime Housing's community at Jackson Park, presented a somewhat humorous aspect. Prior to 1938, Mr. Windsor bought 1 1-5 acres on the north side of Parkhill Road, as he planned a home for himself with some elbow room property for the embellishment of his property. Then, along came Wartime Housing, acquired the land all around him, and even expropriated a slice of Mr. Windsor's acreage. The whole prospect of his place was vastly changed almost overnight, and as W. J. Arthur Fair said on behalf of Mr. Windsor, "If you go up there now, I doubt whether you could tell the front door from the back."

Wartime Housing has ringed the Windsor house round about, and he says he is doubtful about finishing it, although he is occupying it.

A. E. Thompson, realty agent, deepened the tinge of doubt with the opinion that perhaps nobody would buy the house now from Mr. Windsor.

The Board decided to go up and look at the property to help them in their decision.

Laycock Takes Over Commandos

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP).—Twenty-nine days after he returned from the Salerno beaches clad in perhaps the oddest uniform ever worn by a British officer, dashing young Maj.-Gen. Robert (Lucky) Laycock took over Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's desk as chief of Britain's Commandos.

When he came out of Salerno after 11 days of hard fighting, Gen. Laycock wore a German artillery major's grey field coat, an Italian soldier's shirt and American military trousers. The ensemble was topped off by his own green Commando beret. He literally had fought his way out of the uniform in which he landed and was wearing "the only clothes I could find."

As a Commando leader he helped cover the evacuation of Crete, fighting his way through a strong German force in a borrowed tank, was in the vanguard in the Sicily landing and led a special force ashore at Salerno, where, as he said, it was "touch and go" until the Anglo-American forces fought their way inland from the beaches.

It was Laycock, too, who led the Commando raid on Rommel's Libyan headquarters in 1941, seeking to capture the man who then was known as the "desert fox." And perhaps the oddest quirk of that whole daring exploit was that it cost him around $2,000.

After the raid he moved across the desert behind the German lines for 41 days and during the long absence was officially listed as "missing in action."

Following the usual practice, he was reduced to the pre-war rank of major and his pay cut. It took him weeks to untangle the situation and get his wartime pay and rank restored after he finally reached the British lines.

Military Band Balks Ordered To Resign

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (CP).—Members of the band of the 7th Toronto Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery (Reserve) were ordered last night at regimental parade to turn in their uniforms and instruments because of their refusal to play at a farewell dinner to Maj.-Gen. C. F. Constantine, D.S.O., on his retirement as officer commanding Military District No. 2 (Toronto).

The members of the band belong to the Toronto Musical Protective Association (A.F.L.) and the dispute was in connection with union regulations about playing for such functions at less than union rates.

The bandmaster, Lt. J. D. Wilson, refused comment except to say that the matter had been placed in the hands of Defence Minister Ralston.

PETERBORO HOCKEY CLUB POSTPONES DECISION ON YEAR'S PLANS

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(AP)—Stirring the embers in baseball's hot stove, Danny Litwhiler, who hasn't buried his memories of the world series in his winter job as teacher of general science, physical education and health and basketball coach at Rington, Pa., high school writes: "You must admit we can play better ball. Put us in the same league as the Yanks and they could never catch us."... That might be true, but it also might be that the Yanks wouldn't catch 'em because they'd be going in a different direction... Jimmy Johnston, who seldom has a good word for boxing commissioners, takes time out to regret the resignation of Tris Speaker as chairman of the Cleveland Commission. ..."He was one of the few commissioners who ever applied the rules with common sense," says J. J. J., "he knew his job was to regulate boxing and that's all he tried to do."

You Can Beat 'Em

Couple of high school gird feats that will be hard to beat: Mike (Tiny Tim) Roussos, New Castle, Pa., tackle, kicked a 35-yard point-after-touchdown on a muddy field during a recent game. His team drew a 15-yard penalty on the first attempt and that's how far the ball actually travelled ..In Richmond, Va., 15-year-old Osborne (Sonny) Ashworth of St. Chistopher's high, threw just three passes against Benedictine and all three clicked for touchdowns.

Tony Bukovich, a Pinesdale, Mich., boy who apparently has earned a regular job with Detroit's hockey Red Wings, was voted the most valubale player in the Detroit Amateur Baseball Federation last summer. He's a pitcher.

Canadiens Lace Cornwall Fliers

CORNWALL, Oct. 28 (CP). — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League had little trouble piling up a 7-3 victory over Cornwall Fliers of the Quebec Senior Hockey League in a hard-hitting exhibition game here last night. The Habitants were sizzling as they knocked off the highly rated Cornwall service club.

Maurice Richard, apparently headed for a good year in the big time, paced Dick Irvin's team with three goals in a sparkling effort. Jerry Heffernan got a pair, and the others went to Mike McMahon and Ray Getliffe. Jimmy Conacher, Johnny Dennison and Bud Poile got the Cornwall markers.

It was a rough battle and an expensive one for Cornwall. They started the game minus Jack Church, out with injuries, and lost Jack Riley and Jake Shewchuk during the struggle. Lack of manpower had a lot to do with Cornwall's late collapse.

Canadiens started off in impressive style when they scored three times in the opening frame. Cornwall came back to life in the second, and by the halfway mark had the three goals back and the score tied. A late goal by Heffernan gave Canadiens a lead they never lost.

Two easy tallies early in the third made the Canuck victory secure, and they picked up another to make the final tally 7-3. Cornwall played well in the final frame but spectacular netminding by Bill Durnan held them off.

Canadiens: Goal, Durnan; defence, McMahon, Harmon; centre, O'Connor; wings, Heffernan and Majeau; subs, Bouchard, Lamoureux, Lach, Blake, Richard, Chamberlain, Getliffe, Reardon, Perron, Lauzon, Campeau.

Cornwall: Goal, Bastien; defence, Knott, Shewchuk; centre, Imlach; wings, Riley and Brown; subs, Laurent, Mario, O'Flaherty, Conacher, Poile, Woodward, Fasano, Dennison.

Referee: Pit Lepine. Linesmen, Contant and Ivan.

Alsab To Run

BALTIMORE—(AP)—Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab is expected to make his third appearance of the year at Pimlico on Nov. 13 in the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial Handicap. In his two starts in 1943 he was barely able to finish third, although last year he was runner-up to Shut Out among the three-year-olds and scored two wins over Whirlaway.

Here is the youngster, Don Sutherland, who gave Benny Grant a run for the job of Toronto Maple Leafs' goalkeeper. Don is said to be signed up with the team, although Grant has been named official goalie.

Trinity Squad Defeated 25-1 By Grove Firsts

LAKKEFIELD, Oct. 28. — The Grove First team outplayed a Trinity College School middleside football team to wind up on the long end of a 25-1 score in an exhibition game played at Lakefield today. Despite a fine rain, the play was wide-open, and many passes were completed by both sides.

The Port Hope boys scored their only point early in the first quarter on a rouge, catching Lakefield behind their line. Soon after, Giroux of Lakefield snatched a thirty yard pass from Hyde and raced over the line for a touchdown. Harris place-kicked a convert. Again in this first quarter, Lakefield came close to a major score, but could not carry it over.

The second quarter was featured by Hyde's passing. Heavy tackling by the Grove team stopped T.C.S from making any substantial gains The Lakefield boys forced their opponents back to their own one yard line, blocked a Port Hope kick and Patton fell on the ball behind the line to count Lakefield's second touch. The convert was not good. Hyde then kicked a single for Lakefield, making the score at half-time 12-1 for the Grove team.

The Port Hope boys plunged for two first-downs at the opening of the third quarter. Then an attempted end run lateral was intercepted by Harris of Lakefield who dashed ten yards over the line to count another 5 points; he converted his own touchdown. The score at three-quarter time was Lakefield 18, T.C.S. 1.

The final quarter under way, Harris of Lakefield attempted a placement from a seemingly impossible angle—the kick was good, and the field goal added another three points . Port Hope opened up with a passing attack but it came too late. After completing two in a row, the third was intercepted by Hyde who raced fifty yards, but was finally dragged down on the ten. Hyde then kicked a single. The Trinity boys again threw passes, only to have one intercepted on their forty yard line, and run up to the thirty. Patton drop-kicked a field goal successfully for the final score. At the end of the game the score stood at 25-1 in favor of the Grove.

This was the best game played by Lakefield to date. All the boys on the team looked good, but the following were outstanding: Hyde, Giroux and Harris in the backfield played brilliant football. On the line, Shanley, Smart, Patton and Nanton looked the best.

The outstanding players for T.C.S. were Roenish, Hungerford, Richardson and French.

Lakefield play their next game against Upper Canada College this Saturday.

Lineups:

Lakefield—Snap, Smart; insides, Shanley, Clare; middles, Nanton, Gibaut; wings, Patton, Strathy; flying wing, Roy; halves, Giroux, Mackenzie, Hyde; quarter, Harris; subs, Campbell, Gorden, Lyman, Crang, Addyman, Langmuir, Freethy.

T.C.S. — Snap, Wade; insides, Stokes, Toole; middles, Ingham, Allen; wings, French, Howard; flying wing, Wilson; halves, Hungerford, Richardson, MacMurrec; quarter, Roenish; subs, Vernon, Lambert, Gray, Decker, Phippar, Fisher, Stratford, Cawley, Hope II, Bannister II, Smythe.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Whether Peterborough will have O.H.A. hockey this season is still on the knees of the gods. At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club last night a full slate of officers was elected, delegates named to the O.H.A. annual meeting and final decision as to operating a team in the O.H.A. this season was deferred until after the convention of the Ontario body. The session which was attended by a good representation of the players and officers was featured by an address from Joe King of Toronto, who became a warm supporter of Peterborough hockey last season. The program promoter strongly urged the operation of a team in Peterbrough this coming winter to keep the game alive here and as a morale builder. Even if it meant considerable personal sacrifice on the part of the players he argued that the sacrifice would be well worth while. He declared that this community would be much more likely to put over the new arena proposition if the hockey team continued to function than if the game were allowed to die out until after the war. On that account and for the sake of the youngsters who would be the players of the future he pleaded with the players to carry on at all costs.

* * * * *

The... much of course in what Mr. King said. To have Peterborough drop out of the picture altogether this season would be a demoralizing development. If there is any way possible to keep the game going, this column would like to see the club operate. On the other hand the obstacles in the way are great and if the final decision of the players is that they do not feel like facing another campaign like last season, no one can blame them. As Johnnie Godfrey remarked last night they had voted at the beginning of last season to operate in spite of the difficulties that had been outlined to them at that time. "Now we know exactly what we are up against because we have been through it," the Petes defence star said. While it might be possible to arrange for the transportation of players to Lindsay for games, it was realized that with the smaller gas rations it would be difficult for many of the faithful Peterborough fans who supported the Petes loyally last winter to make the trips this season. However the picture may change after the annual O.H.A. meeting. At all events the final word will not be said until then.

To Help The Youngsters

The feeling of last night's meeting was that everything possible should be done to help Herb Payne and other friends of minor league hockey to carry on this winter in open air rinks and the hope was expressed that the converting of the lacrosse bowl into a hockey cushion would be carried out. The Peterborough Hockey Club, too, is naturally keenly interested in the new arena campaign and and players and officers plan to attend the public meeting that is being called by the Chamber of Commerce to launch plans for the drive. Any co-operation that the hockey club can give will be gladly offered to help along the effort that is to be the first step toward providing Peterborough with adequate hockey facilities. Last night's meeting elected a strong slate of officers, headed once more by Ald. R. M. Glover who was returned as president of the organization. Fred Scates and Jim Ellis will represent the club at the annual O.H.A. convention and after the groupings have been announced and the situation has been clarified to that extent then the players will get together and decide whether or not they want to play this winter.

* * * * * *

For a number of years Dave Leether has attended the annual meetings of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association at his own expense in order to keep Peterborough linked up with this flourishing organization that has been accomplishing so much for young hockey players throughout the province. The Peterborough enthusiast has made it a point to sit in at the annual meetings and to take a close interest in the proceedings and he plans to make his usual trip this year to the convention so long as there is an assurance from Peterborough that minor league hockey will be encouraged here this winter and that the proposed conversion of the lacrosse bowl into a municipal hockey cushion will be carried out. Dave intends to seek the approval of the Ontario body for minor hockey on open air rinks here this winter. The regulations call for O.M.H.A. games to be played on covered cushions but it is hoped that in view of the local situation the embargo on open air rinks can be lifted as an emergency war time concession. It would be a boon for hockey in this community, if the Ontario body would co-operate along the lines suggested.

This Year's Generals

Says George Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette: "Coach Charlie Conacher had his 1943-44 edition of the Oshawa Generals—well, the new edition plus a lot of extra paragraphs—all on hand last night at Oshawa Arena when the first practice workout was held. There was a good crowd of rail-birds on hand, too, and of course most of the club officers were on the side-lines watching the boys go through their paces. There were 23 lads in uniform last night and almost 23 different kinds of uniform too, we might add. There was everything from a Boston Bruin sweater or replica at least, right down to the familiar sweat-shirt, including a Marlboro sweater and a few others equally well-known. It was just scrimmage practice last night, with no semblance of lines or system, just an old-fashioned shinny game that ranged from end-to-end with everybody trying for the puck. "Red" Tilson was on hand and after a few tries for the puck, he skated over to the bench and laughingly asked Coach Conacher for a separate puck with which to play. "Chuck" told "Red" he should know better than to try and keep up with the youngsters. Pte. Billy Taylor, another Oshawa Generals graduate now wearing khaki, was also on hand. The locals were accusing Billy of coming down to "scout" the Generals. The former Maple Leaf star is slated to coach Marlboro Juniors this year. "Well, anyway," remarked Taylor, "I've got a goalie you could use." He was referring to Sutherland, the Owen Sound lad who tried out with the Leafs and is now headed for the Jr. Marlies."

The Bam Bam Bammies roared back into the O.R.F.U. race last night when they handed the Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes their first defeat of the season. There was no fluke about the thing either. Balmy Beach simply smothered the Fliers 21 to 0 and outplayed them in every department of the game to pull one of the biggest surprises of the season. They had the edge up along the front and in the back field while Frank Stukus, least-publicized of the three Stukes, was the best performer on either outfit. The winners showed plenty of speed and precision in their running plays and made Bill Jackson's squad look decidedly ordinary. Now the protest entered by the Balmies against Hamilton looms up as decidedly important. It will be decided tonight and a lot hinges on the result.

Alderman Glover Re-elected To Head Club

Ald. R. M. Glover was re-elected president of the Peterborough Hockey Club at the annual meeting of the organization held in the Duffus Board Room last night.

Although the final decision as to whether the club would operate a team in the O.H.A. this season was deferred until after the annual meeting of the O.H.A. a full slate of officers was chosen and even if there should not be any O.H.A. hockey the organization will help promote the game among the youngsters.

R. M. Glover was in the chair and among those present were Jim Ellis, Bun Kingdon, Ned Vitarelli, Johnny Godfrey, "Honey" Tompkins, Jack Jopling, Eddie Starr, Fred C. Scates Ed. Riley, Spiros Zakos, Frank Buckland W. Johnston, Lorne Emerson, Herb. Payne and Joe King.

The following officers were elected:—Hon. presidents, Mayor James Hamilton, Jack Stuart, Ian F. McRae, Hugh Campbell; president, R. M. Glover; 1st vice-president, Ed. Riley; 2nd vice-president, Lorne Emerson; secretary-treasurer, Fred C. Scates; executive committee: L. Mitchell, Frank Buckland, Spiros Zakos, Ed. Starr, Herb. Payne, Jim Ellis and C. E. Cummer; manager, Eddie Starr; coach, Jim Ellis.

Fred Scates and Jim Ellis were named as delegates to represent the club at the annual meeting of the O.H.A.

It was decided that as many of the players and officers as possible will attend the meeting to be called by the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the campaign to give Peterborough an artificial ice arena. The meeting also resolved to give every possible assistance to the promotion of hockey among the youngsters this winter.

On the main point as to whether to operate this season, there was considerable discussion but it was decided to leave the final answer until after the O.H.A. conclave by which time the grouping arrangements and other matters will have been settled.

Joe King, program promoter, who helped the team out financially last season to a considerable extent and promised even greater support this season, strongly urged that the team go ahead and play even in the face of the obvious difficulties. Mr. King argued that it would be a mistake to drop out now when the question of a new rink was to the fore and he pleaded especially for the youngsters. It was up to the present crop of players to keep the game alive, even if it meant personal sacrifice, Mr. King said.

President Glover and Coach Jim Ellis outlined some of the difficulties, and the players present expressed an unwillingness to go through another season like last winter. Ned Vitarelli however flatly declared himself in favor of hockey.

The players will be called together after the O.H.A. meeting and the question will then be definitely settled.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

The makings of an outstanding heavyweight clash for this season in a battle between Jimmy Bivins and Lee Q. Murray of Connecticut, both strong contenders for the crown now held by Sgt. Joe Louis for the duration, have been squelched by the draft board, the latter having ordered Bivins to remain in essential war work.

The bout was set to take place at Cleveland Nov. 10 under the direction of Promoter Larry Atkins after negotiations lasting a couple of months. Bivins ranks as the best of the heavies now in circulation with a string of 13 victories in as many starts while Murray can boast 14 straight ring decisions. Murray's last appearance was in August when he knocked out Harry Bobo and immediately started after Bivins. They'll now have to wait indefinitely.

Having played lacrosse with Canadian Army in the Quebec Senior Lacrosse League during the past season, Pat Egan, former Western Canada team athlete, is apparently jumping into pro hockey again — this time with Detroit Red Wings, following his military discharge subsequent to the close of the gutted-stick campaign. Egan is expected in Detroit today to talk terms.

Thumbs Up Out

A shake-up in the probable starters for the $25,000 winner-take-all Pimlico special at Baltimore Saturday developed when Maryland Jockey Club received the entry of W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule yesterday, but also saw the withdrawal of Thumbs Up because of an injured leg.

Relief pitcher for the New York Yankees during the past season, Thomas J. Byrne yesterday was sworn in as an ensign in the U.S. Naval Reserve at Raleigh, N.C., and may be out of baseball in 1944.

The Quebec Senior Hockey League schedule was adopted, as originally drafted, at a circuit meeting in Montreal last night and the squawk by Quebec Aces over a reduction o[f] home games from 20 to 15 wer[e] hushed. The loop opens with Quebec playing in Ottawa Nov. 6.

Miss Keeneland and Twiligh[t] Tear, both juvenile fillies from Warren Wright's Calumet farm, finished one-two yesterday in the Selim[a] Stakes at Pimlico, the winner takin[g] down a $20,750 purse. The Calume[t] pair paid $4.40 to win and $4.10 t[o] show on $2.

PRINCE OF WALES BEATS KING GEORGE IN FIRST PLAYOFF BY 3 TO 1

Stock, Custodian Brilliant; Good Teamplay

The inclemency of the weather did not dampen the spirit of sportsmanship on Wednesday afternoon, when King George and Prince of Wales soccer elevens battled in the first of the play-offs for possession of the Alex Kay trophy which is emblematic of the championship. Both teams battled hard with each team enacting the same scoring play in the first two goals scored, opponents scoring against their own team. J. Stock, King George goalie, was brilliant in goal, in fact his saves were miraculous.

First Half

There was no advantage in winning the choice of goals. Right from the kick off, King George penetrated the Prince of Wales area to harass the shaky full backs which terminated in Miller dropping back in time to rob Van Allen in act of shooting. K. Anderson replied with an aggressive campaign that had the Westenders in a quandry. This was evident in the resultant goal that was scored by F. McMullen when J. Miller, King George, rattled a drive up the centre. The full back missed kick then tried to recover the ball but instead scored against his own team.

Same Play Enacted

Midfield play held sway for a while with Prince of Wales endeavoring to get the equalizer. Miller kept punting the ball right into goal where the King George boys battled to hold the score. In his anxiety to clear the ball from the foot of Kimberley, R. Mounce made an attempt to block the drive but was astonished to witness the sphere hit his shoulder to beat his own custodian, thereby enacting the same play in the first goal scored. Exchanges continued even with the half backs intercepting, blocking and setting up combination plays that brought out the sterling qualities of the full backs. Half time, one goal apiece.

Half Time

After a short respite, the boys opened up at a terrific pace that had both goalies on the alert to save their charge. Two flag kicks for King George causing the full backs to check the Van Allen-Anderson movements around goal. From this point, Prince of Wales half back division intercepted dangerous raids in the opening stages by sending the forwards on the attack whenever feasible. Dyer kept swinging the ball from wing to wing thereby opening up the play to give Foster-Kimberley right wing ample time to penetrate the King George defense. They found the going hard because Ferguson and Pollock conceded nothing tangle and after a succession of corner kicks Prince of Wales took the lead when Miller placed a perfect centre into goal in below the cross-bar. J. Stock, King George goalie, jumped up in the air to save the ball but Doug Dyer's head connected first to divert ball into the net. Undaunted the losers replied with an energetic scheme of attack that had the winner's hemmed right into their own territory. They gained two foul kicks that looked dangerous; then two corner kicks in sucession. King George was right up in goal and to their surprise Miller, Westenders, dribbled his way down the field until his forwards were in position. Then slipped the ball to Dyer who passed out to Storey. He connected with a left-foot drive that Stock picked up nicely at the corner of the upright. Then in the next visit he robbed Dyer of a tally when he saved his over-head kick that was slated for under the cross-bar. With five minutes to go, Foster accepted a pass from Kidd while on the run. The full backs tackled hard but as Foster spit the defense and made no mistake with his grounder that Stock missed by inches. Prince of Wales 3, King George 1.

Goal scorers: King George, F. McMullen through his own goal; Prince of Wales; R. Mounce through his own goal, D. Dyer and G. Foster.

King George: J. Stock, goal; P. Ferguson and R. Pollock, full backs; J. Millar, G. Rome and R. Mounce, half backs; B. Wyatt, J. Swanston. K. Anderson, M. Van Allen and A. Payne; subs, B. Carr and J. Blackwood.

Prince of Wales: T. Kay, goal; F. McMullen and D. Burrows, full backs; R. Kidd, R. Miller and N. Cullen, half backs; G. Foster, G. Kimberley, D. Dyer, centre; S. Brown and J. Storey, forwards; subs, R. Storey.

Referee, Stroyan Leith, Sr.; linesmen, A. Riches, King Edward and J. Whitnall, Central.

Angott Retains Title Defeats White

By FRANK FRAWLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28—(AP)—Sammy Angott is still the lightweight champion, and the very last fellow to dispute it today would be Luther (Slugger) White, Baltimore Negro, who got the boxing lesson of his life last night in 15 rounds.

It was one of the most interesting and unusual fights ever held here. As the boys started the fourth round a generator failure plunged the Hollywood baseball park into darkness. It was an hour and seven minutes before electricians repaired the trouble.

The crowd sat good-naturedly through the interim and the boxers retired to their dressing rooms.

Angott was complete master of the situation. He went out in the first round to steal the play from the fast-punching White. He danced away and around the Negro and came back to deliver any number of hard, delayed left and right uppercuts. This tireless smashing had a marked effect on White over a long period of time, and in the 14th and 15th he seemed on the verge of being knocked out.

Angott received a flat guarantee of $15,000 and a chance to face Bob Montgomery, recognized by the New York Athletic Commission as the titleholder. White's share was 60 per cent over the first $25,000. The official attendance was 10,067. The Gross gate was $35,692 and the net gate $32,588.

Angott weighed 134, White 135.

Senior Softball

TORONTO — (CP) — Convener Charlie Lewis of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association reached a satisfactory solution with the Hamilton Majors and Toronto Peoples over the playing of the fourth game of the senior championship series. Hamilton refused to play in Toronto tonight and Lewis ordered the match to be played Saturday afternoon. One more win for Peoples would give them the best-of-five playoffs.

By HYE BOSSIN

Hollywood folk do their share in many an ordinary way also The other day Mrs. Leo Carrillo and her daughter turned up at the Red Cross Blood Bank, each for the ninth time. . . Oscar Wilde's classic, "The Picture of Dorian Gray," will be made into a film soon. . . Clare Booth Luce, congresswoman and author of "The Women" and other plays, will be the subject of a forthcoming film. . . Bob Hope, whose last literary effort was "They Got Me Covered," is writing another about his overseas travels to entertain soldiers. . . When a Hollywood producer was told that Pola Negri, who made her comeback in "Hi Diddle Diddle," was writing an autobiography, he asked: "What's it about?" . . . Some idea of what movies mean to soldiers at the front can be gathered from what happened to the 7th Marine Raiders at Guadalcanal. A film was being shown when the Japs attacked. It was four a.m. before they were repulsed but the boys wouldn't rest until they had seen the rest of the picture!

Films you'll see soon:

"This Is the Army," a magnificent Technicolor production of Irving Berlin's famed stage show for USA army relief. The Canadian army recreation fund benefits from it in Canada. One of the best musicals ever made.

"Lassie Come Home," a Technicolor film of the finest kind of sentimental appeal. This story of a boy and his dog was written by the late Major Eric Knight and features Roddy McDowell and Donald Crisp. A grand picture.

"Best Foot Forward," an extremely lively musical comedy in Technicolor, in which Lucille Ball creates a sensation when, as a fading movie star seeking publicity, she accepts the invitation of a youngster to attend a military school junior prom. With Virginia Weidler.

"Tartu," an English film starring Robert Donat. The story of an English spy working with the Czech Underground, it departs from the formula and becomes a real thriller. Valerie Hobson plays the feminine lead.

"Johnny Come Lately," starring Jim Cagney and Grace George. A heart-warming story of other days in which a gypsying reporter settles down long enough to upset small-town civic corruption.

"The Fallen Sparrow," an espionage story about a veteran of the Spanish war who is in constant danger because of the possession of an important Fascist symbol. John Garfield plays the lead in an impassioned way and Maureen O'Hara provides the surprise ending. Thrilling for the most part.

Theatres are suffering much these days from juvenile vandalism, which has rendered useless much material which can't be replaced just now. Showmen are thinking about starting an international organization of boys' clubs that will keep juvenile energy confined to useful channels.

In the meantime Hollywood has started and stopped production of several films dealing with the problem, Hays' Office taboos being in the way.

The problem is much worse across the line and American showmen are desperate. No real solution of the problem has yet been offered.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 28 — (CP). — The Army's policy statement that participation in sports events will not be allowed to interfere with normal training by individual soldiers lacked teeth—on the surface. An indication it was not altogether innocuous was given, however, by the announcement Regina Army was withdrawing from the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League "due to restrictions imposed by National Defence Headquarters."

Reasons were not given, but it's a good guess that Ottawa refused to transfer sufficient hockey players to Regina to make a team because the players would not be moving to Regina in the course of normal training.

That's tough on Regina; not so tough on some cities where sufficient players already are located. Service hockey is generally approved and there'll be no objection as long as players go about their Army training the same as non-athletic men.

Non-committal though it appears the Army hockey policy may cover such situations as that raised by Fred (Peterborough Examiner) Craig who writes: "It still does not go far enough....It gets nowhere if an athlete has been shoved into the shelter of a staff job where he is immune from training and apparently from overseas drafts as well."

No doubt the Army aims to stop such practices, if they exist. It is probably probing other charges of abuse such as this item culled from the Vancouver Province: "Here is another recent instance the authorities might consider: A hockey player who entered the Army to fight overseas won his commission. He was notified he had been selected for a reinforcement draft going overseas and was given embarkation leave. When he returned from leave he was notified he had been taken off the draft and would stay in Canada. Not until he went to his C.O. and protested vigorously, and announced his resolute determination not to play hockey even if kept in Canada, was he allowed to proceed overseas."

Retain Play-off Chance; Must Win Three

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—(CP).— The Toronto Balmy Beach Football Club to-day prepared for an Ontario Rugby Football Union committee room discussion to-night in Hamilton after scoring a resounding 21-0 victory over Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes on the playing field last night to move within one point of second place in the Union's Senior series standing.

Coach Alex Ponton's club have an impressive performance in handing the Airmen their first defeat of the season in seven starts, taking command of the game in the second quarter and showing increasing power as it progressed.

Beaches now have five wins and two losses—both to the leading Hamilton Wildcats—compared with five wins, a tie and a defeat for Coach Ross Trimble's R.C.A.F. aggregation and can make sure of second place and a play-off spot by winning their three remaining games with Ottawa, Hurricanes and Navy.

Review Protest.

One of the Beach protests at the hands of the Wildcats will be under review at the meeting to-night in Hamilton. The Toronto club protested its 18-17 loss to the Hamilton team last Wednesday night on the grounds that a spectator picked up the ball and ran with it on the last play of the game during which fans were on the field.

Annis Stukus, leading scorer in the Union, topped theBeach pointgetters in the victory over Hurricanes last night with six, all of them coming on his skill at placement kicking. three converts and one field goal.

The touchdowns were scored by Stu Scott, who ran 75 yards through an open field after intercepting an Air Force forward pass, Frank Stukus, who plunged two yards for his major score, and Ross McKelvey, who took advantage of a bad lateral pass by Sgt. Charlie Prince to boot the ball over the line and then fell on it for a touchdown. Young Chad Bark paved the way for Frank Stukus' touchdown with a twisting 52-yard broken field run after taking Annis Stukus' seven-yard forward pass.

Detroit Mentor Fears Boston

DETROIT, Oct. 28. — (AP). — Home surroundings seem to mean more in hockey than in any other major league sport, and this season, says Manager Jack Adams of the world championship Detroit Red Wings, they'll mean more than ever.

It isn't nostalgia or home cooking or travel weariness, declares Adams, who this week-end starts his 17th season as pilot of Detroit's National Hockey League entry. His explanation is that many athletes who work regular war plant shifts can'et get away for long road trips and others in Canada can't get border clearance into this country.

"We have at least half a dozen players who won't travel except for short week-end trips," says Adams. "Consequently we plan to carry an unusually large squad. We won't be so tough on the road, but I understand other clubs are in the same fix."

Adams thinks the team to beat is Boston, although Chicago and Toronto are ranked not far back. But in Adams' book, every club is going to be tough to lick at home.

City-County General Canvass Is Falling Behind In Loan With 42 Percent. Of Objective

The Fifth Victory Loan reached the half way post Wednesday evening, at the close of the ninth day of the three weeks' campaign, and Peterborough found itself almost two-thirds of the way to the end of the course.

Comparative computations for the ninth day are simple. Half way to the goal the required percentage of objective was exactly 50.

Total subscriptions for the city and county were 64.98 per cent of the objective. So, Peterborough was out in front by 14.98 per cent.

That is a progress report in a nutshell up to Wednesday night. It sends forth a pleasant sound of accomplishment and forging ahead, but official opinion is pondering the probabilities in the last half of this drive, and wondering whether the community of the city and county of Peterborough has the "staying power," the stamina, to stick it out to the finish wire. However, committee apprehensions about the "run through the home stretch," as they say in the sports columns may be set aside for a summary of Wednesday's performance.

$1,611,000 To Get

Peterborough's objective is $4,600,000, and total subscriptions to last night were $2,989,000, or 64.98 per cent leaving $1,611,000 of the Victory Loan to be raised in the remaining nine days.

Wednesday itself was a highly satisfactory day as it appears in the records. Aggregate subscriptions increased from $2,618,550 at Tuesday night to $2,989,000 a gain of $370,450. In the percentage column the corresponding advance was from 56.93 to 64.98 or 8.05 per cent. Compare that accomplishment with what was actually required to keep pace with the time factor of forwarding the Loan from day to day. The required percentage Tuesday night was 44.42 and Wednesday night 50, a margin of 5.58.

Peterborough actually did more than was required for the day, 8.05% as against 5.58.

Special Names at 91%

The biggest advances in the Wednesday advance were made by the Special Names group, Otonabee township and the City General Canvass. These three sectors largely accounted for Peterborough maintain its momentum through the back stretch of the long route.

The Special Names Committee turned in $200,000, the City General Canvass $139,600 and Otonabee moved its subscriptions up to $41,850 for an advance of 12.19 in the percentage column. The city general was up 7.67 in the percentage and Special Names 13.33.

Special Names reached 91 per cent of their objective, and are manifestly in sight of their goal.

Rural subscriptions, including the three villages, contributed $33,600 for the day, an advance of 5.6 in percentage.

Smith Leads Again

Smith climbed back into the county leadership, after Havelock held the top position for Tuesday. Otonabee stride up from seventh place to third, and Asphodel dropped back from third to fourth.

These four municipalities showed more than the required percentage for the nine days, and Smith and Havelock were both ahead of the 50% level.

The general committee is frankly uneasy as they scan the progress of the Loan. They recognize that the Special Names section is close to its objective, and that the largest amounts have already been credited to that division.

The Employees' Canvass at 75.82 of their objective are also approaching the end of their prescribed effort, and the majority of the factory groups have already turned in their quotas of the Loan. That leaves the city and county general canvass to carry on through the home stretch. Their combined total last night was 42 per cent of the objective?

And the perturbing question is thrusting itself in front of Peterborough's splendid response to the Loan up to the present. What of the last nine days?

The Employees Canvass added $7,250 to their total Wednesday, only a fractional gain in the percentage column, from 75.58 to 75.82, a margin of .34.

Smith 56.05 Per Cent

Residents of Smith subscribed $4,940 yesterday to put them out in first position again, raising their total from $45,500 to $50,450, and the percentage from 50.56 up to 56.05 a margin of 5.49.

Havelock was becalmed for the day at $20,550. Subscriptions in Otonabee were $15,850 for a total of $57,700. The township's objective is $130,000. Havelock was in second place yesterday and North Monaghan came up from fourth to third.

Monaghan turned in $2,600 for the day, for move from $15,750 to $18,350, and in percentage from 45 up to 52.43, an improvement of 7.43 per cent, only a fraction behind the day's work in the city general canvass.

Asphodel in the fourth spot advanced its total by $950, from $15,600 to $16,550, and in percentage from 46.32 to 48.82, an advance of 2.5.

Otonabee is in the fifth slot, and Belmont-Methuen was unchanged in sixth place, although the eastern municipality reported $350 in Bonds sold for the day.

Ennismore marked time yesterday, and dropped back from fifth to seventh place. The northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos sold $2,600 of the day's Bonds; their total increasing from $11,550 to $14,150; and their percentage from 25.67 to 31.44, a gain of 5.77.

Dummer Advances

Dummer moved from tenth to ninth position with $2,800 sales on Wednesday Their total is now $10,400, up from $7,600, and their percentage was up from 22.35 to 30.59, an advance of 8.24.

Dummer's percentage increase for the day was actually third to Special Names and Otonabee and was higher than the city and Monaghan.

Lakefield receded to tenth place followed by Norwood and Douro. Sales at Lakefield for the day were $500, at Norwood $2,450 and in Dummer $550.

That is the review of progress to Wednesday night, and as they tritely say here and there this is another day.

French Patriots Kill 3 Traitors

MADRID, Oct. 28 (AP). —Jean Barthelet, chief of the Vichy police for the Toulouse region and the whole southwestern area of France, was machine-gunned to death on October 23 by an unknown assailant who fled in an automobile, it was reported here Wednesday.

Two other collaborationists also were said to have been assassinated following a Vichy announcement of the arrest of 200 "terrorists."

Delayed press dispatches from France said Chief-of-Government Pierre Laval had told the Vichy Cabinet it was absolutely essential to obtain more arms from the Germans in order to combat the activity of French guerillas.

Admiral Warns Japs Are Tough

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 28—(AP). — Describing the Japanese as a "tough and wily foe whose disregard for his own life is exceeded only by his fanatical hatred for us," Admiral Ernest J. King said today that they must be pushed back to their homeland.

King, commander - in - chief of the United States fleet, declared in a speech prepared for Navy Day:

"We plan to follow the Japs very closely on their return trip to Japan. In fact, we propose to speed them on their way."

The Japanese, King said, "is still convinced that he can wear us out and his known long-term strategy is to keep us at arms length from his important concentrations.

"The Navy's job is plainly outlined. We must continue, through all means at our disposal, to break his lines of communication, to strike his naval forces whenever we can make the opportunity note that I say 'make the opportunity'."

Turning to Europe, King said a year ago "the invasion of Europe was, for the general public, a matter of speculation. Today . . . the invasion of Hitler's stronghold is under way. The successes of the Nazi U-boats aginst our shipping have been radically diminished and Italy has joined the battle against Nazism."

Tactical Units Of Fliers Very Mobile

With the Tactical Air Force in England, Oct. 28 (AP).— Streamlined air force, geared to operate on advanced airfields in pace with the army's advance, moves today under camouflage and canvas on southern England farmlands. It's so mobile it carries its own runways.

That's the Tactical Air Force. Its formation, under the command of Air Vice-Marshal J. H. D'Albaic, was announced some months ago, but little has been said of its activities.

Eyes and long-range artillery of the ground forces, it will help blast a path when Allied infantrymen go into action from this country. It corresponds to the T.A.F. under Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham which played such an important part in the African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

Close-In Work

The T.A.F.'s job is to do the comparatively "close-in" air fighting. The long-range stuff still remains the job of the air giants of bomber command which in the African theatre came to be known as the "strategic air force" as distinct from the T.A.F.

A magnified version of what once was known as Army Co-operation Command, the T.A.F. even now is engaged in duties similar to that in which it will be involved when the armies of Britain, Canada, the United States and other Allies leap across the Channel. It consists of fighters, which also reconnoitre and photograph; fighter-bombers and medium bombers such as Mitchels.

Stressing mobility and containing a large number of Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons, part of the force has foresaken permanent stations, for hard living in the outdoors. It's a tough life but a healthy one to prepare the personnel for invasion exigencies.

heavy bombers dropped 151 tons of bombs, destroyed 21 planes on the Lakunai airdrome and shot down at least 37 of 70 interceptors. Forty-three other enemy planes were damaged.

Bougainville, Rabaul's Solomons outpost, has sustained plane losses of more than 400 since the current Allied offensive opened June 30.

Wewak, New Guinea, through which Rabaul's air replacements once moved from the west, lost upwards of 400 planes in August and September to Allied raiders.

LAKEFIELD

Peterboro Man Winner Of Calf

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 28—(ENS)—More than 150 turned out to swell the Lakefield Legion Fund for Christmas parcels for soldiers overseas at a Bingo held Tuesday night in Memorial Hall.

Tickets were also drawn for the special prizes. The winners were as follows: C. Clark, 617 George St., Peterborough, holder of ticket No 1354, was winner of the calf; Mr. A. Brown, 535 Albert street, Peterborough, ticket No. 311 won the turkey; John Allen, Lakefield, ticket No. 1422, won the goose; Laura Garvey, Lakefield, ticket no. 436, won a sack of flour; Warren Payne, Lakefield, ticket No. 70 won a bag of potatoes; Mose Marsden, Lakefield, ticket No. 1084, a bushel of apples.

Winners of the special bingo prizes were: Mary Davis, who won a duck; Mrs. Hillard McCracken, a chicken; Anne Dench, a duck; Mrs. Dave Webster, a chicken; Charlie Bickell also won a chicken.

The sale of tickets on the calf and special prizes netted $123.10, and the receipts at the bingo were $62.40. Approximately $150 was cleared for the Christmas boxes. Ellis Simpson was the general master of ceremonies at the Bingo.

HAVELOCK

Two Soldiers Return Home From Overseas

HAVELOCK, Oct. 28 (ENS). — Two members of the Canadian Forestry Corps returned home to Havelock from service overseas on Tuesday, and they are Pte. Maxwell C. Post and Pte. Russell Hill.

Pte. Post enlisted with the 1st Midlands in August, 1940, and after receiving his basic training, went overseas and transferred to the Irish Regiment of Canada, and in June, 1943, he transferred to the Canadian Forestry Corps, and took all of his training in England and Scotland.

Pte. Post speaks very highly of the kindness and hospitality of the people of Scotland, in spite of the severity of rationing over there. An older brother, Pte. Tice Post, a veteran of the 1st Great War, was the first Canadian war casualty on Dec. 21, 1939, having been accidentally drowned at Glasgow docks. After 14-day furlough, Pte. Post reports back to Kingston for further training with the Forestry Corps.

Family Serves.

Pte. Russell Hill enlisted Jan. 12, 1942, with the Canadian Forestry Corps, and after receiving 8 weeks' basic training at Valcartier, went overseas and has spent the last 19 months in Scotland. Pte. Hill speaks well of the Scotch people and the fine entertainment extended to Canadian soldiers. He expressed appreciation for the parcels received from home, especially the smokes and candy, which are a rare treat.

Pte. Hill's sons and daughters are doing their bit in the war. Pte. Kenneth, overseas, is an ambulance driver at No 8 General Hospital. L/Bdr. G. N. Hill, overseas, is taking a motor mechanic's course. L/Cpl. Percy J. Hill overseas, and all have been over more than two years. A daughter, Pte. Annie Hartin, Kingston, is a textitle instructor Joe, aged 16 years, is in the merchant marine, and another son, Gerald, has been honorably discharged as medically unfit, after five months in the Forestry Corps.

uaker Oats Company Subscribes 750,000 To Fifth Victory Loan

The $750,000 subscription of the aker Oats Company of Canada ounted for 50 per cent of the ective of the special names sec- n of Peterborough's Fifth Vic- y Loan.

eterborough receives the full dit at national headquarters for s substantial aid in the under- ting of the progress of the war. e reason that Peterborough is to claim this item for their of subscriptions is because the d office of the company is in Peterborough. Some other local companies have bought heavily also, but their head offices are in Toronto.

The citizens of Peterborough are also represented in the special names group by a total of $350,000. The City Trust Commission invested $250,000 in this Fifth Loan and the Utilities Commission have taken $100,000.

Those three items amount to $1,100,000, or nearly 25 per cent of the total Peterborough objective.

ity Ordered To Replace Tree unique demand was made on corporation of the city yesterday replace an 18-inch diameter ple tree that was cut down by the ks department.

nd John A. Bradshaw, represent- Cecil Wasson, manager of Dick- 's Store, rather seriously added "or else" implication which might inferred as threat of suit against aforesaid municipality, meaning erborough as a corporate body.

transpired at the meeting of the ks committee with Alderman tis presiding yesterday afternoon Mr. Wasson bought a lot on O'- ll avenue, up in the Normal ol district, "Classic Hill," and ceeded to plan the building of a se. Blue prints were prepared, it seems that the maple tree was major feature of attraction in the ice and purchase of the lot, and t the location of the projected se was also related to the shade natural beauty of the maple.

Added Value

Mr. Bradshaw informed the committee that vanished maple was no minor appurtenance to the lot Mr. Wasson selected for a home site. It was a primary consideration. The lot cost $400 but its value to the purchaser was enhanced by the maple.

The facts before the parks committee were broadly that a request had been duly received from H. H. Tewsley for the removal of a maple tree which now becomes "the maple" after its disappearance for the reason that it was a detriment to his property. And whatever else happened in the course of procedure in tre removal this maple was liquidated, and Mr. Tewsley was represented at the committee meeting yesterday by his solicitor W. R. Philp.

In fact three members of the Bar were present. City Solicitor Huycke was the third, but merely attending the meeting in the ordinary performance of his duty.

To Check Up

The committee decided as a preliminary to decision to go up and look at the O'Carroll property one of these days.

Mr. Bradshaw's plain demand was that the city replace the maple its arborial squad removed and just about broke the nearts of Mr. and Mrs. Wasson. An eighteen-inch tree could be bought from the Brookdale people at Bowmanville, Mr. Bradshaw suggested, but the details he left to the Curtis committee.

Stewart Hall Makes $37 For War Victims

The special Christmas donations that will go to give some cheer to the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, has been given a nice boost through the work of the Stewart Hall Community under the convenership of Mrs. Harold Dawson, through their effort last Saturday in supplying and operating the stall on the market.

There was considerable homemade baking supplied, demonstrating the wide interest taken by the ladies of this centre in the effort, and their offerings met with a ready sale. Miss Staples the school teacher of this district, acted as chief sales clerk and was assisted by Girl Guides Margaret Florence and Phylis Whyte, who have given their services on former occasions in a similar capacity.

Throughout the morning others from the Community gave a hand, and when it came time to close up shop, the sum of $25.12 from the stall itself had been realized, through the donations which had been given by Mesdames Walter Thorne, Frank Savigny, Ferd Deyell, George Stewart, J. Hutchison, H. Dawson, G. Hanbidge, W. W. Dawson, Crowley, W. Hutchison, J. Thorne, G. Savigny, D. Matchett, J. Chambers, D. Driscoll, E. E. Thompson, Beath, W. Chambers, W. Rose, H. Cardwell, N. Patterson and H. Taylor, and the Misses Mina Stewart, G. Staples, G. Thompson, and Miss Thorne.

Red Cross Group Helps.

This was later on further augmented by another $3.50 to make a return of $28.42, and then the Red Cross Group of this centre also gave the returns a boost by allowing the fund to participate from the sale of tickets for a draw on a quilt they were conducting in the interests of their own war work, to the extent of the total amount of the sale of tickets from the stall itself.

The material to make this quilt had been supplied by one of the members of this group in the person of Mrs. Dougal Matchett, and the sale of tickets from this one feature added another $8.70 to make a grand total of $37.32 to stand to the credit of the people of the community who are to be commended for the splendid manner in which the whole effort was carried out and brought to such a successful conclusion.

An echo which really speaks louder than that, of the previous Saturday's market effort by the Springville Community under the convenership of Miss Jean Fairbairn is to be found in another donation of $1, making their returns come close to the $10 mark.

Rural School To Help.

Next Saturday, under the leadership of their teacher, Milburn Jones, the pupils of School Section No. 10, Emily, at Orange Corners are both supplying and operating the stall on the market as their contribution towards giving the children of Britain some help through the Christmas cheer fund. This group which gave assistance to the fund in a substantial manner before the summer recess from school duties began, will have a supply of home-made cooking, garden and farm produce to offer for sale, and it should be remembered that one hundred per cent. of the purchase money will come to the fund.

On the open market, Mrs. V. Sweeting will have tickets to offer on the draw sponsored by Mrs. Elcome of Hunter Street on the prize doll sent to her by a niece in Portsmouth, England, a city that has received a full share of attacks and devastation from the air.

21 Examiner Newspaper Carriers Subscribe $1,150

Carriers of the Examiner make this opportunity and duty of investing in the Fifth Victory Loan a rather simple affair for adults to perk and preen about and warm up their self-esteem.

Twenty-one carriers, one girl and twenty boys, have bought 23 bonds for a total Loan to Canada of $1,150.

(So, you've bought yourself a Victory Bond—$100 one, too. What's that to exult about? Two of the youngsters who deliver your Examiner bought $100 Bonds. That's how easy it is. These youngsters are earning only a fraction of the money that passes through your hands during the week....But buying a $50 Bond is nothing for a grown-up to cheer about. That's what the kids do.)

The Examiner carriers manage to keep somewhere in the foreground of community events.

These who bought $50 Bonds in this campaign are: Isabel Moffatt, John ,McDonald, Edgar Humber, George Bedford, Lewers Gaskill, Donald Dummitt, Miles Brooks, Keith Borland.

Robert Woodgate, Donald Searle, Kenneth Stacey, Gordon Harrison, Donald Ball, James McDonald, George Gimblett, Gerald Sutherland, Donald Fitzsimmons, George McPhail, and Donald Pagett.

Those who bought two 050 Bonds were: Robert Robson and Murray Wight.

Policeman Finds Unconscious Man

While Constable Gordon Trennum was passing through the post office laneway Wednesday night, he heard a sound from a hallway at the rear of 426½ George street, as if some one had fallen.

Investigating the sound the officer found a man lying in an unconscious condition at the foot of the stairway, bleeding from a deep cut on his head.

The injured man was removed to Nicholls Hospital where it was discovered that in addition to the gash on his head, he was suffering from a number of bruises and cuts.

Police learned that he was John Alfred Murphy, whose home address is R.R. 5, Ingersoll but who has been boarding at 144½ Hunter street.

Radio Officers Nab Offenders

Government radio inspectors M. E. Leslie and C. Spence are continuing their checkup in the city and district and radio set owners who have not taken out their licence for the current year may find it necessary to explain why the formality has been over-looked.

In police court this morning seven residents in the Lang district of Otonabee entered written pleas of guilty to operating sets without a license and each was fined $3 and $2.75 costs. They were William Dinsdale, Amos Edwards, Richard Hope, William Redpath, Harold Weir, Earl Doris and William Lewell.

The inspectors today swore out 39 more informations against residents of the city and district who are being charged with operating sets without licenses. Twelve of these cases involve the operation of car radios. The officials state that they have not yet completed their checkup and that more cases are to follow.

Windsor Man Advertises Cruiser For Sale Now Pleads Guilty To False Pretences

Arrested in Windsor Monday and brought back to Peterborough Wednesday by Detective Sergt. W. E. Meagher, Percy McGahey of Windsor, pleaded guilty, in police court this morning to a charge of having obtained $100 from H. Sheldon Huffman of Peterborough, under false pretenses.

The indictment alleged taht McGahey had obtained the money by claiming to be the owner of a luxury cruiser and advertising the craft for sale in the Examiner along with a photograph of the cruiser.

When delays arose in the delivery of the boat Huffman became suspicious and reported the circumstances to the authorities with the result that a warrant was issued for the arrest of McGahey and the latter was picked up by the Windsor police. He had worked in Peterborough for some time.

T. J. Carley, K.C., appeared for the accused this morning. At the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., McGahey was remanded until next Wednesday for sentence. "We want to see if he has any record," the Crown Attorney explained.

3-Star Banners Exhausted In Bond Drive

Peterborough has run out of Three Star "V" flags.

That is about the brightest compliment that has been paid to the Employees' Canvass division of the local campaign.

The scarcity is only temporary until an additional order reaches the city. Extras were expected yesterday and the day before, but they may not reach headquarters until Friday.

Employees of Canadian Raybestos plant will probably smile in the disclosure that the flag they ceremonially received and set proudly over their portals was actually Canada Packers flag.

Bill Reid himself had to scurry around and get a flag for Raybestos tribute, and in desperation he hurried to Canada Packers and borrowed their brand new gonfalon from Gordon Matthews.

More Trouble

The Examiner overheard Mr. Reid reporting the substitution at headquarters this morning, and he's going to get a real surprise when he reads these paragraphs. Probably he forgot that he had to borrow the Examiner flag in the same emergency.

The fact is that each plant asking for a flag will get it when the extra stock reaches Peterborough, but beyond that is the glowing satisfaction that the city actually exhausted its original stock.

All those flags you read about being raised in this city are "V" Three Stars, the significance of which have already been explained in detail. They stand for objectives taken, and the co-operation of employees in the payroll savings plan of lending to the Government.

Smash-and-Grab Thieves Steal Jewellry

Smash-and-grab thieves broke the window in the jewelry store of Bert Austin, Charlotte street early this morning and got away with a quantity of jewelry.

The loot included four wrist watches, valued at $90, a diamond ring worth $150 and a card of miscellaneous rings. It was the first occasion on which the diamond ring had been left in the window at night.

The glass had been broken with a stone. Constable Percy Sexsmith discovered the shattered window while patrolling his beat at 2:40 o'clock this morning and notified Mr. Austin who reported that a quantity of jewelry had been taken from the window.

Another attempt at burglarly was made through the night. This morning Vernon Fisk, tobacconist, 135 Hunter street discovered on his arrival at the store that some one had attempted to force open the window over the rear door of the place but had been apparently frightened off before obtaining an entrance.

Silk Stockings Unrationed In Naples City

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, Oct. 24 (Delayed—(AP)—Practically every Allied soldier here says Naples is about the best town he's seen since he left home.

Why? Well, mainly the friendliness of the Neapolitans and the abundance of comely girls.

After a month of Allied occupation, Naples slowly is recovering from the horrors wrought by the Nazis. Many of the city's scars are disappearing. Debris and wreckage are being cleared away.

Pretty girls appear in large numbers, and they are friendly. Allied soldiers like that.

Ladies at home will be interested to know that Naples has a seemingly inexhaustible supply of good silk stockings. They sell for around $2.50 a pair—and they are not rationed.

Nor are there runs on the stores, for most Naples women go barelegged.

Small shops are re-opening and displaying stocks of souvenirs, the prices of which have soared. In many cases the Allied Military Government (AMG) has stepped in to curb profiteering and set ceiling prices. But price control is difficult.

At the city's restaurants, food is scarce. Business is far from normal, too, although the markets have ample stocks of apples, nuts, persimmons, mangos and other fruits.

Freed Eighth Army Political Prisoners Get Food

Political prisoners, freed by the Eighth Army, receive food from the rations of the British army. These prisoners, interned in a concentration camp near the small town of St. Di Barraccano, consist of German Jews, Yugoslavs and Chinese. Although they are free to go now, many of them have no country to which to return, and so they have selected their own camp director and have turned this former prison into a liveable home. Many of the children now here were born on the grounds. Schools have been erected for the children, and bungalows now house the people until such time when their countries will be liberated again.

CAMPBELLFORD

Board Informed Cadets Need More Equipment

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 28 — (ENS). —Some of the requirements for the re-organized High School Cadet Corps were outlined by Principal E. H. Greig at the October meeting of the Board of Education.

The principal needs brought about by the extended course are new lockers to hold uniforms; racks for Cooey guns; pips and hooks for officers and N.C.O's. Mr. Greig also told of plans to hold a church parade on Sunday morning when the Midland Regiment Band will be on hand to march with them. The Protestant parade will be to the United church and the Catholic will fall out at St. Mary's church. After church the entire unit will fallin again for the march past which is to be held at the Cenotaph on George street, where Capt. N. Alex. McColl, O.C. of 'B' Company, Midland Regiment (R.F.) will take the salute.

On the question of re-modelling lockers Board members felt this was a job Shop Work pupils could do under the supervision of their instructor, Mr. E. Darling, and authorized them to do it. They also authorized the expenditure of $30 for the necessary officers' insignia. To the suggestion by the principal that the Cadet Corps should become affiliated with the Midland Regiment, the Board was cool, feeling that they would like more information before such a step was taken.

Coal Trouble

Chairman R. J. Locke told members he had investigated the possibility of purchasing a metal lathe and though it was not possible to get one at present he was informed there would be plenty of them on the market "in a short time." He also brought up the controversial question of coal which has long been a subject of doubt to some board members. Mr. Locke revealed the Board had received one car load of fuel from the company which had been supplying them direct for the past fifteen years, and said it was nearly fifty per cent slack.

"If this coal had been bought through a local dealer we would not have had to accept it. I am afraid this is going to be a very expensive coal for us this year."

The chairman then brought up the question of purchasing coal from local dealers. "This Board should not be in the coal business. We should purchase by tender through a local dealer who is paying taxes in this town."

No Action

Citing his own experience with fuel when he was chairman of the property committee W. Roy Loucks recalled that he had once "yielded to the pressure of local dealers" who had on one occasion supplied the board with coal. He declared the coal purchased locally had not been of the same quality and was more expensive than the fuel they had been buying. As a result of this experience the Board had once again reverted to its former system. The issue closed with no action being taken on Mr. Locke's suggestion.

Only correspondence was a communication from the local branch of the Legion soliciting the Board's order for a wreath to be placed on the Cenotaph on Remembrance day. On motion the purchase was authorized.

LAKEFIELD

Mrs. N. Higgins President Of Beaver Club

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 28—(ENS)—Members of the Beaver Club held a busy afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. Garvey, packing boxes for the boys overseas, hearing the annual report, and election of officers.

Fourteen boxes were packed for the boys and girls from their distirct who are with the armed forces.

Each box contained cigarettes, cake, stationery, pencils, tooth brush and powder, soap, foot powder, talc powder, comb, gum, chocolate bars, candies, handkerchief, and Christmas cards. The cost of the boxes amounted to $24.83. Through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. George Fairbairn in providing a calf for tickets for correct weight, to be sold at the fall fairs, $26.52 had been raised for this fund.

Work Report

The year's work report submitted by Mrs. Graydon Northey was a credit to the club as there were only 24 meetings, and the average attendance was seven. The following is the report: 32 quilts, 6 mother's gowns, 4 sweaters, 1 child's set (sweater, mitts and cap), 3 babies' sets, 1 baby sweater, 15 khaki pillows, 2 girls' dresses, 3 windbreakers, 1 coat, 1 man's coat and vest, 1 lady's skirt, 2 girls' skirts, 4 pair bootees, 2 bonnets, 2 girls' blouses, 1 boy's knitted suit, 2 vests.

Mrs. Sherman Northey submitted the following financial statement:

Receipts

Balance on hand, $45.32; salvage, $20.59; grease, $2; blanket, $4; fees, $3; county grant, $25; quilting, $1.50; paper, 35c; donations, 25c. Total, $102.01.

Expenditures

Print flannelette $21.30; 6 hankies, 30c; batts, $14.82; tentex, 30c; wool, $3.10; spools, $3.69; delegates expenses, $1; 5 yards drill, $3.45; 4 yards ticking, $1.80; Lakefield branch of Red Cross, $30; pen set, $1.50; quilt pieces, $2. Total, $83.26. Balance, $18.75.

Elect Officers

Twelve blood donors went to Peterborough from the club, and nine members attended the nursing class held in Lakefield.

Mrs. W. Gillman, Mrs. S. A. Grylls and Mrs. S. Trude of Lakefield were guests of the club for the afternoon and each spoke briefly of their work. Mrs. Gillman as work convener of the Red Cross, Mrs. Grylls, convener of the Blood Donors group, Mrs. S. Trude, supervisor of the nursing class.

The following officers of 1942 were again elected as follows: President, Mrs. N. S. Higgins; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Johns; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. Crawford; work convener, Mrs. Graydon Northey; quilt convener, Mrs. K. Northey; wool convener, Eva Higgins; secretary, Mrs. Sherman Northey.

Delegates Continue Tri-Partite Talks

MOSCOW, Oct. 28 — (AP). — Delegates to the tri-partite conference have arrived at some of the most important questions of the meeting, it was reported yesterday as the parley moved into its ninth session.

One of the participants in the British-United States-Russian discussions was quoted as taking the official view of "so far so good," but the conference probably will continue for some time.

The drafting committees met in joint session yesterday and progress was reported on framing the agreements arrived at by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, United States State Secretary Cordell Hull, and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov.

Although official silence greeted inquiries on the nature of the discussions it was learned that definite news on some of the accomplishments may be made public at the end of the conference.

Help The Axis

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—(AP). — "Children, please soap this window, read placards in many South Side stores. The notice says "Soap, tallow and paraffin are used in explosives. If wasted on smearing property there will be less powder to be used against us. The labor necessary to remove and repair damage caused by pranks is wasted effort. This helps us, so go to it, friends." The message to Hallowe'en pranksters is signed "Hitler" and "Hirohito."

Hunter Finds Many Wolves While In Bush

MARMORA, Oct. 28 — (ENS).— Sanford Lawrence who has been back in the northern part of the township lately, blazing a road for the Tomahawk Iron Mine officials returned home this week and questions were directed at him as to wild game at large in that section.

"I saw plenty of tracks of bear and deer," said this hunter. "Let me tell you another wolf story," he continued. "I was in the bush and started to light a cigarette when I heard a noise a few feet away. In a moment or so, I saw a dear about fifty feet away which was travelling fast and appeared to be pursued. I only had my .22 rifle with me and a few short cartridges and when I saw the wolf coming—the deer not being out of sight—I fired three times and calculated I hit him each time but a very close search failed to reveal my victim."

"Max Vincent and William Brooks of Peterborough were in the camp at the time about a mile away, and they were most interested in my hard luck story."

Howls Bad

Sanford says the howling of wolves at night is about as bad as he ever remembers and he has had to get up from his bed and fire off shots to scare them away. This story was corraborated on Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Filber of Toronto, the former who operates a lumber camp about five miles west of Millbridge.

This camp is about seven miles from Sanford's. Mrs. Filber related that the howls of the wolves are most pronounced at night, suggesting to her that they were wrangling over the carcass of a deer.

Sanford, in concluding, told of his most exciting experiences with wolves. About three years ago, he was paddling a canoe up the Otter Creek one evening at dusk. He had no flashlight but had two weapons a shot gun and a .22 pistol. Suspecting some wolves might be in the vicinity, Sanford imitated the howl of a wolf. Within a minute, he got the desired response. Sanford continued the dialogue and other wolves were heard from on the other side of the creek.

No Pelts

In a short time, Sanford was aware of a number of wolves travelling along the shore and giving vent to a blood curdling chorus.

"You'd swear there were fifty of them," solemnly remarked Sanford. "As I had no flashlight I of course could not count them. I fired two charges of buckshot with my 12 guage shot gun and eight shots out of my .22 pistol to end the chorus. The next morning, I came to the spot expecting to find at least two or three good pelts but never a hair could I find. I must have aimed too high. I really think if I had not these weapons with me I would have been attacked for I had to land at a portgage near where they had congregated."

Whether this veteran bushman is able to imitate a wolf and fool the anmials is the only question mark in the yarn.

Peace Attempts Made

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP). —Pope Pius has intensified his efforts to bring about a peace, the Vatican radio said yesterday as other advices indicated Roman Catholic bishops in Germany and Northern Italy are preparing conferences to reasons unannounced.

Russian armies are crumbling the whole Axis southern Ukrainian front. Radiating lines in the map ABOVE indicate the rapid advance of the Red armies in the last few days beyond Melitopol, Dnepropetrovsk in the Dnieper bend, and at Krivoi-Rog.

Personalities In Sir Harry Oakes' Murder Case

Pictured are three personalities in the Oakes murder mystery which has captured the imagination of newspaper readers throughout the western hemisphere. Count Alfred de Marigny, LEFT, is now on trial in Nassau, Bahama Islands, for the murder of his father-in-law, Sir Harry Oakes, wealthy Canadian gold mine operator, whose fatally beaten and burned body was discovered last July in his bedroom at Westbourne, the Oakes' seaside estate near Nassau. Second from LEFT is Lady Oakes, widow of the slain man. RIGHT, is the Hon. Godfrey Higgs, chief defence counsel in the De Marigny trial.

Eighth Army Consolidates New Positions

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 25 (Delayed) — (CP Cable).—Eighth Army forces consolidated their newly-gained positions northwest of the wide Biferno valley today (Monday) after breaking into German defences strung along the heights and dominating the important river line.

Infantry, moving slowly across country and negotiating with difficulty the rough ground, followed patrols into half a dozen towns which had been suddenly abandoned by the enemy during the early hours of Sunday.

Practically the only opposition the Germans offered to this forward movement was mortar fire employed at extreme range and our troops were able to walk into the objectives with a minimum of shooting.

The troops marched first through the town of Spinete, wracked by a concentrated artillery attack Saturday. Patrols sent out Sunday found the town empty. The infantry formation was also unopposed as it mounted the high ground beyond the Biferno which was one of the series of natural defence lines in this mountainous area where the fighting has been going on since the Royal Canadian Regiment of the Canadian 1st Division captured Motta October 2.

Use Paratroopers.

Paratroopers took two towns high on the northwest side of the Biferno River and pushed on toward another pair as gunners covered their advance with a heavy fire.

Correspondents watched this attack go forward up the long slope from the brown valley. Our observation post was in a rockwalled cattlepen on the edge of a cliffside village some 2,000 feet above the river.

Germans, from far-off positions, dropped shells and mortar bombs intermittently on various spots in the valley and along the top of its northwest edge.

Allied aircraft hummed through the bright blue sky at a high altitude and looked like specks as they swooped over distant targets, their bombs throwing up big mushrooms of dirt.

Immediately below the cattle pen at the side of a long, wrecked bridge, sappers toiling and looking from the distance like ants completed a gravel diversion and the first vehicles rolled across and on to the valley roads.

But before they crossed engineers carrying long-handled mine detectors walked along toward another wrecked bridge where a second diwrecked bridge where a second diversion had to be built.

The advance was the last stage of defeat of the positions the Germans are believed to have intended to hold by a defence in depth. The collapse of the line was the result of a determined drive by troops who had marched over miles of rough ground, tediously taking out enemy posts one at a time. They were supplied mainly by mule trains which also carried their heavier weapons.

The Germans are expected to pull back to another river line several miles to the rear and will probaby take another stand at a road junction similar to the one from which they have just been driven.

During the last 10 days the 8th Army has been up against two undermanned divisions—the 26th and 29th Panzer Grenadiers — from which they have taken a number of prisoners, including men from occupied countries who were forced to fight in German uniforms.

COBOURG

Navy League's Quota Increased

COBOURG, Oct. 28 —(ENS). — Too many other meetings were going on the same night. Monday, to obtain a large enough attendance to elect officers at the annual meeting of the Cobourg branch of the Navy League. However, a fairly heavy budget of business was disposed of. B. Cannem, field secretary of the Navy League, was on hand and gave a brief talk on the Navy League's requirements this year.

Lorne Anderson, who was chairman of the evening, paid tribute to the work done by T. H. McClelland on behalf of the Cobourg branch of the Navy League. Mr. McClelland suffered a breakdown in health and will be absent from Cobourg for several months.

At the outset of the meeting some attention was paid to the specially-knit stocking of spiral weave which is to be used to combat "immersion" foot among shipwrecked seamen, and in regard to which Cobourg Navy League has been asked how many they can knit.

Basil Walker pointed out that someone had broken into the salvage depot and removed some magazines which were stored there, as well as upsetting piles of magazines. Nine boxes of them had been recently packed by the Salvage committee and sent to Halifax

Mr. Cannem told the meeting that the Navy League in Ontario would be asked to raise twice as much money as last year. Cobourg's quota for Navy Week would be $2,000. He suggested that efforts be made to personally contact selected names.

Ontario was being asked to supply 75,000 ditty bags this year, about one-half of that of the whole Dominion quota. In addition this province would be asked to raise almost half of the cash. Much of it went to merchant seamen. There were more merchant seamen touching Canada's shores than there were Canadians overseas. Speaking of magazines, he urged that they be collected before they were too old for reading. Some magazines were hoarded until they were a year old, he declared.

Ontario's quota this year would be $600,000. Some of it would be going to pay for new hostels and some of it to finance the sea cadets. The sea cadets were really a boys' uplift movement as more than 50 p.c. of the members came from a comparatively poor environment with no new outlook.

YOUNG'S POINT

Red Cross Elects Officers At Annual Meeting

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 28 — (ENS). — The Young's Point Red Cross Society held its annual meeting in St. Aidan's parish hall with thirteen members and two visitors attending.

Mrs. G. K. Fraser, honorary president, took charge and also presided for the election of officers. Mrs. Fraser gave a short talk on Red Cross work and complimented this unit in their progress.

The various reports were then given; Mrs. Elmer Johnston—the secretary's; Mrs. Malcolm Harvey—the treasurer's, which showed a substantial balance with which to commence another year's work.

Mrs. David Darling, work convener, reported that from Oct. 15, 1942, to Oct. 21, 1943, the following had been shipped: 4 long-sleeved sweaters, 19 pr. long seamen's socks, 16 pr. service socks, 8 pr. gloves, 20 pr. mitts, 2 helmets, 3 scarves, 5 wool afghans, 1 shelter shawl, 30 pr. of pyjamas with 10 pr. extra trousers, 15 nightgowns, each with a hankie, 15 utility bags for girls in the service, each containing: toilet soap, tooth brush, tooth powder, soap flakes, cold cream, safety pins, straight pins, needles, wash cloth, kleenex, comb, pencil and stationery. For the Russian Relief—1 man's overcoat, 2 children's dresses, 1 pr. baby's socks, 1 boy's sweater, 1 beret, parcel of used ladies' clothing, 1 child's jersey suit and a bundle of fur. 9 pairs of socks have been given local boys enlisting since last October.

Mrs. William Scollard, quilt convener, reported on quilt tops and quilts donated and quilts made during the year and that 22 quilts had been shipped to Lakefield in the Society's year.

New Officers

Mrs. Victor Young, convener of the nominating committee, presented the following slate:

Honorary president, Mrs. G. K. Fraser; president, Mrs. George Douglas; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Andrew Wilson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. Prosperity Wave Troubles Newfoundland

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 28 — (CP).—War has brought good times to Newfoundland, but this artificial prosperity in a people that has always had a low living standard is posing some post-war problems for the men running the affairs of the ancient colony.

For a country that was in such dire financial straits 10 years ago that it had to yield up responsible government and its Dominion status, Newfoundland has come a long way. Where it couldn't meet its bonds interest in 1933, it now is lending millions to the Mother Country to help prosecute the war.

The island's strategic position astride the northern sea route to America, has brought it to the crest of the economic wave. When the United States took over a hemisphere defence base in Newfoundland, American forces flooded into the country. Canadian servicemen, too, have long had establishments here.

Wages Triple.

Thousands of Newfoundlanders have been hired to work on Canadian and American projects. And where a few years ago they considered $300 or so a satisfactory return for a season's arduous work on the fishing banks, they can make double or triple that without difficulty ashore.

Those who remain loyal to the fishery are doing better, too. The catch is good, and they can market all the produce at good prices. Fish from Newfoundland is being shipped in quantity as far away as Portugal. Right now, an agreement is being negotiated with Spain.

The new-born well-being in Newfoundland has aroused a clamor in some quarters for a return of responsible government. However, the concensus here seems to be that Britain, before taking this step, will wait until the war prosperity bubble has been deflated and Newfoundland has demonstrated its ability to grapple with conditions in the post-war world.

Friends Give Farewell Party

APSLEY, Oct. 28 — (ENS). — Members of the Apsley branch of the W.I. gathered at the home of Mrs. Chesel McColl to enjoy a social evening Monday.

The women worked at knitting, chiefly, while spending the evening together. The highlight being the reading of a farewell address to Mrs. C. Smith. This had been composed in verse by one of the members and was read by Mrs. Roland Tucker. A linen table cloth being presented by Mrs. W. Lean.

Mrs. Smith is a charter member of the W.I. and has been president for two years. She has been an untiring worker and will be missed. She thanked the members for their gift as well as for their loyalty to her during her term of office and asked for their same co-operation with the new president. Mrs. McColl served lunch.

Personals

Donna Lean is back at school again following her operation in Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. H. Everett, who has been a patient in the local Red Cross Hospital, has returned to her home in Chandos.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Crossley of Haliburton were in the village on Sunday.

Miss Jean Nichols of Peterborough spent the week-end at her home here.

Fred Tanner of the R. C. A. F. stationed at Trenton is at his home here on sick leave.

Visitors to Peterborough recently included Mrs. F. McFadden, Tom Hales, W. Lean, Vernal Windsor, D. Brown, Chesel McColl and Charles Smith, Mrs. S. Brown, Elaine Brown, Mrs. V. McFadden, Mrs. W. Everett, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Reynolds.

Strike Still Unsettled

3,600 Aluminum Workers Make New Demands

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Quebec, Oct. 28 — (CP). — This fourth day of a labor dispute involving about half the Aluminum Company of Canada's 3,600 employees, saw no sign of settlement and disclosed new demands by the workers. Meanwhile only one of the two plants is operating.

Philip Cutler, labor organizer, told a meeting of American Federation of Labor members who precipitated the walkout, that the Shawinigan workers should be paid wage increases of five cents an hour to bring rates to the level of workers in the Arvida, Que., plants. He also thought the workers should get time and a half for overtime after eight hours and an increase in the cost of living bonus. In their original demands the workers asked the number of pots attended by each man should be cut to five in conformity with what they said applied in other plants.

Mr. Cutter added that Arvida workers were "in full sympathy" with the Shawinigan workers and if necessary they "will take action too." He did not elaborate.

The rival National Syndicate Union which has a jurisdictional contract, valid for another six months, has continued to urge its members to stay on the job.

PLAINVILLE

Young People Attend Banquet

PLAINVILLE, Oct. 28 (ENS). — The Young Peoples' Society of the Plainville United church held their annual banquet with one hundred members and friends present, who partook of a delicious supper served by the young women. The tables were tastefully decorated with Hallowe'en colors.

Mr. Allan Dines was toastmaster for the evening, and among numbers on the program were piano duets by Misses Evelyn Carruthers and Valida Minifie and Mrs. Stuart Herriott and Miss Evelyn Brisbin; a vocal duet by the little Misses Margaret and Marian McKinlay. The toasts were proposed by Edgar Buttar to the women with response from Miss Evelyn Carruthers; to the men by Mrs. Louis Buttar with response by Mr. Kenneth Curtis, and to the Young People by Mr. Glen Cole.

Rev. M. C. Fisher introduced the guest of the evening, Rev. W. R. Archer of Grafton. Mr. Archer spoke for a short time and his remarks were timely and much appreciated. As only a few at the banquet had seen the picture, "John Sterling," Mr. Archer gave a synopsis of it and brought several suggestions for livelier activity in the Young Peoples' groups. The amount of $35 was received to add to the Y.P.S. treasury.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Carruthers have received word from their son, LAC. Malcolm Carruthers, that he is now stationed at Gaspe, Quebec.

Trp. Donald Herriott of Camp Borden spent the week-end with his parents here and his wife in Port Hope.

Mobile Air Unit Latest Allied Venture

By ALLAN NICKELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE TACTICAL AIR FORCE IN BRITAIN, Oct. 28 (CP)—Grimly stripped for total war that makes a mobile air unit a necessity, the tactical air force never clambers from its battle dress. Designed to move forward with invading army, it wakes up under canvas to fight the enemy in the skies.

When the time comes for the Allied forces to breach the enemy's Channel defences, the T.A.F. will be ready to move into advanced airfields under any conditions. Its personnel has been under camouflag'd canvas in England for months, existing in backwoods style and ready to pack equipment, including plane runways, on a moment's notice and speed to a new location.

Their training during the past summer has been invaluable, but so tough it has no place for squeamish unadaptables.

At one field, containing Royal Canadian Air Force Mustang fighter squadrons, conditions are about the same as those throughout the force. Here there is a canvas village of tents, trucks and trailers where the accent is off dress and formality.

Cahuck Pilots.

While men of the R.A.F. regiment guard the field from air attack, such pilots as Flt.-Lt. Dick Manser of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., wait the call to action in the dispersal tent or gossip over a beer in the canvas mess. They eat in a large tent from tin plates and the food is served right from cooking pots.

Usually, two or three airmen share one tent but as many as six ground crewmen manage to squeeze into one. Washing and shaving are performed in the open.

Water is distributed by bowsers, trucks which normally carry gasoline. Each T.A.F. field rigs up its own electrical system.

There's not much shortage of anything except enemy fighters. Mustang pilots complain their reconnaissance job is getting too methodical because of lack of opposition. The main worry, they all agree, is flak.

While American flying crews operated from the Victorious her own fliers were based aboard an American carrier—an interesting "exchange" of personnel.

Grove School Soccer Eleven Blanks T.C.S.

A soccer game played at the Grove School Monday resulted in a 2-0 win for the Grove team over T.C.S. The game was verly evenly contested, and the final score bore no resemblance to the keen play that both sides used.

Both goals for Lakefield were scored in the first half. The first came following a nice play by the forwards, Gibson beating Vandenburg cleanly. Not long after Cummings of Lakefield tallied again, making the score 2-0. This score remained until full time.

During the second half, the play was carried up and down the field. Hogarth had Carey beaten but failed to put the ball in. Similar chances came for each side.

Outstanding on the Grove team were Wilford, Gill, Gibson and Cummings, while for the Port Hope team Wyman and Hogarth played very well.

Lineups:

Grove: Insides, Cummings, Wilford; halves, Tusting, Ross, Head; wings, Bang, Gill; defence, Macnaughton I, Macnaughton II; goalie, Carey; centre forward, Gibson; subs, Barron, Young, Faulkner.

T.C.S.: Insides, Hunloke, Ketchum; halves, Potter, Gill, Tessier; wings, Foster, Hogarth; defence, Maklem, Mackenzie; goalie, Vandenburg; centre forward, Wyman (captain).

Premier Gives 4 Conditions For World Order

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 — (CP).— Prime Minister ackenzie King, in a message delivered for him last night before the 30th National Foreign Trade convention, pledged Canada to the support of principles looking toward removal of international fear, lowered world tariffs and establishment of machinery to maintain international monetary stability and provision of credit.

The message was read by Brooke Claxton, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, and Mr. King's parliamentary assistant.

The Prime Minister laid down four conditions which he said were needed to develop world trade and bring prosperity and employment:—

1. International relations of the kind that exists between Canada and the United States and the countries of the British Commonwealth so Nations will not be driven by fear of attack to cut themselves off from world trade;

International Plan

2. International agreement for the progressive, annual reduction of tariffs until agreed levels are reached, so business may look ahead and plan with confidence in stability;

3. "Functional" machinery to carry on necessary arrangements among nations, including maintenance of international monetary stability and provision of credit;

4. Domestic policies to provide maximum employment and production, and prevent inflation.

"These four conditions can be realized," the message said. "What a boon to mankind if they were. The government is prepared to work to these ends with other nations."

Commenting on his third condition regarding establishment of functional international machinery, Mr. King said:—

"To accept representation on an international agency authorized to make decisions which would ensure their security and prosperity is not to be regarded as a surrender of sovereignty.

"If that is a surrender of sovereignty the common people of the world are looking for more surrenders of sovereignty."

Drillon, Benoit Missing From Canadiens

By HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—(CP).—It looks as though Montreal Canadiens will have a hockey team this year.

In fact they might turn out to have a championship team.

Canadiens were sixth in 1941 and '42 and fourth by a single point last March, but barring accidents they ought to be "considerably higher" in the N.H.L. this season.

So far Canadiens have been less hard-hit than most of the other clubs. They have lost two stellar right wingers in Joe Benoit and Gordie Drillon but aside from that most of the changes have been for the better.

Right wing remains the paramount problem of Coach Dick Irvin but even there he's not too badly off and there are reports that the situation will be still further improved before the season's opener against Boston Bruins Saturday night.

Paul Bibeault is missing from goal, but in his place Irvin has a choice of Bert Gardiner, Bill Durnan of the Quebec Senior Hockey Leaglue Royals, and 17 year old Jerry McNeil from Quèbec.

Canadiens have two experienced defence combinations in Glen Harmon, Mike McMahon, Butch Bouchard and Leo Lamoureux.

Up front are most of the better players of last season except for Benoit and Drillon, plus a small but select band of newcomers. Irvin has Buddy O'Connor, Gerry Heffernan, Ray Getlief, Murph Chamberlain, Toe Blake, Charlie Sands, Elmer Lach, Dutch Hiller, and Maurice Richard from last year's squad.

Majeau a Comer.

He also has Fernand Majeau of the Q.S.H.L. Royals, Larry Reardon, Bobby Walton and possibly Phil Watson of the Rangers, for home games, if negotiations with Rangers work out right.

Majeau has been one of the finds of the year in practice, and rounds out a hard-working line with O'Connor and Heffernan. Reardon, brother of Terry, has been working well with Chamberlain and Getliffe. Walton, who has just joined the club, may be used to plug one of the holes on the wing.

If the Watson deal works out, he'd probably tie in with Toe Blake and Elmer Lach for one of the most powerful lines of the season.

But there may be problems aplenty before the season ends, and Irvin isn't going out on any limb about his charges' chances. He says: "Around about next March I think I'll have a pretty good idea of how we stand."

TRAINING CAMP NEWS FLASHES

By The Canadian Press

Any time conversation lags at the National Hockey League training camp of Toronto Maple Leafs in St. Catharines, Ont., defenceman Walter (Babe) Pratt usually can be depended upon to fill the gaps. His particular delight is ribbing the three members of Toronto's "Midget" line—Zip Thompson, Sam McNabney and Ed Harding—who are expected to wind up with Toronto Marlboros in the Junior Ontario Association.

"You know what?" Pratt asked. "I'm gonna cuff one guy so hard the whole line will fall down."

Reports from Winnipeg, on the other hand, indicate lighter stuff is out at the New York Ranger camp. The Ranger youngsters are sticking strictly to business in an effort to obtain a place on the team.

Montreal Canadiens are reported seeking the services of Phil Watson in exchange for Charlie Sands and Dutch Hiller, Watson works at the Fairchild Aircraft plant in Montreal and would be available only for games in Toronto and Montreal.

War Prisoners Cut Fuel Wood

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 (CP). —New prisoner-of-war camp to accommodate 400 prisoners engaged in cutting fuel wood is being built in Riley Mountain National Park in Manitoba, labor department officials disclosed Wednesday.

The camp will be the largest work camp yet constructed in Canada to accommodate prisoners and is in line with a departmental policy of giving priority in the use of prisoners to fuelwood production.

Under this policy companies engaged in cutting fuelwood are given preference over those cutting pulpwood, officials said.

The position of civilian pulpwood workers has been under review for some time following representations by pulpwood and paper companies to have their employees placed in "B" priority. This would bring them within the recent government order "freezing" essential workers in certain industries.

Married In England

Miss Dorothy Thirlwell, daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Thirlwell, of Worthing, Sussex, England, whose marriage to Lieut. Albert E. Sayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Sayers of Peterborough, was solemnized at St. George's Church, Eastergate, Barnham, Sussex, England. Rev. Canon Nash officiated, assisted by the regimental padre.

Girls Enlist In Services For V.A.D. Work

During the past few months the problem of nurses aides has become acute throughout the province and V.A.D. workers, who played such an important role in the last war, are once more coming to the fore in civilian institutions and in military hospitals across the country.

To qualify as a hospital aide, a girl must have her St. John Ambulance certificate in First Aid and either the Red Cross or St. John certificate in Home Nursing. The St. John First Aid is essential, and Miss Mary Greer, Reg.N. in charge of the local Bigade, feels that girls interested in nursing, will in many cases after taking this course, enter V.A.D. work.

A V.A.D. girl assists the Nursing Sisters in military hospitals. She may sign to serve only in her own home town, anywhere in Canada, or Canada and overseas. To qualify as a member of the V.A.D.'s a girl must be between the age of 18 and 44, in good health, without dependent children, and a British subject. They are posted, on 3 months probation, to military hospitals. There they are under the supervision of the Nursing Sisters, and help in the wards. A good chance for advancement is provided, and V.A.D.'s are promoted much the same as the members of the armed forces.

Attached To Navy

There are three members of the Peterborough Brigade in the armed forces at the present time. Agnes Sands and Mary Trotter are in the R.C.A.F. and Gwen Dolman is in the Navy. Miss Dolman, who was home on leave last week, had been stationed at Halifax, and is now at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis.

She loves her work and says it is the greatest experience she has ever had. As a V.A.D. she works in the wards of the hospital, and also takes a course of lectures similar to, but not as extensive as those taken by nurses-in-training. Miss Dolman said that she found her St. John Ambulance First Aid and Home Nursing an invaluable aid to her. Her knowledge of anatomy and circulation, and the practical training in bandaging learned in her St. John work enabled her to grasp more easily the rudiments of the course, and she advanced quickly.

Life in a military hospital is exciting and interesting, Miss Dolman declared and the V.A.D. work offers a great opportunity to girls interested in nursing, and who want to do their bit to relieve the critical shortage of nurses she related. As a V.A.D. attached to a Navy hospital, Miss Dolman has the same privileges as Navy personnel, and has been aboard a submarine, and was also aboard H.M.S. Renown.

Class Beginning

The only class for this winter of the St. John Ambulance First Aid and Home Nursing will commence on Monday, November 1. It will be held in the Salvation Army Hall, and will begin at 8 o'clock. Girls wishing to take this course will register with Miss M. Greer, the local Brigade Superintendent, on the first night. The course is from 8 to 10 weeks in length, and Monday night is the regular meeting night. The two-hour period from 8 o'clock to 10 o'clock is divided into two periods of one hour each. There is one hour for lectures, and one hour for demonstration and practice. Dr. R. A. Kelly will be the lecturer.

Albert Sayers Weds Overseas

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Thirlwell, daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Thirlwell of Worthing, Sussex, England, to Lieut. Wilbert E. Sayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Sayers of Peterborough, was solemnized at St. George's Church, Eastergate Barnham, Sussex, England. Rev. Canon Nash officiated, assisted by the regimental padre. The service was choral.

The bride wore a dress of white satin embroidered with gold thread, a net veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of pale pink rosebuds. Her matron of honor was dressed in a period gown of pink, blue and white muslin.

A guard of honor was formed by the groom's old section as the couple left the church.

The reception was held at Roselands, Barnham, Sussex, the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. A. Bultitude, friends of the bride.

For travelling, the bride chose a dress of pale pink, and a gray coat and hat.

For Friday, October 29

ACCORDING to the lunar transits this day holds splendid promise for promotion preferment, favors, and for the accomplishment of securing future good fortune as well as honorable position. It should be a propitious time for dealing with superiors and those in power for such marks of appreciation. However it is recommended that the rules and regulations, the routine codes, not be lost sight of, lest there be some miscarriage of aspirations. There may be trivial delays or disappointments, but shun petty annoyance or rash words.

Those whose birthday it is have a year in which there may be a happy fulfillment of plans and purposes for placing the future affairs and income, as well as established and secure position in the minds and hearts of superiors, those in position and elders. Promotion, preferment and favors may be forthcoming, but adhere to the codes, lest there be some criss-cross of cherished ideas. In small annoyance shun sharp words or acts prompted by the emotional impulses.

A child born on this day should have many excellent traits and talents attracting the support and substantial returns from employers, superiors or elders. It should shine in their esteem, if it refrains from emotional urges.

DOROTHY DIX

YOUNGEST CHILD ALWAYS MOST FAVORED BY LOVING PARENTS

Mother, Weary of Coercing, Gives Last Born Opportunities Denied Older Youths.

DEAR MISS DIX—Why is is that mothers always baby the youngest child in the family, while the rest are disciplined within an inch of their lives? I am the youngest in a family of seven children, all well-bred and well-mannered but me and I was spoiled to death. Never made to do anything I didn't want to do. Everyone made to give in to me.

Today I am 26 and married to the finest man in the world. He has a good job, we have our own home, a car and all the luxuries of life, but I am most unhappy and am utterly lonesome. I have no friends because I have never thought of anyone but myself. I chased others away from me by my mean, selfish disposition. Even my husband says that I have done nothing to keep our marriage intact; that he only stays with me because he loves me, but he doesn't know why he does.

In my saner moments I make resolutions to change, but I don't know where to begin, and I soon fall back into the old habits. All this I blame on my upbringing. Is there any hope for me?

SALLY.

Natural For Parents To Favor Youngest Child

ANSWER — Why the youngest child is practically always Mother's white-haired darling, no one knows. Maybe it is because that by the time Mother gets to the end of rearing a big family her good right arm has lost its strength and she is so worn out coercing a lot of headstrong boys and girls along the straight and narrow path, that she just gives up and lets the baby do as it pleases. Or maybe it is because she has gotten to the time of life when the Grandma complex develops, which leads to the cheerful theory that no matter what sort of brats you make of children, they will turn into angels when they are grownup.

Anyway, it is a fact that parents seem to have a peculiar tenderness for their youngest and never subject them to the discipline they gave their older children. This has always been true in all the ages. Even the Bible tells of how aged Jacob made a coat of many colors for little Joseph and "loved him more than any of his children because he was the son of his old age," and that his older brothers were so jealous of their father's partiality to him that they sold him into slavery in a far country. And it was the young prodigal son for whom the father slayed the fatted calf and made a feast upon his return, not the older son who stayed home and did his duty.

In modern times it is just the same. The older boys and girls are put to work as soon as they are out of high-school and the girls, at least, are expected to help support the family, but baby sister goes to college and is given her own car on her birthday. The older sisters were not allowed to have dates until they were almost old maids, but the youngest girl steps out as soon as she pleases, and Papa and Mama don't haul her over the coals for not coming home by ten o'clock. They think it is cute for her to defy them and come and go as she pleases.

All of which is patently unjust, but the older children have played in luck if they only knew it, for they have been given the discipline that makes them fine men and women, fitted to wrestle successfully with the problems of life, whereas the baby has grown up selfish, spoiled and utterly unable to deal with a world that doesn't take her Father's and Mother's attitude towards her. For a brattish child makes always a brattish woman, than whom there is no more unpopular individual.

A woman not long ago complained to me about how cruelly her daughter treated her. The daughter, still a young woman, had been divorced from three husbands with none of whom she could get along, and she blamed her mother for it. "You made me mean and selfish," said the daughter. "You brought me up never to consider anybody but myself and my own pleasure, and no man would stand me. I have never had a friend because I am so overbearing that nobody likes me, and I am the most miserable of people, and you are the cause of it."

And the woman was right. Her mother had made her what she was. She was still a spoiled baby and she would always be a spoiled baby to the end of the chapter. For it is almost impossible for anyone to change the habits and thinking that their mothers have cultivated in them.

DEAR MISS DIX — I have a daughter just 15 who is insisting upon getting married. She is in the third grade of grammar school and I want her to finish school, but she refuses to go any more. The boy she wants to marry has nothing but the small salary he earns and they couldn't possibly live on that. She loves to drink and keep late hours. What can I do about her? I have talked to her and threatened her, but it doesn't seem to help any.

WORRIED MOTHER.

Discipline of Child Begins at Cradle

ANSWER — Evidently you have been a very lax mother who has let her daughter do just as she pleased ever since she was born, and so you have no authority over her now. You have to begin disciplining children when they are in the cradle. You can't give them their heads until they are 15 and then try to control them. It is too late. So you can't keep your little girl from making this foolish marriage that will ruin her life if she is bent and determined on doing it. She won't listen to you.

But perhaps the boy will. Try to make him realize what a burden a wife will be to him if he marries before he is able to support a family. Sit down and figure out with him how every cent he makes will have to go by buying groceries and rent and clothes and shoes, how driven he will be if he is always in debt, and how he will never have any of the pleasures that a boy of his age has a right to indulge himself in. Maybe if he can see himself the victim of a too early marriage, you can induce him to put it off until he is at least getting a better salary.

DEAR MISS DIX—There is a woman members of our family who pitches a tantrum whenever she is crossed in any way. She goes into a rage, screams at the top of her voice. waves her arms and stamps her feet, puts on a regular show, and makes herself so obnoxious that we all walk on eggs for fear of rousing her and precipitating such a scene.

Our mother spoiled her and she always had her own way. Now since Mother is gone she is very much worse and puts no restraint on herself whatever. I think she acts exactly like the town bully who swaggers about threatening to fight and thereby keeps everybody terrified. What would you do about our sister?

TROUBLED.

ANSWER—I have always believed that a family could cure the member who kept the household terrorized by throwing a hysterical fit in order to get what she wanted, by giving her a dose of her own medicine. Give her a scare by affecting to believe that she has suddenly gone crazy and that you are about to commit her to an asylum. You will find that will make her avoid tantrums in the future.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Holds Bridge

The green room of the Y.W.C.A. was the setting for the annual bridge and tea of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. Wednesday evening. Mrs. Leach, senior regent for the Chapter, received, assisted by Mrs. Bert Jackson, and Mrs. Gilbert Borland. Mrs. W. A. Davern, the treasurer, also assisted Mrs. Leach.

There were approximately 100 ladies present, and 24 tables of bridge. Mrs. Bruce MacLean and Mrs. Fred Hall were in charge of the tables. The prizes were won by Phyllis Coleman, Mrs. M. White, and Mrs. W. Langford. A dainty lunch of tea and cakes was served by the refreshment committee, Mrs. W. A. Burrell and Mrs. H. C. Sherwood, assited by Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. Fred Mowry, Mrs. A. McConkey and Mrs. G. A. Borland.

At the conclusion of the tea, Mrs. Leach thanked the ladies and expressed the hope that those present had enjoyed the evening as much as she and her committee had enjoyed planning and carrying it through.

Some Answers to Wartime Cake Problems

Who said "NO CAKE?" You can make wartime cakes that are just about as fine cakes as you ever baked—in spite of some difficulties over ingredients like shortening or sugar or eggs. It's all a matter of the right recipes, carefully followed, with good ingredients.

The Question of Butter

You have your choice of three ways of reducing the amount of butter you use in cake-baking—or of eliminating butter entirely, if you wish.

1. Wherever the recipe calls for butter, use half butter and half some other kind of shortening.

2. Use some other shortening entirely in place of the butter called for in the recipe. This can be done with all Swans Down Cake Flour recipes.

3. Make some of the many wonderful Swans Down Cakes which call for no shortening of any kind! Here's one you can try.

Champion Sponge Cake

1¼ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1¼ teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 egg yolks — 4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt — 1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups sugar — ⅔ cup boiling water

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add lemon rind to egg yolks and beat until thick and light. Add ½ cup sugar gradually, beating constantly. Beat egg whites until light and foamy throughout; add remaining ¾ cup of sugar very gradually and continue beating until stiff enough to hold up in definite, satiny peaks. Add vanilla. Add boiling water to egg yolks, stirring well; then add flour all at once and beat with spoon until smooth. Fold quickly into egg whites. Turn into ungreased 9-inch tube pan and bake in slow oven (325°F.) 1 hour, or until done. Invert pan 1 hour, or until cold.

What About the Sweetener?

The three usual sweeteners for cakes—sugar, corn syrup or honey—are all a bit of a problem these days. But there are Swans Down recipes that call for very little sugar—others that use part sugar and part syrup or honey—others that use all syrup or honey. Here's one fine example—a light, tempting layer cake, using only 4 tablespoonfuls of shortening and only one egg.

One-Egg Cake

2 cups Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1 egg, unbeaten — ¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla — ¾ cup milk
1 cup sugar*

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream together well. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes.

*If substituting corn syrup or honey, use 1 cup and decrease milk to ½ cup. Or use ½ cup of syrup and ½ cup of sugar; decrease milk to ½ cup and 1 tablespoon.

There are several wartime ways you can serve this cake. Spread jam between the layers. Or ice with your favorite icing if you have the sugar to spare. Or there's a sugarless recipe on the Baker's Chocolate wrapper for a luscious chocolate frosting.

For Better Cakes

Made from soft wheat grown in one particular part of Canada, Swans Down is a special cake flour that makes better baking easy. The choicest part of the wheat is selected, milled by Swans Down "Controlled Milling", then sifted again and again through silk, until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour.

Eggs a Bit Scarce?

Many women think that it takes a lot of eggs to make a light, tender cake. But not if you use Swans Down Cake Flour. One of the special features of Swans Down is that it responds so wonderfully in quite simple recipes. You can make splendid Swans Down Cakes with only one or two eggs—even with no eggs. Try this eggless chocolate cake. Its lightness and tenderness will amaze you. But, of course, no ordinary flour could give such results.

Eggless Chocolate Cake

2 squares Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate
1¾ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1 cup milk — ¾ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon salt — 1 cup sugar
⅓ cup shortening — 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine chocolate and milk in top of double boiler and cook over rapidly boiling water 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend with rotary egg beater; cool. Sift flour once, measure, add soda, salt and sugar and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add flour mixture, vanilla, and chocolate mixture, and stir until all flour is dampened. Then beat vigorously 1 minute. Bake in two greased and lightly floured 8-inch pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 20 minutes.

Another Aid to Better Baking

Calumet Baking Powder helps you get the best from all baking ingredients. That's because it's a double-action baking powder. First, in your mixing bowl, Calumet sends thousands of tiny bubbles surging through your batter to make it light and fluffy. Then, another leavening action takes place in your oven, where thousands more tiny bubbles lift cake or biscuits gently and evenly to their proper height. Order Calumet today from your grocer.

Sunday

Roasted Rolled Ribs of Beef
Pan Roast Parsnips and Onions
(See notes)
Roast Beef Gravy
Shredded Carrot and Celery Salad
Apple Dumplings with Lemon Sauce
(notes)
Coffee

NOTES: If you are using a covered roaster, baked vegetables conserve more vitamins and minerals than any other method—if you already do not have the habit of pan-roasting your vegetables—get it started!

To make Apple Dumplings roll out plain pastry to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut in large circles—about 6 or 7 inches in diameter. Cut tart apples in thin slices. Put a small amount of them in centre of each circle of pastry. Sprinkle with sugar and a little nutmeg or mace and dot with butter. Moisten edge of pastry with water. Bring opposite edges to centre and press tightly together. Prick top and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes—then reduce heat to 350 and bake 15 minutes longer.

To make Lemon Sauce mix 1 tablespoon cornstarch with 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and 1-3 cup boiling water in order given. Stir over heat until it boils, then reduce heat and stir for 5 minutes. Add butter, about 1 tablespoon if you can spare it, and shake of salt and nutmeg. This sauce should be cooked over boiling water to remove taste of raw cornstarch for at least 10 minutes.

DOLL'S SNOW SUIT

"Love me, love my doll," says little Curly-head. So think of the hit you'll make if you knit her dolly this snow suit and cap for Christmas! You'll make the attractive contrasting collar and cap trimming of loop stitch. Use up odd balls fo yarn. Pattern 704 contains directions for snow suit for 14-and 18-inch doll; stitches.

Beginning With a Skirt

De Pinna

The skirt with its flat, deep kickpleats is of pure wool woven with a colorful giant plaid. The cardigan which matches the pullover is of the shorter, fitted design which becomes most figures.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A SKIRT and shirt and pullover wardrobe is a lifesaver to any woman, and especially handy for the suburbanite. Into this easily assembled costume one can ring any number of changes, indulge in color enthusiasm, skip dry cleaning problems in a war age.

The many fur-lined Chesterfield type coats, the bright fleece or camel hair coats so popular this season and so easy to find, go well with skirt and pullover or blouse combination, as do the currently popular felt berets.

Economical Platter Dinners When Your Funds Run Short

By MARY MOORE

A good salesman talked me into buying more Victory Bonds than my budget was geared for so I had to cut corners.

At the market I played the old childhood game of shopping to a certain amount of money instead of buying what I wanted and counting the cost at home.

I've told you before, I think, how our mother would give my sister and I 50 cents between us and send us to market to see how much of how many different things we could buy. I remember once we bowled mother over when we returned with a bushel of cauliflowers (35c); a big Hubbard squash (5c); and an 11-quart basket tomatoes (10c). That was twenty-five years before the days of ceiling prices.

But the point I am coming to is this—if you've bought so many Victory Bonds you have to economize on clothes and food there is plenty of cheap food to be had—and I'm here to prove my point.

My Number One idea is a:

Harvest Home Platter—No. 1

consisting of

Bologna Roll-Ups (see note)
Diced Beets
Caulifloweretts
Carrot Strips

Obviously the reason we are suggesting bologna is because it is unrationed and cheap. Break spaghetti into 6-inch pieces and cook in boiling salted water until tender. When ready to serve platter, drain spaghetti and wrap a small bunch of the spaghetti in each slice of bologna and roll up and fasten with toothpick.

Arrange diced beets in centre of platter; place twelve Roll-ups around platter like face of clock; between Roll-ups place cooked caulifloweretts and strips of boiled carrots. Top the caulifloweretts with white sauce and sprinkle white sauce with paprika. If this arrangement is carefully and neatly done the platter is attractive and unusual and will serve six people generously for 60 cents.

Platter Dinner Oven Baked—No. 2

Baked Noodle Ring (see note)
with Spinach Baked Onions (Casserole of Cinnamon and Ginger
Pears in Syrup for dessert, see note)

The Noodle Ring contains four eggs and 1 cup cheese and that is sufficient protein food for a dinner for 5 people.

To make the Noodle Ring cook 8 ounces noodles in boiling salted water until tender, then rinse and drain. Alternate layers of noodles and 1-3 cup bread crumbs and 1 cup cheese in buttered ring mould. Combine 2½ cups milk with 4 beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and pour this over the noodles in baking dish. Stand in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes. Cheese may be omitted if desired and replaced with 3 tablespoons butter.

Turn Noodle Ring out on large hot platter, fill hole in centre with well-drained boiled spinach. Surround ring with Baked onions which have a dot of butter in the centre of each and a sprinkling of paprika, and garnish between onions with slices of either raw or boiled and crumbed tomatoes, and parsley. The Main Course of this dinner costs 50 cents at prevailing prices in our community.

Casserole of Pears

This is a little irrelevant but is so good with this dinner I am throwing it in for good measure.

Wash, pare, and core 5 large pears, leaving the stem on one half of each pear. Arrange in buttered baking dish. Make a syrup of ½ cup brown sugar, juice and grated rind 1 lemon, 1 2-inch piece of stick cinnamon, and ¼ teaspoon or less of powered ginger, and 1 cup water. Pour this syrup after boiling it 1 minute, over the pears, put on cover and bake at 360 deg. Fahr. for about ½ hour or until pears are fairly tender. These are good served hot or cold—when I make them I make double the quantity and serve them for breakfast on the following morning too, quite cold.

A Thrifty Platter Dinner For Epicures

Crumbed and Fried Slices of Veal Kidneys
Gentle-fry Sliced Onions
Boiled Potatoes in Parsley Cream Sauce

If you do not have veal kidneys in your cooking repertory you are missing a treat. Slice them in ½-inch slices and soak in salt water 10 minutes. Dry and dip in fine crumbs and fry in cooking oil until brown, turning once.

The onions must be done over slow heat to keep them from getting too dark—if they are dark they spoil the appearance of the platter—cooking oil is a good compromise between butter and lard for frying onions—add salt and pepper judiciously.

The potatoes must be boiled whole. Arrange the onions in centre of hot platter, place the slices of veal kidneys and the potatoes around the mound of onions, alternately. Top the potatoes with a spoonful of parsley sauce. Sprinkle the onions with paprika. Serve very hot. This dinner will cost 50 cents and will serve six people.

Friday Platter Dinner

Fried Codfish Cakes
Broiled Crumbed Green Tomatoes
Harvard Beets

Don't make a hash of codfish cakes because they are humble food, — they can be — if you will make them—delicious morsels fit for kings (the few there are left!)

Codfish Cakes

(as they should be made)

Six medium-sized freshly boiled potatoes, 2 cups shredded soaked drained salt cod, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup milk. Boil potatoes and mash. Add codfish and eggs. Mix thoroughly. Add pepper and milk. Beat until fluffy. Drop from spoon into deep hot fat at 375 deg. Fahr. and fry until golden—about 10 minutes. Drain on unglazed paper or paper kitchen towel. This mixture may also be baked as a loaf in greased baking dish until top is gold. Or it may be pan fried in a little butter.

Tomatoes in some form are always good with codfish.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION—I read your column every week and find many things very useful. I am writing to ask you to help me out. Would you if possible give me a recipe for pumpkin butter? My mother used to make it years ago and it was very good.

MRS. BRAGG.

Pumpkin Butter

ANSWER—Ten pounds pumpkin after it is pared and seeded and cut into 2 or 1-inch cubes, 1 quart plus 1 cup apple cider, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 tablespoons cloves, 1 tablespoon ground allspice, 15 lbs. sugar; (water may be used to replace the apple cider, when you would need to add the grated rind 2 lemons). Steam the pumpkin until tender (or if it is convenient for you to steam such a large amount cook it until tender in as small amount of water as possible—when it will have to be stirred very frequently). Force through strainer to make pumpkin smooth then add all remaining ingredients, adding the spices to a small amount of sugar to prevent them from falling into a lump. Stir over low heat constantly until of the desired consistency—this requires from 1½ to 3 hours depending on moisture in the fresh pumpkin and whether you steamed or boiled the pumpkin tender. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

QUESTION — There are some recipes abroad for making cookies with melted chocolate bars, and none of the people I know have them but I have tasted them at teas in the past few weeks. Please send me some of these if you have them. I don't think they contain any sweetening except the chocolate bars.

ELLA NEWSON.

P.S.—I'd like a good chocolate pie filling if you have room.

Unbaked Chocolate Delights

One lb. sweet milk chocolate (either bought in the form of bars or in chunks or from any candy supplier), 2-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 cup chopped dates or raisins or glace cherries, ¼ teaspoon salt, 5 cups corn flakes. Melt both chocolates over hot water. Combine nutmeats, dates, salt and corn flakes. Add to chocolate and stir carefully until well mixed. Drop from teaspoon onto waxed paper; chill until firm—about 1 hour. Makes 3½ dozen cookies. These look nice on a plate with small shortbread cookies.

Chocolate Pie Filling

Four and one-half tablespoons cornstarch, 1-3 to ½ cup sugar, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 2¼ cups milk, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 3 beaten egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, baked tart or baked pie shell, meringue made of the remaining whites plus 5 tablespoons sugar. Mix well the cornstarch, sugar and salt. Heat the milk in top of double boiler with the chocolate, and beat with rotary beater to make perfectly smooth. Add the sugar mixture, stir until thick and let cook for 15 minutes. Beat the yolks and add a little of the hot mixture to them, then stir the egg mixture into the hot mixture and let cook 5 minutes longer. Add vanilla. Pour into baked pie or tart shells when cool, cover with meringue and bake in slow oven until meringue is golden.

Simple Stars

By ALICE ALDEN

THE NEW crop of opera stars, being young and beautiful, have no use for the opulent clothes that used to be part of the great prima donna tradition. Lovely Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan Opera star, goes in for a squirrel coat dyed sable brown and a brown pheasant trimmed hat, rather than sables and aigrettes. Here she wears her favorite Autumn outfit, a suit with jacket top of corded silk plaid over a blue wool skirt.

To Help A Child Build Up
AFTER AN ILLNESS

To hasten recovery after illness many doctors advise New, Improved Ovaltine.

New, Improved Ovaltine supplies concentrated nourishment, specially processed for easy digestion. This food-drink usually stays down when nothing else seems to agree.

New, Improved Ovaltine is richer than ever in certain vitally necessary food elements, including the Vitamins A, B_1 and D, and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron, which may be deficient in convalescent diets.

Try this "Building" Food

When in need of "building up", try taking New, Improved Ovaltine three or four times a day. Taken warm at bedtime, it helps the body to relax and fosters refreshing sleep. Buy Ovaltine at drug or food store today.

IN MEMORIAM

HOPCROFT — In loving memory of our dear father, Martin J. Hopcroft who passed away one year ago today, October 28, 1942.

And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep,
His memory we shall always keep.
— Ever remembered by his Daughters, Mrs. F. Smith and Mrs. A. Cockerill.

CULLEN — In loving memory of Mrs. Helena Cullen who passed away, October 28, 1941.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall.
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
— Ever remembered by her Family.

Boston Bruins Bow To Quebec

QUEBEC, Oct. 28.—(CP) Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League defeated Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, 6-4, in an exhibition game here last night. The entire gate receipts go to army charities.

The local Aces, planning a big season in the senior group, ran up an early lead which they managed to hold for the rest of the game Bruins' spirited attempt to even the score in the third period roughed up the game somewhat, but Bouvrette held his ground in the Quebec nets to maintain a safe two-point margin.

In the absence of Art Ross, confined to his room with a touch of laryngitis, Dit Clapper handled the Beantown boys. He played most of the rookies who have been training here with the Bruins. It is understood that most of these young players, the majority of whom are 17 and 18 years of age, will be farmed out to the Boston Olympics for the coming season.

For Quebec, Capt. Bill Reay scored two goals, while Roland Rossignol accounted for one goal and two assists.

LAWN BOWLING

The board of directors of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club who were elected on Monday, October 18, for the 1944 season, lost no time in getting down to business. At their first meeting held on Tuesday night, Percy E. Moore was chosen president, Rufus R. Payne vice-president, and Fred M. Brown, secretary-treasurer.

In selecting Mr. Moore as president the board has made a good choice. He, along with Mrs. Moore, has been a member of our club for a great many years; he is well and favorably known to the bowlers of the clubs in this district; he is known as a square shooter, and is highly respected by all members of our club. He was a member of last year's board and has been on many of its committees. Experience he has gained will no doubt play a big part in helping him to steer our club on the right path for 1944.

Besides electing the officers the board appointed committee chairmen, and while some of them are tackling their jobs for the first time others have had years of experience, so taking it all in all, our club seems to be off on the right foot, and it looks as if there will be "good hunting" ahead for us in 1944.

Don't Let the "Jitters" Ruin Your Life

DON'T BE OVERWROUGHT

Be on the lookout for early signs of nerve bankruptcy. Life isn't worth living if you are constantly worried, irritated and depressed. Your doctor can start you on the road to recovery, for you may have some unsuspected physical illness.

If your nerves are too highly strung you should have an outlet for the high spirits — take long walks, devote your valuable energies to an outside interest—social work, amateur theatricals, and when you are ready for bed you will be so tired and relaxed sleep will come immediately.

Perhaps also you need a check-up of your physical health—eye-strain, anaemia may cause nerves. Or you may find certain stimulants, such as tea or coffee, are bad in your case.

Change your jitters into vitality charm. Our 32-page booklet, by a well-known physician, explains physical and mental causes for "nerves," gives advice on insomnia, fatigue, nervous indigestion. Includes directions for correct diet, body care.

For your copy OVERCOMING "NERVES" AND EVERYDAY HEALTH PROBLEMS send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Jams Foot In Pipe

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (CP)—Jimmy Porter, age four, contrived to get his foot caught in a breather pipe protruding from the lawn of his home. It may have been quite a feat to insert his foot into the pipe's mouth, but it proved even more difficult to get it out again. The fire department finally succeeded.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

GAIN OFFSETS DANGER

STUDIOUS bidders frequently are afraid to open the auction with the call of a suit which lacks high cards. The danger they fear is that their partners may be induced to lead such a suit in case the opponents buy the contract, and that the lead may give the declarer a trick or two which otherwise would not be made. In letting this fear predominate, they overlook the fact that, in a great majority of cases, the opening bidder's side becomes the declarer, in which case avoidance of that suit by the opening leader may give the contractor an advantage.

North: ♠ K Q 3 2 ♥ 5 ♦ K J 8 7 4 ♣ J 8 3

West: ♠ 5 ♥ A J 4 3 2 ♦ 10 6 3 2 ♣ 9 6 5

East: ♠ J 10 7 6 4 ♥ K Q 6 ♦ Q ♣ K 10 4 2

South: ♠ A 9 8 ♥ 10 9 8 7 ♦ A 9 5 ♣ A Q 7

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

	South	West	North	East
1.	1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
	1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
	3 NT
2.	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
	1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
	3 NT

Actual bidding on this deal, in a rubber game, was as given in the first sequence above. West's normal lead would have been a heart, but he was steered away from it by South's original bid of the suit. He wanted the hearts led to him instead of by him. So he picked his singleton spade, reckoning that this must be his partner's suit, and therefore the best chance to get East into the lead. South, of course, won and ran nine tricks, refusing to take a chance with the club finesse for an extra trick, as loss of that finesse would have caused him to be set at once, probably down two.

In the second table is given the bidding which a kibitzer would have recommended. It was by one of those chaps who almost never opens with a four-card major, and who also does not understand that the bid of a topless suit creates an advantage as well as a disadvantage, from the standpoint of its influence on the opening lead. His bidding would have got himself set, with five immediate heart tricks by the defenders.

South: ♠ Q 10 9 4 ♥ 9 4 ♦ Q J 7 6 3 ♣ K 6

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

In a contract of 6-Spades, what is the correct way for South to play his trump suit after West, who had opened the bidding with 1-Heart, leads the K and then switches to the club 4?

Lonergan Admits Killing Wife After Quarrel Over Baby

By W. PETER MACDONALD—Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—(AP).—Bleary-eyed and weary, Wayne Lonergan stumbled up the platform steps at the police line-up today and meekly answered questions preliminary to his arraignment later in homicide court on a charge of slaying his pretty heiress wife, Patricia, in her lavish Beekman Hill apartment.

"Wayne, did you make a statement to the District Attorney regarding this case?" asked Captain Edward Dillon.

"Yes I did," answered the strapping 25-year-old R.C.A.F. aircraftman.

"Were you ever in trouble before?" inquired Dillon.

"No, sir," answered Lonergan.

After his brief appearance in police headquarters Lonergan was hurried to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's office, where Hogan announced late yesterday that the Toronto-born airman had confessed killing his wife by striking her with two heavy brass candlesticks and strangling her Sunday.

Police have reported finding fingerprints on the candlesticks but there has been no announcement that they have been compared with Lonergan's.

Search For Uniform.

First indication that Lonergan had broken after almost 24 hours incessant questioning came yesterday afternoon when police were dispatched to the East River to grapple for the aircraftman's missing uniform which Lonergan had claimed was stolen from him Saturday night by a soldier he said he had befriended.

Police resumed their hunt for the missing garments today.

Hogan said Lonergan gave as his reason for the crime his wife's refusal to let him see their 18-months-old son, Wayne William Lonergan, who lay asleep in another room in the Lonergan apartment.

When he was booked last night he said: "I'm sorry for the whole thing."

Described by Hogan as "intelligent, stubborn and depraved," the lanky aircraftman began his purported confession after facing Maurice "Murray" Worcester, a Bridgeport, Conn., war worker and honorably discharged soldier.

Alibi Exploded.

Lonergan had maintained during his four days of questioning that he was at a friend's New York apartment with an American soldier named Murray Worcester at the time his estranged wife was slain. He claimed Worcester had stolen his R.C.A.F. uniform.

"Do you know this man—have you ever seen him before?" asked Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet. Lonergan shrugged a decided "No."

Then Grumet identified him. Lonergan admitted his story was fiction, according to Hogan.

After murdering his wife, Lonergan, police said, went to the apartment of John Harjes, a friend, doff-

Russian Tank Force Hits Krivoi Rog

Major Battles Rages In 2nd Day Against Hun Armor

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP)—A mighty Russian tank force crushing down on Krivoi Rog, strategic Dnieper loop city, from the North, began its second day of battle today with German armor for possession of the iron mine and rail centre.

The battle is "still in full progress," the German high command communique said. The Nazis asserted they had destroyed 115 Russian tanks.

South of Dnieper Loop, Red Army troops were plunging through the wide steppes of the Southern Ukraine less than 60 miles from Perekop, last door of escape open to the Nazi Crimean garrisons, Moscow said.

The Russians, advancing at a rate of from 12 to 18 miles a day, would reach the gates of Kerekop within a week if that pace is maintained.

Capture of the village of Nizhne-Saragozhy, highway junction in the heart of the steppe country 46 miles west of Melitopol and 44 miles from the Dnieper River town of Kakhovka, cleared the way for the rapid westward surge.

At Krivoi Rog, big mining and industrial centre northwest of Melitopol, a strengthened German garrison was stubbornly resisting massed Russian assaults from three sides, but capture of the city appeared inevitable as the Russian pressure increased. Other Red Army forces surged 35 miles to the northwest of the besieged city to capture Marianovska, cutting the Snamenka-Nikolaev railway leading to the Bug River, next German defence line to the west, a Moscow communique reported.

Increasing the pressure on the Crimea, units of Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin's southern "desert army" were swinging down from Melitopol to stab at Perekop, northeastern gate of the Peninsula. Moscow said they were close on the heels of the fleeing army.

Red Army warplanes, complete masters of the skies over southern Russia, destroyed more than 300 army trucks which the Germans were using in their flight to the Bug river across the Nogaisk Step-

Civilians Suggest Rome Be Made Holy City 11-Man Commission And Swiss Would Rule

BERNE, Oct. 29 (AP)—A group of Rome civilians, with the reported approval of Pope Pius, has suggested the declaration of the Italian capital as a neutral "Holy City" under the supervision of a non-political 11-man commission and a neutral Swiss delegation, the Swiss Telegraphic Agency said today in a dispatch from Rome.

The plan, based on the Lateran Pact which recognizes Vatican City as neutral and inviolate, would extend that neutrality to a radius of 12 miles from the hub of Vatican City.

High Roman personalities were said to have asked the Swiss government to name a delegation which would assure the removal of any military installation from the proposed territory.

(Dispatches to Stockholm newspapers said the Vatican had again inquired of the German and Allied governments concerning the possibility of preventing Rome from becoming a battlefield.)

Say Canada's Labor Problem Ranks First In Importance

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Oct. 29—(CP).—Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, chairman of the National War Labor Board, said today that present wage controls have proved "inadequate" and to combat a "dangerously high" movement of wages "another and more simple anchorage" must be found and "we must start all over again."

Dealing with wage controls and general labor problems in an address prepared for delivery to the annual meeting here of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Justice McTague said Canada had been singularly backward" in dealing with the problem of collective bargaining and now was in a position similar to that of the United States before the passage of the Wagner Act. But it did not follow that Canada should "slavishly" follow the United States' legislation.

Must Compromise.

Describing Canada's labor problem as "probably the most important one of the home front," he said:

"If labor looked more carefully at the balance sheet and earning statement and industry looked more sympathetically at the workers' welfare things would work out more smoothly and equitably."

"Just so long as either closes its eyes to the other's problems there will continue to arise political factions to change the system whether by violent methods or by the process of gradual painless and aimless confiscation."

Turning to collective bargaining the Board chairman said that in an abstract sense the right of the workers to bargain collectively had never been extensively challenged by Canadian employers in recent years.

"The rub has always come when the question ceased to be an abstract one and became a practical one of the employer in his own plant," he added.

Must Have Contract

Opposition of employers was usually on grounds that unions concerned should display a certain responsibility—a contention which had "a great deal of merit."

"However, responsibility is not something that is born. It is something that develops as the result of an association. How can a union ever demonstrate its responsibility without a contract?"

". . . there can be doubt that we have many irresponsible labor leaders—a particularly large crop of professional advocates has come to the fore in more recent years. But we have responsible labor leaders too, lots of them . . .

"There is not nearly so much trouble in the offing as certain people seem to anticipate. The average Canadian workmen is a pretty reasonable person and I think we must all pay tribute to what he has done in this war up to date.

"It is perhaps but human that he seeks higher wages to better

General Canvass Develops Slump

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 — (CP). — Thursday subscriptions to the Fifth Victory Loan totalled $59,840,000, bringing to $703,297,150 the cumulative total after 10 days of the three-week campaign for $1,200,000,000, National Loan headquarters reported today.

"The 10th day's yield was lower than average and lower than had been expected," said today's press statement, reporting that the corresponding totals in last spring's $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan were $66,737,100 and $630,843,600.

"General sales to the public have been rather low during the past three days. They have not fallen materially below the corresponding days of the Fourth Victory, but in the Fifth Loan the aim is to increase the number of subscribers and also to increase the dollar amount considerably so that the objective of $525,000,000 from the public may be realized."

Invest a Million

Confederation Life Association of Toronto, with an investment of $6,500,000, led Special Names' subscriptions announced to-day. Lever Bros., Ltd., of Toronto, invested $1,000,000 and Massey Harris Co., Ltd., Toronto, $400,000.

The armed services have more than $22,779,200 after less than 10 days of canvassing.

Far from complete, the Royal Canadian Navy's standing is considerably more than $2,964,000. Atlantic command has boosted its total to $1,756,500 against a quota of $1,400,000 and many ships at sea have contributed more than 300 per cent of quota. One reported sales more than 500 per cent.

East Leading

In the race between the Atlantic naval and eastern air commands, the latter leads with $1,707,500 or 131.3 per cent. Navy has 125.42 per cent.

The army is over the 100 per cent mark with $10,049,200 against an objective of $10,000,000. It went over the top with receipt of $1,083,850 in overseas subscriptions, exclusive of $169,000 from Kiska.

A total of $2,620,000 for the No. 1 training command, Toronto, put the R.C.A.F.'s grand total over the $10,000,000 line to $10,013,350 — $538,600 more than it raised in the whole of the last loan.

Allied Ships Shell Minturo Behind German Lines 5th Army Threatens Teano

Massed Artillery Pounds 8th Army Along Coastal Road Canadians Drive On Isernia

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Correspondent

ALGIERS, Oct. 29—(AP).—A cruiser and destroyers, pouring shells into Marshal Erwin Rommel's line of communication along the ancient Appian Way, pounded the Minturo area to the rear of his Mount Massico positions, Allied Headquarters announced today, as the British 8th and Allied 5th Armies punched out short advances in the face of massed artillery.

There was fighting all along the front stretching from Tyrrhenian Sea to Adriatic. On 8th Army's front Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's veterans clashed bitterly with the enemy on the Adriatic coast road near San Salvo, two miles north of the Trigno river and three miles inland, where the Germans were making every effort to prevent enlargement of the shallow Allied bridgehead north of the stream.

Fifteen miles inland, where Gen. Montgomery's warriors have not yet reached the Trigno, 8th Army units occupied Montefalcone after a five-mile advance from Castelmauro.

Still farther inland, the left wing of Gen. Montgomery's forces—the wing with which the Canadian 1st Division is identified—captured Molise, on a 2,500-foot mountain one mile west of Topella Del Sannio, capture of which was announced yesterday.

Molise is about 18 miles east and slightly north of the mountain communications centre of Iserna where the Germans had natural defences. In this area, in the mountains of the Apennines, Italy's rugged "backbone," the Canadians are believed to be driving up a highway toward Iserna, as well as infiltrating the hills to the northeast.

Fighting through a driving rain, Lieut.-Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army smashed through rivulets and up mountain-sides for a gain of three miles in the Sparranise area. They threatened the town of Teano, where four roads join to the east of Mount Massico, the lofty anchor of the Rommel line defending Rome. Teano is 94 miles southeast of the Italian capital.

The 5th Army's coastal flank still faced the Regia Canal, four miles north of the Volturno, in its frontal advance on Mount Massico and Mondragone.

Farther to the northeast, in the Raviscanina region, the 5th Army consolidated its gains in high ground dominating valley roads leading north along the upper Volturno toward Venafro, another key point in the Rommel line.

Allied fighters, along with bombers whose activities had been curtailed by steady rains, ranged out again yesterday to attack road junctions, trains, bridges and enemy positions along the battle area.

Landing fields near Orvieto, Littonia and Foligno were attacked

Lawyer Tries To Shake Story In Murder Trial

By E. V. W. JONES
Associated Press Staff Writer

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 29 (AP)—Grim and determined, Chief Defence Counsel Godfrey Higgs reopened his cross-examination of Capt. James O. Barker of Miami, Fla., in Bahamas Supreme Court today with detailed questions about the burned hairs reported found on Alfred de Marigny's hands and arms after the slaying of Sir Harry Oakes.

The youthful counsel picked up where he left off yesterday in trying to shake Capt. Barker's testimony.

Striding into court for the opening of the 11th day of his trial for the murder of his wealthy father-in-law, de Marigny nodded to court attaches and newsmen before ducking into the prisoner's dock.

Under questioning, Barker said he used a microscope first to examine de Marigny's left fingers.

"I found several burned hairs and some singed," he said. "There were very few which were not affected by the heat."

Previously Barker had testified that anyone in the room at the time Sir Harry was beaten and burned to death likely would have burns on his person.

"I don't recall seeing hairs any place on the accused man's body which were burned all the way to the skin," Barker continued.

About 30 per cent of the hairs on

H P E's Capture Molise Town Storm Heights In Downpour

By WILLIAM STEWART—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 27 (Delayed)—(CP Cable).—The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of the Canadian 1st Division took the town of Molise in the mountains of central Italy today and the 48th Highlanders of Canada, a Toronto unit, made a dawn entry into a town a short distance to the right.

The Canadian troops gained the twin objectives on bald heights of the Apennine ridge west of the great Biferno valley after crawling forward toward the enemy positions and dumping mortar, machine-gun and shell fire upon them.

The two Ontario units occupied the two towns in which the Germans had left strong rearguards and from which they directed artillery fire on the brown slopes across which the Canadians had to move.

Mortars Numerous.

Canadians carried out the last stage of the advance in heavy rain under a dark sky which flashed with fire of Canadian as well as enemy guns. The Germans fought for the towns until the Dominion troops closed in, then hurried away during the night.

The H.P.E.'s took Molise, perched on a 2,500-foot mountain, and 18 miles east and slightly north of the communications centre of Isernia, after a long march down the eastern side of a valley, up its western face and across rolling fields above.

The 48th made their dawn entry into the town a short distance to the right after meeting mortar and machine-gun fire.

(Just possibly this town was Torella dei Sannio, one mile east of Molise. Capture of Torella del Sannio was announced Thursday at Allied headquarters in North Africa, and capture of Molise was disclosed today—Friday.)

One of the strongest positions in the way of the 48th was dug by Germans in a graveyard. It was plastered by artillery and found to be abandoned when the Torontonians marched into the town.

Germans Report Invasion Signs

LONDON, Oct. 29 — (CP). — Invasion-conscious Germans to-day reported increased military activity observed by their reconnaissance planes in South England.

The Berlin radio said a thrust across the Channel might be in preparation, to stem from deliberations in the tri-partite conference at Moscow.

The broadcast told of seeing a considerable increase in the volume of shipping in harbors on Britain's south coast, increased activity by minesweepers in the Channel, and fresh concentrations of troop units.

Moscow Parley Great Success

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29— (AP).—President Roosevelt said to-day that the Moscow conference has been a great success and he indicated it was in its final phases where formal documents of agreement are being drafted.

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference also that he was much in favor of a Senate declaration that to avoid war in the future, the United States will co-operate with others. But he did not care to say that the Connally resolution under discussion in the Senate was adequate.

He said the net results of the meeting of Russian, British and American Foreign Ministers make it a tremendous success not only from the point of view of defining items of agreement, but also from the standpoint of the spirit of it.

Nazis Sentence 519 Patriots

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP)—The Germans have sentenced to death 519 Czech patriots in the Moravian town of Olomouc (Olmuetz), the Czechoslovakian information bureau said today.

All were charged with "acts of terror and sabotage" in the important rail junctions. A number of other Czechs were reported put to death on charges of "being harmful to the German nation."

The mass death sentences by drumhead Nazi courts indicated a general uprising of patriots in the town of 65,000, once recognized as the capital of Moravia. Railways lead from there to Poland, Italy and Germany.

It was the largest group of death sentences reported imposed at one place and one time since the Germans overran the country. More were executed after the assassination of Reinhart Heydrich, Czech "protector" who became known as the hangman, but these were spread over several months.

Czech records in London say 50,000 patriots have been executed.

Internal Strife Plagues Many Countries

Italy And Yugoslavia Examples Of Nations Overwrought By War

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The bitter internal strife which is beginning to rend numerous European countries—even those which are struggling for their lives with the Hitlerites—is symptomatic of vast political changes which the war's end will bring in many parts of the tortured continent.

The outstanding example of the moment is Yugoslavia, one of the world's bravest little nations, where a quarrel among brothers is in the news again. But volcanic rumblings in many other countries indicate a coming upheaval.

The Europe which we knew before this war is on its way out—in fact, it already has gone, and closed the door behind it. We can't see yet whether it will be a better Europe, but it will be a different one.

Can anything be done about it? Not much, it seems, excepting to safeguard the country involved from outside interference during its travail. Self-determination must take its course, so long as it is headed for democracy. Indeed, if any of the big three—Britain, the United States or Russia—should attempt to impose its own political ideas it might produce an Allied rupture.

A fair explanation of what sort of ferment is at work was given the other day by Premier Badoglio, who is head of the co-belligerent Italian Government. One might be rash in accepting all Badoglio's words as golden, but he called the turn when he told the British "8th Army News" publication:

Many Factions.

"People are excited and overwrought after the distress of war. If conditions are too bad and they are without hope they turn to other presumed cures."

Italy, itself is torn with political factions, even while the war tramples the peninsula. Some want to get rid of the Royal House; others are trying to shore up the shaky foundations. Some desire a republic, and Communism has an active following. No man can foresee what will happen politically in Rome.

In Yugoslavia even while the Germans are trying to destroy the country, we have a fierce quarrel between the forces of Gen. Josip (Drug Tito) Broz and the army of General Mihailovic, who is Minister of War in young King Peter's government which now has its seat in Cairo. Each accused the other of making fratricidal warfare. Drug Tito wears the emblems of Communism, as do most of his troops.

In neighboring Greece, native guerilla armies are fighting each other despite the fact that starvation ravages the country. You can understand that if you know your Greeks, for they are political minded. They are fiercely independent, too, and whatever form of government they choose, we may be sure it will be one which the people run themselves.

Swedes Resent Nazi Order

Blockade Would Imperil Food Supply

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 29 — (AP).—Reflecting tension between neutral Sweden and Germany resulting from a virtual Nazi blockade of this country, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today:

"If the Germans don't want to grant passage (of ships) perhaps war developments will give it."

Without hinting whether this referred to possible Swedish action or the war's eventual outcome, the newspaper termed the blockade "humiliating for a neutral state."

Germany notified Sweden yesterday that "military dispositions in the Skagerrak" necessitated a halt to Swedish traffic to the Americas, traffic on which Sweden depended for considerable food.

The Nazis meantime were having other troubles with Sweden's neighbors.

Copenhagen was fined in reprisal for three German soldiers killed when Danish patriots dynamited a coffee shop, and a strict curfew was reimposed on the city.

Troops established a tight blockade along most of the Norwegian and Swedish border.

Canada Joins Food Board

Hon. J. Gardiner, Agriculture Minister, To Act

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 — (CP). — Canada has become a member of the Combined Food Board, set up 15 months ago by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt to plan the best use of the food resources of the United Nations, and will be represented by Agriculture Minister Gardiner, it was announced today by the External Affairs Department.

Canada, a major supplier of food to the United Nations, has been represented on various committees of the Board.

On October 25 President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill sent a message to Prime Minister Mackenzie King stating the importance of Canadian food supplies made it "appropriate and desirable" that Canada be directly represented as a member of the Board, sitting in Washington.

Mr. King replied accepting the invitation.

Board members now will be Hon Marvin Jones, United States War Food Administrator; Hon. R. H. Brand, representing the United Kingdom Food Minister Lord Woolton, and Mr. Gardiner. Claude Wickard, United States Secretary of Agriculture will act as chairman.

AMPHIBIOUS FORCE PUSHES JAPS BACK ON PACIFIC FRONT

Yugoslav Army Strikes Telling Blow

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP)—Partisan forces of Josip Broz (Tito) have struck one of their most effective blows against Germany's campaign in Yugoslavia by cutting the important Zagreb-Belgrade railway in 130 places along a 40-mile stretch just east of Zagreb, a Yugoslav National Army communique said today.

The communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said two large and several small bridges were blown up, four trains destroyed and more than 1,000 telegraph poles felled.

This and other new successes were announced while Yugoslavia's bitter inner strife was flaming anew with Tito and the opposing faction, led by Gen. Draja Mihailovic, denouncing each other in a dispute that independent Balkan advices indicate may have been German inspired.

The overall objective, of course, he said, is peace in the world and the end of aggression. That is far and away the most important thing before the conferees, Mr. Roosevelt said.

A reporter remarked that the President seemed "confident of Russia's willingness to co-operate in maintaining peace," and Mr. Roosevelt said emphatically that he had always had much confidence. To a question whether he thought the Moscow parley had "confirmed and strengthened" this confidence, he replied in the affirmative.

He said he did not know anything more than he had two weeks ago about the possibility that the discussions would lead to another tripartite talk in which he, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Marshal Stalin would be the principals.

Zones Of Axis Resistance

Tough going in Italy is to be expected. Gen. Sir Harold Alexander says that "the Road to Rome is well mined." Here is an idea of some of the defence lines where the Axis are reported planning "successive stands" before Rome—and after. The black barriers indicate these areas—(1) Goeta to Vista. (2) Above Anzio to Pecara; beyond Rome at Viareggio and Ancona (3); below Genoa to Ravenna and (4), finally at River Po.

PARENTS SHOULD NOT DICTATE CHOICE OF CHILDREN'S MATES

Older Folks' Experience Valueless When Young Folks' Deep Affection Motivates Union

Playing with TNT is a safe diversion for a quiet evening at home compared to interfering with their children's marriages, yet there are few fathers and mothers who do not think that they could make a better choice of wives and husbands for their sons and daughters than they make for themselves.

They think that their age, their knowledge of life and their own experiences in the holy state have made them matrimonial connoisseurs, and that if only John and Sally would let them pick out their mates for them, it would save them a lot of grief and alimony. They wouldn't be taken in by a pretty face, or a girlish talker. They wouldn't undertake any girl's board-bill and shopping ticket for life just because she had violet eyes and a cute trick of looking up through her lashes. They wouldn't tie up for twenty or thirty years with a lad who didn't make enough to support a canary bird just because he had a way with him.

Ideal Girl For Son

No, sir. They would take counsel of their heads instead of their hearts when it came to signing on the dotted line of a marriage license, and they would pick out for John a nice, sensible girl, with a little money of her own, who knew how to cook and run a budget, and who would be an asset to her husband instead of a first aid to bankruptcy.

And the husband they would select for Sally would have to display his union card and show that he had a steady job, and that he would be able to feed her on beefsteaks instead of love talk. Maybe the girl they would choose for John would be no Miss America; maybe the husband they would pick out for Sally would be pretty stodgy company. What of it? Beauty doesn't last and Romeo drops his romantic line at the altar, but we go on needing comfortable homes and good bill-payers as long as we live.

All of which is, of course, true, but it is also true that husbands and wives are a matter of taste, and it doesn't matter so much what they are as it does whether they are what those who are married to them want or not. A woman might have every virtue under the sun; she might have the disposition of an angel, and cook like a French chef, and pinch pennies like Hetty Green; she might be as glamorous as a cinema star and as witty as Dorothy Parker, but if she didn't strike her husband's fancy, he would go wandering down the primrose path in search of some lady who did.

Model Man Can Displease Wife

And a man might be a composite of Joseph and Sir Galahad, and a go-getter who loaded his wife down with matched pearls and mink coats and things; but if he was allergic to her, she would still keep her bag packed for Reno.

And that is why fathers and mothers have no right to try to pick out their children's mates for them. They don't know what the youngsters want, or need, or what it is going to take to make them happy in marriage and satisfied with what they've got.

Mother is sure that John, who is quiet and sober and sedate, has made a terrible mistake when he brings home a little fluffy-ruffled bride, who has quick-silver in her veins and who laughs and jokes and teases him and chatters like a canary bird. The child-wife business bores Mother to tears, and she can't understand why John ever chose such a frivolous little creature. But John knew what he was about. He wanted a gay wife, somebody who would sing and make merry and pep him up. He would rather have sunshine in the house than good cooking, which is something Mother never comprehends.

Sally Got What She Wanted

And Father goes through life muttering that he can't see what Sally saw in the chap she married, who will never make more than a bare living, when she could have had the pick of the good chances in her community. But what Sally craved was a party dress, all spangles and pink chiffon, instead of a good substantial working dress that wasn't even her color and could never be made to fit her. And because her husband gives her tenderness and understanding and companionship, she is willing to do her own cooking and washing and baby-mending, and still think she made a grand marriage.

Just how far parents should interfere in their children's marriage, no one can say, because no prophet can foretell how any marriage is going to turn out. Certainly it is a father's and mother's duty to try to keep a foolish girl from marrying a drunkard to reform him, and to prevent a boy from getting his bride out of the gutter; but beyond cases in which there are serious moral defects in those upon whom their children have set their affections, Father and Mother do well to keep their hands off. It seldom breaks off the match, and it always leaves a bitter taste in the mouth of the one who knows that he or she went unwelcome into the family.

Jap Politician Commits Suicide

CHUNGKING, Oct. 29 —(AP)—A Japanese Domei News Agency broadcast from Tokyo reported the death by suicide of Seigo Nakano, ultra-Fascist member of the Japanese Diet, after a speech by Premier Tojo before the Diet Wednesday night, Chinese Monitors said today.

Chinese newspapers attributed Nakano's reported suicide to a conviction that Japan faced ultimate defeat in the present war.

Nakano, characterized as perhaps the most ardent advocate of aggression against Britain and the United States, was believed here to have taken his life after something he heard during Wednesday's session of the Diet convinced him Japan was doomed.

On returning home early Thursday morning, the Domei dispatch said, Nakano was alleged to have written a three-page letter containing the phrase: "I gaze at Japan and die, but I have no regrets."

Nakano was reported to have taken his life by severing his jugular vein, and not by the traditional Japanese method of hara kiri. The Chinese press regard his action as a symptom of political unrest in Japan and believed it would profoundly affect the Japanese people.

Japanese domestic broadcasts, reported to the United States official of war information, said that the 83rd special session of the Japanese Diet adjourned after adopting a resolution expressing determination to "accelerate our efforts for the destruction of our long-standing enemies."

Gordon Advises Board To Get Bill Ready

A resolution by Alderman Gordon at last night's meeting of the finance committee of the council advised the Nicholls Hospital Board that if they intend to proceed with a private bill for the next sessions of the Legislature it should be prepared before December 1.

Alderman Gordon said the Board had this question before them for six months and had not done anything about it.

"That is not quite correct," Alderman Dutton said. "There is a recent feeling in the Board that they should take some legal advice before making any further move. That has been done and we are now awaiting the solicitor's opinion."

"I don't think they'll move until they are forced to," Alderman Gordon remarked, and Alderman Dutton's reply was: "I certainly don't think that."

Nashua Paper Gets V Flag

Employees of Peterborough industries continue to pile up their subscriptions to the Fifth Victory Loan, and action today was moving along toward the 100 per cent level.

Peterborough Lumber Company's staff with an allotment of $7,150 reported through Vince McCabe a total of $8,350 for 117% of the plant's objective.

Fifty-two applications represented 93 per cent of the staff as investors in the Loan.

Nashua Gets Flag

John R. Marshall, general manager of the Nashua Paper Company, acting on behalf of the staff of Bond buyers, formally received at noon yesterday the Three Star "V" Flag, symbolic of top honors. The presentation was made by Bill Reid, representing the National War Finance Committee. The band of the Army Medical Corps turned out for this wind-up of the Nashua campaign, played several numbers, including the National Anthem, as the "V" Flag was raised.

Nashua Paper employees ran their total to 123% of their objective. They were asked to subscribe $8,050 of the Loan and their accomplishment was $9,850. Ninety-four per cent of the employees bought Bonds.

More Bond Salients

The group payroll division of the Peterborough campaign reported more objectives swept aside as follows:—

Poolman Manufacturing Company, 551 Romaine street, 275% of objective.

Beaver Lumber Company, 100% of objective, 73% buying.

Canada Bread Company, 121% of objective.

Peterborough Printing Company, 120% of objective.

Card and Paper Works, Sherbrooke street, have reached their $1,400 objective with 13 of 15 employees signing for Bonds.

his living conditions. If it is brought home to him in a reasonable way that there is a limit to what an employer can do in the way of wages he is not going to be unreasonable."

An extravagant wage structure would be a severe handicap to Canada's post-war trade position and overly-high wages attained now would in the long run defeat the interests of both industry and labor.

No matter what means was adopted to give relief to those who needed it most, provision would have to be made to elleviate inequalities which would always, be found, Mrs. Justice McTague said.

Britain's Production Views Alarm American Leaders

By CHARLES LEOBOLDTI—Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Oct. 29—(CP).—Members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, winding up their annual convention here today, heard speakers at yesterday's sessions declare:

1. A tariff union between Canada and the United States should be welcomed by the two countries.

2. The United States are "frankly alarmed" over reports that Britain is against a policy of higher production levels.

3. There is a necessity for an economic unification of Europe under the aegis of Soviet Russia in the post-war period.

It was Chamber President T. P. Jellett of Montreal who declared for a tariff union at the annual dinner. He said that a tariff union between Canada and the United States would be favorably received by business leaders on both sides of the borders if "Canada was not called upon to play the part of Little Red Riding Hood."

He said that work on such a pact should be started at the earliest opportunity and that it would, if well-balanced, be "quite welcomed" by everybody concerned.

Want Era Of Plenty.

John F. Fennelly, executive director of the United States committee for economic development, reported his country was alarmed about Britain's stand on production levels.

He said that by achieving higher levels of production "than we have ever known" the unemployment problem would largely take care of itself and the great threat of post-war inflation would be eliminated or greatly reduced.

Reports that English post-war planning "is largely interested in bigger and better cartels, in establishment of quotas and the division of world markets," Mr. Fenelly went on "seem to United States observers to be diametrically opposed to a philosophy of plenty, a recrudescence of fear psychology, and a long step down the road to despair."

Turning to the European post-war world, he said that "nothing would result but chaos and a fertile seedground for future wars." If an economic unification of Europe "under the aegis of Soviet Russia," was not achieved.

Speaking of the unification of the United States and Canadian economies, he said. "Their unification must and will continue after war since nothing can reverse the trend toward close and closer ties between our two great countries."

Reconstruction in the post-war area was dealt with by Senator N. P. Lambert, chairman of the Senate Reconstruction Committee who forecast taxation will be heavy and financial policies will be even more difficult to evolve and carry out in the immediate post-war years.

Misleading

He foresaw "continuous co-ordination" between the Federal and Provincial governments in the field of taxation.

Senator Lambert referred to a speech "made in Ottawa a few days ago before a service club by a man who is prominent in the public life of Ontario and who gives every evidence of aspiring to even greater prominence.' Without further identifying the speaker he said his remarks on farm incomes were "wholly misleading and incorrect and contained pernicious implications."

He declared the speaker "did not make very serious qualifications when he quoted from the 1941 census to assert that the farming population of Canada, a third of the entire nation had less than 10 per cent of the national income and that 35 and 50 per cent of the workers get less than $500 a year while nearly 20 per cent of the wage-earners, heads of families, still earn less than $10 a week."

Senator Lambert said that "many wage-earners during 1940-41—period covered by the 1941 census—did not work the whole year" for a variety of reasons, and that those who did work "averaged earnings of $998."

Agricultural reconstruction must start with the farmer himself and he must have facilities whereby he can improve his business, Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of Dominion Experimental Farms, told the chamber.

"This obviously involves cheaper credit comparable at least to that which is available in industry," he said.

Changes in policy, resolutions and announcement of the new slate of officers will bring the annual meeting to a close this afternoon.

Cheese, Produce and Livestock

TORONTO POULTRY

TORONTO, Oct. 29 — (CP). — Receipts of dressed chicken have been heavy this week with some decrease in receipts of fowl, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Receipts of live poultry are some what lighter. Local dealers have discouraged shippers from holding poultry until freezing space is available. Local demand and demand from Northern and Maritime points is good. Outside buyers received the amount they requested this week though for some weeks previous it could not be filled at Maritime points.

Dealers who confine their sales locally have some surplus of poultry and price shading is possible as these dealers are affected by a shortage of freezing space.

Several small shipments of turkeys and a few large ones have been marketed here this week. No export shipment of poultry were made, and as there is good demand from Newfoundland shipping conditions have evidently curtailed business to some extent. There is general improvement in quality of chicken.

Dealers are quoting producers and country shippers:

Chicken: Grade A milk-fed, over 4 lbs. 32c, under 4 lbs. 31c; grade B milk-fed, over 4 lbs. 30c, under 4 lbs. 29c; grade B, over 4 lbs. 28c, under 4 lbs. 27c; grade C over 4 lbs. 25c, under 4 lbs. 24 cents.

HPE's Capture

vance from a town on the edge of the valley, taken the previous day (Tuesday) by men of the Royal Canadian Regiment who had made a difficult night march along a deep, rough river-bed and climbed up through thick growth.

Take Prisoners.

Capt. Tommy Burdett, of Ottawa, whose company carried out an earlier encircling attack which netted the R.C.R.'s a bag of German prisoners in a village east of the river, led us through debris-littered streets to a high house from the windows of which correspondents witnessed the battle.

Winding lanes were strewn with roof tiles, broken glass and chunks of stone smashed from the walls of dirty little abandoned homes. The town was practically empty of civilians because it had been shelled by Canadian guns before the Germans were driven out, then by the Germans when the Canadians occupied it.

The rumble of artillery and the whistle of shells and mortar bombs filled the air. Burdett said the narrowness of the maze of lanes offered good protection from close ones. Soldiers stood in doorways or went about their duties apparently unaware of the battle noise.

Oshawa Officer

We crouched low and hugged the wall as we approached the house on top of the town looking out over a mile-long strip of rolling ground across which the Toronto battalion was advancing. Then we climbed creaking stairs to a bedroom where the window afforded a perfect view of the battlefront and the neighboring town which was the 48th's objective.

On a ridge to the left a line of tanks commanded by Capt. Dave Lander of Oshawa, Ont., crawled along in support of the infantry.

The enemy apparently saw them because within a couple of minutes there was a series of distant thuds and the whistle of projectiles, then a group of flashing explosions right in the midst of the tanks.

For more than an hour explosives showered around. The tanks took up the challenge and their guns barked back.

Through binoculars we saw a mortar bomb drop near a farmhouse. Then fire ran across a field to a clump of trees. A second and third bomb followed into the trees.

An airplane skimmed over and circled the town under attack. Shortly after it disappeared three perfect shots fired by medium guns across a valley behind us crashed into a high, square building, presumably an enemy observation spot.

It was followed by a fierce but short-lived barrage poured into the target town by little British 75's. Concentrated into a small space, the barrage was one of the most intense we had seen.

Allies Land On Treasury Islands

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 29. — (AP).—Allied warships, planes and troops have stormed the Treasury Islands, 30 miles south of Bougainville, as the entering wedge to pry the Japanese loose from their last Solomons bases and fling open the door to Rabaul.

The operation disclosed to-day in war reports, was executed brilliantly. Beginning last Friday, bombers completely knocked out nearby enemy airfields with 500 tons of explosives.

In the darkness before dawn Wednesday, naval guns of a task force poured shells on Mono and Stirling, tiny coral reefs comprising the Treasury group.

Just as daylight appeared, New Zealand and American troops moved off big ships to landing barges and headed for the beaches. Overhead, swarms of planes roamed unchallenged. Warships laid down a smoke screen. Rain squalls added a natural curtain.

Flee To Hills.

Mortar fire greeted first arrivals. These weapons were silenced quickly. Then the Japanese broke and fled into the hills.

Once mopping up is completed, heavily-wooded Mono and the tiny plantation isle of Stirling provide positions close to the Shortlands, potential stepping-stones for an invasion of Bougainville.

The operations unfolded precisely as planned, an Allied spokesman said, and Allied casualties were light.

Radio Tokyo, in making the first announcement of the Mono landing, said Japanese planes sank an Allied warship but the reports from headquarters pointedly referred to no air opposition.

To-day's communique reported the shooting down of between 12 and 18 enemy planes in the Finschhafen, New Guinea area, the probable aerial destruction of a Japanese destroyer and possible damage of two others in the New Britain-New Ireland sector.

Peterborough Boys Who Served With Canadians In Sicilian Landing Craft Assault Flotilla Arrive Home.

Stoker Herbert Tripp son of Mrs. Mary Tripp of Ajax, who has been serving with the Royal Canadian Navy, was one of the group which carried Canadian and British troops into land for the big invasion which upset Il Duce's shattered empire remnants.

Able Seaman Jack Larkman, who arrived home this week, had an active snare in the Sicilian landings where he saw plenty of action. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Larkman, formerly of Lakefield and now of Burleigh Falls, and this is the first time he has been home in two years. He is attached to the Royal Navy.

The first group of Royal Canadian Navy men to arrive home from the Sicilian invasion battlefront reached an eastern Canadian port recently for well-earned leave. They made up a Canadian landing craft assault flotilla which carried British Eighth Army and Canadian troops on to the beaches. All veterans of naval warfare, they represent every province in the Dominion. In the picture, LEFT ABOVE, is a group of officers who played an important part in the landing operations. From LEFT to RIGHT, they are (front row): Lieut. George Buckingham, of Montreal; (back row): Sub. Lieut. William Scarlett, of Hamilton; and Lieut. George Nuttall, of Calgary, Alberta. In the picture at the RIGHT are two of the men: A.B. Donald Mills, R.C.N.V.R., and Leading Stoker Tommy Gillis, R.C.N.V.R., both of Windsor, Ont.

Lieut. John Davie of Duncan, B.C., who had an important share in the landing operations.

Lieut. George Allin of Edmonton, who played an important part in the landing.

Canada's Greatest Opportunities Lie In International Relations

Of all the problems that will confront Canada in the post-war world the most important one is that of the Dominion's international relations, it was stated on Thursday by T. J. Carley, K.C., addressing a meeting of Kinsmen in the Empress Hotel.

Though certainly a serious problem Mr. Carley said, there was in it the seeds of Canada's greatest opportunities, both for herself and for the cause of world peace. Engaged in international trade to an extent way out of proportion to her population, Canada was in the position of requiring a broad, co-operative outlook among the nations of the world in order to maintain her high place in the ranks of trading countries. A growth of the nationalistic spirit of self-sufficiency and high tariff barriers which was in evidence during the last decade would leave Canada in bad way, Mr. Carley said.

Even with the close relations which existed between the United States and Canada before the present war, there was a tendency towards bitter tariff wars between the two countries, Mrs. Carley noted, and at one time Canada was forced to look in other directions in order to maintain the volume of her trade, which placed it fifth in importance among the trading nations, before the war started. Now heavily engaged in war production and standing 4th among the Allied nations in this respect Canada's defence products were moving south of the border free of tariff duties. It was the country's job, the speaker emphasized, to persuade the nations of the world to adopt a broad outlook, and considering the nature of her ties with Great Britain and the United States, there was much the Dominion could accomplish towards this end.

Must Maintain Keynote

"Compromise and sacrifice have been the keynote of Canada's success," Mr. Carley said. "This was true of Canada's founding under the British North American Act and the same spirit must prevail in our participation in Empire affairs in the future. Just as states and provinces must forgo certain rights for good of a whole nation, so the countries within the Empire must act in a spirit of self-sacrifice."

Mr. Carley made mention of the fact that more is heard to-day about what Canada should do regarding domestic problems after the war than its international concerns. "Isn't this putting the cart before the horse?" he asked "We can never go back from our industrial position, and that position depends upon our relations with the outside world."

Touching on the immigration problem which is bound to confront both Canada and the United States, the speaker said he thought Canada would be bound to let in considerable number of immigrants, and that it would be necessary to formulate a definite policy to meet the situation. Even at the present time only 48 per cent of Canadians were of British birth or of British descent, and a large flow of immigrants would excerise a strong influence in molding public opinion.

Mr. Carley was introduced by Roy Lewis, and the vote of thanks was moved by Alex. Sollitt.

Society Wants Names For Quilts

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 29.—(ENS).—The Women's Association of Lakefield United church met in the Sunday school room this week. Group A was in charge of the program, led by Mrs. G. Kelly. The theme for the meeting was 'Thanksgiving.'. Mrs. D. A. Allen also gave a reading, 'The Queen's message to the women of the Empire,' which was broadcast last spring, was read by Mrs. Kelly.

Mrs. Percy Spence presided for the business portion of the meeting. Mrs. A. E. Higgins reported the financial standing of the society and urged that the collecting of five cents a week by the groups be done in November. Mrs. Jory asked for more names for the autograph quilt so it may be completed by the end of the year.

Each member was asked to donate one half yard of print for Red Cross quilts.

Splendid reports on the W. A. presbytery convention held in Peterborough were given by Mrs. F Erskine and Mrs. Jory. The meeting concluded with a social half hour.

Reuters Head Lauds A.P. Chief

LONDON, Oct. 29 —(CP).— The ideals of Kent Cooper, general manager and executive director of the Associated Press, for truth in news and freedom from governmental interference with news were praised last night by Chrisopher J. Chancellor, joint general manager of Reuter's News Agency, in a symposium at the Netherlands House.

Heads of the important news services in London joined members of the Netherlands Institute in questioning Chancellor on various aspects of what news will be like in the post-war world.

Chancellor read the preamble of the agreement between the Associated Press and Reuters as an index to how important the two newspaper press associations regard the free play of truth in news.

The Reuters executive said that the reader is the final arbiter on the questions of truth, accuracy and balance in news, and that press associations were unable to set themselves up as censors to govern the way newspapers present news reports.

War Workers Review 14 Months' Effort

HASTINGS, Oct. 29 — (ENS)— Hastings war workers held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Marryat on Thursday. The report was given of the past fourteen months' work.

The following has been sent overseas and to men serving in different parts of Canada:

225 pairs of socks, fifty sleeveless sweaters, 106 parcels of food. They spent $239.24 on the purchase of wool for making up different articles. Forty money belts were sent as Christmas gifts overseas. 5 turtle neck sweaters and 6 wool tuck-ins were sent to the Navy League, and three ditty bags are now being filled.

It was decided at the meeting to hold a euchre and dance on Wednesday, November 17, in the town hall and prizes will be given for both the euchre and dance.

Terrorist Wave Sweeping France

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP)—Declaring that "complete disorder is likely to break out in France at any moment," a spokesman for the Vichy government said in a broadcast last night that a new wave of resistance was sweeping the country and that the atmosphere was "ripe for complete lawlessness."

The Vichy commentator asserted that sabotage and clashes between terrorists and police are taking place all over the country. The broadcast was recorded by the British Ministry of Information.

The Fighting French radio at Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, meanwhile reported that German Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt had ordered the arrest of scores of French Armistice Army officers.

Pig Bristles Wanted Prices Board Says

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (CP).—Canadian hogs are making a new contribution to the war effort—their bristles, rated by the Prices Board as "a vital war commodity."

Under an order made public today slaughterers must remove bristles from every hog killed and send them to a central collection point for sale at set prices.

Bristle supplies from usual sources are difficult to obtain and "it is essential that the domestic supply be increased," the Board said.

COBOURG

Northumberland Behind In Loan

COBOURG, Oct. 29.— (ENS). — Northumberland county is lagging in the Victory Loan campaign and officials at loan headquarters here are frankly worried. On the tenth day of the campaign with over 55 p.c. of the time gone, the county has only 36.01 pc. of its quota of $1,700,000. Only bright spots are the results of the industrial and payroll canvass and the village of Brighton with 75.76 p.c. of its quota reached Totals for the various municipalities are as follows:

Cobourg, $127,150. 25.43 p.c.; Hamilton township $64,500, 36.86 p.c.; South Monaghan township $16,400, 41.0 p.c.; Haldimand township $30,500, 30.50 p.c.; Alnwick township $10,400, 29.71 p.c.; Percy township $41,200, 37.45 p.c.; Cramahe township $15,850, 26.41 p.c.; Hastings $22,000, 48.88 p.c.; Colborne $36,700, 52.43 p.c.; Brighton township $18,000, 30.00 p.c.; Brighton village $94,700, 75.76 p.c.; Murray township $18,200, 22.75 p.c.; Campbellford $66,700, 38 p.c.; Seymour township $40,850, 39.90 p.c. Total for county $612,150. 36.01 p.c.

OMEMEE

Villagers Want Better Gardens

OMEMEE, Oct. 29—(ENS)—The Omemee and District Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting Wednesday night, commencing with a pot-luck supper.

Following the supper Mr. Horace Hill was asked for a report of the year's activities. He made special mention of the home improvement contest and the annual flower show and congratulated those who had won prizes. It is hoped that Mr. John F. Clark of Toronto will be guest speaker at the November meeting.

Miss L. Race gave a piano solo after which William Weir led in community singing. Mr. John Bent, reeve of the village, was then called on to present the prizes to the winners in the home improvement contest. Mr. Bent reviewed the rules regarding this contest. He urged the people of the village to aim to improve their homes in the coming year. He said he would like to see as many homes entered in the contest next year as possible.

Mrs. Jean Collins sang a solo, "Lords of the Air" after which Rev. Patterson made a few remarks on the work of the Horticultural Society.

Allied Troops Land On Mono Island

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP).—A Tokyo broadcast recorded today by the Federal Communications Commission said Allied forces had landed on Mono Island, near Shortland Island in the Solomons, early Wednesday morning.

In an English-language broadcast Tokyo declared Japanese naval aircraft attacked the Allied convoy, sinking one warship and damaging another.

Shortland lies at the lower tip of Bougainville, near the upper end of the Solomons. The Japanese have airfields at Kahili and Kara on south Bougainville and also in the Shortlands.

Obituaries

MRS. AGATHA CRAWFORD.

MARMORA, Oct. 29 —(ENS).— A lifelong resident of Marmora passed away at her home on Tuesday morning following a brief illness. She is Mrs. Agatha Crawford, widow of Hugh Crawford.

The late Mrs. Craford, who was 69 years of age, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGrath, pioneer residents of Marmora Township. All her life had been spent in Marmora Township and Marmora Village. Her husband predeceased her ten years ago.

She was of a fiendly and neighborly disposition and her sudden passing has caused sincere regret. A devout member of the Sacred Heart Church she was a member of the Altar Society, the Catholic Women's League, and the Sacred Heart League.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. John Murray of Marmora Village and Mrs. John O'Neill of Marmora Township, besides several nieces and nephews, including Miss Rose Shannon, who resided with her at the time of her death, and Mrs. James Auger (nee Josie Shannon) of Perrin, Que., who also had resided with her for several years.

The funeral took place to-day at Sacred Heart Church, when high requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. H. J. Farrell. Interment took place in Sacred Heart Cemétery.

MRS. AGNES CRAWFORD

MARMORA, Oct. 29 — (ENS).— The funeral of the late Mrs. Agnes Crawford was held from her late residence on Forsyth street, Thursday to Sacred Heart Church where High Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. H. J. Farrell.

The pall bearers were James McGrath, Michael Shannon, William Meehan, George Forestell, Earl O'Connor and Roy Bacon.

Included in those from out of town attending the funeral were Mrs. M. Bacon and Ray Bacon; Miss Margaret O'Neill and Miss Mary O'Neill, Peterborough; Mr. Joseph Sullivan, Ennismore; Miss Dorothy O'Neill, Toronto; Mrs. James Auger, Perron, Que.; Mrs. Walter Post, Deseronto; Mr. John McFaul Stirling; Mr. and Mrs H. Comerford, Eldorado; and Mr John McCormack, Trenton.

CAMPBELLFORD

Revision Court Considers Taxes

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 29 — (ENS). — Convening for their annual meeting here Thursday night the local Court of Revision considered the claims of five appellants who wanted their 1944 taxes lowered.

Reeve C. H. Calver presided over the court and at its opening called on members to observe two minutes silence in honour of the late Councillor John O' Sullivan. Mr. O'Sullivan's place at the table was taken by Councillor Oscar Mason who was appointed to fill the vacancy. Other members were Deputy Reeve P. H. MacMillan, Councillors H. M. Fowlds and H. J. Brady.

Of the five appeals, two were for vacant stores, one owned by Mr. Cyril Sloggett on Front street, the other by Mrs. M. Riendeau at the corner of Tice and George streets. Mrs. O. Sarginson appealed the assessment on her residence on Naseby street and Mrs. Thadeus Patrick an assessment on Portage street. Appearing on behalf of G. W. Hayes, vice president of the Compbellford Cloth Company, Mr. J. H. Cunningham made the annual appeal for that Company claiming the assessment was inexcess of the value of the buildings. After the hearing of each case the Court adjourned till 2 p.m. today when members will make a tour of the various properties in question.

THE NAZIS arrogantly boasted in 1940 that Freedom's last foothold in Europe was a cemetery and a ruin. But Britain fought back with fierce resolution, knowing help was on the way from all parts of the Empire. Today the picture has changed. Shattering air-raids have devasted the Fascist war industries. Four square miles of Berlin have become a desolate monument to Nazi ideology. So, an Allied 'plane would never reach Berlin, eh, Herr Goering? Then what are these stinging Mosquitos doing over your Nazi capital? Look hard on them! They are Democracy's wings of vengeance, sprung from Canada's factories, made by Canada's men and women, flown by youths trained on Canada's flying fields. Keep those Mosquitos stinging, Canada! Build them not only with your hands, but with your Victory Bonds. Your Victory Bond can fly to Berlin! That extra Victory Bond you buy can reach as far as Tokyo! Buy another bond . . . Today!

Reports On German Morale

In the past week men returned from German prison camps have given opinions of German morale which are most encouraging; the gist of their story is that the Germans are frightened of the great Allied air raids, short of food, sick of the war, sure that they cannot win, and ready to throw in the sponge at the first chance. It would be pleasant to believe these things, but it is wiser to disregard them. There is real danger for us in this picture of a weary and disheartened Germany.

Men who have been in prison camps have not had much chance to judge of German civilian life; they have been confined, and their contact with German people was undoubtedly limited. Furthermore, they have been eager to seize on every sign of German weakness and have probably exaggerated what they saw without intending to do so. It is true that reports from Switzerland corroborate these stories of German fear and exhaustion, and there is undoubtedly something in them, but we cannot permit ourselves to assume that the enemy is on the verge of defeat.

Another piece of information which crops up in several of the returned prisoners' stories is this: the Germans think that the war will be over by Christmas. Their defeats in Russia are said to have destroyed their appetite for further fighting and they have little faith in their ability to keep up a long defensive battle. They want to end the war.

Now it is possible that all these things are true, but we do not believe that they will have a great effect on the decisions of the German High Command. The Germans are one of the most obedient peoples on earth, and if they are told to go on fighting they will do so. They know that the end of the war will not really mean a cessation of hostilities for them. They realize that they will have a period of misery to go through which will be longer and more disagreeable than the one which they endured after 1918. And they know that they will be hated for years by the rest of the world, and that as soon as it is possible to do so the peoples of the now occupied countries will begin to express that hatred in action. The end of the war, for the Germans, will bring no real respite; if anything, it will bring an intensification of their present misery.

The collapse of morale at home need not mean a collapse of morale in the German armies; the Germans have shown us something of their ferocity in defeat at Naples, and the feeling that their cause was hopeless would perhaps beget an orgy of destructiveness in the countries where they are now stationed. Their mentality is a queer one, and their boast that, if defeated, they would drag the whole of Western civilization into the mire with them was not made idly.

It would be the greatest folly for us to put too much hope in the rumours of German moral collapse. For the past ten years the moral basis of the German state has been rotten, from any decent point of view, but the Germans have achieved much, and have given us several sound beatings, in spite of it. There is probably a lot of fight still left in them.

The Bidding Rises

Bidding for popular favour continues with increasing seriousness among the political parties of Canada. The highest bidder, of course, is the C.C.F., for it promises everything; the public, however, may be suspicious of its ability to pay the bill if it should be called upon to do so. The bidding between the Liberals and Conservatives is more serious. Mr. Bracken has made a very high bid with his 30-point farm program; Mr. King has made a bid of equal significance with his promise of a ceiling on tariffs. There is a possibility that the bidding is soaring out of sight, and that public uneasiness will result from it instead of public enthusiasm. Can it be that the C.C.F. has created a panic in the ranks of the old parties, causing them to promise reforms which do not actually come within their expressed beliefs?

For both parties have a body of belief to which they have adhered in the past. A political party is not like a religious sect led by a prophet, which changes its belief every time the prophet changes his mind or has a new revelation. The promises of Mr. King and Mr. Bracken have real meaning only as they can be reconciled with traditional Liberal and Conservative opinion.

The possession of a body of tradition does not mean that a political party is dead, or that it is incapable of taking a new line. But it means that the party has precedent for its actions, and a body of past experience to guide it. When precedent and doctrine are flouted a party loses its character. Mr. King and Mr. Bracken are inheritors of a great tradition of Liberalism and Conservatism, and if they do violence to that tradition they may temporarily strengthen their position, but in the end they will ruin their parties. Because the C.C.F. promises pie in the sky, they must not allow themselves to be bustled into promising pie with ice cream on it.

Neither Mr. Bracken's farm plan, nor Mr. King's pronouncement on tariffs is unworkable, so far as we can judge now. But whether they will be workable or advisable immediately after the war is something which no one can say. An altered attitude toward agriculture would undoubtedly buoy up a great part of Canadian business; a low tariff also might help us over some rough country. But we cannot say now what will be possible or advisable in circumstances which no one can foresee.

Shell Out For The Bombed Out

We recommend to your attention the excellent campaign which the Kinsmen Clubs of Canada are carrying out on Saturday night, on which Hallowe'en will be celebrated this year. It has long been the custom for children to go about in fancy dress on Hallowe'en and ask their neighbours for fruits, nuts and candy; this year the Kinsmen are asking them to collect for their Milk Fund, the proceeds of which are devoted to supplying milk to the children of Britain. This cause needs no recommendation from us; it has proved itself during the war years and its worthiness is obvious.

In order to help in the campaign, this is what you do: buy a number of the special Fund tickets which are on sale in your local stores, and which cost ten cents each; when the children come to your door on Saturday night, make sure that they are collecting for the Kinsmen Fund, and then give them some of the tickets. They will see that the tickets are turned in at their schools on Monday.

The usual tribute of candy and fruit will be impossible this year, for candy does not exist in sufficient quantity, and fruit is too expensive to be given away in any amount. It would be a good thing for parents to explain this to their children, so that they will not be disappointed, and will not think that their neighbours are merely stingy. It might also be wise for parents to warn their children against destroying property in their Hallowe'en pranks, for at present repairs are almost impossible, and even the simplest objects may be hard to replace. We are asking for a Hallowe'en suitable to the times.

Bear in mind that on Saturday night the children of Canada will be collecting Milk Fund tickets to help the children of Britain; do not disappoint them.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Goebbels Made To Eat His Words" says a headline. He'll get ptomaine.

Prime Minister De Valera of Eire, according to the Temperance Advocate, does not touch alcohol in any form. Not even neutral spirits?

A Better English column asks for a word beginning with 'co' which means 'of inferior quality'. The usual answer is 'coarse', but the Ottawa Citizen suggests 'co-belligerent'.

A contemporary reports what it calls a 'vagrant whisper' about a lower income tax next year. Speaking of vagrant whispers, the war seems to have finished that one which began, 'Say Mac, can yuh spare a dime for a cup o' Java?'

Germany is now adhering to the Geneva Convention respecting the treatment of prisoners. Sees a day of reckoning coming, perhaps. Does Germany imagine that we shall forget so soon that our men were chained in her prison camps?

M. J. Coldwell, M.P., says that capitalistic methods are incapable of winning the war. Just at present, however, the capitalist scheme of asking free people to invest their free savings in Victory Bonds seems to be working very well, and we bet that the wise ones among Mr. Coldwell's supporters are taking as many as they can afford, bless their capitalistic little hearts!

A Fighting Editor

By B.T.R.
In the Winnipeg Free Press

IF the United States speaks in future with the strong voice of leadership in world collaboration to prevent future wars and to elevate the lot of mankind, a liberal measure of credit must go to men like Chester Rowell, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle. At 76 years of age, Mr. Rowell is fighting doggedly and stoutly on the line of international co-operation where he has fought for many years. He is one of America's most influential editors, dean of Pacific coast journalism.

In a land where the personality of newspaper editors has been swamped in the tidal wave of Washington columnists and national commentators, Mr. Rowell is in the tradition of the great, hard-hitting newspaper chiefs who have fought for reason in the processes of American democracy. An hour's chat with Mr. Rowell disclosed that he feels that the moment of world decision has arrived for the United States. That is what he was composing an editorial about, when we had the temerity to interrupt him. His pen, as we saw the next day in his editorial, was pouring scorn on the "double talk" of the Senate committee on foreign relations, by which its members utilize weasel words in their resolutions to convey meanings to catch all shades of opinion.

"At this moment," he wrote, "in Moscow is being decided, not how to patch up votes in the Senate on ambiguous words, but what the major powers will join in doing, to win the war and to cement the peace. We cannot keep Russia and Britain from that conference, nor prevent them from speaking with the voice of their victories already won. America also could and should speak with the voice of its inexhaustible resources, of its contributions in men, wealth and material, and of its destiny to clinch the final victory."

THE San Francisco Chronicle dates back to Civil War days, when it scored a famous scoop on the assassination of Lincoln and fought vigourously against slavery. It was founded by two brothers, and one of them, Charles de Young, was slain by the son of Isaac Kalloch, a Baptist preacher who ran for mayor here under the Workingman's ticket. The Kallach-de Young feud wrote a turbulent chapter in U.S. newspaper history. The Chronicle, stoutly Republican, has engaged in many violent onslaughts upon political and social corruption. Its main rival is the Examiner, the paper that George Hearst, the wealthy miner, bought and transferred to his son, William Randolph.

The greatest of all campaigns in the history of the Chronicle is its present drive to bring American opinion into the line of collaboration in post-war policies. The men behind it are Chester Rowell and his brilliant young managing editor, Paul Smith, on leave in service with the U.S. marines. Like Wendell Willkie, in his St. Louis speech on Oct. 15, they could say:

"I do believe deeply in international collaboration, not because I love America less but because I love her more—the America of well doing, of jobs, of opportunity, of ideals and of free men. And I know that the very existence of these things in America in the future depends upon our finding a method of co-operation with the other nations of the world."

Several aspects of this problem strike a Canadian with the force of discovery. One thing is that American opinion is only slowly realizing the extent to which the U.S. is marching into binding commitments for the future. A minor diversion at the moment is the question, raised by the five senators who recently toured battlefronts, whether the U.S.A. is getting full credit for lend-lease material to Britain which has been forwarded by the British to other allies. This has the familiar ring of the Canadian controversy in 1942 over the British forwarding Canadian supplies, given to Britain, to other allies. Some Canadians demanded "credit" for this, and we got it by going into the Mutual Aid business where Canada would deal directly with all recipients. But no Canadian Mutual Aid system is going to keep track of all the war supplies and instruct the Chinese or the Russians, or anyone else, that they are using Canadian-made or American-made guns to kill Nazis or Japs. We will all share the end results. Actually American and British and Canadian war production is integrated to a degree where anyone who demands that the omelette be unscrambled is asking the impossible. This integration cannot stop the moment peace breaks out.

No one here, it seems, realizes that this argument is something that Canada has already passed through. Nor the relevant fact that Canada has a case, if it were pressed for "credit" for Canadian suplies distributed to other allies by the United States. Yet that is true.

THE absorption of American thinking with the processes of treaty-making in the U.S. Congress tends ot overlook the extent to which the technique of collaboration has developed. Willkie took note the other day of the popular demand for a "blueprint" of the post-war world and said: "We are not yet at the blueprint stage." American opinion has hardly come to realize—and this is a fault of newspaper interpretation—that the technique, as contrasted with the blueprint, of Anglo-American collaboration has developed into something entirely new in the history of diplomacy, and in the history of the United States. One intelligent look at the Roosevelt-Churchill method of conference, as demonstrated recently at Quebec, would clear up that point. This is war planning on an integrated basis; and there is no reason to suppose that peace planning cannot proceed on the same basis. It is the substitute for the one big plenary conference, which failed after the last war. The continuing process of the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences is the new technique of international collaboration. And at Quebec, a third member was drawn into the process—Canada. It will be difficult to bring Russia, China and others, into it, but not impossible.

Most Canadians are aware that a new pattern of Canadian-American relations has emerged in this war. Americans are much less aware of it. They look at Russia and cry out about the difficulties, failing to look nearer home to see a fully operating pattern of collaboration that is new in their history. It is a pattern founded on declarations and exchanges of notes, which have produced a military alliance at Ogdensburg in 1940, an economic union for war production at Hyde Park in 1941, the original joint chiefs of staff idea in 1940, the pooling of resources of materials and factory capacity in 1940 and 1941, and a series of nine integrated, directing committees advising governments in Ottawa and Washington on various phases of joint effort. The governments have consistently followed the advice of these joint committees.

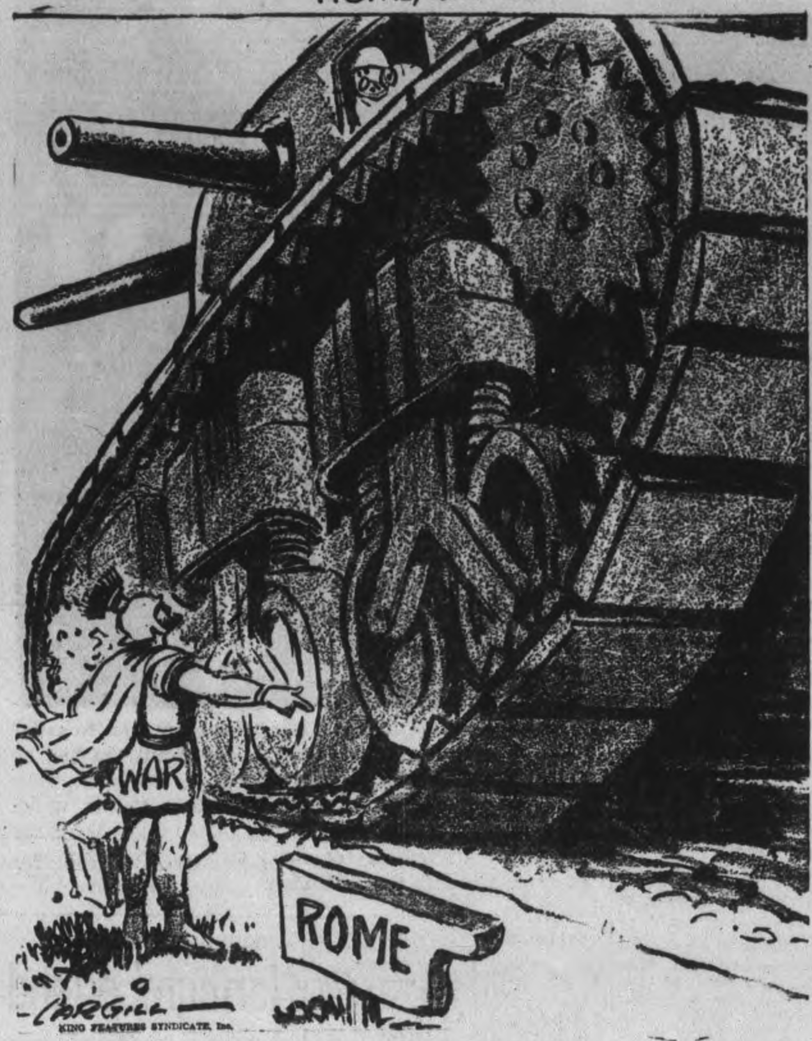
A STRANGE and exciting fact is that no impairment of sovereignty has occurred as result of this close collaboration. American nationalism was never more vigourous. Canadian nationalism has never soared and expanded as it has since 1939. The treaty making powers of Congress and the abilities of politicians to resolve one thing while meaning another, should not be discontinued. But the truth of the matter is that a great tide of collaboration has swept away many of the old facts of U.S. policies. The same has happened in Canada. The new pattern cannot be unscrambled, even if a generation set itself to the futile task of doing it. The new policies of the United States are being shaped by a new set of facts that slowly, surely are being recognized.

"HOME, JAMES!"



Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (CP)—In July, 1939, two months before the war started, a group of technical experts of the United States Army Air Forces began to plan a new bomber.

The plane, the B-29, may soon be in operation, a truly super-bomber. It will be able to bomb Germany and return to North American bases and, in size it will dwarf the Flying Fortress and Liberator.

It is on the secret list but one or two general observations can be made. It will have a range considerably longer than any military plane now flying and its maximum bomb load exceeds tha of the night-flying British-built Lancaster. It will embody new principles of fire control and co-ordinated fire power, making it the deadliest big ship of the skies.

POLITICAL SIGNPOSTS

Keep your eye on the off-year elections for governor in Kentucky and New Jersey next week, also the New York contest for lieutenant-governor. Each will be significant, particularly because both incumbent governors are Democrats and the trend, starting a year ago, has been running in favour of the Republicans.

REPLY BY RHODES

The Rhodes Trust took official notice a few days ago of the campaign of the Chicago Tribune to prove that American Rhodes scholars are a group of subversive masterminds and a secret society of intellectual saboteurs.

Said the Rhodes Trust: The same story was written in 1916 by George Sylvester Viereck, now in jail as a German agent.

RELIEF PROBLEMS

One of the problems to be threshed out by the United Nations is how to prevent the distribution of relief from becoming a powerful political weapon in some countries.

For instance, the leaders of the Greek underground recently carried to King George in Cairo a petition asking him not to return to his country until the people have voted on a plebiscite whether to retain the monarchy.

Meanwhile King George's government will be represented on the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration and thus will control the distribution of food, medical supplies and shelter to famished Greece.

Two government agencies, under the same roof, are issuing conflicting forecasts concerning the 1944 civilian supply of wheat.

The war food administration says the supply to be allocated to civilians under rationing will be slightly larger than this year. The bureau of agricultural economics, a branch of the department of agriculture, says civilian supplies will be reduced.

Add Washingtonese: A new figure of speech has been added to the piquant jargon of Washington. One official now says he's working "under the umbrella" of another department — meaning the other department is the top boss.

Farewell Pageant

Now the mowing fields are blankets of tan and russet. Piles of Baldwins, Winesaps, Jonathans are heaped in the orchard; snocks of corn on the upland ridge stand silhouetted against the sky. A heap of squashes is piled by the shed door, and a mound of yellow pumpkins is a bright spot near the barn.

October's colours may be vivid but its noises are subdued. The bell in the village church faithfully chimes the hours but the tone seems sweeter and lighter as it floats over the countryside. The dog's barking from the farm down the road seems less insistent. The cockerel' crow is simply a bread-and-butter note, not a clarion call to tournament.

Over all is the beauty of a fleeting season. Woodland and individual trees have put on their costumes for the annual fancy ball. For a brief time the foliage is painted in gold, red, tan, purple, and bronze. It is a beautifully planned au revoir—for earth is waiting now, waiting quietly and patiently.—Christian Science Monitor.

Blames 'Bureaucrats'

The other day a Lethbridge district farmer was fined for growing 11 acres of potatoes when he had a permit to grow only 10 acres.

That's about on a par with the practice of fining a hog raiser $3 for producing a hog which is two or three pounds overweight.

The bureaucrats are running wild.

It's a good thing for Canada's war effort that the fellows who believe in fines were not in charge of the great agricultural production machinery. The mentality that believes in fining farmers for producing too much wouldn't have done a very good job of producing more food for the Allies.—Lethbridge Herald

The Second Front

The persistence of those American critics of our military tactics who have insisted that there is only one way to open "a second front," and this by a direct campaign across the English Channel, has been unwavering. With unfailing regularity they have belittled every other method of attack. The tremendous, sustained air assault, which has crippled Germany's production of weapons for the Russian front they have described as a mere sideshow. The landing of an American expeditionary force in North Africa they dismissed as "perimeter warfare." The conquest of Sicily by Anglo-American troops was to their mind only a matter of glorified "island-hopping." Supremely convinced of the superiority of their own military judgment, they have tirelessly demanded their "second front." Do they still think they haven't got it? The success of the great military adventure which has taken Allied troops into the heart of Europe is a tribute to the ability of the Anglo-American high command and an unanswerable demonstration of the soundness of their plans. It is also a tribute to the foresight of Winston Churchill, who, in the dark days when Britain stood alone, unaided by any ally standing anywhere on any front, had courage to strip his island fortress of badly needed men and weapons in order to create the framework of an expeditionary force in Egypt. Out of that small and brave beginning came the great campaign that has now broken the Axis in Europe.—New York Times.

"This Is The Last War"

The Germans have laid about them like fine, angry gods. They have battered Holland and seared Belgium. They have smashed France, and smashed London. They have sent their warriors down through Greece, half across Africa, seen them stand, bronzed and seemingly unconquerable, at the very gates of Asia. How long ago all that magic of exaltation must seem to them now!

Since those sweet days, half a generation has died uselessly in the cold immensity of Russia. For two years now they have watched their own strength bleed away as their "beaten enemies loom ever stronger." The magic and the exaltation have gone out of them. Their own German skies are a torrent of death. Nuremberg, that shrine of Nazi pomp and ceremony, lies in rubble. "This war," cries the reedy voice of Dr. Goebbels, "is irrevocably the last. It is from this realization that we must fight as if our lives were daily at stake. In fact, they are."

The voice, as always with German voices when defeat is near, whines to the avengers that this war is the last. It was so in 1918. It is so today. This time we shall not be led astray by words. This is irrevocably the last war. But it is we not Dr. Goebbels, who shall see to that.—London Sunday Chronicle.

A Bible Message

Go and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith the Lord; and I will not cause mine anger to fall upon you: for I am merciful, saith the Lord, and I will not keep anger for ever. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the Lord thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green trees, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith the Lord.

Turn, O backsliding children, saith the Lord; for I am married unto you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion: and I will give you pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding....

In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers. But I said, How shall I put thee among the children, and give thee a pleasant land, a goodly heritage of the hosts of nations? and I said, Thou shalt call me, My father; and shalt not turn away from me....

A voice was heard upon the high places, weeping and supplications of the children of Israel: for they have perverted their way, and they have forgotten the Lord their God. Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backslidings. Behold, we come unto thee; for thou art the Lord our God. Truly in vain is salvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains: truly in the Lord our God is the salvation of Israel. (Jer. 3: 12-15, 18, 19, 21-23.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Among the people filing into an air-raid shelter was an old man. In one hand he carried a long-handled shovel to deal with incendiaries, and under the other arm he had an old-fashioned harp, presumably for entertainment.

"Lumme!" said one shelterer to another, "there's a fellow who's backed himself both ways."

Charles Hoyt was entertaining a friend from New Hampshire.

He obtained tickets for the opening performance of Clyde Fitch's "Nathan Hale," starring Nat Goodwin.

"Who's the star?" asked the man from New Hampshire, when Hoyt told him about the play.

"Nat Goodwin," Hoyt replied.

"I don't want to see Goodwin," said the other. "I don't like him."

"You don't?" Hoyt asked.

"No, I don't. I don't like him as a man; I don't like him as an actor, I detest him."

"But," assured Hoyt, "you'll like him in this play."

"No, I won't," said the friend.

"Oh, yes, you will," replied Hoyt with a smile. "They hang him in the last act."

Mass Artillery To Assure Gains

MADRID, Oct. 29 (AP).— Continuing Russian successes against Nazis were attributed today by the Berlin correspondent of Madrid's Informaciones to Soviet use of great concentrations of artillery and masses of material from the Allies.

Sanchez Maspons, the correspondent, declared the Russians are "the first army in the world which has thrown whole divisions of artillery into battle."

Asserting that Russian artillery divisions were those which succeeded in achieving those numerous infiltrations which German communiques reported," he added:—

"On the western front the tank has given way to the gun."

In saying that another reason for the Russian successes was the great quantity of material received from the Allies, Maspons disagreed with previous German reports that little British or American material had been seen on the battlefronts.

But the correspondent, who said his information came from "one of the German generals best known to the newspaper world, concluded his article with the assertion the Germans still have many reserves which, he said, will make everything all right eventually.

Another Berlin dispatch said a Balkan correspondent had asked "whether he should prepare opinion in his country for loss of the Dnieper line. A military spokesman was quoted as replying:—

"The German armies fighting on the Dnieper will continue to fight on the Dnieper and will do everything possible to reconquer the position lost on the Dnieper."

British Children Held In Portugal

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP Cable).— Richard K. Law, Secretary of State, told the House of Commons last night that the government is aware of an accumulation of British children in Portugal, unable to obtain further transport to Britain after returning part way from North America.

He said the difficulty had arisen largely through children, especially unaccompanied children, being sent without assurance of passage on the Portugal-Britain leg of the journey.

Every effort is being made for their transport, he said, and meantime arrangements have been made for volunteers from the British community in Lisbon to see to their welfare.

The Evening News said that between 300 and 350 children are involved and that they are staying at a Luxury Hotel at Estoril, a Casino town near Lisbon.

Production Problems

TORONTO, Oct. 29—(CP)—H. H. Webb of the production branch, Munitions Department, Ottawa, yesterday told delegates to the 29th annual meeting of the Association of Canadian advertisers here that production problems will be "accentuated and aggravated" as the time of victory approaches. He urged efforts to instil in every worker a sense of the importance of his own particular job in the war effort. R. L. Sperber, Windsor was elected president.

Now In England

A cable has been received by Mrs. Paul Wicks, 100 Gladstone Avenue, informing her of the arrival of her husband, AC-1 Paul Wicks, overseas. Popular Manager Is Moved From City

M. H. RIDDLE

F. D. TUFFORD

It is announced today that Mort H. Riddle, manager of the Bell Telephone Company and president of the Peterborough Rotary Club, has been appointed to the position of division commercial supervisor of the company's western division with headquarters in Toronto. Mr. Riddle will be succeeded in Peterborough by F. D. Tufford, who was chief clerk in Peterborough in 1925.

New Manager For Bell Telephone

F. D. Tufford, of the public relations department of the Bell Telephone Company at Montreal, has been appointed manager of the company here, succeeding M. H. Riddle, manager in Peterborough since 1940, who has been transferred to the position of division commercial supervisor of the company's western division, with headquarters at Toronto. Mr. Tufford will take over his new duties on November 1.

After attending the University of Toronto, Mr. Tufford entered the services of the Bell Telephone Company in the commercial department at Toronto on February 4, 1924. After some experience as a salesman in Hamilton, he was appointed chief clerk at Peterborough in 1925, so that he is not altogether a stranger to this city.

In the following year, Mr. Tufford was again transferred to Toronto where he held various positions in the commercial department during the next fifteen years. On January 1, he was assigned to public relations work at Montreal, and retained this position until his present appointment.

From October 20, 1940, to March 23, 1942, Mr. Tufford was on active service with the Royal Canadian Air Force, in which he attained the rank of Flight Lieutenant, but was compelled to obtain his discharge because of ill health.

Mr. Riddle joined the Bell Telepohne Company at St. Thomas in 1919, and has occupied various positions in London, Hamilton, Toronto and Sarnia. Before his appointment at Peterborough, he was manager at Hamilton. He has taken an active interest in many local organizations, being president of the Rotary Club, Flight Commander of the 164th Squadron Air Cadets Corps, member of the official board of George Street United Church and a past director of the Chamber of Commerce.

Germans Stone American Fliers

By JOHN F. CHESTER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

A HOSPITAL IN CHESHIRE, England, Oct. 29 (AP). — Fourteen ill and wounded American soldiers freed from German prison camps and brought here for treatment, said to-day that Germans were pessimistic over the outcome of the war and many of them were so angry at Americans they spat upon and stoned them.

One man severely wounded in Sicily, Pte. Herbert Enrich, of Brooklyn, N.Y., said all the Germans he talked to were "pessimistic over the outcome of the war and most of them seemed to think it would be over by January, 1944."

One group of fliers found trouble when the loudspeaker in the railroad station at Lueneburg, where they were being taken, announced to the crowd that airmen who had bombed Hamburg were present. One of the men was hit by a rock, civilians cursed them, and threw hot coffee at them, but the guards protected them from violence.

Other fliers who had a passing glimpse of Berlin, Augsburg, and Hamburg told interviewers that bomb damage had been terrific in certain areas and Hamburg particularly was "flat for miles and miles—a shambles."

Merck And Company Faces Cartel Charge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).— The Justice Department announced to-day the filing of a civil complaint at Trenton, N.J., charging Merck and Company, Inc., of Rahway, N.J., described as the largest producer of pharmaceutical chemicals in the United States, and E. Merck Chemical Works, Darmstadt, Germany, with maintaining a cartel agreement in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The suit, filed in Federal court, named as defendants Merck and Company, George W. Merck, president, and Powers-Weightman-Rosengarten Corporation, a Merck subsidiary with offices at Rahway.

The German company and three of its members, including Dr. Karl Merck, were named as co-conspirators.

Rommel Heads Germans Forces

AT THE SWISS - ITALIAN FRONTIER, Oct. 29 — (AP). — The Berlin newspaper Borsen Zeitung said yesterday it was confirmed officially that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel now is the commander-in-chief of the German forces in Italy.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has been recalled to Germany for a new assignment, the newspaper added, and a Gen. Wittinghoff, formerly commander of the Milan area, now is the chief of German forces in southern Italy.

Another report from Nazi-occupied northern Italy said Fascist central headquarters had been moved from Rome to northern Italy, probably to Venice, where diplomatic representatives to the puppet Fascist government have been established.

(Berlin radio said Admiral Ferruicco Perreni was appointed as successor to the Fascist Under-Secretary of Navy, Admiral Antonio Lagnani, whose recent death the radio ascribed to an auto accident. Perreni was described as a submarine expert who has gained much experience in battles in the Mediterranean.

Rome radio meantime broadcast a claim that the Mussolini battalion of Italian Fascist Bersaglieri had been in contact with the Allied forces in southern Italy since October 16 and declared other Italian troops soon would be sent to this front.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough rugby fans will get a chance tomorrow to see the first football game of the season when Rich Jackson's Peterborough Colts will battle with the Lindsay Bears in a game at Riverside Park at 2.30 o'clock. The Peterborough youngsters deserve all kinds of credit for their enterprise in reviving the gridiron game here and a real crowd should greet their debut tomorrow The Colts have been working out for several weeks and while most of the lineup will be playing their first organized rugby they have been showing a lot of stuff in practice and they hope to come through with an exhibition that will please the crowd. A number of players have had Collegiate training and they should help to steady the team in its opening game of the year. The Lindsay outfit made up for the most part of employees of the Arsenal, is touted as a strong aggregation and they will probably prove tough opposition for the Peterborough outfit. Joe Stewart is one of the new players who will make his first appearance with the Colts and he has been going great guns at flying wing in the workouts Gordie Young will referee the battle and the field has been properly marked out and everything is in readiness for what should prove to be a lively battle.

* * * * * *

Manager Rich Jackson has announced his lineup for tomorrow. As will be seen from the names the Colts are a young team with most of them making their first appearance on the gridiron, although most of the players have been seen in action in other sports. Here is the battle array for the game with Lindsay: Flying wing—Joe Stewart, halves—Bill Edger, Shadgett and Jack Carpenter, quarter—Berardi, snap—Jack Whittaker, inside wings—Eric McBain, I. Wade, middle wings—Campbell, Tommy Craig, outside wings—Mattucci, Don Davis, alternates—Bob Menzies, Miller, Billy Jones. It will be seen that City Softball League outfields are well represented in the backfield of the Colts for Stewart covered centre for the 4th Battery while Jack Carpenter galloped around left for the Switch Gear.

A Championship Bout

Peterborough wrestling fans are to have a rare treat next Tuesday night; nothing less than a championship bout for the British Empire title. Killer John Katan by his double victory over the Bounding Black from South Africa, Jack Clayborne, has earned a match for the coveted Empire championship and his claim has been recognized. The Palermo Panther has been matched with the brilliant title-holder Whipper Bill Watson and the battle is on here Tuesday night. It is a natural. Watson, Toronto's idol and one of the oustanding figures in the wrestling game today, is big, powerful, clever and fast. The Whip, in fact, has rare speed. He can move around the mat with the agility of a middle-weight and there isn't much that he doesn't know about the science of wrestling. Watson has made such vast strides in the mat game that he is a logical contender for the world title and Long Bill Longson, the holder, is none too keen about meeting him. Katan on the other hand is less spectacular but he is a rugged, courageous performer, an experienced battler who has met most of the mat celebrities and failed to prove anything like a pushover for any of them.

* * * * * *

The attendance should set a new high for a wrestling card in Peterborough. Cities of this size do not get many opportunities to see a championship bout but the local fans have earned this chance by the manner in which they have been turning out for recent shows. With the Whipper and the Killer battling for the prized Empire title it looks as if the Brock St. Arena management had better arrange for extra ringside seats. Incidentally the bout promises to be a battle of chin locks. Katan has been using that grip with crushing effect whenever he has been able to persuade the referee that it was really a chin lock and not a strangle. On the other hand Watson has been demonstrating in recent bouts a new Comando unconscious hold along the same lines as the Katan specialty. The Whip, of course, has plenty of other weapons in his repertoire, including the devastating Canadian avalanche, and he may need them all to subdue the troublesome Panther who is one of those birds who must be taken seriously all the time.

The 1943-44 Generals

Peterborough fans are always deeply interested in the Oshawa Generals so George Soup Campbell's first impressions of this year's crop of young stars from all over the map should be well received. Here they are:

"It's much too soon to start picking out the 1943-44 roster of the Generals. We doubt if Coach Conacher will even start "weeding 'em out" until the end of the week—and by that time he and Mgr. Matt Leyden will be just about dizzy keeping track of them all. Goalie Harvey Bennett was not present. He's still down at the Boston training camp and rumor has it that he may not be back. It seems Art Ross is claiming he's got a similar grab on Bennett as he had on "Bep" Guidolin—and he kept Guidolin. However, there were a couple of fair looking net-minders holding the forts and one is none other than Bethel, the laddie who was one of his team's few stars when Oshawa Generals ousted Ottawa St. Patrick's College in the Eastern Canada playdowns last spring. The other aspirant for the goal-minding job is a lad named MacMillan who hails from Cornwall district. Neither had much chance to show anything last night, naturally. Last year's players on hand last night included Floyd Curry, Bill Ezinicki, "Wart" Barker, Kennie Smith and Don Batten, who has started right in to play on defence. Barring injuries, there'll be no weakness on right wing anyway, with Ezinicki and Curry both being available."

"That's just as well, too, for practically every one of the other good prospects on hand appear to be left-handed," continues Scribe Campbell. "Bob Dawes, a lanky defenceman from Saskatoon, looks like a mighty good choice. Bob Love, who helped Portage La Prairie beat Generals in 1942, is another prospect worth watching. Petsura and Chenier, a couple of blondes from Montreal district, both have all kinds of speed. Taggart, last year with Winnipeg Rangers and Bob Porter who was here for a while last fall and then returned to Paris, are two more likely looking boys. Chenier is a high-stepping (we're talking about

Holly Mowry Of Stags Topples 863 Pins; Team Wins Only One Point

The consistently good rolling by Holly Mowry along with two outstanding single games by Ken Graham and Chief Gimblett were main topics for discussion among the bowlers after last night's City League games were over. Mowry topped off a hard-hitting streak which he has maintained since the schedule opened five weeks ago with and 863 count for the Stags team while Graham knocked off the year's best single, 386. The Chief counted a 370 in an 809 total. Ken's game was all strikes to the fifth frame, he broke off in the sixth but struck out from the seventh to the finish.

Jay's chalked up 3696 pins including a 1376 single team game as they swamped Canada Packers 3 to 0 while the Stags hit 3510 for only one point from K. of C.

The veteran George Dodson hit 776 in a determined but unsuccessful effort to stave off another Westclox defeat. The Clockmakers absorbed their fifteenth straight setback as they dropped three close games to the C.G.E. Machine Shop.

Good singles included K. Graham's 386, G. Gimblett 370, B. McCarroll 350, W. Harris 334, W. Martin 323, V. Rose 320, H Mowry 320, T. Miller 316, N. Routley 311, M. Giardino 301 and F. Wood 300.

● One of our soldiers, home on leave, was asked what impressed him most on returning to Canada. "Everywhere I go" he replied, "I sense that Canadians are weary of war." "How about England," was the next question, "surely they are far more tired of war than we are?" "Sure they are" he said, "and then a German plane comes over, drops a few bombs, kills some people. And then England isn't tired any more!"

Here in Canada, we have so far been spared the horrors of bombing. Others are bearing the brunt of this war for us. In humble reverence we remember that—to keep our skies tranquil and free—"somewhere today a Man died, for me". Surely the determined effort of every loyal Canadian must be—by unceasing effort and unflinching self-denial—to strive to be in a little way worthy of that supreme sacrifice.

Through the three wars in which Canada has been engaged since Grafton's were founded in 1853, we have striven to play our part. Grafton & Co., Ltd., have oversubscribed their quota in each of the four preceding Victory Loans, and together we confidently anticipate going "over the top" in the present "Speed the Victory" Loan.

Beaches Must Trample Ottawa Outfit

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Adjectives like "crucial" and "critical" in relation to sports events have been trampled upon until their edges are a little thin, but no dictionary definition more appropriately describes approaching Ontario Rugby Football Union activities.

This Saturday, for instance Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Combines clash in the first game of a Varsity Stadium double-header while Hamilton Flying Wildcats oppose Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in the afterpiece. Apart from the vital bearing of these contests on the swirling play-off struggle, Union's action in summarily shelving a Balmy Beach protest will add spice to the proceedings.

The protest was rejected last night at a closed meeting in Hamilton of all league clubs except Ottawa Combines. Union president Frank Lennard said decision was reached "after careful consideration of all details." He declined to say how the clubs voted.

The protest related to a game at Hamilton on October 20 which the Wildcats won 18-17.

Despite the adverse committee-room ruling, Beaches still are in easy striking distance of one of the two play-off positions. Anything but a Beach victory against the tailend Combines on Saturday would create a distinct upset, while Hurricanes, their forward wall stripped down to three replacements, must reach the heights to conquer the undefeated Hamilton team, now two points ahead of the Hurricanes and three ahead of Beaches. Thus, a Beach triumph and a Hamilton victory would boost Alex Pontons club into the second place ahead of Hurricanes.

In the last Air Force-Hamilton meeting Hurricanes gained a 9-9 tie, but press box reports indicate Flyers were as lucky to earn the division of points as Wildcats were fortunate in their 18-17 conquest of Beaches.

TORONTO, Oct. 29 — (CP). — H. A. (Huck) Welch, for years a football star with Hamilton Tigers in their palmiest days, has won his Army captaincy overseas....Entering the discussion about service hockey, the Montreal Star in an editorial states it has learned "on the highest authority that.....the service teams are not and can not be used as a shield to enable players fit for service overseas to avoid service"....And Paul Parent, manager of he Montreal Air Force hockey team writes to say: "The R.C.A.F. offers no inducements to hockey stars and pays them no money to play hockey or any other sports."

Wrap it up:

Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell looked over Nanaimo's Army hockey situation and wrote: "This club is on the way to wining the Allan Cup or, if it fails, something should be done about the collapse of an outstanding favorite." Ken lists available Nanaimo talent: Forwards, Bill Carse, Elmer Kreller, Joffre Desilets, Sam Kennedy, Pinky Melnyk, Jim McIndoe, Suds Sutherland, Mel Lunde, Terry Reardon; defence Nick Metz, Julian Sawchuk, Dave Mackay, Manny McIntyre. Goal is a weak spot, but Nanaimo has Ray Regnier and Jesse Seaby, both experienced. Maybe they won't need a goalie.

A Westerner is president of the Toronto Air Force hockey team, the Flyers. He's Wing Cmdr. D. W. Stoneham—the Bill Stoneham who put out a valuable amateur hockey guide when he was a newspaperman with the Western Producer in Saskatoon before the war ....We admire Lester Patrick for his bland explanation that five New York Ranger hockey players went to Windsor, Ont., to acclimatize themselves to Eastern playing conditions. Fact is, though, that the Manitoba division of the War Services Board is fussy about who receives border-crossing permits. Maybe Lester thought he should spread his passport business around the country a little more than he did last year—when he received a few disappointments—Charlie McCarthy, First Great War veteran who claims to be a former Canadian lightweight boxing champion, is working in a Seattle airplane plant.

Balmies' Protest Tossed Out By Committee

HAMILTON, Oct. 29—The protest lodged by Balmy Beach of their 18-17 loss to Hamilton here one week ago Wednesday night on the grounds that a spectator had picked up the ball after Annis Stukus had tried for placement and failed was disallowed here last night when officials of five of the six clubs—Ottawa not being represented—considered the complaint.

Just what transpired behind closed doors could not be learned, aside from the meagre statement issued by President Frank Lennard after the gathering, which lasted from 8 o'clock until 11 o'clock. The statement read as follows:

"After careful consideration of all details the protest was disallowed."

When questioned as to how many had voted on the question and what the votes were the president refused to comment. His only answer to that question was:

"We don't want any unnecessary publicity on this thing."

Present at the meeting were Al Morrison of Toronto Indians; Spike Jackson, R.C.A.F.; Ed Smith, Navy; Samuel R. Manson, Hamilton; and Ab Box, Balmy Beach.

At the start of the meeting the press representative was asked to leave the room, while the three men who handled the game, Seymour Wilson, Bob Leith and Norm Crichton, as well as the timer, Ted Kennedy, were asked to remain and state their cases. The quartet were asked to answer several questions pertaining to the particular play and the ones leading up to it. All this required but a short space of 20 minutes, but the delegates argued until 11 o'clock before making the final decision.

6 Hockey Clubs Play Saturday

TORONTO, Oct. 29 — (CP). — The National Hockey League, fighting for survival against a war-imposed shortage of player talent, opens its 26th season on Saturday with all six clubs slated to see action on the opening week-end program of a 4½-month schedule, calling for each team to play 50 games.

Four of the league's teams swing into play opening night, with Boston Bruins at Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers at Toronto Maple Leafs. Detroit Red Wings start defence of their Stanley Cup title at home against Rangers on Sunday night while Chicago Black Hawks entertain Leafs.

Detroit successful in four straight over Boston in the 1942-43 Stanley Cup final series, has lost seven regulars from last season, but the remaining cast is so powerful that Wings have been ranked as favorites in early speculation with Boston, Chicago, and Montreal. Leafs and Rangers, relying heavily on youthful and inexperienced players, have not been entirely overlooked in what promises to be a wide-open race.

Angott Ready For Bob Riffin

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP)—The chances are Sammy Angott sits over his breakfast Farina and flapjacks these mornings and remarks to Sammy Angott something about "this is where I came in."

For, it appears that for the second time in three years the ruling nabobs of nose-mashing—the National Boxing Association and the New York State Athletic Commission — have elected sweepin' Sammy to sweep up the lightweight title mess and make one championship grow where two are now tangled up.

It seems he started to work again night before last when he whipped Slugger White in Los Angeles to take the N.B.A. half of the crown. The Slugger, sitting out there on an impressive winning string and howling for recognition, had been an increasingly tough number for the beak-busting bosses to explain away.

Now Sammy the Sweeper is coming east to take on Bobby Riffin Nov. 29. Bobby, a pretty good free-for-all "howler" himself, has the local fathers on somewhat of a pogo stick at the moment because he recently upset Beau the Jumping Jack. This hardly makes the bouncing Jack a glamour boy for his Nov. 19 return tussle with Bobcat Bob Montgomery for the New York half of the title.

Here and There in Sport

In connection with preparations for Saturday's Pimlico Special, with a winner-take-all $25,000 purse, turf statisticians have dug up the figures of bargain horses which have turned out to be gilt-edged investments—three of the cheap buys are included in the five invited entries for the feature at Baltimore. One of the starters, Slide Rule, was bought for $8,000 but has earned $110,885; another, Eurasian, picked up last May for $5,000 by Frank and Joe Rabinovich, New York wholesale milliners, has won $60,215 in five months, and the third cheap horse, Anticlimax, has brought $57,250 to owner H. P. Headley.

But, since the day that August Belmont sold Man O' War for $5,000, Alsab, owned by Mrs. Al Sabath of Chicago, stands out as probably the best buy of all. After being bid in for $750, this horse has accounted for $345,925 in prize money, making him the fourth highest winner in turf records. Altogether, 31 of such turf bargains for $100 up have earned more than $50,000 each, 11 of them in the $100,000 bracket. The 31 have won $2,975,653 all told.

Seibert Captain

Manager Paul Thompson of the Chicago Black Hawks announced at Minneapolis yesterday the appointment of Earl Seibert, 14-year defenceman of the N.H.L., as captain of the team which will break camp tonight for Chicago where the season opens Sunday night against Toronto Leafs.

Just before the Canadiens of the N.H.L. trimmed Cornwall Flyers 7-3 Wednesday night, Wingman Maurice Richard of the Habitants learned he had become the father of a nine-pound baby girl. He went out and scored three goals although it was only an exhibition tilt.

The two-year-old filly Entertainment, odds-on favorite, led all the way yesterday at Rockingham Park, Salem, N.H., in the six-furlong feature and headed off Open Fire, 10-1 shot, doing the distance in 1.16 on a muddy track.

Infielder Dick Culler and Pitcher Bill Swift of the Chicago White Sox have been acquired by the Milwaukee Brewers, 1943 pennant-winners of the American Association, in part payment for third-baseman Grey Clarke, recently sold to the Sox.

Bobby Ruffin of New York and Sammy Angott, N.B.A.'s lightweight boxing champion, were matched yesterday for a 10-round non-title bout at Madison Square Garden, New York, Nov. 29, with both scrappers agreeing to meet at 137 pounds, two pounds over the lightweight line.

Royal Prince First

In the 31st running of the Eastern Shore Handicap at Pimlico yesterday, Mrs. H. J. Mohr's 31-1 shot Royal Prince raced to a surprise four-length win to take $10,850. The favored Dance Team finished second in the muddy going.

Coach Dick Irvin of the Canadiens announced yesterday at Montreal he would use Bill Durnan, formerly with the Royals in the Quebec loop, in the nets in place of Bert Gardiner who was on loan to Chicago last season and will play for Boston Bruins this time.

At Pittsburgh last night the Hornets of the American Hockey League announced the suspension of Defenceman Pete Besson of Springfield, Mass., by President Maurice Pdoloff of the league. The announced reason was "for failure to come to terms with the club".

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP)—The National Hockey League season gets under way tomorrow night, and, after a look at the lineups, its hardly necessary to point out that it's the fifth season since Canada entered the war—and almost all the players are Canadians....Still, there are a surprising number of experienced players still around—including husky guys like Pat Egan, discharged from the Canadian Army, and Babe Pratt, who was rejected....Still, they're calling kids who played part of last season "veterans" now and there isn't a goalie in the league who has played a full season in the major circuit....In fact, far as we can recall, only Detroit's Jimmy Franks and 35-year-old Benny Grant, dragged out of retirement and propped up in the Toronto net, are the only ones who have played even a few games....It'll probably be a lively season, but its a good thing for the big-timers that the Curtis Bay Coast Guard outfit is playing in the "amateur" Eastern United States League.

Brush Off for Macomb

Although Macomb, Ill., High School won its game at Havana last week, fans still are demanding a recount on an 85-yard touchdown run by Fullback Don Daniels....Looking around after the play, officials could find only 10 Macomb players on the field so they nullified the score.... The 11th man was there, all right, but so many of the sideline fans crowded onto the edge of the field to watch the run that the missing player was lost in the throng.

Capitals Win Opening Game

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 29 (AP)—Indianapolis Capitals, third-place finishers in last year's American Hockey League, opened the 1943-44 campaign last night with a 5-3 decision over the Buffalo Bisons, who finished first last season.

The Caps, sporting an entire new team with the exception of three who still may go to the Detroit Red Wings, were never behind, to the enjoyment of 4,371 customers.

Bill Hudson shot them out in front at 10.25 of the first period, and they had a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Bill Quackenbush added a goal in the second period while Waldren of Buffalo was in the penalty box for board checking. Then midway in the final period Hudson scored again to give the Caps a 4-1 lead.

Buffalo still had something left, however. Dede Klein and Tommy Forgie scored two goals in less than three minutes. With the Bisons only a goal behind, Winkie Smith stole the puck near his own goal and registered the last tally with only 30 seconds to go.

Buffalo—Goal, Ceryance; defense, Dill, Turner; centre, Rimstad; wings, Bennett, Klein; subs, Waldriff, Waldren, Forgie, Hunt, Thibault, Kobussen, Jones, Evanshem, Kaminsky.

Indianapolis—Goal, Lumley; defense, Buller, Lynn; centre, N. Smith; wings, Carveth, W. Smith; subs, Stoddart, O'Hara, Morrison, Glover, Kane, De Felice, Hudson, Jackson, Quackenbush.

Officials—McVeigh and Mills.

Cattle Prices Down, Hogs Steady

TORONTO, Oct. 29 — (CP). — Cattle prices were down 15 cents on inferior steers and heifers and 25 to 50 cents cwt. on cows and bulls in cattle trade on the livestock market here this week. Veal calves were steady and grass calves 50 cents lower. Hogs held steady while sows dropped 25c. Sheep and lambs were unchanged.

The movement of cattle was better at the reduced prices and only about 400 head were unsold at the close, against 800 the previous week. Good to choice weighty steers sold at $11.50 to $12.25 with plain steers downward to $9.50. Butcher steers and heifers closed at $9 to $10.75 with tops at $11. Boners were $6.50 to $7.75 with canners as low as $4. Bulls were $6.50 to $8.50. Fed yearlings sold at $11.50 to $13.50. Stockers sold steady at from $8 to $10.50, with stock calves up to $11.50. Good milkers and springers were steady at $130 to $160 each.

Calves sold at $15 to $15.50 for choice vealers with common to medium heavies from $9 to $13.00. Grassers were $6.50 to $8 with the bulk at $7.50.

Lambs were steady at $11.50 to $12 for good ewes and wethers with bucks at $1 cwt. discount and culls at $8 to $9. Show lambs from the Manitoulin Island sold at from $9 to $12.25 according to grade Sheep were weak at from $3 to $7 cwt. with Western yearlings at $8 to $8.50. Breeding ewes moved slowly at $6 to $12 each.

Hogs held steady in spite of the lifting of restrictions on domestic slaughtering. The market price was generally $16.75 dressed for hogs. Sows dropped 25 cents cwt. to $13 dressed.

ed that his followers had clashed in a sharp action near Bistrica with units of Mihailovic's army who, the bulletin said, were aided by Italian "Blackshirts" and "Quislings" led by pro-Nazi Milan Nedic. Nazi uniforms also were reported in this engagement.

The communique said that units of the 27th Division stormed the enemy-held mountain stronghold of Rogatica, 30 miles east of Sarajevo, and captured stores of sorely-needed war material.

The Yugoslav communique reported that German amphibious forces had attempted a landing on the large Dalmatian island of Brac which faces the port of Split. The entire landing force was destroyed, the bulletin stated.

German units, however, did land on the Pelyesac Peninsula, 100 miles down the coast, and established a bridgehead.

Near Benkovac, in Northern Dalmatia, Patriots scored another success when they killed 330 German officers and men in an attack on Nazi-held positions.

Far to the north, on the Hungarian frontier, Partisans destroyed the railway line between Koprovnica and Gyekenyes on the Hungarian side of the border.

Cairo dispatches quoted Balkan advices as indicating that the familiar Nazi formula of divide and conquer had failed to the extent that both Yugoslav factions were battling Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel's armies despite their differences.

ed his blood-spattered uniform, put on one of Harjes' suits and had breakfast. Later he heaved his uniform, wrapped in paper, into the East River.

Lonergan will appear in police line-up today, then be arraigned in felony court. The grand jury, possibly today, will be asked to return a murder indictment against him.

The police said Lonergan's statement of events at the murder scene was as follows:

He knocked at the door, his wife admitted him, and he said:

"I understand you are the belle of El Morocco (one of New York's swankiest night clubs)."

"Your behavior hasn't been so good," she retorted.

Lonergan inquired where the baby was and was told:

"He's in bed. Don't go in."

"Well, I want to go in," Lonergan insisted.

"No, don't go in," his wife asserted. "You'll disturb him. Come back later and see him."

"I can't," the husband answered. "I have a luncheon date with a girl."

(He lunched later with Jeanne Murphy, an actress.)

Mrs. Lonergan asked the airman to have lunch with her instead.

"I can't," said her husband. "This is a previous date."

His wife remarked:

"I'm amazed. I can't control my men."

Lonergan had his hand on his cap, which was on a dresser, and was about to leave, when his wife said:

"You're not going to see the baby again."

Anger got the better of him, the story continued, and he picked up a candlestick near the bed and struck her. It broke and he seized its mate. Mrs. Lonergan rose from the bed, though stunned, and seized him, scratching his face. He belabored her with the second candlestick and left her lying on the bed.

From there he went to the apartment of John Harjes, a friend, removed his blood-spattered uniform, donned one of Harjes' suits and had had breakfast. After eating he wrapped the uniform in paper, boarded an eastbound bus to the East River and hurled the package about 20 feet into the water.

General Canvass Is Falling Behind In City

With the special names division leading the way under the finish wire for 104 per cent of their objective, Peterborough city and county showed no signs of faltering on Thursday as they thrust the total of their Fifth Victory Loan subscriptions over the $3,000,000 mark, registering Bond sales for the tenth day at $288,850.

Of the $4,600,000 assigned to this urban and rural community the total last night was $3,277,850, which is 71.26 per cent. And the required percentage for the tenth day was 55.55 per cent.

That puts Peterborough's margin accomplishment over objective at 15.71 in the percentage column.

The actual percentage advance was from 64.98 at Wednesday night to 71.26 last night, or 6.28 and the corresponding figures in the column indicating requirement of objective moved in its daily measure from 50 per cent at the half-way post on Wednesday night to 55.55 per cent on Thursday night, a difference of 5.55.

Those figures reduce the Thursday record of progress to an index of almost one per cent better than was required. The comparison is 6.28 per cent, the day's percentage advance, with 5.55 per cent, the required advance for Thursday.

So Thursday was another day of shouldering ahead, reaching a point almost within touch of the three-quarter pole, and still moving onward with a percentage margin of 15.71 to the good.

The divisional gains on Thursday were as follows:

Special Names	$195,000
City General	52,800
Employees	21,850
County General	19,200
Total	$288,850

Whatever the rest of Canada was doing on Thursday, the tenth day of the campaign, Peterborough reported a highly satisfactory continuation of "lending for Victory."

But, will there be any more of those $195,000 days from the special names division? How near are they getting to the bottom of their barrel?

And without their six-figured help, how is the general canvass in the city and county going to measure up to joint job assigned to those two groups?

How long can the city general section maintain its Thursday sales of $52,800? Can the county come through in the final week?

Those are questions which are meeting any feeling of satisfaction and complacency at the door of headquarters on George Street. That margin of 15.71 in the percentage column will not carry through more than a couple of adverse days, if they should appear.

Peterborough's Victory Loan campaign, like the entire war against Germany, is not won yet, however satisfactory and encouraging the present stage of progress appears.

Employees at 78.12 Per Cent.

Presumably, the continued advancement in the employees' canvass division presages attainment of the $950,000 allotted to the men and women of Peterborough's factories. Their total of subscriptions moved up to $742,150 on Thursday from Wednesday's $720,300; or from 75.82 per cent to 78.12 per cent, a 2.3 improvement in percentage.

The city general canvass is still less than 50 per cent of its $600,000 objective and the combined city and rural canvass is only 45.38 per cent, or $975,700 of the $2,150,000 objective. And it is over that gap the doubts and worries of the local finance committee of which Gordon S. Matthews is chairman are hovering.

Havelock Leads Again.

The Village of Havelock and the Township of Smith are still holding the rural spotlight in their day to day rivalry.

The C.P.R. village as on top on Tuesday, yielded it to Smith Wednesday, and grabbed first place back again on Thursday.

In the rural standing few other changes were noted, and they were of minor account. Havelock is out in front, Smith second, North Monaghan third, Asphodel fourth, Otonabee fifth, Belmont-Methuen sixth.

Ennismore turned in another blank day, but still remained in seventh place. Dummer gained a notch, from ninth to eighth place, as the northern townships dropped back.

Douro lifted itself out of the last position to tenth, Lakefield lapsed from tenth to eleventh, and Norwood slipped from the eleventh to twelfth.

Percentage Comparisons.

Improvement in the percentage column could be listed as follows for Thursday: Special names 13 per cent, Douro 7.58, Havelock 7.5, North Monaghan 6, Lakefield 4.25, Smith 4.12, City General 4.1, Dummer 3.82, Norwood 3.19, Asphodel 2.63, Employees' canvass 2.3, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos 2.23, Belmont-Methuen .4, Otonabee .08, Ennismore .00.

Recalling Objectives

The summary for the tenth day was as follows, reading across the column, - objective, subscriptions, and percentage:

City General Canvass	$1,550,000	$716,200	46.21
North Monaghan	35,000	20,450	58.43
Otonabee	130,000	57,800	44.46
Norwood	58,000	15,400	26.55
Asphodel	38,000	19,550	51.45
Smith	90,000	54,150	60.17
Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos	45,000	15,150	33.67
Lakefield	60,000	17,550	29.25
Ennismore	12,000	4,400	36.67
Douro	35,000	10,650	30.43
Dummer	34,000	11,700	34.41
Belmont-Methuen	25,000	9,300	37.2
Havelock	38,000	23,400	61.58

Two enemy planes attempting to intercept the Allied raiders were shot down during the day. There were no losses for the Allies.

Planes based in the Middle East continued their attacks on enemy positions and transport in the Aegean last night and yesterday with heavy bombers raiding the Haritza airfield on Rhodes and five small vessels in Stampalia harbor.

A large fire was left burning on Rhodes and high explosives lifted debris from the enemy vessels high in the air and left considerable wreckage floating on the water in the daylight raids. The attacks followed up a Wednesday night assault on the Herakleion airfield on Crete in which large explosions were observed in the aircraft dispersal area.

Three planes were lost in the attacks in the Aegean area.

Mud, Mountains Slowing Eighth Advance

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

With the British 8th Army in Italy, Oct. 28 (delayed)—(AP)—Mud and mountains in seemingly inexhaustible quantities are the Germans' most effective defensive weapons in holding back the British 8th Army on the "north of Rome" front.

Reduced to foot slogging operations, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British and Canadian troops now are encountering their toughest going since entering Italy on Sept. 3.

(Dispatches from Canadian Press War Correspondents William Stewart and Louis V. Hunter, both with the 8th Army, have told previously of the heavy going being experienced by 8th Army troops and of the difficulties caused by intensive rain.

(Troops from the Canadian 1st Division, which make up the left wing of the 8th Army, have been inching forward steadily along the rugged "backbone" of Italy, however, despite these difficulties, dispatches from the two correspondents have stated.)

5th Creeps Along

The enemy's deep defences, the erosion-scarred mountainous terrain and the static factor of frequent bad weather constitute the reasons for Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's recent forecast of increasingly slower progress toward Rome.

Not one offensive, but several, will be necessary before the 8th Army can hope to see the seven hills of the eternal city.

A cold, driving rain which yesterday (Wednesday) washed out the air support fell again today (Thursday) on the forward positions scattered through the rugged eastern shoulder of the Apennines from the area of Baranello to the shallow bridgehead across the Trigno River at its Adriatic mouth.

Shivering soldiers, their blood thinned by hot Africa and the sweltering summer in Sicily, inched forward along the Adriatic coast reaching the San Salvo railway station last night. That is 3,000 yards from the Trigno which patrols first crossed last week-end.

San Salvo village, on high ground five miles inland from the coastal railroad, remained, at least temporarily, in the hands of the Germans.

Tanks are an almost useless luxury in this sector. Every little canyon of the Apennine water-shed becomes a trap for armor.

Survivors of the German 1st Parachute Division remain the best of the enemy forces opposing the 8th Army.

Portsmouth Doll Starts Work For War Victims

There is every likelihood that from among the many donations that have gone from this city and district through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain, the City of Portsmouth, situated on the south coast of England has received some help, for it has been bombed on many an occasion.

A young girl by name of Frances Franklin living in this much devastated city, took part in a competition for making dolls which was conducted in all the schools of that district, and from the very excellence of the work, had the honor of receiving the first prize.

This 12-year-old girl, a pupil at the Langstone Girls' School in Grade 8, sent the doll to Mrs. Kathleen Elcome of Hunter street, who is an aunt, and who now is sponsoring a draw on this doll so as to send further help to the people of Britain in time for the Christmas season.

Help Themselves

A great many efforts have been held to raise money for the fund, but this happens to be the first which has come direct to this city from the Motherland during war time to take its place as a means of raising money to help them. The doll represents a British airman, and is complete in every detail, it really being a marvel how such a young girl could knit such a complete specimen, the fact that it won first prize in a large field being proof of this.

Tickets have only been on sale at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents for a little more than a week, yet with the assistance of friends and by taking it to two public gatherings, one of which was a bingo at the Moose Hall, and the other a meeting of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's the sum of $22 has already been raised and it appears in today's list of receipts.

One personal gift is listed from "A Friend" giving a helping hand in the special donations for Christmas, for which the fund now has $1,005 on hand out of the $6,720 needed to duplicate last year's achievement of £1,500.

Saturday's Market

The stall on the market this Saturday will be operated by the pupils of S.S. No. 10, Emily under the direction of the teacher, Milburn Jones, who has given leadership for the fund in a similar way on at least three previous occasions.

The pupils will also supply the materials for the sale which will include homemade cooking and various farm produce, for which there usually is a very ready sale, and every cent thus raised will go as their contribution towards the special fund to give Christmas Cheer to the boys and girls of Britain who have been bombed out of their homes, or evacuated to safer regions in the country.

On the outside market, Mrs. Sweeting will have tickets to offer for sale for the prize doll from Portsmouth mentioned in the earlier part of this column.

Lawyers Battle In Strano Case

After a brief but heated verbal battle between opposing counsel a number of charges against B. R. Strano of wholesaling potatoes by the bag at a price higher than the ceiling price laid down by the Wartime Prices and Trade regulations were adjourned until next Thursday when they were called in police court this morning.

W. J. Arthur Fair who appeared for Strano asked for the adjournment and when the request was opposed by Hon. G. N. Gordon K.C., who was present to prosecute the cases for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the verbal fireworks started. The net result, however, was that the adjournment was granted but not before the counsel for the Board announced his intention of laying some more charges in connection with the affair.

Careless Driving Charge Adjourned

Arthur Dwyer, Peterborough, pleaded not guilty in police court this morning to a charge of careless driving and at the request of Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure the case was adjourned.

The charge grew out of an accident on Highway 28 in which a trailer carrying a sawing machine was struck by a passing car and knocked into the ditch. Dwyer was represented by T. J. Carley, K.C. In court this morning Clarence James owner of the car that had been drawing the trailer pleaded guilty to a charge of pulling a trailer that did not have this year's license plate. He was fined $5 and $2.50 costs.

850 Vote Dance At Centre Great Success

The weather-man seems to have a grudge to pay as far as the Victory Loan activities are concerned during this Drive, however, last night he was led astray. The Band Concert and Community Dance held in the Drill Hall of the Training Centre was definite a success with some eight hundred and fifty people present and all having an exceptionally good time.

The Band Concert which preceded the Community Dance was excellent. W.O. 1 Albert Croasdale, conductor of the R.C.A.M.C. Band is to be commended in his handling of the baton over this fine group of musicians. Three numbers in particular appealed to the mixed audience, "Teddy-Bear Picnic," a sprightly little number, the ever familiar "Song of Love" from 'Blossom Time'" and a number which received applause before it was even played, not to mention the applause received after it was played, "Col. Bogie on Parade."

This Band has a reputation for its playing of "Abide with Me" and last night the Peterborough people who were present fully realized the "Why." The blending of the brasses and reeds, the wind instruments and the excellent harmony—every instrument seemed to be in accord with the other in feeling and sentiment.

Variety Program

Bandsman Eddie Chow, a young Chinese boy, delighted the audience with his numbers. His interpretation of the Harry Lauder type of Scotch songs appealed to the listeners and they were loath to let him return to the many traps, cymbals, etc., he plays in the band.

Immediately following the Band Concert and after the Drill Hall was cleared of chairs, Lt. Col Walter Bapty, the Commanding Officer of the Training Centre, through whose kind permission the events were able to take place, started the ball rolling by dancing the light fantastic with his partner and from then on, everyone was on his or her own and had fun.

Major James Turnbull officiated at the drawing for the door prizes and the winners may receive their prizes by producing their stubs at the Victory Loan Headquarters, 287 George street, N. The numbers were as follows:—

First, $50 Victory Bond, Ticket No. 809; Second, $25 War Savings Certificate, Ticket No. 53; Third, $10 War Savings Certificate, Ticket No. 841, claimed by Mrs. V. Elliott, 35 New Romaine street; Fourth, $5 War Savings Certificate, Ticket No. 740; Fifth, $5 War Savings Certificate, Ticket No. 304, claimed by Pte. S. V. City Lacks Buildings For Living Quarters

Peterborough has no buildings suitable for conversion into multiple living quarters with the aid of the federal government's plan City Assessor W. J. Henry informed the finance committee last night.

"There are some vacant flats above stores in the central district," Mr. Henry wrote, "but few of them would be suitable for apartments."

The only separate house he mentioned in this connection was the old Lundy residence at Aylmer and Dalhousie streets.

Council Approves Work Of Men In Fire Club

The Fire Service Club of Peterborough seems to stem from A.R.P. and the natural attraction of the fireman's occupation and excitements to many men who have drifted off along other channels of activity and more or less frustration.

That's an opinion lingering after the request of a deputation from the club to the finance committee of the council last night which manifestly involves something of the element of official recognition.

When A.R.P. swept the country in the first alarms of war, some men enlisted for the police force, some for fire fighting, others for first aid and so on. Apparently these groups found themselves in sympathetic, understanding company, and as the menace of the Hun recedes, taking along with it the necessity of A.R.P. these several groups probably perceive the end of their official being.

Like Cooperation

The members of the council on the other hand feel disposed to encourage any group of citizens who desire to be helpful to the community, and they have an auxiliary force of constables, another outcropping of A.R.P., with P.C. Archie Menzies as directing spirit. They recently added six men to their ranks and the committee had to "draw the line somewhere" when it came to buying overcoats and other apparel.

Now they have the Fire Service Club who asked the finance committee of the council last night to provide leather windbreakers and a few other details of equipment that come in handy when you are battling a fire, especially in winter.

J. S. Leggitt is president of the Club; Irving Moldaver is vice-president; M. Andrus is secretary and R. Jackson is treasurer.

On Their Toes

Incidentally it was recently related around the city hall that Vice-president Moldaver and his truck scented a recent fire call and got there nose and nose with the Gimblett brigade. However, it happened to be a test call by insurance representatives.

At any rate the Cotton committee is loth to reject co-operation from citizens for the general good, and in this instance it was decided to ask Chief Gimblett for his opinion and recommendation.

A few items of clothing such as fur helmet, gloves and windbreaker would distinguish the F.S.C. men as a special unit in civilian defence even in peace time as an auxiliary of the city's fire department, especially in the event of some serious outbreak.

Sentiment seemed to be last night in favor of accepting the tendered help of the Fire Club, but any contribution of apparel by the council will have to be limited, it was stated. In the meantime Chief Gimblett will have something to say as to whether he welcomes the Club's purpose and proferred aid.

Rangers Plan Night Scheme

Preparing for a compehensive night scheme which will bring all elements of the Prince of Wales Rangers into active participation at the parade next Tuesday night, lectures are being given illustrating the coordinating moves of company and platoon in attack and defense. The maneuver, which will take the reserves out into the country, will give transport and communications sections of the battalion a full workout.

Though in the past all men in the ranks have not known what points of tactics were involved in large schemes of this type, now everyone is instructed beforehand so that all may have clear idea of what is going on, the training command stated.

Enlistments in recent days have been more numerous than the average prevailing for some time, and all 11 recruits added to the battalion's ranks this past week, eight are from Peterborough, and the other three from Lakefield. From Peterborough: Milton Hannah, 255 Princess Street; Donald Wedlock, 93 Rubidge; Douglas Markwick, 227 Bethune; James E. Simmons, 60 Orpington Road; Walter Douglas, 291 Stewart; and Jack Ardis, Kenneth LaRocque and Thomas Bell, all of 597 Charlotte Street. From Lakefield are George Hopkins, Douglas Stenner and Everett Bolton.

Shorter Week For Street Gang

By a majority of 25 to 6, employees of the Board of Works recently voted for "Saturday afternoon off" and their decision was recommended to the council Thursday night by the Board of Works.

The men had been talking for some time about shortening their week, and as their wishes reached the heads of the Department it was decided that the best way to sound out the sentiment of the men was by means of a ballot.

City Clerk Outram was duly appointed in charge of the poll, the question was clearly set forth, and the result was announced as follows: Yeas, 25; nays, 6; spoiled ballot, 1; total, 32.

Some of the men were indifferent about the change, and several preferred the longer 48-hour week.

Street Commissioner Burgess said some of the men were engaged in extra work and no doubt were glad to get the Saturday afternoon rest.

"Some of them have been making $30 a week working at night unloading coal," Mr. Burgess said. "I haven't noticed any definite difference in their work for us, I don't see any skimping, but I have thought they must be mighty tired sometimes."

Alderman Curtis was requested to enquire from the employees of the parks committee whether they wished to change to the 44-hour week, quitting at Saturday noon.

Three Guilty Traffic Charges

Three drivers pleaded guilty in police court this morning to traffic charges arising out of recent accidents.

Henry Parker, Nogie's Creek, pleaded guilty to reckless driving on Highway 28, following an accident in which his car shot off the highway, knocked down a mail box post and plowed into a cedar hedge.

The driver had to be taken to Nicholls Hospital for treatment for a cut on his head.

Parker was also fined $25 and $2.50 costs.

Joseph Dineen who pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving was fined $5 and $2.50 costs.

According to the police report Dineen was the driver of a car which pulled out from the north side of Murray street as Reeve M. H. Johnston of North Monaghan was driving west past the Armouries and there was a minor accident in which the fender of Johnston's car was dented.

V. A. Hill, Peterborough, who was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

The charge was laid by Provincial Constable L. A. McClure, following an accident in Otonabee township when a car driven by the accused left a side road and went into a ditch.

Mr. Carley, speaking in behalf of Hill, said that it was a case of driving too fast.

Magistrate E. A. Gee fined Hill $25 and $2.50 costs and suspended his driving license for a month.

Council Begins Airport Survey

Authority to proceed with a more detailed survey of the proposed site in Smith was given the airport subcommittee of the council last night by the finance committee after Alderman Bradburn had reported an outline of his recent trip to Ottawa with Mayor Hamilton to submit plans of the project to the Department of Transport.

It was suggested by Commander Edwards, Deputy Minister of Transport, that a "two foot" contour survey should be made of the property. An estimate of the cost involved, said Alderman Bradburn, was from $1,500 to $2,000.

"I think we got a step nearer to an airport for Peterborough" Alderman Bradburn said. "Commander Edwards said that the Government had put airfields at the head of the list of works in which it would be interested as post-war projects."

Alderman Gordon said the city would have to buy the property for an airfield, and it was hoped that the work from then on could be turned over to the government for development by them.

Ten Men Taken In Pool Rooms During Checkup

Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers, assisted by local and provincial police, swooped down on three city pool rooms Thursday night in a check-up of men of military age.

Every young man who looked to be in the military service age group was interrogated by the officers and many of them carried rejection slips or papers showing they have been exempted from military service and they were not held.

Ten youths who could not produce the necessary papers were taken to the police station for further examination. Three of them who had papers at home were taken by a R.C.M.P. officer to their homes, and when the documents were produced they were allow to go.

The other seven were detained at the police station until the officers communicated with the Divisional Registrar at Kingston.

Change Of Address.

While there were apparently no delinquents under the Military Service Regulations in the group the examination disclosed the fact that most of them had changed their addresses since national registration without notifying the Divisional Registrar of the changes and it is probable that charges will be made in those cases.

R.C.M.P. officers point out that under the national service registration laws all persons old enough to register are required to report changes of address. In the case of persons who come within the military age group, and that means all youths who have reached the age of 18 years the Divisional Registrar must be notified of each and every change of address even if the move has only been a matter of moving across the street.

The officers intimated that other persons in Peterborough who have not complied with the law in that respect may save themselves considerable annoyance and also money by making sure that they report their new addresses to the Divisional Registrar at Kingston.

Thursday night's raid was carried out by Corporal Karl Lockwood and Constables Bridges and Waldron of the Cobourg detachment of the R.C.M.P., assisted by Detective Sergt. W. E. Meagher and Constable John Morrow of the city police and Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Churchill Gives His Plan For New House

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill proposing a committee to consider plans for rebuilding the House of Commons, destroyed by a bomb May 10, 1941, delivered today some typical remarks on parliamentary government with the preface, "we shape our buildings and afterwards our buildings shape us."

Addressing the House, he suggested rebuilding on the old foundations with maximum use of its shattered walls, and asked for an oblong, not semi-circular chamber, for "this is a very potent factor in our political life."

"The semi-circular appeals to political theorists as it enables every group to move around to the centre, adopting various shades of pink as the weather changes," he said.

"I am a supporter of the party system, having seen many ardent parliaments destroyed by the group system.

"The party system is much favored by an oblong chamber. It is easy enough to move through those insensible graduations from left to right but the act of crossing the floor is one which requires serious consideration. Logic is a poor guide compared to custom.

"The logic which created in so many countries semi-circular assembles which give every member not only a seat but often a desk with a lid to bang has proved fatal to parliamentary government."

The prime minister added that "Commons should not be big enough to contain all its members at once without overcrowding" for its hold on the electorate depends "to no small extent upon its episodes, even its scenes and rows which everyone will agree are better conducted at close quarters...."

"One of our war aims is that parliament will be a strong, flexible instrument free to debate. For this purpose a sense of intimacy is indispensable. Harangues from a rostrum would be a bad substitute for our conversational style."

Britain's Program Being Prepared

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP). — Britain's "master post-war plan" is being prepared by the government for submission to Parliament before early next year and indications are it will cover everything from the Beveridge social security plan to overseas trade, it was reported today.

"Mr. Churchill, who up until now has been devoting the greatest part of his energies to securing final victory, is devoting more and more attention to the manifold problems of peace," the Daily Sketch said.

The News Chronicle reported that since the Prime Minister's return from Washington and long private talks with President Roosevelt on post-war matters "there has been a noticeable quickening of interest in the many government departments concerned in preliminary investigation of post-war problems."

Every political quarter said world trade — "recapture of export markets" is the way the News Chronicle put it—is in the forefront of the planning.

Canadians In Italian Campaign Scramble To Buy Victory Bonds

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 25—(Delayed)—(CP—Cable)—Canada's fifth Victory campaign got away to a late start in this part of the world but it is a cinch the $1,000,000 objective set for Canadian troops fighting in Italy will be reached long before the end of the nine-day drive.

It is no fault of the "Local" organizers the campaign was a bit tardy hereabouts. The first word Army authorities had of the latest loan came from an indirect source and the first official notification that the new campaign was planned arrived two days after it opened in Canada—in the form of posters.

There were plenty of posters but no application forms. Lack of them, however, did not stymie the joint organizers, Majs. Larry Desiel of Windsor, Ont. and Richard Gorham of Saint John, N.B., who could not sell bonds without the necessary official forms, and news of the Loan was greeted with such enthusiasm that something had to be done.

Bank Note Paper

A sample application form was torn from a poster and the energetic Desiel set out on a reconnaissance expedition to find a printing plant. He found a plant all right, but it was closed. The officer and two men scoured town for the owner and type-setters. They were escorted back to the shop where they explained they could not do the job because there was no electricity—the Germans had destroyed the powerhouse—to run the machine and because the only paper available was intended for bank notes.

Desiel would not take no for an answer. He gave the Italians the sample form and said they would have to stick to the job until the type was set and paper cut for 30,000 forms. The Italians agreed but still did not know how they were going to turn the presses.

Desiel fixed that too. He summoned a detail of 10 Canadian soldiers and set them to work in two-man shifts turning the presses by hand. They stayed in the plant until all forms required were printed. Their food was brought to them regularly as well as a supply of cigarets to keep them going while they worked.

Hot off the presses the first batch of 18,000 forms was distributed to units Saturday and they were gobbled up immediately.

"I don't know what's got into the troops," Desiel said. "The units are just screaming for forms and one small unit alone pledged itself to buy $6,000 worth. It is a great show.

"Enthusiasm is so great many men have already paraded themselves and told their officers they want to subscribe to the loan."

A personal letter from the Gereral Officer commanding the Canadians was read to all troops. It urged them to consider the advantage of the Bonds and said that by subscribing to the Loan they would be helping to re-establish themselves in civil life. He assured the soldiers there is no sounder investment in the world than the word of the Canadian people.

Plan New Attack On Italian Coast

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 29 (AP). — Correspondent of Svenska Dagbladet said today that reports reaching Switzerland indicated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean theatre, was planning new amphibious operations against central Italy.

A large concentration of Allied transport, supply and warships was reported off the west coast of Italy. Previously Allied troops were reported massing on Corsica for a new attack.

Gaeta is being mentioned by the Germans as the possible invasion sector, although there is some speculation that the Allies might try to cut above Rome into the Leghorn district, said the correspondent, who added the Germans were preparing to evacuate southern Italy to keep from being trapped. Marshal Erwin Rommel has taken supreme command of the Italian sector, the correspondent added.

Claims The War Has Cut Tariff Barriers

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (CP).—Establishment by Canada and the United States of a permanent "joint board for mutual understanding" to further the post-war security and economic prosperity of the two countries was urged to-day by Edward L. Bernays of New York, counsel on public relations.

Existing joint boards for wartime co-operation in munitions production, defence and agriculture point the way to mutually beneficial activity in the psychological sphere, Bernays sai din an address prepared for delivery at the annual conference of the Association of Canadian Advertisers. Such activity, he said, would be the keystone of a "northern good neighbor policy."

"Under the urgency of common need in war, the groundwork for it has been laid," said Bernays. "Our combined war needs cut down tariff barriers. Our combined wartime manufacturing has grown into a single well-integrated activity. This war co-operation has virtually eliminated physical boundaries. It has also helped to eliminate mental ones in the work of our respective countries on public information."

He suggested that each country be equally represented on the board—from each, one or two elder statesmen, a social psychologist, a newspaper publisher or radio executive, and educationist and one or two public relations or advertising men.

Gardiner Says Food Output Sets Records

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Quebec, Oct. 29 (CP). — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday the total tonnage of Canadian food production during 1944 is expected to be the same as in 1943 but that there will be some shift from one product to another.

"We believe that with the best of co-operation from all there will be a drop in tonnage of pork and possibly dairy products," he said in an address prepared for delivery to the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"We hope for some net increase in beef, poultry and grains. This latter, however, depends almost entirely on weather.

"The returns per unit to the farmers will be higher in the fifth year of war than in any other, and—with ceiling controls—costs to consumers should not be higher."

Every preceding year had been overshadowed by the achievements of agriculture in 1942.

"We actually did send over 40 per cent. more food or potential food to our allies during that year than during the last year before the war and had at the end of the year 18,500,000 tons of food or potential food which can be shipped where needed at any time.

Huge Reserve Stock.

"We had almost 2½ times as many tons in reserve as we have shipped in any one year during the war.

"With all this food lying about we have so regulated our appetites as to only consume 6.5 per cent. more food in 1942 than in 1938. I doubt if any nation in the world can show a better record."

Enough grain had been produced in 1943 to take care of 1943-44 requirements, and there was sufficient in store to care for at least two years' human consumption and feeding livestock.

"In other words, with two more crops to come and barring a crop failure, we should be able to supply any demands equal to those which have been made of us in the past, for three more years."

Unless weather and equipment and labor supplies were more favorable than this year, the peak of food production had been reached.

The Government had paid $10,165,000 in free freight and in wheat drawback to ship grain from west to east in 1942 and to make feed available at ceiling prices in the east. In 1943 it was expected at least $18,000,000 would be used for the same purpose.

Ontario Unit In Vanguard Of New Attack

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 26 — (Delayed)—(CP Cable). — With an Ontario regiment carrying out the main thrust, Canadian infantry, supported by tanks, crept across exposed slopes to-day under fire of enemy guns and mortars which were operating from new positions.

(In a delayed dispatch dated October 25, Stewart reported 8th Army forces, with which the Canadian 1st Division is fighting, had consolidated newly-won positions north-west of the wide Biferno Valley.)

Moving from gully to gully toward the next objective, a high town, the Ontario unit was proceeding slowly in the face of the shelling.

Lots of Support.

The Canadians also had the support of a big concentration of artillery which unloaded hundreds of shells into an area behind the town where German mortars were established. To counter this, the Germans were employing a battery of artillery which tossed 138-pound projectiles from long range. These big German guns, however, served little more than a harassing purpose as from time to time their explosives were lobbed on the roads over which Canadian transport was moving.

Elsewhere, Canadians patrolled beyond the strong line which they have established on heights west of a valley. The patrols encountered mortar fire as they approached a village three miles west of a river.

Scouting parties of a wartime battalion had the same experience in a village to the south.

Despite the odd German pockets in front of the Canadians, the enemy still was believed to be making a delaying withdrawal toward the next valley line to the north-west.

Nazis Wipe Out Jewish Community

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 — (AP).—The Polish Telegraph Agency reported today that the Jewish population of Lwow, one of Poland's largest cities, had been practically wiped out by the Germans.

The Agency said the Ghetto destroyed and that fleeing Jews were slain in the streets. The remaining Jews except for 4,000 who were sent to the Janow concentration camp, were put to death in gas chambers, the Agency asserted.

An underground Polish paper, the Agency said, estimated there were 35,000 Jews in Lwow at the beginning of this war.

The Agency also said that the Germans have burned the town of Myliuny in the Rokiszki district of Lithuania, shooting all the male inhabitants and deporting women and children to concentration camps.

Ladies' Aid Entertains Choir

The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening enjoyed the hospitality of the Ladies' Aid Society, instead of the usual practice, though a rehearsal of music for Sunday, under the direction of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., took place after the serving of a chicken dinner.

The event was a recognition of the faithful and helpful work of the choristers during the year. Under the supervision of Mrs A. A. McIntyre, a number of ladies waited on the tables, where about sixty members and guests were seated. Decorations were candlesticks and black candles, flowers, and the pumpkin.

When the tables were cleared, a program of music, community singing, and games was carried through, with George Coleman, Jr. as chairman. Those taking part included Horace Hope, song; Jessie Spencely and John Anderson, Scottish duet (in costume); Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, songs; Dorothy Block and James McBride, humorous duet; Olive Cullen, song; duet by The Vagabonds (Mrs. F. Board and Mrs. A. R. Bennett). Rev. Dr. James D. Smart added his quota of words of enjoyment and encouragement to the choir and Mr. Chenhall for their assistance at each Sunday's services. Votes of thanks and games followed, with "Auld Lang Syne" concluding the evening.

Trinity Club Meets

The regular meeting of Trinity Young People's Club was held in the ladies' parlor this week. The worship service, led by Pearl Clayton, assisted by Ruth Holmes and Madaline McWilliams, was based on the twenty-third psalm.

Frank Paterson, of the Department of Agriculture, gave an informal talk on "Food for Everybody," a subject that proved of interest to all present, and left a feeling that people in Canada were very well cared for when compared with many other countries, including Great Britain. A short recreation period, and the serving of tea and pumpkin tarts by Jean Donaldson and Grace Johnston brought the meeting to a close.

Sacred Heart Scene Of Pretty Wedding

The marriage of Mary Cecille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward de LaPlante, of Peterborough, to Sgt. Carl Francis, son of Mr. Joseph Garskey and the late Mrs. Garskey of Ottawa, was solemnized recently in Sacred Heart church. Rev. Captain J. Grant officiated. The church was decorated with red roses, and the music was played by Mr. Armstrong. Mrs. M. Collins sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white brocaded satin with a lace yoke, and a slight train. Her tulle veil was in a heart shape, and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

She was attended by her two sisters, Misses Rita and Therese de LaPlante. They were dressed alike in taffeta frocks made on Princess lines, and each wore a locket as her only piece of jewelry. Their hats were heart-shaped and made of taffeta. Each bridesmaid carried a nosegay of bronze and yellow mums. The first best man was P.O. G. Garskey, R.C.N.V.R., and the second best man was Lieut. R. J. McLaren, of the Lanark, Renfrew Highlanders, the unit to which the groom is attached. Gordon and Gerard de LaPlante, brothers of the bride, were the ushers.

At the reception, held at the Empress Hotel, the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of powder blue, navy blue accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Windsor and Detroit. For travelling, the bride chose a navy blue crepe dress and matching accessories, a beige camel-hair coat, and wore a corsage of roses.

W.C.T.U. Hears Report Of Convention

With the president, Miss E. Might, presiding, the local W.C.T.U. attracted a large number of women to its October meeting at the Y.W.C.A. Green Room Thursday afternoon.

Two solos, "Forgive Me" and "Wishing Well," were sung by Miss Joy Walker, who was accompanied by Mrs. C. Renaud.

Mrs. W. W Yale, of Lakefield, who was delegate to the provincial convention in Kitchener, brought a report of the four-day conference.

Special Theme.

Executive meetings filled the opening session. "Things that abide" was the convention theme. "Faith, Hope and Love" and "Lead On O King Eternal" were chosen as the convention hymns. Superintendents and conveners gave detailed reports of their work. Mrs. Yale said the main thought of the convention was "to educate people concerning the evils of strong drink."

The president, Mrs. J. S. McLean, of Ottawa, in her address, gave a birdseye view of the work throughout the province during 1942-43, and in spite of war conditions it is encouraging to know that there is no retreat, she said.

Rev. Dr. George A. Little was the chief convention speaker and brought a cheering message to the provincial group of workers. He also stressed education and personal work among the youth of the country.

The clip sheet, led by Miss Might, dealt with the "liquor traffic and essential industry," showing that the use of liquor lessens efficiency and is the chief cause of lost time in any industry.

A report from the Local Council of Women was presented by Mrs. Cole.

Slim Lines

By ALICE ALDEN

IT TAKES a skillful designer to create an eye-compelling model without using more material than it allotted by Government regulations. So slim lines just describes this neat little frock. Fashioned of Celanese rayon petit point crepe, it gives the effect of full fashion through the ingenuous draping of neckline and skirt. The draping is caught with fur tails. Worn with it is a felt hat trimmed with a stitched felt bow.

Queen Alexandra Women Hold Successful Tea

In spite of the inclement weather a very successful afternoon tea was held in the kindergarten room of the Queen Alexandra School on Thursday afternoon. It was the annual tea of the Home and School Association and the room was very prettily decorated for the occasion with late fall flowers.

The guests were received at the door by Mrs. A. Nelson, president of the Home and School Association, vice-presidents Mrs. C. McBride and Mrs. E. Kingdon, and Mrs. E. Simmons, convener of the membership committee.

The centre table was beautifully decorated with a lace cloth, silver candelabra with lighted ivory candles and a centre decoration of pink baby mums. Pouring tea were Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Mrs. E. Chambers, Mrs. F. Barrett and Miss Olive Armstrong. Those in charge of the smaller tables which had also been very tastefully set were Mrs. L. W. Snowden, Mrs. D. Tucker, Mrs. S. K. Mahood, Mrs. E. Sutton, Mrs. G. Brown, Mrs. H. Tranter, Mrs. A. Pinn, Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mrs. G. Ham and Mrs. F. Shaw. Assisting at the centre table were Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. T. McKinney and Mrs. E. Watson.

A table of novelties took the place of the usual home cooking and candy table and this was in charge of Mrs. E. Kingdon and Mrs. William Lang.

While tea was being served soft piano music was played by three girls of the school, Sheila and Jean Smith and Betty Mather.

Refreshments for the tea were in charge of Mrs. C. Althouse and her committee.

Junior League Donates Prize To High School

The October meeting of the Catholic Junior League was held this week, with the president, Miss Gladys Costello, in the chair.

Miss Hilda Sullivan reported on the Scholarship committee and it was decided to donate an annual prize to the best all-round girl graduating from St. Peter's High school. Mrs. McKenna reported a donation receieved to fill ditty bags for the Navy. One of the aims of the League, Catachetical Instruction, was discussed. Plans were also made for a bridge and tea to be held in November.

At the close of the business session, a very good program was enjoyed. Mrs. Baldwin ably recited "Why Do We Fight For Enpland," Mrs. Ted Collins sang a solo. An interesting reading on three Catholic authors, Alice Meynell, Mary Webb and J. B. Windham Leiws, was given by Miss Josephine Lynch, and P. D. Scollard, B.A., gave a very informative talk on "A Wife's Right to Dower in Her Husband's Real Estate."

Bride Is Given Many Showers

Mrs. R. Dean Baker, nee Hazel Waters of Campbellford, was the guest of honor at many showers prior to her marriage. In Campbellford, Miss Aletha Vincent was hostess at a miscellaneous shower. Misses Anne Parks and Pearl McComb were hostesses for a Euchre Club party, where the bride-to-be was presented with an occasional chair. Her friends of the weaving room of the Campbellford Cloth Company held a cup and saucer shower, at which Mrs. Jack Runions and Miss Effie Dickie were hostesses. The "Nite Shift" of the Campbellford Cloth Company gave a silver tray. Mrs. Knowlton Waters, the bride's mother, was hostess at her home in Trent River, to a kitchen shower of black and white graniteware. The Trent River Sunday School gave Mrs. Baker a hymn book. Since her marriage Mrs. Baker has been the guest of honor at two miscellaneous showers, one held at Polmont Hall, and the other at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Baker, Norwood. The young couple have taken up residence in Peterborough, and fellow C. G. E. punch press workers of the groom have presented a pair of book-ends and an electric clock.

Home and School

PRINCE OF WALES

Community Friendship was the theme of the October meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School, held this week at the school.

Major R. M. Bamsey, the speaker of the evening, related humorous and serious anecdotes of camp life. In his talk, he stressed the need for community friendship.

Miss Gladys Gerrard, as Mistress of Ceremonies, assisted by Miss P. Kidd at the piano, opened the meeting with community singing. The announcement was made of the Home and School church service at St. Paul's church on Sunday evening, November 7. Parents were also reminded of the "Open School" to be held next month. Five new members of the teaching staff were introduced by Mr P. D. Windrim.

Miss M. Baird, who is compiling an Honour Roll of boys from the school who have enlisted, asked that all the names be sent to her for enrolment, she requested that first names rather than initials be given.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks by Mr. Noftall to Miss Gerard and Major Bamsey.

Fashion Parade Delights Theatre Crowd

Sequins and bugle beads were featured in the new fall clothes worn by the models in the "Fashion Parade" presented by the Canadian Department Stores on the stage of the Capitol Theatre last evening. The latest styles in furs and gowns were modeled by the C.D.S. mannequins as they walked across a fern-decked stage in the glow of a blue spotlight.

The first part of the program featured smart dresses, set off with chic fur neck-pieces. Black was the predominant color, and short formal dinner dresses set with sequins were prominent. However, green, powder blue, queen's blue, beige and red dresses were also shown.

The exhibition fur coats formed the greater part of the show. Mr. P. Stott, a C.D.S. fur expert, described the important features of each coat to the audience. Alaska seal, muskrat and squirrel formed the bulk of the fur display. Gray, a color formerly little worn in fur coats, seemed to be coming into its own. Full sleeves, turned back cuffs, tuxedo fronts and small collars seemed to be the most popular style of coat shown. There were a few semi-fitting models, but loose box and swagger styles were the most common. A blue fox jacket, and a silver fox cape were the standouts in the evening wraps. For the finale, all the mannequins taking part in the show, dressed in evening gowns and fur evening wraps, were assembled on the stage.

The models were Misses Nancy Collins, Zita Kennedy, and Jean Marleau, and Mesdames Vi Boate, Jean Elliott, Ruth Hunter and Dorothy Bearne.

THE STARS SAY

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 30

WHILE THIS day offers excellent opportunity for gain, in many directions probably through travel, agencies, communications, writings or publicity, in which satisfactory financial return is promised, yet there may be a tendency to cast aside such good prospects for gain and advancement. It might be an example of Opportunity failing to knock at the door twice.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is have a most auspicious time for progress, productive work and increase of funds and position, but it is probable that such openings may be offset or nullified by a proclivity to extravagance, show, social indulgences, or other forms of prodigality and unwarranted outlay. With this tendency held in leash there should be varied and worthwhile opportunities through travel, sales, agencies, publications or in business or literary pursuits. Original ideas and cleverness along such lines should be appreciated.

A child born on this day should have outstanding talents and versatility in business or the professions, with splendid openings for their exploitation, but it will be prone to extravagance, social or other forms of prodigality.

Says Socialism Throttles Free Enterprise

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Quebec, Oct. 29 (CP).—"Business does not need to fear the impact of soft Socialist theories if it accepts certain obligations as part of its post-war planning," P. S. Fisher of Montreal, chairman of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce's post-war planning committee, said today in his report. He added that "business owes proper collaboration to government and should have a regard for public interest. It owes due consideration to the supplies of its raw materials and the purchasers of its products, and it owes an active interest in its employees in terms of working conditions and social security."

"It is imperative that business and government should collaborate," said Mr. Fisher. "Each recognizing without reproach the limitations of the other. Leadership from businessmen and corporations; from trade associations and from organizations such as the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, should be developed to the limit, but it must be an interpretative and inspirational leadership, not an operating or contractual one."

Government To Blame.

Recalling the depression of the 1930's, which he said "was essentially a failure of government," Mr. Fisher declared "business can only claim exemption from the influence of government regulation if it is prepared to assume full responsibility for the evils of the trade cycle."

"Business should expect to perform the general functions of production" he said, "but there are swings in community circumstances beyond the power of business to control and I suggest that the broad regulation of community activity is a function of government."

"One of the basic misunderstandings about business is a concept some people have of business with a capital B as some sort of an organization under a central control which can plan and do things as a unit. Let's not be over confident of business' capacity to control itself."

Post-War Problem.

"The relationship of private enterprise to the community at large is not solely a matter of post-war, but it is certainly important in the post-war picture. Free enterprise versus Socialism is an issue today. It is quite likely to be a larger issue of the post-war period."

"We, who are believers in free enterprise, are not helpless in the matter. We have a conviction that it is incumbent on us to sell, and the sale of the conviction should bulk large in our post-war planning. I think the sale must be made in two ways, by propaganda or education and by demonstration."

"I might put that differently by suggesting that business comes under criticism, partly because it is misunderstood, and partly because in certain of its aspects it deserves criticism. We should see that it becomes better understood, and we should do our best to improve it to mitigate that criticism which is now legitimate"

Liberal Party Statement Says C.C.F. Job Program Will Fail

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Oct. 29 (CP). — "Canadian Business," official magazine of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, will carry in its November issue a symposium on "'politcical attitudes towards business," chamber officials in session here said yesterday.

Senator W. McL. Robertson, president of the National Liberal Federation, in an article entitled "The Liberal Party's Attitude to Business" writes:

"Business, as we know it back in 1939, would not be able to provide employment for those who will want it after the war. The changing of ownership of business, as suggested by the C.C.F., would not add a single job.

"Any such change would disrupt the intricate system of the modern industrial world at the very moment when experienced and imaginative administration must be able to work in confidence that the foundations and framework of the industrial structure are not to be upset.

"Against this background, the Liberal Federation has taken a realistic forward-looking stand. We begin with the fundamental point that prosperity depends upon production and the interchange of goods among men and nations.

Work Together

"Maximum production depends upon full employment of men and resources. We urge the expansion of private enterprise and when appropriate public undertakings as complementary forces working to common objectives in the public interest to provide full employment, social security and a rising standard of living, after the war, for all the people of Canada."

John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative party, in an article entitled "The Road Ahead," writes:

"Be believe that the future material prosperity of this country can best be assured by a continuation of a system that will maintain the initiative in enterprise under strict control to prevent all abuses and exploitations.

"For the welfare and development of our society; we must advocate and strengthen the basic Canadian tradition of individual initiative and individual enterprise and opportunity.

"Too often in discussions of business and the state, we lose sight of the fact that about one-third of Canada's business is done by workers on their own. These people all lack the benefit of organization. Recognition must be given to their enterprise and intiative and to their threatened sceurity, and a way found, by properly constituted authority, to protect their interests as essential workers, consumers and taxpayers."

C.C.F. Statement.

M. J. Coldwell, Leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, in an article entitled "Business men and policy of the C.O.F." says:

"The C.C.F. avers that its aim is to move forward towards a society in which there would be social ownership of the principal means of production and in which private gain would not be the sole incentive for the economic process.

"Along such lines lies the basis for real freedom and democracy for the business and professional man as well as for the farmer and industrial worker.

"Meantime, there is no reason why the business man who performs a useful function and who does not seek to exploit his fellowmen should not continue to render his usual services to the community and receive a proper reward for his labor."

Eskimo Disguise Of Sailor Fails To Fool Halifax Police

HALIFAX, Oct. 29 (CP). This is the saga of Gargit, whose brief existence as an Eskimo was blighted by a Hollywood profile and an embarrassing inability to speak the language of the north.

Gargit was the name they put down at first on the police blotter. The address went down as Baffin Island. Later, after a court session conducted with an Eskimo interpreter of dubious authenticity, this was amended to Paul Beckstead, 22, of Lexington, Ky., and Ottawa.

Also the Canadian Navy took over the prisoner to look into a matter of 30 days overdue on leave. But not before there were some red faces around the Halifax police station.

Gargit's career reached its flower yesterday after a citizen reported an Eskimo was toting a holstered revolver in a downtown restaurant. Constable James Gould was dispatched and he picked up a fur-clad man packing a gun and a companion, who told police his name was George Lowe of Halifax.

The Eskimo was dressed in a heavy fur jacket and baggy black trousers tucked into high-topped leather moccasins. He spoke in gutturals, apparently intelligible only to his companion. He gave his name as Gargit, Resolution Island.

Gargit was charged with illegal possession of firearms and arraigned before Magistrate R. E. Inglis.

Feared Polar Bears

Constable Gould testified the prisoner had objected to giving up his gun. "I gathered," said the officer, "he was afraid he would be eaten up by polar bears if he didn't have the gun to defend himself."

"Ask the accused if he wants to ask the officer any questions," the court directed Lowe.

Gargit barked a series of sharp monosyllables that sounded like "Ikky Wakky Wikky Woof."

"Yes," Lowe translated, "he wants to ask the officer to get him a cup of coffee."

"We'll get him coffee later," the magistrate said, and he ordered the question put again.

"He says, Your Honor," said the interpreter after another burst from Gargit, "that he wants his gun back. He wants to know what's going to keep him from being hurt by polar bears. You know, Your Honor, carrying a gun is the same as wearing a hat to these fellows."

Mountie Trips Him.

Gargit, meanwhile, watched the proceedings with detachment, though spectators were crowding eagerly into the courtroom to hear Halifax's first Eskimo trial. Mayor J. E. Lloyd was among them.

At adjournment, Mayor Lloyd called Lowe into his office and asked him why the handsome Gargit had nothing of the Eskimo about his physical appearance. Confidentially, he was informed Gargit was the son of a white trapper and an Eskimo mother.

Carrier Planes To Oppose Land Planes

By JOHN HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—The next few months are almost certain to bring some of the greatest battles since the United States entered the war between ship-borne and land-based aircraft over Japanese-held islands in the Central Pacific.

United States naval authorities, however, are confident that carrier-borne planes in sufficient numbers can completely nullify the enemy's land-based aerial defences.

The battles appear likely to be joined when powerful forces of United States aircraft carriers strike at Japanese outer defences to seize advance bases from which to launch new attacks even nearer the Japanese mainland.

Authorities say it will be a long tough job but they emphasize it is absolutely necessary to carry forward Allied bases in the central Pacific to positions at least in line with advances already made along the Aleutians chain in the north and the Solomons archipelago in the southwest.

Ralph A. Bard, United States Assistant Secretary of the Navy summed up the situation in a Navy Day speech at Detroit yesterday.

"A study of the geography of the central Pacific," he said, "clearly indicates the task which confronts the Navy. Attacks must be spearheaded from aircraft carriers. Landing operations in some of these islands may draw out the Japanese navy. We hope and pray for that event."

This implied challenge to the Japanese fleet to come out and fight probably will not be accepted. The belief here is that the Japanese will not risk their main fleet strength until their home islands are threatened.

Police alleged that five years ago Ritchie, then married, went through a form of marriage in England with Lena Metcalfe, killed Monday when she dropped from a ledge on the seventh floor of a downtown department store.

Drew Denies Advocating Hickory Stick

TORONTO, Oct. 29 — Reiterating his belief in the importance of discipline in Ontario's schools, Premier George A. Drew, speaking as Minister of Education, last night emphatically denied that he had ever advocated return to the "hickory stick" of years ago.

"In our homes, churches and schools," he said, "it would be well if we returned to some of the elemental principles of deceny on which this great country was originally built."

Premier Drew spoke at the display of textbooks — first in five years—being held here by the Educational Publishers' Association, which includes all Toronto publishers of school textbooks. Several hundred new books, many of them for supplementary reading, are on view today and Saturday at the Royal York.

Opening the exhibit, Premier Drew said he certainly was not advocating inclusion in it of "a large supply of hickory sticks," in spite of a report, which he said had been published as recently as Wednesday, that he favored the stick as an incentive to learning.

President C. J. Eustace introduced the Premier to teachers and school officials attending from as far away as Hamilton, Oshawa and Bradford.

"Elmer dear," smiled Elsie, "you can sell me a Victory Bond any time!"

"BULLY FOR YOU!" boomed Elmer after climbing down from the rostrum when his sales-talk was over. "Just sign on the dotted line, Elsie."

"Me too, Daddy!" piped up Beulah, "I've been saving up to buy a Bond—I know this is the Victory Loan that counts!"

"What a bright family I've got!" chortled Elmer. "Hey, Elsie, you forgot to add the last nought to the amount we're buying!"

"Well, I thought we were only . . ." hesitated Elsie. "Do you really think we can afford to put that much into . . ."

"Afford it?" exploded Elmer. "Afford it? Every employee of the Borden Company, every Borden dealer and every Borden producer is getting behind Canada's 5th Victory Loan to put it over the top! Why, we've all GOT TO afford it!!!"

"All right! All right!" Elsie soothed him, "where do I sign up?"

"Poppa," asked Beulah, "what do you do if some people resist?"

"Baby!" bellowed Elmer, "I just MOO 'em down! I sell 'em and they stay sold! I tell them that buying Victory Bonds in Canada's 5th Victory Loan is the SUREST way in the world to SPEED THE VICTORY. I try to make folks realize that every extra Bond we buy will help raise that $1,200,000,000 Canada needs—and it's a lot of money.

"Every Bond we buy means our boys will have more armament to fight with—and they'll win more victories faster. And, believe me, buying extra Bonds is the best way in the world of showing those boys of ours that we want to bring them back sooner—and—and—my gosh!" he stammered.

"Elmer!" cried Elsie, pounding him on the back, "you're just choking with enthusiasm!"

"No—I'm not!" gurgled Elmer, "I'm just dazed with the best reason of all for buying Victory Bonds—every extra Bond we buy may cut Hitler's life one day shorter! Think of it!"

"That's so, Elmer! We'll call that Borden's own reason—and if it's Borden's, it GOT to be good!" said Elsie. "So, let's all dig deeper—let's buy more and more and still more Victory Bonds to SPEED THE VICTORY!"

IN MEMORIAM

McILVENA—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Ferena McIlvena, who passed away on October 30, 1940.

When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet, alone,
To our heart there comes a longing
If she only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.
— Sadly missed by Mother and Daddy.

McILVENA—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ferena McIlvena, who passed away October 30, 1940.

Time may heal the broken heart
Years may make the wound less sore,
But is cannot fill the longing,
For the loved one gone before.
Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Though the smile may hide the tears,
Memories keep the wound still open,
Despite the passing of the years.
—Fondly remembered by Husand Daughter Lenore.

REA—In loving memory of a dear mother and grandma, Elizabeth Copeland Rea, who passed away October 26, 1942.

God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
We miss her here so very much,
Her presence oft seems nigh,
But we all hope in heaven to meet,
Where no one says good-bye.
— Lovingly remembered by daughter, Annie; son-in-law, Frank Kelcey; and grandsons, Rea and Carman.

skating, girls) speedball with near-platinum locks. Petsura is not quite so blonde nor so big but he looks just as fast. Love, Taggart and Porter are all of a good size. In addition to those mentioned, there were about ten other aspirants on hand, including three or four youngsters from Toronto, as well as a half-dozen local boys who are making a bid for a berth. At first glance, it looks as if Coach Conacher has plenty of available material from which to build two strong forward lines but it looks like the same old story — not enough defencemen."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: In the annual pre-season hockey game at the Maple Leaf Gardens last night the melange of rookies and old-timers managed to pile up a total of 29 goals. What that proves this column will leave it to somebody else to decide.... At all events it doesn't earn any three-star flags for the defence players or goalies.... Canadiens on paper look as good as any club in the loop.... It will be remembered that that was also true of the club a year ago, but the campaign did not work out according to the predictions.... Pat Egan, defence player, has been discharged from the Canadian Army and is expected to line up with Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings.... The Balmy Beach protest has been tossed out.... At that there was a lot of justification for the Bammies' complaint.... Tomorrow's battle between Hamilton Wildcats and the Hurricanes look like one of the highlights of the season.

If You're an Artist at Cooking, Do Something Now!

EARN MONEY AT HOME

Are you a good cook? Do your friends and neighbors rave about your cakes? If you really excel at it, if you do have a way with foods, you might be able to make money for yourself selling your art.

Making money at home is lots of fun, especially when you see the dollars you actually earned by yourself come into your pocketbook.

If you're handy with a sewing or knitting needle or crocheting try to sell your products.

Our 32-page booklet tells how many women have turned ideas into dollars and might help you along the same lines. Their experiences in the field of needlework, food, clerical work, merchandising and personal service may guide you to success.

For your copy of 21 WAYS TO EARN MONEY AT HOME send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, adddress, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

ONE COURSE TO PURSUE

WHEN YOU cannot afford the loss of a trick in trumps, and the defenders hold both the king and the jack, your only chance is to find one of them insufficiently guarded, so that you can drop it. If anything about the bidding, the opening lead or the play to the first few tricks makes it appear likely that a particular one of the opponents holds the king, then you must either try to drop that with the ace or else strive to send the queen through in the hope that it will drop the jack.

North: ♠ A 8 7 3 2 ♥ 6 ♦ A K 10 4 ♣ A Q 10

West: ♠ K 6 5 ♥ A K 10 7 5 ♦ 9 2 ♣ 8 4 3

East: ♠ J ♥ Q J 8 3 2 ♦ 8 5 ♣ J 9 7 5 2

South: ♠ Q 10 9 4 ♥ 9 4 ♦ Q J 7 6 3 ♣ K 6

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Dbl	2 ♥	2 ♠
Pass	6 ♠

West made the natural lead of the heart K, then switched to the club 4, to make it a bit difficult for the declarer to get a reading. South had only one problem, however, and the lead did not influence it in the least. His job was purely and simply the avoidance of a loser in the trump suit.

Deciding that West, because of his opening bid, was almost certain to have the spade K, as the only respectable sized honor out excepting the heart tops, he led the Q. If West had played low, South would have let the Q run in the hope of catching a singleton J. West covered, however, and the A then killed off both of the defenders' honors at one fell swoop.

"If that king had been singleton," said a kibitzer, "your method would have failed, as using up both the queen and ace on one trick would have established the jack."

"That's right," answered the declarer, "but do you think West would have opened the bidding if his only side honor had been a singleton king?"

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A K 10 8 7 5 ♥ Q 9 5 4 ♦ None ♣ A Q J

West: ♠ J 9 4 ♥ 6 3 2 ♦ K 3 ♣ 10 9 7 5

South: ♠ Q 6 2 ♥ A K J 10 7 ♦ A 9 ♣ K 8 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

After South bids 1-Heart and North 2-Spades, what would be your plan in the East for bidding on your freakish holding?

HAVELOCK

Red Cross Group Ships Carton For Service Men

HAVELOCK, Oct. 29 (ENS). — The shipping committee of the Red Cross sent a large carton of knitted comforts, comprising 20 pair of 26 inches long seamen's stockings, 15 pair of 18 inches seamen's socks and 10 grey helmets.

The cutting committee finished the cutting-out of the coats in the sewing quota which were given out. One quilt was completed and another quilt bound and labelled.

The vice-president, Mrs. A. Anderson, presided over the business. A donation of $6.30 was received as a part of the proceeds of a sale of refreshments at Fred Brown's auction sale at Round Lake. Special instructions were received from headquarters regarding the labelling of gods for capture parcels and on the making of leather jackets for sailors.

Make Special Trip

Two bills, covering some recently printed matter at the Standard office and the transportation of volunteers to the Blood Donors Clinic in Peterborough were ordered paid. It has been planned that the next bus load to attend the clinic in Peterborough will go on Friday evening, November 5, but anyone who has not yet signed a card is asked to communicate with any of the canvassers.

Mr. T. P. Lancaster requested some assistance from the social committee to help serve refreshments to the R.C.A.M.C. band from Camp Borden at the Victory Loan rally in the town hall this week.

He also read a letter from the Toronto office regarding inquiries that had been made by the parents of Pte. Delbert Barker, who was reported wounded some months ago, and so far no communications have been received from him, but every endeavor is being made to get news through the Red Cross department.

Churches Hold 3 Masquerades

HAVELOCK, Oct. 29 — (ENS). All of the young people of the St. John's Anglican, Knox Presbyterian and the United churches held Hallowe'en masquerade parties this week.

On Tuesday night the A.Y.P.A. entertained about 25 members and visitors, every one coming in costume, and the rooms attractively decorated with lighted pumpkins. A spice guessing contest, by taste or smell, was won by Miss J. McDermott. An apple biting contest, in which every one participated, but no one was successful. Mrs. R. E. Lemon acted as judge of costumes, awarding first prize to Miss Gladys Grayling as Miss Canada, and Margarget Hubble, dressed as a clown, for the funniest costume. Oaklie Peters, dressed as a witch, spent a busy half-hour telling fortunes, after which refreshments were served.

Special Program.

Miss Frances Thompson was hostess to the girls' class of Knox Presbyterian church at a party, with all the girls arriving in costume. A suitable Hallowe'en program was enjoyed, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her mother.

Over three dozen young people attended the United Church League, attired in a variety of costumes. At the close of the costume parade, Miss J. McDermott and Miss G. McCorvie, as judges, awarded the prize to a negro couple, impersonated by Misses Stella Wilkinson and Helen Price. The program consisted of games and contests in keeping with Hallowe'en, culminating with refreshments and candies.

BETHANY

Health Problem Bad In India

BETHANY, Oct. 29 — (ENS). — The October meeting of the Women's Evening Auxiliary met at the parsonage, the home of Mrs. A. W. Harding, Tuesday, with eight members and three visitors present.

Mrs. Harding gave the theme for October "The Bible For All of Life," followed by an interesting report of Summer School held at Whitby, given by the delegates Dorothy Lowes and Vivian Rowan. Dorothy opened her part of the report with a description of the college and grounds and the history behind the institution. Vivian reported the activities during the remainder of the week, dealing with the social side of summer school, as well as the serious.

Watch Towers were Mrs. Jackson, Trinidad; Mrs. Rowan, China, Mrs. Harding, Africa; and Oriental, Mrs. Waddell.

The 19th Psalm was read in unison after which Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Porteous, as leaders read several verses from the Bible responses were sung after each verse of hymn, "O Word of God Incarnate."

A period of dedication to the study of God's Word in silent prayer, followed by prayer by Mrs. Harding. Mrs. Rowan took the study book period and gave an interesting talk on the second chapter, "Christ Gives the Blessing of Health." The study book disclosed that there are so few hospital beds in India, the masses of the people are treated at clinics and travelling clinics are formed also when there is the leprosy problem to deal with. Fifteen thousand lepers are treated yearly in India.

The treating of baby cases, is one of the most important features and also the prevention of sickness is being stressed. Dr. Bob McClure of China has found a satisfactory method of getting along with the native doctors by employing them in certain phases of his work, this requires tact and fortitude. Their wives are being taught cleanliness and the proper care of patients, Mrs. Rowan said.

Personals

Mr. F. W. Reynolds and Mrs. J. C. Cumiskey are business visitors to Toronto today.

Miss Helen Rowland of Peterborough is spending a few days of the week at her parental home on Front street, west.

Miss Ruth Rowland of Toronto, spent Monday at her home in Bethany.

A wedding of local interest was solemnized in the United Church today when Miss Ruth Rowland of Toronto, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rowland, life long residents of Manvers, and residents of the village for many years was married.

Mustang Fliers Print Own Paper

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE TACTICAL AIR FORCE, England, Oct. 29 — (CP). —The Publishing House of the Mustang Muse is a tent hard by parked Mustangs of a mobile air station and conditions aren't up to the best Fleet Street standards. But the four-sheet publication rolls off the duplicating machine every two weeks, it costs a penny and is looked forward to as eagerly as mail from home.

The paper is a gossipy, typewritten bit of cheerfulness that features quips and contests, essays and poetry. Brainchild of a Toronto Sergeant, it covers the activities of two Royal Canadian Air Force fighter-reconnaissance squadrons of the tactical air force and it's one of the few squadron newspapers in existence.

Conceived by Herb. Slichter, educational sergeant for the air-field, the third issue of the paper is just off the "press." Herb, who maintains correspondents in each section of the squadrons, finds himself hard-pressed to cram all the reportorial efforts into print. There's a French section for French-speaking personnel.

Right now the paper, like even the greatest publication, is undergoing distribution pains. It seems that news spreads faster than the courier who carries the paper and that after distributing the sheet in one section, the courier finds its juiciest contents have preceded him to the next section.

Despite its youth, the paper progresses. It even put out a one-sheet "extra" when the airfield team won the district softball title. The banner-line read "We did it."

Women's Institute Has Hallowe'en Party

CAVAN, Oct. 29 — (ENS). — Mrs. Wilf. Reynolds, Concession 7, entertained the Cavan Women's Institute at her home, for their October meeting, sixteen members and fourteen visitors were present.

Mrs. Will Howden presided, the answer to the roll call was a joke, to which every one responded. The motto of the meeting was "Laugh and The World Laughs With You."

It was decided not to send a delegate to the annual convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. Mrs. R. S. Staples gave a paper on Agriculture and Mrs. Alex. Millar gave a few minutes talk on the motto. A riddle and a pumpkin seed contest, also a lucky chair were played and the prizes were potatoes, turnips and a pumpkin.

Each member, was asked to come with one article of her clothing on backward, and to join in the Hallowe'en parade.

The luncheon was served cafeteria style, on the dining room table which was covered with a white linen cloth, and centred with a pumpkin filled with marigolds and green vine.

Nurse Murdered By Crazy Person

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—A Duchess County medical officer said today a Vassar Brothers Hospital Army cadet nurse was slain by "some crazy person" and warned officials that they "had better get him before they find some more bodies."

Deputy Medical Officer Howard P. Carpenter referred to the murder yesterday of a 19-year-old girl identified by District Attorney John R. Schwartz as Lucille Elizabeth Lawrence of Lisbon, N.Y. Schwartz said she was killed by "complete pulverizing of the skull." Two rocks which he said may have been murder weapons, were found nearby.

The victim, whose partly-clad body was found in a field about 150 yards from the hospital, was last seen about midnight Tuesday by a girl companion with whom she had left a party in Poughkeepsie. Miss Helen G. Owen said she had left Miss Lawrence about 12 blocks from the hospital.

Schwartz said no motive has been established for the slaying and added a microscopic test will determine whether she had been raped.

WHAT BECAME OF THE SURVIVORS OF H.M.C.S. WEYBURN?

LIEUT. PAT MILSOM,* M.B.E., R.C.N.V.R., REPLIES:

*Lieutenant Pat Milsom, M.B.E., R.C.N.V.R., is known to thousands of Canadians as one of the heroic survivors of the sinking of H.M.C.S. Weyburn, a Canadian-manned, Canadian-built Corvette. H.M.C.S. Weyburn had endured thirty-three days of enemy offensive action from sea and air in the Mediterranean when torpedoed, and was en route home after serving in the African invasion. Staying at his post until there was no alternative but to swim for it, Lieut. Milsom, one-time Toronto newspaper reporter, set an example of coolness and aided many of the crew to escape. He was the last to leave the ship.

"BY the time 'survivor's leave' was up, H.M.C.S. Weyburn's crew—men and officers alike, were eager and anxious to return to sea. Some of us were lucky enough to get ships and get back into the fight right away. Those of us who weren't so lucky would give our eye teeth to be with them. When the ships your Victory Bonds will help to buy are completed, we'll be joining them.

"There's not a man living of Weyburn's complement who is forgetting the shipmates who were lost at sea, and every Seaman, Stoker, Petty Officer and Officer who is fit for sea—yes and those whose injuries will keep them ashore—everyone of them is truly sincere in his desire to get a ship and get back afloat.

"Our job is still out there. The convoys must still get through if we are to have more successes like Sicily. That's the reason we Weyburn survivors want to get off the beach and go back to the job we enlisted to do—and we'll stay at it until the last U-boat is sunk and unconditional surrender is won."

Just as the men of H.M.C.S. Weyburn want to serve on another ship—just as they feel the importance and responsibility of their work in fighting the enemy—so should we feel our responsibility in pushing every Victory Loan over the top till unconditional surrender is won.

Get the "Weyburn" spirit. Dig down deep and invest every dollar you can in Fifth Victory Bonds—both with cash and from income over the next six months.

ALLIES CAPTURE 15 TOWNS IN ITALY

3 Russian Armies Converge On Nikopol, Key Stronghold

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP).—Three Russian armies converged on the key stronghold of Nikopol on the lower Dnieper River today in a multiple drive to complete the entrapment of German forces in the Dnieper bend. Two other Red Army forces at the same time were surging west and south of Melitopol to seal off German positions in the Crimean peninsula. One smashed through 80 towns to take Bolshioi Utlyug, 45 miles from the northeastern corner of the Crimea, while the second captured Torgayevka, less than 50 miles from Perekop, which bottlenecks the escape corridor at the northwestern edge of the peninsula.

Gains of 15 miles were reported in this sector by the Russian communique.

Veteran Leaders.

Two prongs of the triple threat to Nikopol were led by Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin and Gen. Rodion Y. Malinvsky. The former cracked a wide German "defence-in-depth" line in the Balki Malaya-Byelozerka salient, the Moscow bulletin said, and battled its way through the steppe towns of Malaya-Balgoveschenka and Bolshoi-Byelozerka, west and southwest of Nikopol, chief manganese-producing centre in south Russia.

Mailinvsky, operating inside the Dnieper bend 30 miles southwest of Dnepropetrovsk, smashed ahead six miles to invest Alexandrovka, 42 miles north of Nikopol.

The third threat to Nikopol was revealed by the Berlin radio, which said strong Russian forces were plunging across the Dnieper River just below Zaporozhe, with the evident intention of joining Tolbukhin's corps, or driving down the west bank of the river to strike Nikopol from the east. The Moscow bulletin did not mention this new thrust.

Krivoi Rog, Ukrainian iron centre 50 miles northwest of Nikopol, was still holding out against fierce Red Army assaults, with the reinforced German garrison reportedly staging heavy tank and infantry counter-attacks.

Action on the White Russian front in the vicinity of Vitebsk had tapered off to "engagements of local importance," Moscow said, with Red Army units digging in 25 miles northwest of that enemy stronghold.

Toronto Plans Super Post-War Airport Runways 10,000 Feet Will Dwarf Malton

OTTAWA, Oct. 29—(CP)—Mayor Fred Conboy of Toronto said last night that a third airport dwarfing the existing island Malton, Ont., terminals and providing runways at least 10,000 feet long, is almost certain to be provided by the Dominion government for Toronto after the war. Malton is about 10 miles north of Toronto.

He said Toronto would welcome the establishment of the new "super airport" close to the city and with facilities for handling trans-Canada and international transportation.

Dr. Conboy had separate discussions yesterday with Transport Minister Michaud and Munitions Minister Howe and said later that he felt "sure" that Toronto's post-war importance as an air transportation centre would result in the provision of the "super airport."

Mr. Michaud had referred to the important place Toronto would hold in aviation after the war, the mayor said, and had said that to accommodate the aircraft which would be used it would be necessary to provide at least 10,000-foot runways.

9,000 Western Coal Miners Threaten Protest Strike

CALGARY, Oct. 30 (CP)—The executive board of District 18, United Mine Workers of America has ordered a strike of approximately 9,000 British Columbia and Alberta miners at midnight tomorrow.

Robert Livett of Calgary, district president, issued the strike order late last night, a few hours after a Royal Commission to inquire into coal mine wage rates began hearings here. The commission inquiry was ordered by a Federal Government order-in-council after a ballot of the miners favored strike action if wage demands were not met.

Livett announced the strike was being called as a protest against the whole "dilly-dallying" policy of the National War Labor Board.

Among grievances, he said, was that "the labor representative of the board had been fired" and a new member appointed without any reference to the recommendations of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada or the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Cohen Removed

(J. L. Cohen, K.C., of Toronto, who sat for some months as a member of the National War Labor Board and took part in the board's public inquiry last spring was removed from the board by the cabinet and replaced by John A. Bell of Toronto.)

The miners voted Sept. 21 in favor of a strike, demanding two weeks' holidays with pay every year and an increase of $2 daily plus time and a half and rate and a half for the sixth day of work.

Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor of Edmonton, chairman of the Commission said "it is extremely doubtful that the Commission will continue its sittings, if a strike occurs."

At the opening of the inquiry District 18 announced it had protested to Labor Minister Mitchell against the limited power of the Commission. The Commission was to report its findings to the National War Labor Board instead of making its own decisions.

Levitt said the miners had renewed their determination not to go to the War Labor Board in connection with their demands.

Big Naval Guns Silence Japs

ABOARD U.S. TROOPSHIP, Northern Solomons, Oct. 27 (delayed)—(AP)—After hours of steaming northward in darkness, this motley but powerful convoy of troop and supply carrying craft and destroyers reached the Treasury Islands at dawn today.

Allied troops streak ashore in landing boats under the cover of the heaviest bombardment from U.S. warships since the invasion of Guadalcanal, Aug. 7, 1942.

Japanese machine-gun nests along the beach and mortar batteries were silenced by thundering salvos from three destroyers and gunboats.

The Japanese garrison, estimated to number between 200 and 300, retreated into the jungle and were largely destroyed during heavy fighting of the next 14 hours.

Treasury is 30 statute miles from heavily garrisoned Bougainville, anchor of Japan's South Pacific holdings, and only 15 miles from the intervening Japanese-occupied Shortland islands.

(A communique Thursday announced the landing of Allied forces on the Treasury group after "minor" opposition.)

"The complications confronting the board in drafting an order fixing maximum prices on such products are obvious," Chairman Donald Gordon of the Prices Board said. "The present order is the result of a considerable period of close study and consultation with growers and distributors.

"The board recognized that after the order has had a period of trial it may be necessary to adjust certain phases of it, and is prepared to take any remedial action which experience proved desirable."

In other attacks during the Allied round-the-clock batterings of Japanese supplies and communications, R.A.F. Vengeances dive-bombed an enemy-held village yesterday in the Chin Hills area.

Coal Strike Serious; Worries FDR

Believe Action By White House Likely Monday

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP).—The United Mine Workers' leadership must act by Monday to end the spreading coal strikes in the United States or face Presidential action again.

That was Mr. Roosevelt's ultimatum last night as the number of idle soft coal miners in the United States exceeded 80,000 and continued to grow. He said he would await the miners' policy committee meeting on Monday, confident that the War Labor Board's proposals would be accepted, but he added:

"If I am mistaken and the miners do not accept the Board's proposals, I shall take decisive action to see that coal is mined." This sounded like government seizure of the mines, once more.

The president expressed this determination in a letter to W.L.B. chairman William H. Davis, replying to the letter notifying him of the strikes.

Wage Question

The Illinois "model" contract was the crux of the wage argument between the miners and the operators. It provides for wage boosts of $1.50 a day more. The W.L.B. said it could approve $1.12½. The Northern Applachian operators protested that 88 cents a day more was all they were willing to offer.

U.M.W. president John L. Lewis said the proposal was not acceptable. Nevertheless defiance of the government is not necessarily the only alternative. Lewis may choose to work under present wages and conditions pending decisions in the court suits he has filed.

Short Of Gas

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 30 — (AP). — President Roosevelt was advised today that only an immediate cessation of the mass work stoppage among Alabama coal miners, now in its 18th day, will assure this district of a continuing supply of by-product gas.

Charles B. Gamble, president of the Birmingham Gas Company, wired the President his company would be forced to reduce its pipings of gas within the next 48 hours unless the "coal situation is quickly remedied."

Gamble's company, dependent for gas supplies upon coking ovens, furnishes cooking gas for 55,000 homes here. Its gas also is used to heat either wholly or partially, approximately 24,200 residences.

Canadians Figure In War Drama

Canadian troops, who spearheaded the Eighth Army's advance on Potenza in Italy, were the final figures in a war drama involving T.-Sgt. Jason Barthel of Darien, Conn.; radio operator in the U.S. North African Air Force, and Roxy Marcheso, formerly of Denver, Colo., who went to Italy for a visit before the war and was unable to return to the United States. Sgt. Barthel was shot down near Potenza weeks before the Canadians captured the town and was put into hospital by Italians. During the retreat of the Germans from the area he was taken from the hospital and hidden in the hills and railway tunnels by Marcheso, until the arrival of Canadians a month later. These pictures show, TOP, Sgt. Barthel, being helped into a jeep by officers of a Canadian infantry regiment. BOTTOM, American-born Roxy Marcheso shows Canadian army photographer the hills where he hid the wounded American airman.

Slippery Canadian Prisoners Give Nazi Guards Headache

By DOUG HOW—Canadian Press Staff Writer

A CANADIAN HOSPITAL SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 30—(CP Cable).—Canadian soldiers who refused to break under prison conditions that ran the gamut from the minor discomforts of hard beds to the ignominy of shackling, were back in Britain today, telling eagerly how they whiled away the long days in Germany with shows and games and libraries organized with a mixture of guile and pleading.

These indomitable fighters, free men at last as a result of an exchange agreement with Germany, had a variety of yarns to spin regarding the time they spent behind the barbed wire of prison camps and how they spent it.

Few of them complained, but several repatriates said the Germans annoyed them by puncturing the cans sent to the prisoners by the Red Cross, necessitating their using up these precious supplies without delay. They said this was a German precaution against the prisoners storing up sufficient food for an escape attempt.

However, it seemed that perhaps precautions were necessary because these Canadians, the majority of

Jap Barracks Hit Squarely

Other fighters attacked the airdrome and warehouses at Yehow, Hunan province, on the Hankow-Canton railway and factory buildings at Kienli, 30 miles northwest of Yochow, which were left burning.

Heavy bombers dumped four tons of bombs with unobserved results on the Burma road town of Mangshih in Yunnan province, a major Japanese base in the current Salween river campaign.

5th Army Nabs Mondragone In Three-Mile Plunge Storm Across Regia Canal

Fiercest Fighting Along East Coast Where Montgomery's Men Continue To Smash All Resistance

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Oct. 30—(AP).—British troops of the 5th Army storming across the Regia Canal in a three-mile plunge have occupied the seaside town of Mondragone to ram squarely against lofty Mount Massico, western anchor of the new German line in Italy, it was announced today.

Farther inland, American forces developed a flanking threat against Mount Massico, capturing Pietravairano which dominates both the upper Volturno River valley and the main Capua-Rome highway.

Simultaneously, the British 8th Army to the east forged ahead to take Montemitro on the lower bank of the Trigno River 14 miles inland from their bridgehead in the San Salvo area, where the heaviest fighting on the Italian front still raged.

Some 15 towns in all fell to the Allied advance, hindered by heavy rains and mud in all sectors. Mule transport had to be substituted for motor vehicles in some mountainous localities.

Held Up a Week.

British troops sprang from trenches and foxholes along the southern banks of the Regia Canal to take Mondragone. They had been held to that line, paralleling the lower Volturno River, for more than a week by heavy enemy fire from the lower slopes of Massico ridge.

(The 8th Army is now 12½ miles beyond Campobasso and immediately before the German line, the Cairo radio said. The 5th Army was said to be about five miles from Teano, from which a highway passes Massico Ridge toward Rome.)

The 8th Army captured Montemitro, 14 miles inland from the Adriatic.

Mondragone had been regarded as the westernmost anchor of the German line, but apparently the Nazis decided to fasten the end of the line on high grounds above it rather than in the village itself.

A canal north of the Volturno River, which had proven a stubborn obstacle, has been crossed by the 5th Army at all points.

Genoa was bombed previously by Britain-based planes, but this was the first raid on Italy's major seaport and important junction by aircraft based in the Mediterranean area.

The bombers went over the rail yards in two waves, blasting them from end to end with high explosives and scoring many direct hits especially on concentrations of trains in the centre and west side of the yards.

Buildings struck in this area included some of those of the Ansaldo Steel Works, the Ansaldo Electric and Ordnance Works and the San Giorgio Instrument plant. Other explosives hit ships and small craft.

With the industrial sections of Turin and Milan already largely knocked out by heavy bombing, Genoa represented the most important rear area target in Italy. The raid should prove a serious blow to German efforts to keep Northern Italy's industries in operation.

British Wellington bombers last night attacked the rail yards at Grosseto on the main coastline railway, 100 miles north of Rome, causing many fires and explosions as trains loaded with ammunition blew up.

The big night bombers then de-

Analysis Shows Householders Falling Down

OTTAWA, Oct. 30—(CP)—Friday subscriptions to the $1,200,000,000 Fifth Victory Loan were $79,354,300, raising the cumulative total of sales in the first 11 business days of the three-week drive to $782,651,450, National Loan headquarters reported today.

At the same stage of the $1,100,000,000 fourth Victory Loan last Spring, the cumulative total was $707,850,300 and sales on the corresponding Friday were $77,006,700.

The total of applications now is 1,228,948 headquarters said.

"Notwithstanding the improved over-all total resulting from Friday's canvass as compared with Thursday, wires indicated that the general canvass sales for the day had not yet improved," said today's press statement. "This aspectof the Loan campaign to date will receive searching attention in the customary week-end analysis. The cumulative total of general sales is still somewhat higher than in the last Loan, but not greatly so."

Friday's total was boosted by the Winnipeg subscription of $12,000,000 from Great-West Life Assurance Co. It brought to $78,000,000 the company's total investments in Dominion government issues since the outbreak of war.

The Continental Insurance Group at Montreal subscribed $675,000. It includes Continental Insurance Co., Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Insurance Co. and Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York. The Quebec Korkmen's Commission invested $500,000.

Wine Delights Thirsty Airman

AN ADVANCED ITALIAN AIRFIELD, Oct. 30 — (CP). — R.C.A.F. flyers find this southern part of Italy more like home—a pleasant change after what for many of them has been a long hitch of duty on the desert, the R.C.A.F. said to-day in an overseas press release.

Along the coast are scrub pines and grey rocks that could be part of the British Columbia coast but for the white and terra cotta villas in the distance. Coming inland the landscape resembles the vineyard country of the Niagara Peninsula.

For airmen who have spent long months on the desert, far from shops, there is a chance to do a little shopping.

One of the most popular items for sale in occupied Italian cities has been champagne—French and Italian—at about a dollar.

As one R.C.A.F. officer described this windfall of wine: "For years I have had champagne tastes and a beer income. Now, for the first time, champagne is selling at beer prices. Oh, boy."

Nazis Get Second Front Jitters Again

Fear Allies Will Hit Across Channel And At Southern France At Once

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Hitlerites, laboring under high nerve-tension as the net of military adversity tightens about them, again are having nightmares of Allied invasions of Europe.

Berlin reports activities in Southern Britain which, to German eyes, look like preparations for the long-awaited second front in France. Also, over in the Mediterranean, the Allies are said to be massing troops on the island of Corsica, and neutral sources say there's a large concentration of Allied troops and warships in that neighborhood.

The Nazis think the Mediterranean signs could mean either of two things. Gen. Eisenhower may be planning another landing on the west coast of Italy to assist Allied land operations, or he may be headed for an invasion of Southern France.

Quite likely the Germans in broadcasting these reports are fishing for information.

Hitler's soothsayer thinks that a cross-Channel invasion of France may have decided on in the tripartite conference at Moscow. Well, that could be.

One of the most important questions which was expected to come before the conference was second-front issue.

The concentration of troops on Corsica, and the invasion fleet, would fit into this picture perfectly, because it's probable that when the Allies finally invade Western France they will strike into Southern France at the same time. This double-barreled operation would force Hitler to defend two coasts of France simultaneously.

Naturally this column isn't predicting a quick invasion of France, but is merely repeating that circumstances might make it advisable and that the operation could still be carried out, despite the lateness of the season.

German reaction to President Roosevelt's announcement of the success of the tri-power conference in Moscow centred today on attempts by Berlin to picture Britain and the United States as yielding to Soviet demands and abandoning their post-war plans for free and independent countries.

A Nazi broadcast quoting the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung asserted "the plans of the three powers are gravitating ever more obviously around one central point—the destruction of the independent and creative nations in Europe and the whole world."

The German propaganda agency Transocean declared that Britain was turning to a policy which contemplated a joint Anglo-Soviet rule in Europe.

In the absence of official word on the terms of the Moscow agreement, the London Star editorially said that "first reports hint that one major item decided upon was a plan for policing defeated Germany." It added that the terms of the agreement would be awaited in Germany "with an anxiety at least as deep as that engendered in our side in the gone-forever era of Ribbentrop triumphs."

24 Spikes Removed In Strike Area

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Quebec, Oct. 30 — (CP). — With Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigating a report spikes had been removed from rails on a company siding and two union leaders held without bail on charges of inciting strike action, the labor dispute at the big plants of the Aluminum Company of Canada entered its seventh day today without a sign of settlement.

Mounties, patrolling the plant area, said they were investigating reports 24 spikes had been removed from a railway siding. They did not elaborate.

Meanwhile at a meeting of the American Federation of Labor members and sympathizers here last night Paul Fournier, appointed by William Green, A.F.L. president, to look after the Federation's interests told the union men that Philip Cutler and Jean Jodoin, walkout organizers arrested yesterday on "incitement" charges, would appear at a meeting if efforts of Federation lawyers were successful.

Cutler and Jodoin appeared in court yesterday and were remanded without bail until November 3 after they pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Women Want Voice In Peace

Congress Members Lead Agitation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP).—The women of the United Nations want—and will insist upon — a voice in the making of the post-war world, women members of the United States Congress agreed in concert today.

"Not one woman got us into this mess," said Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (Rep. Conn.), but mothers who think in terms of the next generation, those women who have a hand in war industry and those interested in government, will "demand a voice in shaping of the post-war world."

Mrs. Luce observed in an interview that Madame Chiang Kai Shek "will have a place at the peace table, if not actually, surely in spirit."

The Russian women, who have played a major role in their country's defense, will have a powerful influence over the peace conference says Rep. Mrs. Frances Bolton (Rep.-Ohio).

All the Congresswomen stress, however, that women must earn the right to be represented, by taking more interest in governmental affairs.

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP).—Audacious Yugoslav guerillas crossed the Hungarian frontier today in widening battles against German and satellite troops, and some units are now fighting on Hungarian territory, a communique broadcast by the Yugoslav army of liberation announced.

The crossing was made from Zagorye Province, north of Zagreb.

Extensive operations along the Dalmatian coast, in which a German column was defeated after 10 hours of fierce fighting, also was reported in the communique from Gen. Josip Broz (Tito). Some 150 Nazi troops were killed or wounded

Twenty Allied planes assisted in the Dalmatian operations, bombing enemy columns near Ston, Metkovic, Split and other localities near Klin, 45 miles north of Split, the bulletin continued.

Germans harried Yugoslav divisions were reported today to be facing a new Adriatic threat with the formation in northeast Italy of an army of 30,000 experienced Italian fighters whose arms are supplied by Yugoslav patriots.

Units of this force already have fought a bloody 24-hour battle with Nazi troops at Verona, a dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Nachrichten said. After both sides had suffered many dead and wounded, the Italians were said to have retreated to the mountains in the face of German reinforcements rushed from Venice, Milan and Turin.

Cut Nazi Lines.

The dispatch, dated at the Italian frontier, said the new army was formed in Venezia Province, which borders on Yugoslavia and Austria. It added that Nazi supply lines throughout the region were being chopped up constantly.

The Nazis' communication lines within Yugoslavia suffered a heavy blow yesterday. Both the forces of Josip Broz (Tito) and Gen. Draja Mihailovic announced that they had cut the main railway above and below the capital of Belgrade

With Nazi troops engaged by the Yugoslavs in many parts of that country, the Germans were said to have increased their Balkan forces to 30 divisions in an attempt to crush the Yugoslavs as well as to be prepared for any Allied invasion thrust.

Paratroop Unit Attacks Choiseul Island

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, the Southwest Pacific, Oct. 30 (AP).—An Allied paratroop invasion of Choiseul Island pointed a menacing spearhead today at the last 260 miles the Japanese control in the 680-mile-long chain of the Solomon Islands.

Latest war reports today told of the troops parachuting unopposed down on the southwestern side of Choiseul; of a trap closing around Japanese soldiers on invaded Treasury (Mono) Island; and of hundreds of bombers and fighters dropping record tonnages of explosives on enemy runways and airdrome installations without any interference of Japan's badly crippled South Pacific air force.

The invasion of Choiseul, flanking the last big Nipponese base of Bougainville now barring the way to Rabaul, opened Thursday at the village of Voza, a staging base for enemy barges. Japanese in the area fled north without a fight.

Only the day before, amphibious New Zealand and American troops landed with naval and air protection on the two Treasury Islands 30 miles south of Bougainville. The few hundred Japanese there now are being cornered, with a sea and air blockade set up to prevent their evacuation.

Tuesday the way was paved for the fast execution of the Treasury and Choiseul operations by an air blitz of Bougainville, such as the South Pacific had never known before. It rendered the Japanese utterly helpless to offer air opposition.

3-Power Talks Will End Soon

MOSCOW, Oct 30—(AP)—Formal conclusion of the 11-day-old three power conference was in sight today as diplomatic experts put finishing touches on their draft of the war and post-war agreements reached by the representatives of Great Britain, the United States and Russia.

(An official statement on the results of the conference is expected from the Russian capital this week-end, the NBC and CBS correspondents in London reported.)

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, United States State Secretary Cordell Hull and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov attended another lengthy session in the Spiridonovka Palace yesterday. Optimism over the outcome of their discussions remained "just as high as ever," it was stated in both British and American delegations.

President Roosevelt's announcement in Washington yesterday that the conference has been a great success was viewed by London newspapers as indicating that the three powers had taken a first big step toward winning the peace, and that a full report on the results of the parley could be expected soon.

Obituaries

MRS. K. C. MURPHY

There passed away in Whitby recently, Ethel McKay, beloved wife of Mr. K. Court Murphy and daughter of Mr. John McKay and the late Elizabeth Parker, Norwood, in her 42nd year. She was born in Asphodel on the farm now owned by her brother, Mr. Arthur McKay.

She married K. Court Maurphy.

She married K. Court Murphy wood until three years ago when they moved to Whitby. The late Mrs. Murphy was a member of the Norwood United Church and was a very active worker in church and Sunday School until her health failed during her long illness she had a cheery word for everyone.

Mrs. Murphy was a devoted wife and mother. Surviving are her sorrowing husband and daughter Isabel, her father Mr. John McKay, three sisters, Mrs. L. Fife (Bertha), Mrs. David Nixon (Annie), Mrs. D. Bannon (Olive) and two brothers, Herb. McKay of Keene and Arthur McKay of Asphodel.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from her sister's, Mrs. D. Bannon, King street, to Norwood United Church where the service was conducted by the Rev. E. E. Pugsley, assisted by Glenford Murphy, a nephew. Miss Lila Kirke sang "The Stranger of Gallilee" and the hymns were "Rock of Ages" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus, requested by the late Mrs. Murphy.

The beautiful floral tributes showed the high esteem in which the late Mrs. Murphy was held.

Interment was made in Norwood Cemetery.

The pall bearers were: S. S. Breckon, L. G. Gunstone, R. Parker, H. Garnett, P. Gardner and M. Kirke. The flower bearers: H. McKay, M. Parker, G. Fife, G. Glenn, R. Gordon, C. Deck, J. Gallagher and R. Patterson.

Friends and relatives were present from Toronto, Whitby, Peterborough, Lakefield, Plainfield and surrounding district.

JOSEPH WM. BRANIGAN.

WARKWORTH, Oct. 30—(ENS).—Joseph William Branigan died suddenly Thursday night at the home of Mrs. O. Samis, Oak Heights. He was a son of the late Thomas Branigan and his wife, Martha Irwin, and was born in Ireland July 31, 1878.

Most of his life was spent in Cramahe township. However, for the past ten years he resided in Haldimand township. He was known as a successful farmer and an honorable citizen.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper at Buchanan's Funeral Parlors on Saturday, with interment at Lakeport.

MRS. J. R. WEBB

Resident of Peterborough 16 years during the ministry of her husband at Murray street Baptist Church, Mrs. Katie Waldon Webb, widow of the late Rev. J. R. Webb, died in Toronto early this morning at the residence of her brother, Charles D. Waldon. She had been ill for several months.

Rev. J. R. Webb is remembered by many of Peterborough's citizens both for his successful pastorate at Murray Street Church and for his active participation in the general affairs of the community. During that period of the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Webb their two sons grew up from childhood, and Peterborough was virtually their home.

Rev. Mr. Webb went from Peterborough to Kitchener where he was minister of King Street Baptist Church. He died a few years ago. Their surviving sons are Herbert H. and Leon B. Webb of Toronto.

The funeral of Mrs. Webb will take place Monday afternoon at 2:30 from A. W. Miles chapel, St. Clair Avenue West.

Reports of interest in the community contest, sponsored by the National War Finance Committee to spur original ideas for promotion of the Victory Loan among communities came from sections of Ontario and other points.

In Petrolia, Ont., for example, the community "stunt" is a 15-minute nightly blackout. Failure to extinguish all lights results in the visit of an A.R.P. warden armed with a loan application. Petrolia is nearing its $170,000 objective.

Many In Contest

Already a quarter of the 62 Ontario units have indicated intention of entering the community contest.

First Ontario counties near the provinces of Quebec line to report reaching their objectives are Prescott and Russell. The rural district of Longeuil and the village of L'Orignal, Ont., have reached 100 per cent of an objective of $36,000.

Shawinigan Falls, Que., with 98.5 per cent., takes the lead in the cities' contest for general canvass and payroll savings objectives now that Lethbridge, Alta., has reached 100 per cent. Brantford, Ont., has 96.8.

The frst report received from Sydnew, N.S., showed it with 100.7 per cent of general canvass, headquarters reported.

Other leading cities in the general canvass division are Owen Sound, Brockville 75.5; Brockville, 65; Peterborough 63.1 and North Bay, Ont. 62.4.

Forty - five additional Ontario plants reported that 90 per cent and more workers will be putting into bonds $3 out of every $20 they earn during the next six months— and there now are 327 Ontario plants in that category.

them wounded veterans of the Dieppe "reconnaissance in force," were hardy customers who kept attempting to gain their freedom on all occasions.

Ptes. George Lee and Art Gladstone, both of Windsor, Ont., said the Germans had nearly given up taking Canadians out to work in the fields and quarries and roads because they were continually trying to escape. "They took about 50 out one day," the two recounted, "and about 40 came back two or three days later after being re-captured."

From Cpl. Gordon Fletcher of Toronto came details of the shackling which the Germans started in retaliation, they claimed, for the Allied binding of Germans taken at Dieppe and in an earlier raid. Shackles were put on Allied-held German prisoners for a while, but this was discounted although the Germans did not follow suit.

Fletcher said he was shackled with ropes for 42 days, his hands tied in front of him. For bad behavior, he continued, he would be placed in the guardhouse for two days, with his hands then tied behind his back.

He said he was released from his shackling only when the Germans were finally convinced he was medical personnel and was therefore protected.

Council Takes Trip Into Cavan Woods

Members of the city council were going out to the Kelly swamp this afternoon to see for themselves certain aspects of the progress of the contract which was joined with Ernest C. Braund.

Mr. Braund explained a present difficulty of delivery at the meeting of the fuel committee the other evening. Terms provided for the delivery of the wood from the bush to a convenient place, presumably near the roadside, where the city accepted it and took charge of further transportation.

More than 900 cords of wood have been cut, but the recent rains have aggravated damp places in the bush and it is now imposible to get out to the road until the ground freezes.

Welfare Officer Metheral commented to the Glover committee that there were alternate routes out of the bush and the longer one had been chosen.

Mr. Braund suggested an advance payment on his contract by reason of the fact that the wood has been cut and is ready for delivery to the city but is temporarily held up until cold weather provides a frozen base for hauling out the wood.

As a considerable sum of money is involved in the contract with Mr. Braund, it was agreed that as many of the aldermen as could make the trip this afternoon should go out to Cavan and see the conditions which Mr. Braund described.

Sister Mary Claire Killed At The Sault

A fire truck answering a call yesterday struck and killed Sister Mary Claire of the Sacred Heart School at Sault Ste Marie and severely injured two firemen.

The fire truck swerved to avoid striking a pedestrian and swung on to the school grounds where the isster was attempting to scatter children who were out for recess. Sister was attempting to scatter Heart School, who saw the incident, said that only the heroic action of Sister Mary Claire saved several children from injury.

The accident victim is well known in the Peterborough district. She lived at the Mother House in this city, where she took her vows and trained, and later taught school at St. Michael's School in Cobourg for about ten years. About fifteen years ago she was transferred to the Sault Ste. Marie Diocese, where she has taught up to the present. She has been in the St. Joseph's Community for 38 years. Sister Mary Claire (Nellie Conway) has a sister, Mrs. Downie, living at Schreiber, Ontario.

Bible Stresses Importance Of Complete Abstinence

By N5WMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Oct. 31 is Leviticus 10:1, 2 8-11; Proverbs 31:4, 5; Luke 1:13-16; the Golden Text being Judges 13:4, "Beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink.")

THE FIRST incident in our lesson on Bible teachings on abstinence we will remember from a previous lesson earlier in the year.

It is recorded in Leviticus and takes us back to the Hebrews' adventures in the wilderness before they arrived at the promised land. Aaron and two of his sons, Nadab and Abihu, priests, were in the tabernacle. A fire had come out from before the Lord and consumed the sacrifice upon the altar.

For some unknown reason these two sons of Aaron's each took a censer, put fire therein, and incense thereon, and offered this strange fire before the Lord, which He commanded them not. The wrath of the Lord was kindled, and fire came and devoured them, "and they died before the Lord."

Shortly after this terrible happening, the Lord told Aaron, "Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die." Some commentators think Nadab and Abihu may have been drunk when they offered this strange fire to the Lord in this inexplicable way. No minister or priest should indulge in strong liquors. How can they preach the Word of God and set an example to those who listen to them if they are self-indulgent? The true minister of God should be a spiritual being, as nearly the counterpart of his Master as it is possible for a human being to be.

Not for Kings to Drink

In the 31st Proverb we read: "It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink: Lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted."

Strong drink befuddles the mind, making it impossible for a person to have a clear, unbiased judgment. A clear brain is necessary for any one who must pass judgment and mete out justice. The oppressed might not be able to get relief if the king or other judge was not in his right mind or muddled from strong drink.

This same matter of abstinence from strong drink is brought to our attention in St. Luke's account of the Angel Gabriel's announcement to the priest, Zacharias, of the miracle of the coming birth of a son to him and his wife, Elisabeth, who were past the age when they normally would have a child.

"But the angel said unto him (Zacharias), Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.

"And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth.

"For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb."

Ordained From Birth

John was ordained from birth to be the forerunner of Jesus, and to proclaim His birth. You remember, as a man, he lived very simply in the wilderness, eating locusts and wild honey. It is possible that Zacharias did not pray for this miracle to happen to him and Elisabeth, but that, as a priest, he was concerned for the redemption of his people, and his petition was a plea for a leader. It was answered in a way that must have made him wonder and be very, very thankful.

The son was to be filled—not with intoxicants, but from his birth he was to be filled with the Holy Spirit, so that he might exceed all other prophets. Even the Pharisees did not dare say that John the Baptist was not a prophet, and Herod did not dare to put him to death until he was driven to it by his oath to his stepdaughter, Salome.

A well-known physiologist says that alcohol is a narcotic. It gives a temporary feeling of relief from worry; "abolishes mental tension, disguises difficulties, relieves a feeling of inferiority," etc., but it confuses the mind, and makes an ordinarily good automobile driver imagine himself unaffected when he might be a potential murderer because it takes him longer to react to emergencies and to operate the steering gear, brake or accelerator of his car. It affects memory and learning. It does not pay to play with fire or fire-water, this learned man states. To forget worries, he advises people to indulge in sports or hobbies, and keep healthy in mind and body.

The Golden Text

Temperance.

"Beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink."—

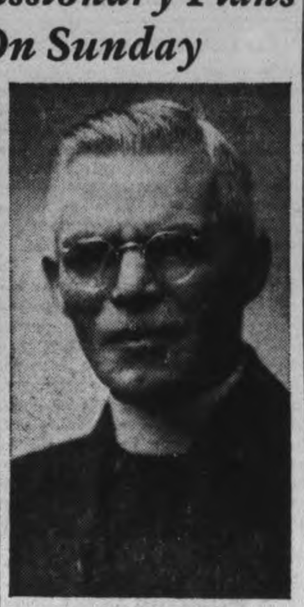
Repatriated Missionary Plans To Visit City On Sunday

Rev. Andrew Thompson, M.A., B.D., D.D., wil visit the city at this week-end. Dr. Thompson has had a distinguished career as a missionary in China. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1903, and from Kwan College in 1906. He went to China in 1906 and has been engaged in evangelism and the founding of the Church in a pioneer field.

His activities have extended to other tasks also, such as road building, famine relief, and supervision of elementary education. He is a scholar as well as a practical worker, and taught theology in Shantung Christian University, in Tsinan. Dr. Thompson was elected to represent the Chinese Church at the Oxford Conference on Life and Work in 1937, and at the later Oxford Conference on the Church, Community and State in 1939.

The province of Honan has been occupied by the Japanese and Dr. Thompson's escape was a most thrilling event. He passed through No Man's Land between Japanese garrisons in the cities and towns of North Honan on the one hand, and Communist guerillas in the fields and country roads on the other. He was repatriated on the Gripsholm last year.

Dr. Thompson's subject in St. Andrew's Church in the morning will be "Will the New China Be Christian?" and in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in the evening "Christ's Call to Adventure."



REV. DR. ANDREW THOMPSON

He will give the address at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday at three p.m.

The Memory of Our Departed

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses.—Heb. 12:1.

It is a backward look. "Compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses" stirs our imagination. It was the intention of that Jewish-Christian thinker to do so. Another "All Saints Day" approaches. Multitudes will be thinking of their beloved who have passed into that other Life beyond the Veil. It is our privilege and duty to recall and re-think for our own uplift and faith what the Scriptures teach about that other life.

Christianity points to the empty tomb of Our Lord and His tremendus claim: "I am He that liveth and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore. Christ teaches that death to the Christian is simply passing into another room, to a higher plane of life and growth and activity.

The lives of our beloved dead within the Veil is an active, conscious, personal life. Through the Veil they have passed into the nearer Presence of God and His Christ. "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord; and whosoever believeth in Me though he were dead yet shall he live." Why? "Because I live ye shall live also." In another Scripture He gives us His gracious promise: "I am come that they may have life and have it more abundantly." At death the body falls into a sleep but the soul is still alive. Even in this life the soul can be active while the body is at rest and asleep. The soul can suffer while the body can feel no pain. The soul can rejoice while the body suffers, as many can testify. This truth should capture the mind. Our loved ones are not in a state of coma or inactivity. They are far more alive than when on earth; they are living a higher, richer and fuller life within the Veil in the nearer Presence of God and Jesus Christ Our Lord and Saviour.

Furthermore our beloved dead are in the closest fellowship with us. "We being many are one body in Christ and every one members one of another." "Ye are all one Man in Christ Jesus Our Lord." They have passed through the Veil but they are still members of the Body of Christ. When you look upon the face of your dead you can lift up your eyes and says. "I believe in the Communion of the Saints; I believe in the life of the world to come." Death is not the end. Death is the door through which our loved ones have passed into a wider life with God and with us.

When you go to Church do you strive to realize the Real Presence of Christ in the midst of His congregation? Remember that the eyes of the servant of Elisha were opened to see the spiritual hosts surrounding the prophet. With that thought in your mind surely you can say with deep feeling: "Therefore with angels and archangels and with all the Company of Heaven, we laud and magnify Thy glorious Name."

It is a scriptural doctrine. Our Lord lifted the edge of the Veil in the parable of the Rich man and Lazarus. The rich man, though in torture thought and prayed for his brothers on earth. On the Mount of Transfiguration Moses and Elijah talk with Our Lord regarding His Atonement and His Exodus by way of the Cross. They are interested spectators and watchers.

The Greek word "Witness" means "Martyr"; men and women who have sealed their testimony with their blood. They are watching us. They have passed through deep waters. They understand our difficulties and cry to us: "Lift up your hearts." With heart and mind we respond: "We lift them up unto the Lord."

This hymn, very moving in its thoughts, is used in His Majesty's Chapels Royal.

For the passing souls we pray,
Saviour, meet them on their way;
Let their trust lay hold on Thee
Ere they touch eternity.
Holy counsels long forgot
Breathe again 'mid shell and shot;
Through the mist of life's last pain
None shall look to Thee in vain.
To the hearts that know Thee, Lord,
Thou wilt speak through flood or sword;
Just beyond the cannon's roar
Thou are on that further Shore.
For the passing souls we pray,
Saviour, meet them on their way;
Thou wilt hear our yearning call,
Who hast loved and died for all.

OF WHOM THE WHOLE FAMILY IN HEAVEN AND EARTH ARE NAMED.

REVIVAL SERVICES

BEGIN MONDAY, NOV. 1ST AT 8 P.M.

Our fair ciy is now sadly in need of a real revival of sane Biblical religion! Churches of all denominations feel their need of a genuine spiritual recovery. This is the need of the hour! If the Church of Jesus Christ is to give leadership to our post-war world, she needs first a spiritual renewal, and a fresh enduement with Divine Power by the Holy Spirit.

These services will continue each night at 8 o'clock, and will be undenominational in both character and spirit. Christians of all faiths welcome.

Bible Teachings on Abstinence — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Leviticus 10:1, 2; 8-11; Proverbs 31:4, 5; Luke 1:13-16

Nadab and Abihu, Aaron's sons, offered strange fire before the Lord; and fire went out from the Lord and devoured them, and they died.

The Lord said to Aaron, "Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation."

"It is not for kings, O Lemuel, to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink: Lest they forget the law and pervert the judgment."

An angel told Zacharias that his son would "be great in the sight of the Lord," and drink no strong drink.

The Shape Of The Commons

Change for its own sake has no appeal for Winston Churchill; in a speech of great brilliance he has advocated a rebuilding of the British House of Commons as it was before its destruction on May 10, 1940; he has even recommended that some features be reproduced in the new House which were thought to be defects. He had good reasons to back up his preferences.

He wants a rectangular chamber, so that Government and Opposition may face each other as they have done for centuries. Mr. Churchill has no patience with semi-circular legislatures which, in his words, appeal "to political theorists and enable every individual or group to move around the centre, adopting various shades of pink according to how the weather changes". There is another argument against a semi-circle which was certainly not far from Mr. Churchill's mind; Parliamentary procedure has all been evolved to suit the needs of a chamber in which opposing groups sit face to face, with the Speaker in the middle as arbitrator; the alteration of ancient customs without good reason would serve no useful purpose.

The master of Parliamentary drama even recommended that the new Chamber be made too small to accommodate all the Members in comfort; "If the House is big", said he "nine-tenths of its debates will be conducted in the depressing atmosphere of an almost empty or half-empty chamber; the essence of good House of Commons speaking is a conversational style—there should be on great occasions a sense of crowd and urgency".

One wonders whether Mr. Churchill got that idea when looking over our Canadian Commons which is a handsome chamber, but far too big for the groups of twenty or thirty men usually found in it. No speaker there can make himself heard unless he is a more accomplished orator than most parliamentarians can ever hope to be. Even when all members are present the atmosphere could not be described as warm, and certainly there is little crowd or urgency. We built a beautiful setting for our Commons, but we built it too big for the actors. Churchill wants to avoid that mistake.

The British House of Commons which was destroyed was designed by Sir Charles Barry, who specialized in his own interpretation of Gothic architecture. Considered from an artistic point of view it had many faults; it was dark and somewhat too ornate. But it was a first-rate place for its purpose—big enough for all the members to squeeze in when they were on hand, but small enough for an intimate atmosphere when that was wanted. It had great dignity, and that indefinable quality which we call "atmosphere", which collects about the walls and furnishing of a room which has seen great events. Desks, upon which members could conceal a manuscript while reading it, were nowhere to be seen; it was a parliament-house for speakers, not for readers.

We are glad that Mr. Churchill has spoken on this point which is an important one. Canada designed her Commons on the British model, and for sentimental reasons we should be disappointed if Britain were to create a Rose Bowl in marble and brass for her new Chamber. Once again Mr. Churchill has hit the nail on the head, expressing what many people feel who are not in a position to give their feelings expression.

Anniversary Of a Defeat

Twenty-five years ago this week the German navy recalled its U-boats to their bases, admitting that they had been beaten in the submarine struggle; for them it was a bitter defeat, and for the Allies it was a great victory. The sea menace had been disposed of and the ocean lines were ours.

Once again, in this war the Germans have put great trust in their submarines, believing that they could effectively blockade Britain from outside help. Once again they have failed. So far the U-boats have not been recalled, but great numbers of them lie helpless at the bottom of the ocean, and those which are still on the prowl are having an increasingly bad time. The menace of the submarine lies in its power to strike unseen, and to those of us who live on land they have the special terror of invisibility. But our seamen know that a submarine can only stay under water for a fixed time, and does not submerge unless it is forced to do so. They keep to the surface as much as possible in order to spare their batteries, and they usually rise at night to re-charge.

It has now been revealed that our anti-submarine planes have been using searchlights of one million candle-power, which can light up a large stretch of water as brightly as the day. When the searchlights sweep the seas the submarines are spotted and destroyed. The power to submerge, in which their great strength lies, is also their greatest defect.

The ingenuity used in the invention and application of this, and other anti-submarine methods recalls some words which the late Lord Tweedsmuir wrote many years ago:

> "We are far too ready to talk about Britain muddling through. We have never muddled through anything. When we muddled we stuck fast. We have usually won in the long run because in the end we used our brains better than the enemy."

That is something which all British peoples, including Canadians, may take to heart and remember with pride. We do not win wars because we are stupid, but because we can be clever. And, to parody an argument used in another sense these days, if we can find all this cleverness for war, why can't we use some of it in time of peace?

New Brunswick's Potato Belt

It is good news for Eastern Canada that New Brunswick has harvested a phenomenal potato crop this year. It is expected to amount to a gross of 8,000,000 barrels and to be over $20,000,000 in value. In Quebec and Ontario wet rot and other blights have destroyed much of the crop expected in the best growing areas, and if New Brunswick had not done so well there would have been a serious shortage this year. As it is, there will be potatoes in reasonable quantity.

The potato is the staple vegetable of hundreds of thousands of households, served often twice a day, and regarded not as a luxury but as a necessity. It is important to our forces overseas, and a part of the New Brunswick crop will be dehydrated and sent abroad in fifteen-pound tins; each tin holds 150 pounds of potatoes, when they are restored to their normal state. They can be served every way but baked, and cannot be distinguished from the ordinary potato fresh from the garden.

In a time of potato shortage New Brunswick has come to the rescue. Our congratulations to that Province on an excellent job!

Winter In Italy

We have heard a great deal about General Winter as an ally of the Russians; in the Italian campaign we shall hear something about General Winter as an enemy of the Allies. Winter and bad weather favour the defensive, not the offensive forces, and the progress of our troops in Italy is likely to be slow from now onward.

The Italian winter is not, of course, so severe as the winter in Russia, but it is bad enough. It may best be compared to a really bad Canadian November, with bitter winds and beating rain. There are deceptive periods of fine weather and then, suddenly, the heavens open and there is a drenching downpour which may last for an hour or a week. The cold is raw and intense; there is nothing stimulating about it.

Many of the troops now in Italy have come from North Africa, and such cold is doubly hard for them to bear. The quartermaster corps is busy issuing wool blankets, wool shirts, field jackets and everything else that they have on hand to keep out cold and damp. From now on the going in Italy will be hard, and the rate of progress of our troops will decrease accordingly.

Perhaps after the war it would be possible to have a debate between men from the Russian campaign and men from the Italian campaign on the subject—"General Winter: Is He Worse When He Freezes You Than When He Drowns You?" Both groups should be fully qualified to speak.

NOTE AND COMMENT

In Florida, we hear people go to the income tax collector's office in bathing trunks. And snatch a leaf from a fig-tree as they leave.

Says the Victoria Times: "The celery is now slick and white like the flesh of a beautiful woman, and also edible". Personally, we have always hated the flavour of those slick, white women.

Have We Ghosts In Canada?

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE coming of Hallowe'en brings the subject of ghosts to mind. It is only a fortnight since a lady of my acquaintance expressed the opinion that there were no ghosts in Canada, for our country was too young for them; she seemed to think of ghosts as being akin to mice, who were only to be found in ramshackle establishments. She was wrong, I think. The United States has ghosts by the score, and we may claim an antiquity at least equal to theirs. If there are ghosts anywhere, there are ghosts in Canada.

AS recently as September 9 of this year an account appeared in the Kingston Whig-Standard of some very queer doings at Gananoque. In a suburb of that thriving town a citizen was knocked down by what he described as a "soft, faceless creature" which appeared from nowhere, pummeled him vigorously and then vanished. Another man was attacked from behind and pulled to the ground, where he was kicked. Screams and odd noises are heard, and unaccountable rappings on doors and walls. All of this sounds as though Gananoque were troubled by a Poltergeist.

POLTERGEIST is a German word, meaning a noisy ghost. The cases of Poltergeist hauntings which have been reported all sound very much like the story from Gananoque: people are struck by soft but powerful forces; men are tumbled off their feet; noises are heard, and there is a good deal of inconvenience for everyone, although nobody suffers any real harm. The Poltergeist is not a spirit of revenge, nor an unhappy ghost seeking comfort or recognition; it is merely a spirit of mischief. In some cases breakable objects such as glasses and jugs are hurled mysteriously about a room, and yet remain unbroken. Often chairs and tables raise themselves off the ground and revolve. Heavy stones, too, have been observed to dance in a wholly unaccountable manner. But the unfailing sign of the Poltergeist is its rapping and clattering.

ANYONE who is inclined to pooh-pooh the Poltergeist would do well to examine the evidence for its existence. John Wesley's family suffered from this nuisance, and Wesley has left an account of it, carefully documented. To him, at least, the Poltergeist was a reality, and if the founder of Methodism is not to be believed, things have come to a pretty pass. Consider this passage from a letter written to Samuel Wesley by his mother, on January 12, 1716: "One night it made such a noise in the room over our heads, as if several people were walking, then run up and down stairs, and was so outrageous that we thought the children would be frightened, so your father and I rose and went down in the dark to light a candle. Just as we came to the bottom of the broad stairs, having hold of each other, on my side there seemed as if somebody had emptied a bag of money at my feet; and on his, as if all the bottles under the stairs (which were many) had been dashed in a thousand pieces. We passed through the hall into the kitchen, and got the candle and went to see the children, whom we found asleep."

THIS disturbance of the peace at Epworth Rectory in Lincolnshire went on for several weeks, and the accounts of it by the many members of the Wesley family make fascinating reading. But let nobody imagine that such a setting as an old English rectory is needed for the Poltergeist; it made itself just as much of a nuisance in a railway telegraph tower in Dale, Georgia, in 1911. Three completely sensible young men in that tower were chased out of it by a large chair, which rushed at them with terrifying speed and force. Another record tells of a carpenter's shop in which the Poltergeist amused itself by hitting the workmen with small pieces of wood. There is no telling where this shrewd and knavish sprite will decide to strike; what more unlikely place could be found than a peaceful suburb of Gananoque?

CANADA has plenty of houses which are reputed to be haunted, but in most of them the ghosts are remarkably shy, and will not appear to order. Examples of the work of the Poltergeist are likewise rare. Yet a psychic researcher might find enough here to keep him busy for a year or so. Such researchers now work with cameras and other instruments which are supposed not to lie, and they have disposed of many ghosts in England and on the Continent. Others they have not been able to dismiss so easily.... There is something a little ridiculous about a man attempting to prove that a ghost does not exist; the very essence of a ghost—its heart and soul, if that expression may be employed in this case—is that it does not exist, but is there all the same, like the rise in our cost of living since the war. As Dr. Johnson so wisely said of the existence of ghosts—"All argument is against it, but all belief is for it," and there the matter must rest.

Passing of the "Sam Browne"

The announcement that owing to a shortage of leather no more Sam Browne belts are to be made must inevitably cause regret in sentimental breasts.

Already the Sam Browne had ceased to be essential. But more than a single modest star upon the shoulder, it was a symbol, especially to those who had earned it by hard work in the ranks. It had something of the almost sacred quality of a first "colour" at school. That cap, perhaps with a silver tassel, now lies buried deep, guarded by moth-balls and unvisited save by some truant ray of sunshine. Yet now and again, when the house is very still, it's owner may take a covert look at it, half wondering whether he ever really wore it.

The words "Et militavi" express a very common, human feeling and nothing can say them better, especially today, than the belt reposing at the bottom of the draw. And so a moment's thought is due to General Sir Sam Browne, V.C., who devised his belt long ago in the fifties.—London Times.

Butter in Storage

We are now told the War Food Administration is about to cut its butter requirements by a third. That is to say, it expects 20 per cent of production instead of 30 per cent. We should say that 20 per cent ought to be ample as the total number of men in the service is less than 8 per cent of the population. More, Government butter in storage at the moment exceeds, we are told 200,000,000 pounds, or 20 pounds for each service man—a fairly good back-log for the future.—Gloversville (N.Y.) Republican.

Capital Closeups

(By JOHN DAUPHINEE, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (CP)—The R.A.F. man posted to Canada for training doesn't come unprepared for changed conditions he'll meet. Somewhere in his belongings is a little blue booklet called "Service Overseas" which is distributed by British authorities to put the boys right in advance.

"Service Oevrseas" is a revised version of the pamphlet "When You Go To Canada" published by the British Air Ministry. It's been toned down a bit and hence is improved.

The picture presented is certainly favourable. The "pace of life," and even the manner of speech are more brisk, says the booklet—"action is the keynote." Under no circumstances should the R.A.F. man enter into adverse comparisons.

"Forget that 'we don't do it like that.' Who cares if we don't? Certainly not the Canadians or the people of the United States. Possibly we might do it 'like that' with profit."

WEATHER NOTES

The Canadian winter apparently bothered the anonymous author, though he acknowledges that "a more moderate temperature prevails on the Pacific coast." The cold, he says, is "dry and deceptive—not so shrewd as our damp chill; but it is penetrating, and frost-bite is a real danger."

"Go by the thermometer," is the warning to the R.A.F. "when it tells you that it is really cold out of doors, just believe it.... In winter if you get frost-bitten do not neglect it. Probably some passer-by will see the signs before you feel the effects, and will stop to massage the affected part (most often the ears) with snow, to get the circulation going."

"Don't regard this as an affront. It is a kindly service."

For the record, here are a few Canadian sidelights from "Overseas Service": "The standard of domestic comfort is high"; "engine whistles are not our shrill piercing signals; they are deep-throated, massive things"; "(railway) passengers talk to each other without formal introduction, and nobody minds"; "eggs and bacon mean just that—a very good dish"; and shoe-shine parlors provide a "staggeringly bright polish" for "10 or even 15 cents."

FAUX PAS DE LUXE

One of those unfortunate errors that people talk about happened the other day in one of Ottawa's big hotels (Chateau Laurier). Dr. Liu Shih-Shun, Chinese Minister to Canada, gave a luncheon for a Chinese visitor—a nicely-planned affair.

But the table decorations, unfortunately, were chrysanthemums—the national flower of China's arch-enemy, Japan.

NORTH-SOUTH TREND

Portent of closer relations between Canada and South America after the war have been coming thick and fast. Chile seems particularly interested in the Dominion. Only this week a group of state police came here on an inspection trip nad a Chilean senator, Eliodoro Dominguez, came here unofficially.

Brazil is also proving an increasingly good market for Canadian goods, Jean Desy, Canadian Minister to Rio de Janeiro, reported here Thursday.

It's just possible that the fact the size of Canada's population is nearer their own makes South American countries think it will be easier to deal with the Dominion than with the overshadowing United States.

Montaigne Overlooks His Kingdom

I NEVER travel without books either in peace or war; and yet sometimes I pass over several days, and sometimes months, without looking on them; I will read by-and-by, say I to myself, or tomorrow, or when I please; and in the interim, time steals away without any inconvenience. For it is not to be imagined to what degree I please myself and rest content in this consideration, that I have them by me to divert myself with them when I am so disposed, and to call to mind what a refreshment they are to my life. 'Tis the best viaticum I have yet found out for this human journey, and I very much pity those men of understanding who are unprovided of it....

When at home, I a little more frequent my library, whence I overlook at once all the concerns of my family. 'Tis situated at the entrance into my house, and I thence see under me my garden, court, and base-court, and almost all parts of the building. There I turn over now one book, and then another, on various subjects, without method or design. One while I meditate, another I record and dictate, as I walk to and fro, such whimsies as these I present to you here....

The figure of my study is round, and there is no more open wall than what is taken up by my table and my chair, so that the remaining parts of the circle present me a view of all my books at once, ranged upon five rows of shelves round about me. It has three noble and free prospects, and is sixteen paces in diameter. I am not so continually there in the winter; for my house is built upon an eminence, as its name imports, and no part of it is so much exposed to the wind and weather as this, which pleases me the better, as being of more difficult access and a little remote....'Tis there that I am in my kingdom, and there I endeavour to make myself an absolute monarch, and to sequester this one corner from all society, conjugal, filial, and civil; elsewhere I have but verbal authority only, and of a confused essence. — From the Essays of Montaigne (1580).

Trees Of Cuba

WE arose early to a hurried breakfast and set out afoot as dawn was breaking, that loveliest time of a tropic day. Wisps of fog were rising from the fields of cut cane. Far away on the horizon a feather of smoke could be seen above the tall smokestack of the mill of the adjoining plantation....

It had rained during the night, and we turned and walked down a long lane bordered by the living fence posts so characteristic of Cuba. Fence posts here are placed in the ground to sprout and grow....

To me there is something particularly appealing about the scenery of the Cuban countryside. ...The wide sweeping cane fields, their dainty tassels blowing in the breeze and the giant Ceiba trees, which are so often to be seen, since it is a custom never to cut them down, are a joy to the eye. These great umbrellas, their horizontal limbs each a garden of epiphytic carujeyes (plant growing on other plant), as the bromeliads are called in Cuba, are singularly pleasing, especially when the soft green foliage comes out with the first spring rains. Then there are the wide groves of stately royal palms, their pale gray stalks like stone columns surmounted by a section of polished green from which the long, graceful fronds sprout forth. These are used for thatching and the berries are gathered for pigs. There is a law against cutting them down, since the royal palm is the official emblem of the Republic.

Cuba has been cleared for cultivation probably as extensively as New England was a hundred years ago and little of the land has yet begun to go back into second growth, as a large part of New England has already done. Cuban soil is unbelievably fertile and there are many fields on which cane has been cut for a hundred years without replanting. Indeed, I know a valley west of Havana where the topsoil is sixty feet deep, and while I miss now the high forests which I used to see on my visits to Cuba thirty or more years ago, I still enjoy the plantations of mango and other fruit trees which are found far and wide about villages and sugar mills.

The mango is one of the finest shade trees of the whole world, and the tender roseate hue of the long drooping leaves on the new-grown shoots is singularly lovely. It is strange how many tropical trees have this habit of putting forth quick-growing shoots with long, limp, slender leaves, pink or even bright red in colour, which finally harden up and become the firm, typical adult foliage of dark green. — From "Naturalist at Large," by Thomas Barbour (Boston: Little, Brown.)

A Bible Message

And, behold, men brought in a bed a man which was taken with a palsy: and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him. And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude, they went upon the housetop, and let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus.

And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee. And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?

But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts? Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.

And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. (Luke 5: 18-25.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"Children," said the teacher, instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writing, or draw inspiration from outside source."

As a result of this advice, Johnny turned in the following composition:

"We should not attempt any flites of fancy, but write what is in us. In me there is my stummick, lungs, liver, two apples, two cakes and my dinner."

The beggar carried a large label marked "Crippled," and the kind old lady was so touched that she dropped a dime into his tin.

A few minutes later she was surprised and annoyed to see him hurrying down the street, walking quite normally.

When she challenged him about his claim to be crippled, he replied smoothly: "Madam, it is, alas! possible to be crippled in other sense than the physical one. I happen to be crippled in a purely financial sense."

So much litter disfigured the parade ground that the orderly officer put a squad on to tidy it up. They did their best, but the day was windy and the debris frolicsome.

"Finished?" asked the officer, when the corporal in charged reported to him. "Everything picked up?"

"Y-yes, sir," was the hesitating reply; "all except one dirty bit of paper which blew in at the window of the colonel's office, sir."

"Well, get it out man!"

"I can't, sir—he's just signed it."

The Real Mystery

If I were in Mr. Stalin's place—which, at the moment, seems a somewhat unlikely development—I would laugh myself to sleep every night at American journalists who keep referring to Russia as the great mystery of these times, the doubtful factor, the universal question mark. For, of course, the great mystery, doubt and question mark of the times is the United States. Stalin's real trouble is that he does not know and cannot know what the Americans are going to do after the war. — Bruce Hutchison in Victoria Times.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 30 — (CP). — There's something anomalous about George Hardy's reported statement to an Edmonton hockey meeting that "in normal times juveniles should not be signed to professional contracts."

Hardy, past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and president of the International Ice Hockey Association, explained that it is extremely difficult now for the National League to get players, but that the major circuit has "agreed that once the war is over it will be prepared to join in framing an agreement which will protect juvenile players...."

Offhand we'd say that if it is wrong to sign juveniles (boys under 18) to professional contracts "in normal times" as Hardy puts it, it is that much worse to sign them in abnormal times when civilization is upset by war.

Objections given at the Edmonton meeting to signing of juveniles were that professional offers "lured' them away from the class room or war industry.

Actually this corner sees no objection to signing of juveniles if the professional clubs involved see that the youngsters finish their schooling, as most N.H.L. clubs do. Parental consent should be all that is needed.

However, this corner takes exception to the Hardy statement as an example of the poppycock frequently fed the public by sport executives.

What Hardy meant was that the C.A.H.A. should not step on N.H.L. toes. The National League needs players now, and right or wrong the amateur body should not object. After the war the N.H.L. will gladly sign an agreement not to sign juveniles because by that time it will want only mature players and not boys under 18,

Incidentally;

Edmonton is on the threshold of another big basketball season with 18 senior men's teams, many of them formed by United States service men....George Hall and George Carradus, Guelph, Ont., fire-pin bowlers, rolled an exhibition series of 10 games, Hall averaging 302 and Carradus 280. Carradus fired a total of 1,153 for three consecutive games with strings of 357, 396 and 400......The Patricia Bay Fliers, Canadian basketball champions, have nowhere to play this season. The Vancouver and District League refused to admit them so the Fliers will have to get by with exhibitions until the playoffs arrive.

Four of the 16 untied and unbeaten college football teams are scheduled to oppose each other in two of to-day's scheduled fixtures across the border, the standout being the battle at Cleveland between Notre Dame and Navy, both of whom have run up five-win records so far this season. A crowd of 80,000 is expected for this one. At Philadelphia, unbeaten Penn will take on unbeaten Army and the expectation there is a gathering of 70,000 fans.

Another top-flight engagement will see Southern California, still unscored upon, in action against University of California, while Perdue, which has won six games in a row, will tangle with Wisconsin. Michigan lost to Notre Dame a couple of weeks back and has an important engagement with Illinois. Rochester is playing the last game of its schedule to-day in a clash with Case. An international game is to take place at San Antonio when the Flyers of Randolph Field, Tex., meet University of Mexico.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Whipper Billy Watson who will be here Tuesday night to battle with John Katan is not only the British Empire champion but he is an aspirant for the world title and Toronto fandom believe that if the Whip is given a real chance with Wild Bill Longson there will be a new world champion. Watson is pulling all the strings possible to get a match with Longson and that is not exactly good news for Katan. With the probability of a battle with the world title-holder in the offing the Whipper will not be able to take any chances with the Palermo Panther. In other words Katan is likely to get the works for Watson will toss at him everything in his bag of tricks. It's not likely however that the challenger is doing any worrying. The Panther is not that type. He is rough, tough and durable and he'll battle Watson just as courageously and as unflurriedly as he would mix it with a fellow named Joe. All he asks is a chance to get his pet chin lock gripped tightly on Mr. Watson and he'll guarantee that the British Empire champ will know that he has been to the wrestling wars.

* * * * * *

Katan is no novice in the mat game. As a matter of fact some of the local fans will recall that they nearly had a chance to see him in action here ten years ago against the famous Don. Ed. George. The Panther who was just making his debut in first class company was billed to wrestle George here but the weather turned very cold, there was no way then to heat Brock Street Rink, the bout had to be postponed and eventually as the cold snap continued was called off. Katan has met a lot of good boys since that time and he has never failed yet to put up a real battle. He'll fight it out toe to toe with Watson here Tuesday night and although the Whipper should take the marbles he'll have to do more than shadow box to put the Panther away. It looks by long odds the best contest of the whole campaign and it should pack the customers in. With Watson laying the British Empire title on the line there is every incentive for both grapplers to trot out the best they have and their best should be more than sufficient to make the battle a memorable affair.

They Have Troubles, Too

Peterborough is not the only city in this end of the province to have its troubles. Down at Belleville the prospects for the intermediate brand this season are said to be anything but bright. Joe King, Toronto concessionaire, gave the Petes a preview of the Belleville situation when he attended the hockey meeting here the other night. He reported that the Belleville Reliance outfit was not very enthusiastic about operating this season, reporting no players on hand. This is confirmed by Scribe Ken Colling who in a plea for minor league hockey remarks "Actually for the past few years Belleville hockey fans have depended entirely too much on the wholesale importation of puck talent but 1944 offers an opportunity for the promotion of 'teen-aged hockey in this city. At the present time the outlook for intermediate hockey is anything but encouraging." Of course there is one thing about Belleville. The absence of players at this stage of the season is usually not considered a handicap in Belleville. They have been up against that situation frequently but usually the scouts have been able to drag in enough recruits to enable Belleville to put a contending team on the ice; in fact they have usually managed to drag in reinforcements during the group race.

* * * * * *

And Kingston, too, has its difficulties. Here is how Scribe Bill Walshe under the head "Future Dark" describes the prospects: "Odds are mounting against Kingston going to the post in the O.H.A. senior series, although every effort will be made by the executive to keep the team going. According to a reliable report, orders have been issued for several of Kingston's best soldier players to be moved, although their names have not been announced while the Kingston Hockey Club is also having difficulty completing desired financial arrangements with Queen's for the rental of the Jock Harty Arena. Prospects were good for Kingston to have its greatest winter in hockey with capacity crowds almost certain for games every Saturday night and many of the great stars of the game playing here, but everything is uncertain at present. The game with Boston Bruins next Wednesday will be played, as arranged, and another outstanding inter-league game has also been planned with Montreal Lachine R.C.A.F. for a week next Saturday but after that no one knows or can guess what will happen. Fans can be assured that members of the Kingston hockey executive, who established senior hockey here three years ago, will do all in their power to give Kingston good hockey."

A Plea For The Youngsters

In a plea for encouragement for 'teen age hockey in Belleville, Ken Colling, Quinte sport scribe calls attention to what is going on in Peterborough aiming at helping the youngsters. Colling's article follows: "Here we have a fine hockey arena and judging from the interest shown by a score or more of 'teen aged boys attending a meeting the other night this city has all that's needed to foster hockey in this city, except the most essential factor—proper adult guidance and support. Out in Peterborough, where the kids will have to play on an open air rink for the duration at least, Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Max Swanston, Herb Bradburn, Jack Sullivan, Herb Payne and other responsible citizens now see the advantage of sponsoring competitive sports in the period of adolescence. If for no other reason than it helps eliminate juvenile delinquency and builds strong healthy bodies and minds the project is worth its weight in gold. If responsible citizens are interested in Peterborough, why shouldn't the same hold good in Belleville. On Nov. 8th a meeting to discuss the possibilities of organizing a juvenile or junior hockey league in Belleville will be held at the Hume Arena and it's hoped this conclave will see such responsible men present as was the case in Peterborough."
case in Peterborough."

It's hockey night in Canada tonight. The lid will be pried off an unusual N.H.L. season with the New York Rangers clashing with the Leafs in Toronto and the Boston Bruins playing the Canadiens in Montreal. Sunday sees the Leafs getting their second test in a game against the Black Hawks in Chicago while the Rangers move on from Toronto to Detroit for a game with Jack Adams' Red Wings. Many of the N.H.L. stars of last season have gone. Many news youngsters are trying to fill their shoes. The question at the moment is how successfully they will be able to do it. Every club in the outfit on paper at least, is weaker than in the 1942-43 campaign, some of them decidedly weaker. As the campaign swings into action tonight Detroit Red Wings, Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks and the Boston Bruins look to be the class of the loop but it is one of those seasons in which predictions may not mean a thing. It is a situation that is studded with "IFS."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Frank Tunney has arranged a fine supporting bill for the Whipper Watson-Killer Katan British Empire championship bout here Tuesday....Watson's pal and training-mate Irish Pat Flanagan will meet the roughhouse Jan Gotch in the semi-final and that clash could not possibly be dull....The lively Joe Maich, who is always a favorite here meets Mike Demetre, flashy Montreal Greek grappler in the opening tilt....And now the story is that Joe Gordon is not going to retire from baseball....Well few people thought that he was, anyway.... Even Foster Hewitt will have trouble identifying some of the rookies who are breaking into the N.H.L.....The New York Rangers still have Bryan Hextall who on his record is a whole forward division in himself....The biggest crowd ever to see O.R.F.U. football was predicted for Varsity Stadium in Toronto this afternoon as Balmy Beach battled the Ottawa Combines and R.C.A.F. Hurricanes and Hamilton Wildcats tangled. The double-header rated as about tops for the season.

Zeke Gets Medal

Empire Title On Line Here Tuesday

Wrestling fans here seem to be due for a treat that may become quite memorable. Next Tuesday night in the Brock Arena Whipper Billy Watson lays his British Empire title on the line in his bout with Challenger John Katan. It's a big match for this city and is bound to pack in the customers. The almost full house of this week's show, should be dwarfed by the crowd that will want to see Killer Katan put in his place by the Champion.

On the other hand if Katan can manage to upset the sensational Whipper some genuine wrestling history will be made right here. The fans have seen Whipper Billy do his stuff here before but never has he been up against such an opponent as the Palermo Panther.

Katan is a toughie if ever there was one, and although he was plenty luck to win over Clayborne in their deciding match, nevertheless he must be rated as a grim opponent for the Whip. The latter came through with a sensational win in Toronto Wednesday night and certainly cannot afford to lose this match here. Watson is today rated as one of the greatest crowd-pleasers the mat games has ever produced. But more than that the extremely popular Billy can and does wrestle up to a standard that has put him in demand all over the country.

Watson's Empire crown will be officially at stake, the bout having been okayed as a title match by the Ontario Athletic Commission.

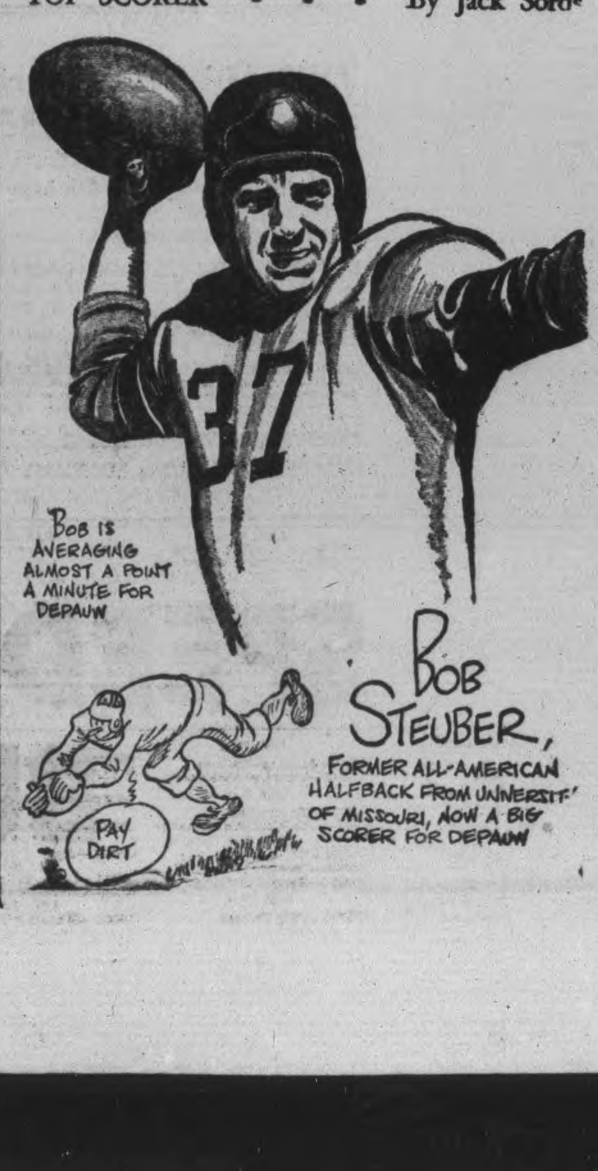
TOP SCORER ... By Jack Sords



Final Score 4-1 King George Loses A. Kay Cup

Prince of Wales won the Public School Soccer championship on Friday afternoon, when they defeated King George 4-1 in the second game of the best-of-three series, for possession of the Alex Kay trophy which is emblematical of the season's playing on the field of sport. They won the first game 3-1 and never lost a battle throughout the schedule.

Both teams were well balanced, playing smart soccer that was accompanied by clever combination. The winners positional tactics overwhelming the losers in the pinches. King George had possession of the cup last year. This is the first time that Prince of Wales have won the cup. Mr. Noftall was coach for the winners, and Mr. Telford for the losers.

Goal In A Minute

From the kick-off, King George made tracks for the Prince of Wales goal where a player handled. K. Anderson, ripped a long drive into goal that a player headed in transit into goal, giving T. Kay no chance to save. Prince of Wales went right back into the East City boys' territory to harass the full backs as they closed inside the goal area. Dyer, at centre, dribbled his way toward goal then slipped the ball over to Foster who beat the King George goalie with a low grounder. On the next visit, Foster was called up on offside position and went on to score an off-side goal, but his verbal attack resulted in him receiving marching orders for the remainder of the game. Nisbett replaced him on right wing.

Clever Tactics

Both elevens were playing smart soccer at that point, with the half back divisions of the respective teams battling hard to hold the forwards off the scoring list. Eventually the break went to Prince of Wales when a penalty shot was awarded for handling inside the dreaded area. Miller made no mistake. King George then took advantage of the easy going of their opponents but their attempts only resulted in a series of corner kicks that ended up in scrimmages in front of goal. R. Kidd, R. Miller and N. Cullen, half back line demonstrating an effective intercepting play to offset the King George attack that was trying to run the ball into goal, instead of shooting. Towards the interval K. Anderson, East City boy carried the ball right through to goal then missed the upright by inches. Quickly Kidd transferred the ball up-field to Dyer who made in Prince of Wales 3, King George 1.

Everything But Score

On resuming, King George settled down to nice combination that brought out the stellar qualities of opposing defence. Miller, at centre half, coaching his wing men to perfection in tackling and anticipation of play that terminated in the King George boys being compelled to shoot from far out, thereby allowing ample time to keep their citadel intact. For the first 20 minutes, King George hemmed the Prince of Wales eleven to their own territory. Aided with the ever increasing wind at their back, a flock of corner kicks and foul kicks, King George did everything but score as the whole team went up on the attack.

Lost Their Enthusiasm

Awaiting his opportunity, Miller, tackled his opponent in his own half of the field, gained possession quickly while a player hung right on to him but eventually he shook him off. Then three players in succession endeavoured to nullify his progress toward goal. He kept the ball at his toe all the time until right on Stock's citadel where he registered the final tally after travelling two-thirds of the field with the ball. This set-back to the East City boys did not prevent them from battling until the final whistle. Prince of Wales 4, King George 1.

The losers congratulated the winners on their achievement.

Draft Price Reduced $1,000

TORONTO, Oct. 30 —(CP)— Reduction in the draft price from $7,000 to $6,000 was agreed upon at a meeting of representatives of the National and American Hockey Leagues, Mervyn Dutton, managing director of the N.H.L., said last night at the close of the session.

Under the agreement, National League clubs can draft players from the minor clubs at the new price. Only one players may be drafted from each American League club in one year.

Other National League representatives present at the meeting were W. J. Tobin of Chicago, Lester Patrick of New York and Frank Selke of Toronto. Maurice Podoloff, president of the A.H.L. represented the minor league.

Dutton also announced that referees for the season would be Bill Chadwick, Frank (King) Clancy, Norman Lamport and Bert Hedges.

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE OPENS 26th SEASON IN WARY MOOD

Red Line Rule Gets Test In First Games

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League totters into action tonight for the 26th consecutive season, starting a new and critical phase in its evolution from a small-time, all-Canadian circuit into a high-powered international sports organization ranking second in prestige only to baseball's major leagues.

Acutely conscious of the wartime player famine but determined to preserve identity of the league founded by the late Frank Calder in 1917, all six clubs are slated for their 1943-44 unveiling in the first week-end program of a 4½-month schedule leading to the Stanley Cup playoffs. The opening card:

Saturday—New York Rangers at Toronto Maple Leafs; Boston Bruins at Montreal Canadiens.

Sunday—Rangers at Detroit Red Wings; Leafs at Chicago Black Hawks.

Many Youngsters

If league officials approach the new season a little tremulously, like a youngster learning to skate, they can hardly be blamed. All summer, under government order to give league activities as little publicity as possible, the N.H.L. was uncertain whether it could carry on or not. When official blessing finally was forthcoming, individual clubs still were faced with the problem of mustering a major league team from the sprinkling of rookies and veterans available outside the military services.

An innovation which officials view warily—despite a flood of pre-season acclaim—is the new rule permitting a defending team to pass ahead anywhere inside a new 12-inch red line at centre ice without incurring an offside penalty. Most coaches and managers feel the rules amendment will reduce helter-skelter hockey, but it must still be tested in league play.

Barring unforeseen developments, it can be taken for granted that the N.H.L. will enjoy another plush season. Leaders who deplore the sniping of professional critics against the league's determination to carry on with inexperienced talent forget the psychological value of such criticisms. Crowds will flock to see how the youngsters stand up in professional competition—and the youngsters will stand up, judging by the success of teen-aged newcomers last season.

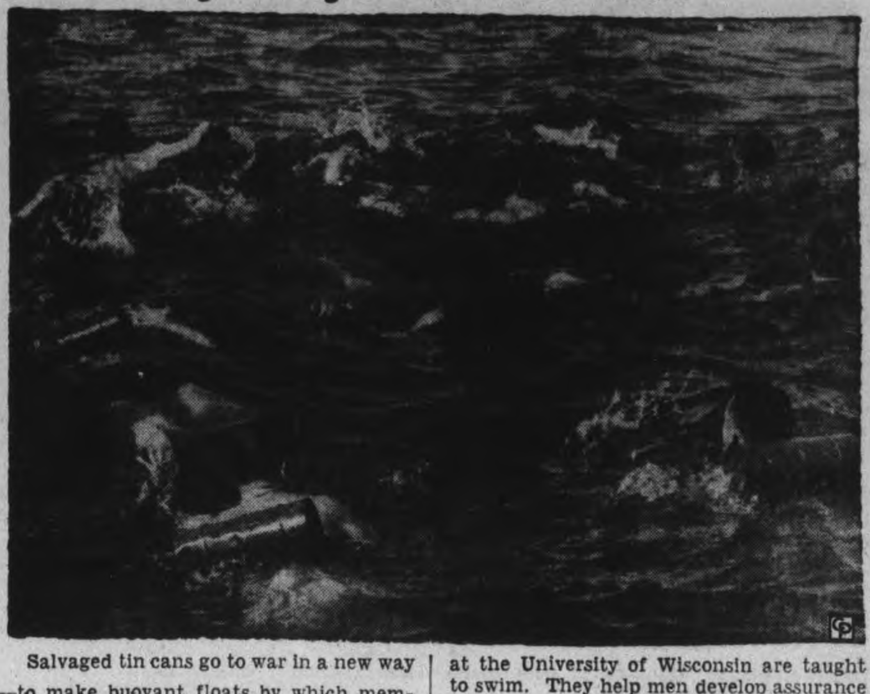
How Swimming Is Taught With Tin Can Floats



Salvaged tin cans go to war in a new way—to make buoyant floats by which members of the U.S. Army Air Forces studying at the University of Wisconsin are taught to swim. They help men develop assurance and enable them to concentrate on correct arm and leg movements.

GREAT OCEAN CONVOYS

British ocean convoys totalled 125,000,000 ship-miles in the first three years of war. This is equivalent to 6,000 times around the world.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 — (AP). — Story out of Washington—via Walter McCallum, ear-to-the-ground Evening Star scribe — is that Los Angeles interests are offering $100,000 for the National Pro Football League play-off with the idea of staging it in the Rose Bowl... Since the Redskins are likely to be the Eastern play-off team, the report may carry considerable weight.... Since the play-off is scheduled for December 19 in the Mid-west, such a shift would eliminate a lot of financial uncertainty even though it did deprive some fans of (1) a last chance to see the team they follow all season, and (2) pneumonia.

Alma Stranger:

Before last week's Notre Dame-Illinois game a sports writer asked Julius Rykovich, Notre Dame halfback from Illinois: "How does it feel to play against your former teammates?"...."I dont know," replied Julius. "The only one on the Illinois team I know is Lester Joop, who was on the freshman team with me last year."

Rev. Arnold Fenton, who taught Yale's Scooter Scussel to boot a football 70 yards or so, says that when Ray first started at the U. of Connecticut he "hooked the ball like a heifer side-kicking a harsh milker."

To-day's guest star:

John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "One of these days Fritzie Zivic is going to quit fighting. There are those who aver that he already has."

C.C.F. Leaders Best Promisers

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30 — (CP). — Gordon Graydon, House leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said here the party under leadership of John Bracken will not back away from blazing new trails, economic or social, if deemed necessary for the national welfare.

Speaking to a joint meeting last night of the Bracken Club and the Federation of Progressive Conservative women of Winnipeg, Mr. Graydon expressed alarm at "extravagant promises being made of a new earth and a new heaven."

"There is one party in Canada which already has won the marathon as the best promiser," he said. "The C.C.F. leaders are surely the best promisers. The Liberal party is said to be the best putter-offer.

"There was only one role left for the Progressive Conservative party and that is as the party of action. Under Mr. Bracken it is not likely to fail."

Mr. Graydon claimed C.C.F. promises were impossible to fulfill and were "evidence of a lack of public responsibility."

The Progressive Conservative party's agriculture policy, announced this week by Mr. Bracken, was termed a "bill of rights for the farmer." Mr. Graydon said that without a prosperous agriculture there cannot be a proper Canada.

Fighting Canadians Advance Against The Axis

Blasted by mortar fire, this German mine-laying truck was left burning behind them by swiftly-advancing Canadians. Canadians, here near Anzi, in Italy, were still being delayed by demolitions, but caught up with retreating Germans near Potenza and captured the town after sharp clashes with rearguards.

Woman Is Killed In Toronto Fight

TORONTO, Oct. 30 —(CP).— A woman was killed and a man was taken to hospital in critical condition following a fight this morning in a rooming-house on Alexander street in mid-town.

The dead woman was Anna Ukroenz, 26, and in hospital was Fred Zuluski, 60. Police said they were called to the house by the girl's mother, Anna Ukroenz, who told them that Zuluski was beating the girl to death with a hammer on the kitchen floor, following a quarrel. The girl was dead when police arrived.

Police were told that after the fight Zuluski cut his throat with a razor.

Dr. Smirlie Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, is investigating the case.

Police said that Zuluski had been living with the girl's mother and that he and the girl had been on unfriendly terms for some time The two were alone in the kitchen when the quarrel started.

The girl's screams brought her mother to the kitchen. She told police: "I ran towards him. He turned on me and said, 'You'll get it too. I'll kill you.' I ran screaming from the house."

She ran to neighbours who called police and then went to the house, to find the girl dead and Zuluski sitting on a chair wtih blood streaming from his throat and an injured skull. He had also struck himself with the hammer.

Military Plans Laid Before Stalin

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Oct. 30 (AP). — Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin had before him today the full details of the British military position as the tripartite conference entered its 10th day.

It was learned a report was given Stalin by Foreign Secretary Eden and Lt.-Gen. Hastings Ismay, Deputy Secretary to the War Cabinet for Military Affairs, when they saw Stalin at the Kremlin Wednesday night. The report was promised Stalin by Prime Minister Churchill last year in Moscow.

Meanwhile United States spokesmen repeated to a press conference today most of State Secretary Cordell Hull's radio address of September 11 and said with marked emphasis 'it can still be said this goes."

In that speech Hull praised the Soviet Union's fight and said "it is our desire and our settled policy that collaboration and co-operation between our two countries shall steadily increase during and following the war."

The general theme of cordiality and co-operation among Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States in war as well as peace seemed to be the message the spokesmen were trying to emphasize.

The Stalin-Eden interview was reported to have consisted of question and answer in a cordial atmosphere. Stalin also has talked with Hull.

Judge Cracks Down

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP). —Fifteen college students, sporting red pork-pie hats, entered King's county court as part of their fraternity initiation. Judge Peter J. Brancato looked up, frowned on the hats atop the crew-haircutted heads. Told to remove them, the youths remained as immobile as wooden Indians. The judge held them in contempt, clapped them in a cell. One of the collegians was Peter J. Brancato, Jr.—the judge's son.

HASTINGS

Leather Concern Goes Over Top

HASTINGS, Oct. 30 — (ENS).— Breithaupt Leather Company of Hastings has gone over the top with 108 per cent. of its objective in the Fifth Victory Loan.

The Breithaupt Leather Company which employes seventy-five men, has subscribed $7,250, and this has helped to place Hastings with the highest percentage of the objective of any centre in the county of Northumberland on the eighth day of the Loan.

One person in every six has bought bonds in the village to date, and this has brought their percentage to 47.44 of the objective.

Canvassers Reeve L. E. Kelly and John L. Doherty are hoping to put the loan over the top before the closing date, as the people of Hastings were the first to go over the top on the last Victory Loan.

Reeve L. E. Kelly is sure that the people will respond to the loan as good as in previous ones and they have never failed to go over their objective, which is $45,000.

Canadian Gunners Cover Advance On Potenza, Italy

The capture of Potenza, Italy, by Canadians spearheading the Eighth Army's advance threw Canadian forces together in a combined effort after an all-out blitz on mined roads by engineers. While tanks and machine-guns blazed away at cleverly-concealed German positions, Canadian infantry worked its way into the town and took over. Here, machine-gunners cover the advance.

DOG FASHIONS CHANGE.
Fashions in dogs, like in everything else, change. A checkup of the canines for which licenses were issued in Peterborough twenty years ago showed that collies were by far the most popular dogs in the city at that time, 80 of that breed being listed. There were only eight cocker spaniels. A similar investigation of this year's list of licenses reveals that the cocker spaniel is now the favorite. No fewer than 178 of these dogs have been licensed in Peterborough this year, while the number of collies has dropped far down in the list.

Children Help Milk For Britain

The children this year are going to celebrate their Hallowe'en night helping the Kinsmen Fund collect the money for new and vitally needed supplies of milk for the children of Britain. Rather than pay the usual tribute to the spirit of Hallowe'en by going around after dark in fancy dress asking neighbors for fruits, nuts and candy, and perhaps indulging in a few pranks, they will ring doorbells and ask for tickets that householders have bought in the "Shell Out For the Bombed Out" drive.

Already the Kinsmen Fund has provided ten and one half million quarts of milk for children in Britain through the generosity of the people of Canada, and its objective in the present Hallowe'en campaign is two million quarts more. This amount of milk is needed now by British children in bombed out areas, orphanages, hospitals, home and nurseries.

Local stores are carrying special tickets for the Fund and they are 10c each, and when purchased they should be taken home to await the arrival of the children tonight, who will come around with the cry "Shell Out." Monday the children will turn in their collection of tickets at their schools and soon the Milk for Britain can be on its way.

Charles Saunders President Of Kiwanis Club

Elected unanimously by the members of the Kiwanis Club, gathered in the Empress Friday noon for the annual election of officers, Charles H. Saunders will assume the presidentship of the club for 1944, succeeding Dick Raine. Mr. Saunders has been 1st vice-president of the club during 1943.

Accepting the leadership of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club for the coming year, Mr. Saunders said that many tasks lay ahead of the membership, due to the stress of war and the many wartime jobs that service clubs are called upon to fill. But he had no doubt that the club could accomplish its ends, as the same time deriving as much pleasure as ever from the work.

Elected 1st vice-president was John Lewis, with Milf Hardill 2nd vice-president. Tom Mark was unanimously r-elected treasurer.

The board of directors for 1944 contains the following names: Tom Rodger, Dinny Fitzgerald, Stanley Longhurst, William Garner, Victor Hamilton Vince McCabe and Dr. Cliff McKee.

Outboard Marine are holding back their celebration until 11.30 a.m. next Saturday, and reports from the Monaghan Road plant a special wind up down there. The Royal Army Medical Corps Band may be back for that occasion from Camp Borden.

At any rate a few events have been carried over into the last week of the campaign while the final plunge for the finish is rolling along to accomplishment. Headquarters are worried but they really expect Peterborough to make the grade with some resource or other.

Police Patrol 2 Nights To Hold Pranksters

While the celebration of Hallowe'en is apparently being split up over Saturday and Monday nights, the Peterborough police department is playing safe by preparing special patrols for both nights.

Extra officers will be on duty tonight and Monday night and all sections of the city will be covered by cruiser cars. Harmless fun will not be interfered with but there is a strict warning against damaging property. With repairs difficult to make owing to the lack of material and scarcity of labor, police state that all persons who wilfully damage property will be placed under arrest.

Arrest Lakefield Man For Jewelry Theft

The arrest in Toronto this morning of Claude M. Hopkins, Lakefield, is thought by local police to have solved the smash-and-grab burglary of Bert Austin's jewelery store on Wednesday night.

The local department notified Toronto police of the robbery and this morning received a message stating that Hopkins had been arrested in Toronto and that part of the stolen jewelery had been recovered.

The Toronto police stated that they expected to arrest a second man from this district in connection with the affair.

The jewelery store window was broken with a stone and four wrist watches, a diamond ring valued at $150 and a card of miscellaneous rings stolen.

War Souvenir

HAMILTON, Oct. 30—(CP) — Unique memento of the Second World War is a stone-fragment from the chancel of bombed St. Paul's Cathedral, London, which now forms part of the wall of St. George's Church here. The fragment was presented to the church by Major T. R. Stewart, senior chaplain with the Canadian Army Overseas, who brought it back from England.

The Caban Draw Totals $76 For War Victims

The draw for the seven prizes, donated and sponsored by Victor Caban, Sr., of 543 Park street, is entering on the final stages in its effort towards raising funds to help the bombed out victims in the British Isles through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

This is one of the better stories of self sacrifice on behalf of the war effort, for out of none too affluent means, Mr. Caban has given a helping hand on a number of occasions, which in the aggregate has amounted to a substantial sum, and this latest effort comes on top of the loss of a son and namesake, Victor Caban, Jr., who gave his life on the battlefields of Sicily.

This draw is definitely tied up with this tragic circumstance, inasmuch as the war savings certificates offered in this draw were savings intended for this boy on his return, and now that this is no longer possible, the parents are offering these prizes in order that further good may be done in this boy's name for the cause of Empire.

There is also a varied list of prizes in addition to the aforementioned certificates which include a load of wood (very valuable these days), a bag of potatoes, another much sought after commodity, a calf and three ducks.

Third Instalment

For the third time since the sale of tickets commenced, a contribution is listed today in an amount of $19, which with the two previous returns makes a total of $76 that has come to the fund so far from this one effort, this money having a double significance at this time, for it will all go towards the special donations which are for the purpose of giving happiness to those afflicted through air raids at the season of Christmastide.

A Real Sport

Older residents will recall how in the hey dey of hockey triumphs in this city just how much of a real sport Bert McLeod was, and while he has no knowledge of this, it came instantaneously to the mind of the secretary of the fund when Bert offered him a $10 bill that he is every inch just as much so in these days.

This is the story (we may not be thanked for telling it), but it is really worth the telling. In the early summer, the secretary of the fund suggested to Bert that he might run a little draw to give the fund a boost to which he readily acceded. This happened while on a routine trip in collecting the penny boxes located in his drug store.

On Friday such another trip was made, so it came as a bolt out of the blue to get handed the $10 donation with an apology for having slipped up on holding the effort, for in no way had he been reminded of his promise all of which goes to prove the previous statement in regard to good sportsmanship, and also implies a standard of citizenship compatible with that of a true English tradition in a man's word being as good as his bond. Needless to add the penny boxes in his store are also listed in today's receipts.

During the summer, at least three donations appeared in this column to the credit of William A. Taylor of Crawford's Grove, which were most likely made from the fruits of his garden since in the two previous summers the fund had benefitted a number of times from this source. Again today another gift of $3 appears, showing that in spite of the garden days for this year being ended, he has not forgotten the needs of those in Britain, and is giving some help towards the special Christmas donations.

Nurse Assists Doctor

Major G. F. Smith of Toronto and Nursing Sister Ruby Rogers of Havelock are pictured ABOVE preparing the serum for an operation in the Mediterranean war theatre by adding distilled water.

Havelock Nurse Assists Doctor In Preparing Blood Serum

Advancement of medical science during recent years in the preparation and use of dried blood is today saving the lives of countless battlefield casualties.

Sharing the use of this magnificent discovery with the medical corps of the Russian, British and American and other Allied armies are the skilled surgeons of the Royal Canadian Medical Corps.

In Italy today as in the recent Sicilian campaign, this dried blood serum obtained from the blood donated in Canada to the Canadian Red Cross has been instrumental in keeping deaths from wounds sustained on the battlefield at the humanly possible minimum.

Enjoying immense advantages over normal blood, the dried substitute possesses all the life-saving properties of blood itself. Unlike normal blood which can be kept successfully only about 10 or 12 days, and in hot climates ever a much shorter period of time, dried blood can be kept for months and years under any condition, and all that is necessary to reconstitute it, is the addition of distilled water.

And since the red cells are removed leaving only the protein in solution the difficulty of establishing the proper blood groups of the recipient and donor is eliminated.

Peterborough Red Cross has for a year and a half operated a blood donors clinic and thousands of blood donations have been given by citizens of this city and district. This patriotic effort of theirs had played no small part in the war effort. However, ever more donors are urgently needed.

F.N.C. Hears Capt. Profitt

Some thirty-four members of the Friday Night Supper Club met last night, with the new president, Norman Allan, in the chair. This meeting, being the first at which the new executive officiated, received much of the business for the coming year.

The president, in his appeal for new members, stated that a fine lot of speakers were slated for the coming year. Because of the popular demand by the students and ex-students of P.C.V.S., C. S. Browne, Principal of the Collegiate, will address the club on November 19th.

Past members of the club, outside of Peterborough, will be able to hear from their old club next Saturday. Over radio station, CHEX, from 7.15 to 7.30 p.m. the Friday Night Supper Club goes on the air.

Harry Vass, past president of the club made the draw for the door prize. The lucky ticket was held by Jack Patterson, one of the new members of the club.

After a short sing-song, Jack Sackville, chairman of the Speaker committee, introduced the guest speaker, Captain Profitt. Capt. Profitt, who is padre at the Peterbrough Training Centre, has had a wide experience with men and boys.

In his address he said that he did not have a pessimistic view of the future, but that he was looking forward to a happier and better world, a world in which the countries of the world could live peaceably with one another.

Gerald Seabrook expressed the gratitude of the club to Captain Profitt, in his vote of thanks.

It was with great reverence and in silence at the close of the meeting emotion that the whole club stood ing in honour of a former fellow-member, Douglas Wolfe, who has been reported dead. The sympathy of the club was with Doug's family, and with his sister Frances, who has been a faithful hostess to the Friday Night Club for several years.

Douglas Beatty Wins 1st Prize For Speaking

Eight pupils of the county schools took part in the annual Rural Oratorical Contest, County of Peterborough, held in the Normal School Friday evening under the auspices of the Women's Institute, of which Mrs. E. Birdsall is president and Mrs. Harry Mann secretary.

The three prize winners were awarded silver cups and will have the opportunity to carry on further in the development of their speaking ability. At least two will attend the semi-finals to be held at Brighton on November 19, and winners in this contest go on to the final provincial contest held in the spring by the Ontario Educational Association.

First prize went to Douglas Beatty, S.S. No. 3, Smith Township, who spoke on "Plastics in Action," a theme devoted to the growing uses for plastics as substitutes for materials made scarce by the war. Second winner was Margaret McNeill, S.S. No. 3, North Monaghan, who took as her subject "The Story of Mary's Little Lamb." Winner of third prize was Raymond Guthrie, S.S. No. 6, Harvey, who spoke on the history of natural and synthetic rubber. Coming just one point behind the third prize winner, Clifton English of S.S. No. 2, Smith, was awarded an honorable mention for his talk on the "Preservation of Forests."

The silver cup representing first honors was donated by Capt. A. L. Elliott, former M.P.; that for second prize was given by G. S. White, M.P.; and third prize is the gift of the Havelock-Balmoral committee.

Contestants were judged on a point basis for excellence of material, style, language, delivery and voice, and students of the Normal School with Miss Monroe, librarian, as chairman, were the judges of the contest.

Havelock Goes Over Top In Victory Loan

Havelock village is the first municipality in Peterborough County to go over the top in the Fifth Victory Loan. With an objective of $38,000, T. P. Lancaster, the canvasser, reported this morning that it had been reached and the drive was continuing. In the Fourth Victory Loan the objective ofr this East Peterborough village was $35,000 and the final total was $38,000, in present loan the objective was set at the take for the Fourth Loan.

This achievement on the part of Havelock is all the more laudable as it is a railway town but no benefit is derived under the railroad payroll deduction plan.

Lee Assault Charge Dismissed By Court

LINDSAY, Oct. 30 — (ENS). — A charge of assault causing bodily injuries against Emory Lee, Emily Township farmer, was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. here yesterday following evidence by several witnesses. The charge was laid against the accused following a fracas in the Big 20 Cafe here during which the proprietor Jung Que claimed to have been struck by Lee. The accused admitted that when he saw Jung Que kneeling on and striking Jack Bradbury of Lindsay that he pulled him off. "I merely grabbed him by the sleeve," he said, "and then he made a swipe at me with his fist. I put my hand under his chin and shoved him against the wall." Several witnesses gave similar evidence.

MILLBROOK

Mission Circle Wants Members

MILLBROOK, Oct. 30—(ENS).—Miss Jean Burnham was hostess for the October meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle, held at her home this week, a special feature of the program being the introduction of the new study book "What is Our Share?" The president, Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, who was in the chair, covered the first chapter. The book was presented to the Circles of the Presbytery at the recent rally in Knox Church by the branch secretary, Miss Constance Wagar of Peterborough, the local society having sixteen delegates at this gathering.

From the story presented by Mrs. Hobbs, a saying of the Chinese nurse who insisted on going back to the front before complete recovery from wounds received while at her post there, which has become a classic, was stressed: "They expect a lot from us Christians"; and Christians the world over are expected to respond to that challenge, and particularly the 'teen-age girls who make up the Circle membership, she said.

A drive for memebrship will be an activity undertaken soon by the local Circle, and the members were reminded of the thankoffering service Sunday morning, October 31, when the Auxiliary, Band, and the Circle will attend public worship in St. Andrew's Church in a body and each receive its fall thankoffering. In connection with the new study book each Circle is expected to choose some special venture for the year, and Golden Links chose "Christian Leadership in our own church," with a view to active service in the young peoples group, the Sunday School, and other organizations.

The theme of the recent rally, "How to Budget our Time," was discussed, and Mrs. Hobbs gave "How to Budget our Time," from the well-known Christopher Robin poems.

Racing Stable To Make Debut

By APPAS TAPPAS

TORONTO, Oct. 30—A 2-year-old filly and a yearling colt bred by W. F. Morrissey were sold yesterday to Edward Dewart, barrister, and Gordon Hosie, formerly of Regina and now of Toronto.

The partnership introduces two newcomers to the racing business and the new purchases were No Shoes, a bay filly by Shoeless Joe and Mintwina. This miss did not get to the races as a juvenile. She is a half-sister to Bunty Lawless and Willie The Kid, both King's Plate winners in the Morrissey silks. The other is the yearling Dr. Bob, by Bunty Lawless out of Pattertoe. This yearling was named after Dr. R. G. Hodgson and was one of the three yearlings paraded along with Bunty Lawless on the closing day of Dufferin.

Dr. Hodgson will winter the young racers on his Todmorden farm and will train them for racing next year. It is the intention of the owners to train No Shoes for next year's running of the Plate, and other important stakes for 3-year old Canadian-breds. Mr. Dewart and Mr. Hosie have chosen their racing colors, which will be a white jacket, with blue and red cap, blue and red cuffs with a black "V" with dash and three dots on the back.

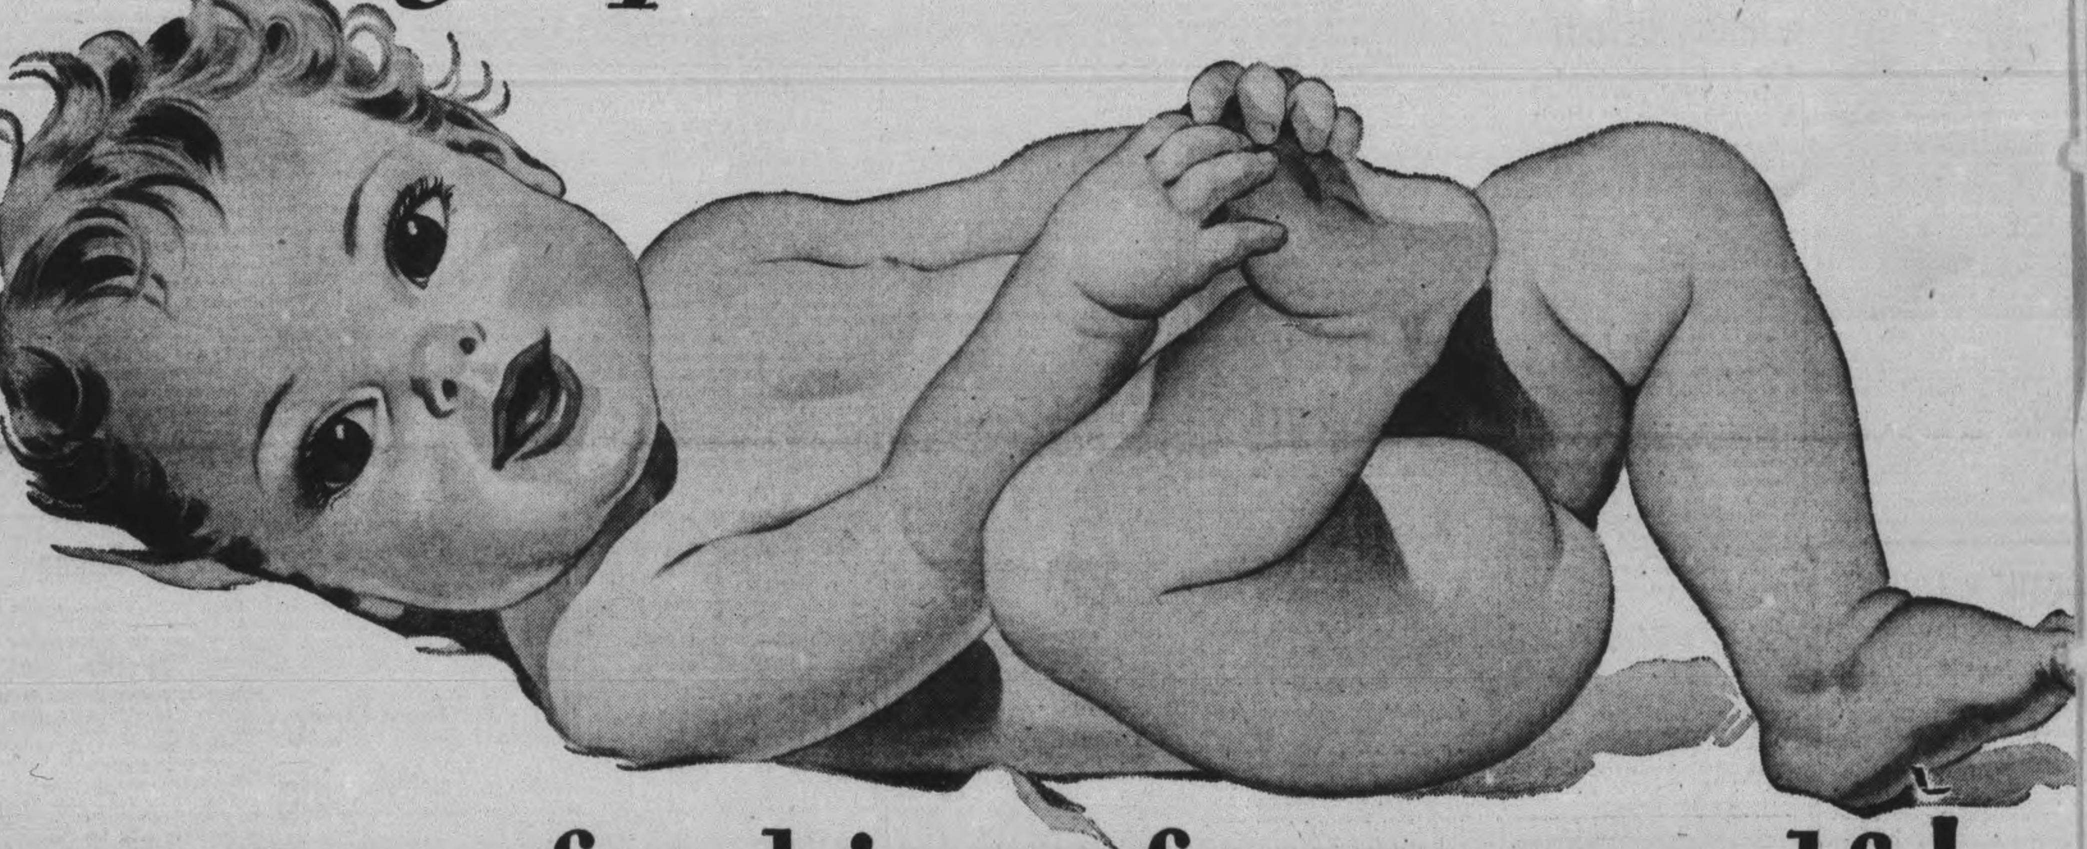
Hurry up that better world



....for him...for yourself!

IT ISN'T LONG BETWEEN ECSTATIC BABYHOOD and eager, striving, hope-filled manhood.

You know yourself how often you've said: "It seems only yesterday he was a tiny wee chap. Look at him now. He's grown up!"

Yes, all the tens of thousands of cute little fellows kicking joyfully in their baby beds now will be grown people in the twinkling of an eye.

Grown to live in what sort of a world? Just how far can we build from war's desolation to a happy, brilliant world in that short span?

Probably a long way!

But the "How far?" has a companion question: "How soon?"

How soon will Victory come? What day, what hour, will the flaming news leap round the world that the enemy surrenders unconditionally?

Pursue that question right down to its very end and you'll get the answer. It depends on how earnestly each one of us works and saves and lends. In the final analysis it depends on all of us — on our willingness to stretch to the utmost our abilities to buy Victory Bonds.

So buy again—and again—for our future and for the future of the little fellows who will be men in the twinkling of an eye. Make sure it will be unconditional surrender—that we will win the peace as well as the war—that life in the future will be life in security, freedom and abundance.

English Brides Love Canadian Soldiers Because They're "He-Men" And Interesting

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Oct. 30—"Who loves me," said Queen Guinevere, "must have a touch of earth in him."

And even if English brides of Canadian soldiers had never heard of fabled King Arthur's equally fabled queen, they know what they like about their Canadian husbands. For, in their own vernacular, they want less of English dignity and more of a "bit of the West" where men—they said—are he-men.

And to 120 English brides arriving in this port recently to see for the first time the land of their adoption, Canada was West.

Arriving after what they called "almost a Mediterranean cruise" with cokes 'for refreshers and a little bit of ice, to make it look pretty, and that was all," many of the brides were accompanied by their months-old infants. There were as many as 20 babies, all under 20 months of age, on board the British transport that brought them.

The movement probably marked the biggest exodus of English brides of Canadian soldiers to Canada so far in this war. There are still thousands more of them to come.

What makes the Canadian soldier so popular—as a husband, at least—among English womanhood, was readily told by a few of the brides as they waited for the arrival of immigration officials.

"They are more interesting," said one.

"More self-reliant," said another.

"You can talk housekeeping with a Canadian," said a third, "something you could never do with an Englishman. He wouldn't know what you were talking about."

"The Englishman has dignity," said another, "but the Canadian . . . well, he makes you so divinely happy, he doesn't give you time to think, really."

Holstein Sale Brings $22,005

BRAMPTON, Oct. 30 (CP). — Norde Farms of Vanleek Hill yesterday paid top price of $500 at the fourth annual fall special consignment sale here for Colontha Echo Bonheur Pabst, 3-year-old heifer consigned by John H. Older of Thamesford.

Seventy-four head of Holstein cattle were sold at a total of $22,005, largest buyers being Lloyd S. Shantz of Breslau and Norda Farms, each of whom took seven head. An average of $319 was realized from sale of 56 females, while 18 bulls, mostly calves, brought an average of $228.

Highest price for a bull was $350, bid by U. R. Bonnell of Thorndale, for Smith Haven Rag Apple Paramount, consigned by Smith Haven Farm, Woodstock.

Flower Ring

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—(AP). —A lei of 34 orchids replaced the traditional diamond ring in the engagement of Elizabeth Zuhak to Sgt. Joseph Young, Chicagoan, now serving in Hawaii. Unable to send a ring from his post to his fiancee, Sgt. Young looked into Hawaiian engagement customs and learned that native men put leis around the necks of their intended brides. The lei of orchids soon followed his discovery, arriving here in three days via air mail, and "in perfect condition," Miss Zuhak said.

4th Battery (R) Plans Ack Ack Show

An anti-aircraft demonstration is being upt on Monday evening by the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery R.C.A. following a parade by the unit downtown. The parade moves off from the Armoury at 8 p.m., going down George to King, over to Aylmer, up to Charlotte, and back.

Four picked gun crews stage the demonstration, two of them at the Market Square under direction of B.S.M. C. W. Crain, just returned from a six-weeks course in Halifax (he is a veteran of this war, returned from England), and two under direction of Lt. W. T. Fanjoy on the parade ground in front of the Armoury. Mr. Fanjoy is a C.G.E. engineer, with considerable experience in the 3.7 gun.

Battery members have been drilling hard this fall on the huge ack-ack guns and are prepared to show the public the result of this important defence training.

The 4th Battery officers, N.C.O.'s and gunners, under Capt. R. A. Phillips, have an all-day scheme on Sunday at th Rifle Range, and early risers will see this smart artillery unit marching off at 9:00 o'clock.

Since the turnover from field to an ack-ack unit, recruiting has picked up considerably and the tempo of training has increased on the four huge guns now carried by the 4th Battery in the Armouries.

Train Ride Ends In Romance

A meeting on a train ride from Peterborough to Kingston culminated in romance for Sgt. Signaller and Mrs. R. Rea Kelcey, both of whom are serving in Canada's Army. The two young people were passengers in a crowded coach a few months ago, and Sgt. Kelcey dropped into a vacant seat beside a C.W.A.C. girl. After riding a few miles they struck up a conversation, and the happy ending to this little trip came when they were married recently. The bride is the former Verna Bolton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bolton of Lakefield, and the groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Kelcey of Peterborough. He is now attached to the staff of the Royal Military College. Mr. Kelcey's other son, Carman, is a private with the S.D. & G. Highlanders at Camp Borden.

Renaissance Art Chief Topic Discussed at Meeting

The art of the Renaissance period was the chief topic of Mr. Garnet Hazard, of Toronto, who was the guest at the first meeting of the Women's Art Association for the current season, which was held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. Friday evening.

In the business session, the president, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, welcomed the members of the University Women's Club who were guests for the evening, and the new members of the Association. She said that the new Association had been founded in 1887, and that the Peterborough branch was now in its fortieth year. In putting forth the aims of the Lyceum club, with which the W.A.A. is affiliated, Mrs. Munro said that the desire of the Club was to further the interests of literature, journalism, science, art, music and drama.

The guest speaker, Mr. Garnet Hazard, was introduced by Mrs. Munro, and proceeded to deliver a most interesting talk under the title of "A Chalk Talk on Pictures—Old and New." Beginning with the first drawing of early man, and continuing down through the ages until the present day, Mr. Hazard discussed separately each distinct period in the progress of art, and illustrated his points by sketches drawn on a large easel set upon a dais.

He explained that there were many conflicting ideas as to why the early cave-man drew pictures on the walls of his cave home. Mr. Hazard prefers the idea that early man had a certain superstiton about drawings. He thought that if he drew a picture of a buffalo, for instance, on the wall of his cave, and then threw his spear at it and hit it, some mysterious force of fate would enable him to shoot a buffalo more easily the next time he went in search of food. If he returned empty-handed after a hunting expedition, he then concluded that his drawing had not been good enough, and made another, endeavoring to reach perfection. In this way he was continually improving his drawings.

Mr. Hazard dealt very briefly with the subject of early Christian art. In mentioning the catacombs, he pointed out that those early artists decorated tombs for the most part with pictures depicting the lives of the people buried there, and not the life of Christ.

Three Greatest

The art of Renaissance was discussed in more detail, and the speaker dealt with three of the most well- known of the Renaissance artists, Michael Angelo, Leonardo do Vinci, and Raphael. Some of the points he discussed in connection with these artists are as follows: In speaking of Michael Angelo Mr. Hazard named versatility, and the ability to work and concentrate as the most important characteristics of this man. Michael Angelo was not only a great painter, but he was also a great sculptor, excelling in equestrian statues. He stated that Leonardo da Vinci, creator of the famous "Mona Lisa," and the equally famous "Last Supper," was a master in the art of composition. "His Last Supper," said Mr. Hazard, demonstrates the scientific layout that characterized the work of this man."

In discussing Raphael, the speaker told his audience that the "Transfiguration," by Raphael, is considered the greatest picture ever painted. "Harmony, balance, rhythm, proportion and emphasis are the things to consider when you are studying a painting" he said.

Mr. Hazard then drew a delightful landscape for his audience. As he sketched, he discussed each point that had to be watched while painting a picture. He said that anyone who was painting should watch for four things, form line, tone and color, illustrating his points as he drew.

In conclusion, he spoke of the modern artists,—the abstract painters and the futurists. As his time was growing short, he spoke briefly on the method for making etchings and aquatints, and a little about the great opportunities open to commercial artists.

On behalf of all present Mrs. Munro thanked Mr. Hazard for an instructive address.

ALL THE Extra VITAMINS AND MINERALS . . . SHE NEEDS

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight, and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals.

But don't worry about vitamins and minerals! Children who eat 3 average-good meals including fruit juice, and drink 2 glasses of Ovaltine each day, are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals they need.

In addition to its well-balanced food values, Ovaltine adds significant amounts of Vitamins A, B_1, and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron. So, if your child is not developing normally, remember this rule:

3 good meals plus 2 glasses of Ovaltine every day.

A. Duffy Weds F. Hancock At St. Peter's Cathedral

The marriage took place in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, of Alma Mary, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Duffy, to Francis John Hancock, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hancock, Redvers, Sask. The church was decorated with ferns and white mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white embossed satin, fitted bodice, on princess lines, Peter Pan collar, long sleeves and slight train. Her dress was finished at the back with a row of tiny covered satin buttons, which extended to the waist, and her only jewelry was a brilliant brooch. Her long veil of embroidered French net was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and bouvardia. She also carried a white prayer book and pearl rosary, a wedding gift from Rev. Mother Mary Agnes of the Precious Blood Monastery.

The wedding attendants were Miss Madonna Hurtubise, who wore a floor-length gown of blue silk jersye and a small feather hat and shoulder-length veil in matching color, who was maid of honor, and Miss Velma Herlihey, cousin of the bride, who was bridesmaid. She wore a dress of pink triple sheer with small feather hat and shoulder-length veil in matching color. Both carried colonial bouquets of white mums. The best man was Charles Joseph Hancock, R.C.A.F., brother of the groom. Mr. Fabian Galvin and Elton Herlihey, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of melon colored crepe, trimmed with gold sequins and a corsage of white roses. In the absence of the groom's mother, Mrs. J. H. Hancock, Mrs. R. H. Young of Toronto received, wearing a black crepe frock trimmed with colored sequins and a corsage of white mums.

Later the young couple left on a wedding trip to points west. For travelling, the bride chose a beige wool frock trimmed with green embroidery and silver buttons, a beige shag coat and brown accessories.

Y.W.C.A. Club Doings

This week brings more news of happenings in the Y.W.C.A. Club Department.

On Tuesday, The Vagabonds, explored Jackson Park on their weekly hike arranged by Mary Taylor. Roller skating or bowling is on the program for next week.

The '38 Club held a well attended meeting in the Club Room on Wednesday with the president, Leona MacMillan, in the chair. The "So-Ed" course being sponsored jointly by the Y.M. and Y.W. each Tuesday from Nov. 9th to Dec. 14th was outlined by Margaret Edmison. Plans were discussed for the next meeting on November 10th which will take the form of a lecture-musicale on Russia under the direction of Peggy Couch as part of the observance of the 'Y' Week of Prayer and World Fellowship. The meeting closed with a social hour, lunch being served by the social convener, Winnifred Metcalf, and her committee.

An industrious committee worked on Wednesday making and sending out invitations for the new club, "So-Serv" which is holding its first meeting next Wednesday with Shirley Mortimer as chairman.

The Thursday Supper Club held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting completing arrangements for their Masquerade Hallowe'en party to be held on Saturday night in the Recreation Room for club members and their escorts. The president, Marley Jobbitt will be hostess assisted by the club advisor, Miss Eileen Sellon and committees under the direction of the supper convener, Nancy Stanton, and the program convener, Jane Abbott.

The Industrial Recreation Club postponed their Hallowe'en Dance which was to have been held Thursday and will sponsor the first Recreational evening on Monday in the recreation room. This is the first of the dances held each Monday in the "Y" under the direction of the Citizens' Committee, and sponsored by I.O.D.E. Chapter and the Y.W.C.A.

The Friday Night Supper Club meeting took the form of a Hallowe'en Supper Party. The president, Jean Ferguson, presided and the program was in charge of Helen Miller. The supper convener for the week was Jean Leach. The two new club advisors, Miss Flora Metcalfe and Miss Lena Dewart, were introduced and welcomed by the club.

WHY MIDDLE-AGE MAN FLIRTS WITH A YOUNG GIRL IS A MYSTERY

Women in Advanced Years Seldom Have Similar Craze for Adolescent Boys.

DEAR MISS DIX — Here is a question that some of us old maids would like you to answer. Why is it that middle-aged men can run around with high school girls, but middle-aged women can't run around with boys? There seems to be two kinds of unattached middle-aged men. The kind who do not step out at all, and the variety who go out with girls young enough to be their daughters, while we women of their age sit at home and pretend we like to read and listen to the radio. While we have passed the giggling stage we are not decrepit, nor eccentric, nor have we lost our looks.

The way it usually works out is that the sweet young things have a good time at the Sugar Daddy's expense until they meet someone of their own age, and then the old softie has to start bringing up another baby girl. Do you think a jury would find us guilty if we went out and did a little murdering just to relieve our feelings?

LONESOME, DISGUSTED, AND BLUE.

Middleaged Men's Behavior a Mystery

ANSWER—Well, I shouldn't advise committing manslaughter as a relief for having to spend your evenings listening to the radio, though most of the programs are so boresome they are enough to incite even Patient Griselda to murder, and, alas, there is no open season in which crooners without voices and comedians without wit are fair game. So we have to bear these afflictions with what fortitude we can.

But your question about why middle-aged men can play about with young girls while the middle-aged woman cannot step out with a pipsqueak boy, is one that involves the whole sex question in its various ramifications, and brings up the interesting problem of why those of the male persuasion may, and can, do things that are taboo to the female of the species.

Of course, the main reason that middle-aged men can flirt around with girls young enough to be their granddaughters is because they can take the initiative and take the little cuties out and give them a good time; whereas a middle-aged woman has to wait until she is asked, and no schoolboy wants to spend his money on one of Mother's contemporaries. Also, the middle-aged men have the price, and as long as they can take the sweet little gold-diggers out to high-priced places of amusement and send them orchids and buy them diamond bracelets, they can have their pick of the debutante crop; whereas the schoolboy, on a soda pop and hamburger allowance, would not be worth a middle-aged woman bothering with.

The really interesting phase of the subject is the mystery of why the middle-aged man, unless he is a moron himself, finds these little undeveloped fledglings whose brains, if they have any, are still in their

Ration Board Urges Women To Keep Check

At the regular meeting of the Advisory Committee of the Wartime Price and Trade Board held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Friday afternoon, Mrs. E S. Duggan, Assistant Co-ordinator for Ontario, was guest speaker. Mrs. Lang was in the chair. Mrs. Duggan was introduced by Mrs. H. H. Graham, district chairman.

In her speech, Mrs. Duggan emphasized the importance of having a united group of women all across Canada. She said that in the 18 months since Advisory Committee were first formed, the organization had grown from 4 countries, to 43 committes with a membership of 14,000, and that 16 price control and rationing orders had been directly effected by these committees, thus proving htat there is a real need for women to band together to aid in keeping prices at a just level.

"This is the first time that women have been called upon to do something as important as this," explained Mrs. Duggan. She discussed the results of the instituting of butter and preserve rations, and said that women must put aside the idea that the government will look after price control. Speaking directly she told her audience that their co-operation was needed to maintain the price ceiling, and asked them to continue to send in their reports of shortages, no mater how trivial they might seem.

Prevent Shortages

"In that way, we can watch local shortages, and keep them from becoming nationwide shortages," she explained. Mrs. Duggan maintained that price infractions should also be reported, and that retailers really appreciated being informed that the price they have set is higher than the ceiling set for a certain commodity. "Often they are completely innocent of the fact that they are causing infractions of the rules" she said, "and are glad to be told the correct price."

She proved that retailers were pleased with the price control and wished to see it continue in operation, by quoting a resolution sent to Ottawa by the retailers of Canada, asking that price control be continued as long as it was necessary to maintain the economic stabilization of the country.

At the conclusion of her talk, Mrs. Duggan answered questions asked by the ladies attending the meeting. She also mentioned the question and answer columns published in most papers three times weekly, and recommended them to all women interested in price control and all those who had problems in rationi[ng]. She asked ladies who wanted a[n]swers to their ration problems [to] send their questions to the Dist[rict] Chairman Mrs. H. H. Several chairmen of committ[ees] from neighboring towns were pr[es]ent at this meeting. A vote of than[ks] was offered to Mrs. Duggan for h[er] interesting talk, and at the end [of] the meeting, light refreshments w[ere] served.

Demands Of War Unifies All Parties

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 30 (CP). — The conduct of the war, in the words of Prime Minister Churchill, holds Britain's coalition government together, but behind this over-riding unifier, inter-political strife rages bitterly.

The Ministers of the Government stand aloof from the fray. But there is no such hesitation on the part of the back-benchers of each party.

Their willingness to fight for their political beliefs has been pointed up clearly and unmistakeably in the continuing battle of controls, fought on the issue of how long and how far post - war controls must extend over the nation's life. The battle of coal, now at its height, has shown the temper of the parliamentarians almost as clearly.

"What is it that holds us together?" Mr. Churchill asked in his speech during the coal debate.

"The principle that we are working on is, everything for the war, whether controversial or not, and nothing controversial that is not bona fide needed for the war," he said.

Warns of Pretexts

"We must also be careful that the pretext is not made on war needs which introduce far-reaching social or political changes by a side-wind."

This was a reference to labor's demand for nationalization of the mines. It could also apply to demands for a blanketing program on post-war control and for the immediate adoption of the complete Beveridge social security plan.

Mr. Churchill's statement should clear the air on the chances for radical change while the war is being fought. His position is clear —"far reaching social or political changes" must await a post-war election.

But while it clarifies the issues, there is no expectation it will halt discussion of them and while they are discussed, everything in the past indicates they will be discussed from party viewpoint.

Home Secretary Herbert Morrison's speech that "we shall have to continue this system of control" if social and economic catastrophies to be avoided touched off the latest phase of the battle of controls, though Mr. Churchill's commendation of the speech in Commons supported the belief there was no political intent in the minister's words.

There is no middle road on which Labor and Conservatism can travel on such questions, or at least none has appeared since the coalition government was formed.

But so long as these problems do not interfere with the conduct of the war—and there is as much determination that they should not interfere as there is that they should be debated—the vigor of the debate is welcomed by the leaders of all parties.

heels, whose conversation is a series of squeaks and exclamations and unintelligible gibberish; who are interested in nothing but the latest hairdo and the current variation of the Lindy Hop, tolerable as companions. Why they prefer them to women of their own age who have the same background, the same culture, who are gay and witty and amusing, is past comprehension.

Middle-aged women seldom have this craze for adolescence in the opposite sex that men have. The only youngsters they find fascinating are their sons, or brothers, or nephews. They have nothing to say to the teen-age lads, as they have nothing to say to them. And so they wisely refrain from boring each other.

DEAR MISS DIX—What should be mother's attitude towards her son's divorced wife when there is no fault on either side, and their parting was just because of incompatibility that made it impossible for them to live together in happiness? My son married a girl to whom I became as devoted as if she had been my own daughter, and she loved me as much as I loved her, but she and my son could not get along together.

I still love this girl. She is still my little daughter and I long for her and she is lonely without me. Occasionally she comes to see me and we both weep over our separation. Must we ex-mothers-in-law be as fickle as our children and love and forget as easily as they do? That is not my nature.

MRS. C. E. C.

Divorce Poses Problem In Social Amity

ANSWER—With the divorce rate at the all time high at present, and certain to go over the peak in the near future when all the hasty war marriages come up for settlement, Emily Post will certainly have to write a new chapter to her book of etiquette, defining our attitude towards those who have once been members of our family and who no longer sustain that relationship towards us.

In the past no such complications arose. Husbands and wives did not divorce each other unless they had some unforgivable grievance against the party of the other part, and when they did their respective families took up the feud and the whole atmosphere was surcharged with hate. Nobody then would have thought of inviting a divorced couple to a party at which they would meet the ex-partner of their bosums, but now a hostess doesn't hesitate to send a divorcee into dinner with her former husband and they chat away, apparently in the most amiable fashion, about the good old days when they were married to each other.

Perhaps this is due to the Hollywood influence where divorce is so common that the proper gesture when the decree absolute is granted for those who are being parted is to pay each other the most fulsome compliments, and say that while they will no longer be husband and wife, they will always be the dearest of friends.

So if a woman's children bear no ill will to their former mates, there seems to be no reason for a mother-in-law to give up a cherished daughter-in-law because her son lost his taste for her.

DEAR MISS DIX—We are two girls of 16 who live in a town in which the curfew goes into effect for all boys and girls under 18. What should we do? Go out of town and come in in the morning, or go on a strike and tear the town to pieces? What are we supposed to do in times like these?

TWO GIRLS.

ANSWER—You are supposed to obey the law which has been enacted for your protection. At 16 you should have intelligence enough to be worldly wise enough, to know that no two young girls could spend the night away from home and come sneaking in in the early morning without having left their characters behind them.

These are war times. Every town is filled with soldiers, many of them men of high character who would feel in honor bound to respect the ignorance and folly of a young girl, but many more of them are irresponsible boys out for a good time who would not have any compunction about the way they treated a girl who threw herself at them.

The law is trying to save the girls whose parents are so careless they do not protect them. Be grateful to it instead of resenting it.

Millbrook News

LAC. Kenneth Cooper, R.C.A.F., and Mrs. Cooper, of Trenton, were guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stinson, this week. Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stinson were Provincial Minister of Health, Dr. A. P. Vivian, and Mrs. Vivian, of Port Hope, with their daughter, Nancy.

LAC. George Sedgewick, R.C.A.F., of Toronto, and Mrs. Sedgewick, of Peterborough visited her mother, Mrs. H. R. Edmunds, the beginning of the week.

Miss Mabel Clarry of Peterborough, was home on Tuesday with her sister, Miss Blanche Clarry, Reg. N., at the family homestead, Park Roadway.

The members of the Centreville Presbyterian W.M.S. were guests of the Grace church Auxiliary for the latter's annual fall thankoffering meeting on Wednesday, when Mrs. Charles Thorndyke led in the worship service, and Mrs. Howard Brackenridge of the visiting society offered prayer. The address was given by Presbyterial Officer, Mrs. Harold Tate. Miss Agnes Johnston also spoke briefly. Rev. Walter Patterson extended the welcome to the sister society, and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed at the close.

Centreville Presbyterian church is observing its anniversary on Sunday, October 31, with Rev. Ewart MacKay, of Cobourg, as the special speaker.

Friends of Mr. James H. Might will be glad to know that he was able to be brought home from Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, and is recovering from his illness, which began while he was in the West.

Rev. A. E. and Mrs. Chevis motored to Toronto on Monday, Miss M. L. Sollins accompanying them. Mr. Chevis was able to take his services in the parish of Cavan on Sunday, and expects soon to have completed the treatments in Toronto, which have followed an operation last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Peers and family have moved to Peterborough to reside, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Farrow, of Ballyduff, who have bought their home here, King street east, moved in a week ago. Their son, Mr. Lorne Farrow, of Pontypool, with his wife and family, have moved to the Russell farm, Seventh Line, Cavan, which they recently purchased.

Mrs. J. R. Thompson has been visiting her cousin, Miss Margaret Seens, at Ottawa, returning home this week.

A.R.P. Nonsense Must Stop Says Alderman

TORONTO Oct. 30—Mayor Conboy's proposal to erect a non-bombproof A.R.P. headquarters at a cost of $30,000 or $40,000 is to meet strong and definite opposition when and if it reaches City Council. This became apparent yesterday when a group of aldermen said they felt the time had come when "this A.R.P. nonsense should stop."

Mayor Conboy last night denied there was any possibility of the city's A.R.P. organization being disbanded, and he and Con. R. H. Saunders are to visit Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell shortly to see if the Provincial Government still is prepared to pay $26,666 toward the cost of the structure. Members of Board of Control went with the mayor during the afternoon to inspect the proposed site for the building—at the back of Police Headquarters on College St.

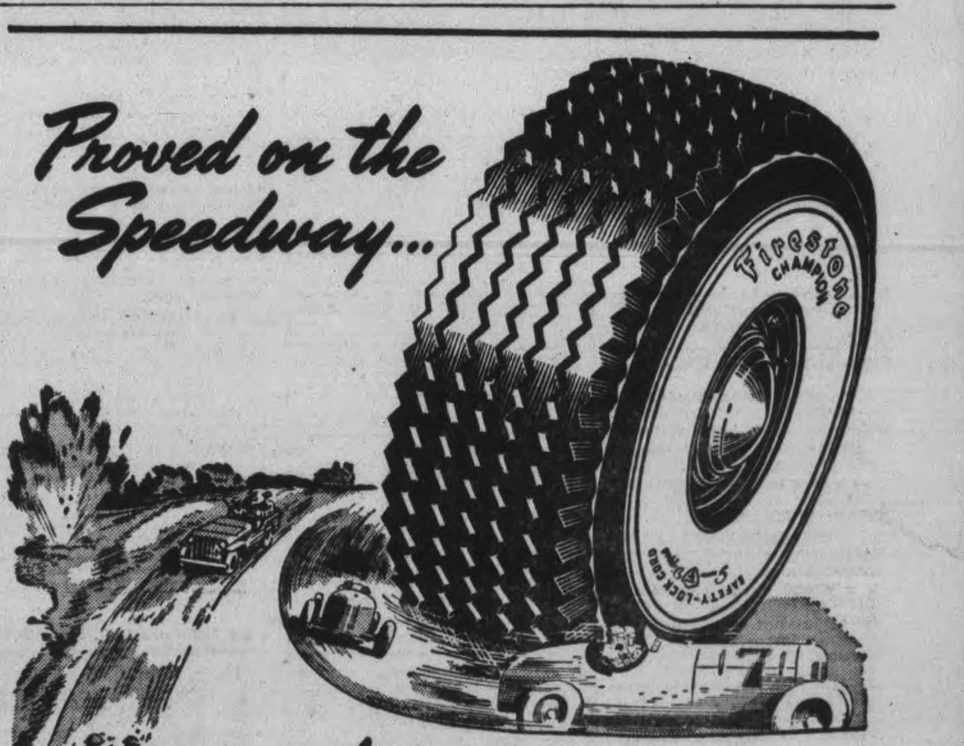
Several alderman said yesterday they planned to oppose the mayor's plan on the ground the building was not necessary.

Ald. J. B. Salsberg said: "While the work of the A.R.P. organization is very essential, one must recognize the threat of aerial attack is certainly less than it was a year or two years ago, and if they were able to manage then without a special building one finds it difficult to believe such a building is essential now.

"Nor is it clear how A.R.P. work would suffer in the absence of such a building. Certainly the city has ample space in its public buildings, schools, etc., to provide the A.R.P. organization with all the necessary housing accommodation and not necessitate the undertaking of this sort of project at this time," he said.

Lafayette Back In Service Again

The giant liner, U.S.S. Lafayette, formerly the S.S. Normandie, is pictured raised and ready for conversion as a troop carrier as she is turned over to the U.S. Navy. In the ceremonies, LEFT to RIGHT, are John Tooker, superintendent of Merritt, Chapman and Scott Co., Captain Bernard Manseau, superintendent of salvage, U.S.N., who is handing transfer papers to Captain H. V. McKittrick, U.S.N.



...and now on the Battlefield

Remember back in the pre-war days when, year after year, Firestone tires used to sweep aside all the records for sustained high speeds!

In these stern times there are no more speedway classics. But Firestone tires still continue to demonstrate that they have no equal for strength, stamina and dependability—on the world's battlefields. From the sub-zero Arctic to the scorching tropics, Firestone tires are carrying our boys to Victory.

Just as better tires came from Firestone's experience on the speedway, you can depend that in building war tires, Firestone engineers still continue to lead in tire engineering and design ... that this experience and knowledge is being accumulated to give you even better Firestone tires in the days to come. In the meantime, redouble your efforts to make tires last—no matter what make they may be, put them in the care of your nearby Firestone Dealer now.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 31

SUNDAY'S horoscope while promising spiritual or mystical aspirations, with prospects for advancement, recognition of desired favors from superiors or elders, yet is beset with sudden disruptions or downfalls, should wild emotions or erratic impulses be indulged.

Those whose birthday it is should have splendid opportunities during the year, with high honors, distinction, and other forms of favoritism or preferment from superiors, the community or the public. But at the same time an erratic wild, emotional show of the impulses or reckless urges may deny all this.

A child born on this day may be blessed with many talents and qualities to gain high distinction and public esteem, but may negate all this for erratic, reckless or irregular display of impetuous inner forces.

For Monday, November 1

In spite of much opposition, impediment, turmoil, strife and confusion this day is likely to culminate in unusual progress, expansion, increase and growth all along the lines of finance, credit, business, professions, together with enhanced prestige and popularity. With cleverness in downing obstacles, indomitable will on fiery impulses, the most cherished aims and ambitions may be assured.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare themselves for a year of definite choice as to which of two paths may be traveled — one to high accomplishments, financial benefit, expansion in all lines, with honors distinctions and glorious culminations, the other to reckless, obstinate, willful, wayward, tempest and storm with all sorts of obstacles.

A child born on this day although having excellent promise may ruin all by self-indulgence and bad disposition.

Peterboro Couple Wed In Brandon

The marriage of Marguerite Florence Beverly, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley White, of Peterborough, to John Maxwell Crerar, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Crerar, also of Peterborough, took place in the R.C.A.F. station chapel, Brandon, Manitoba, Friday, with Rev. Bainbridge officiating.

The bride wore a two-piece frock of sheer coral wool, made with gathered detail on the bodice, and a flaring peplum. Her small hat was of black velvet, with a short veil, and trimmed with curling coral-colored feathers. She carried the same ivory prayer book her mother used at her wedding. Her only ornament was a string of pearls. Long black gloves completed her ensemble.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Jean Varcoe, and Mr. Wallace Burdish was best man.

For travelling, the bride donned a tailored black wool coat, with lynx muff and neckpiece. Mr. and Mrs. Crerar will reside in Brandon, where the groom is stationed at present.

Reduce Assessment Of Cloth Company

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 30 (ENS) —The Campbellford Cloth Compnay was given a $10,000 reduction in its assessment when the local Court of Revision met for its adjourned meeting here Friday morning. Actually this meant the company would be paying an assessment $15,600 higher in 1944. The total assessment was $142,400 and this was reduced only $10,000 by the Court of Revision which a year ago granted a reduction of $25,600.

Other appellants and the court's action, were as follows: Mrs. S. Patrick, assessment on land and buildings, Portage street, reduced from $1,000 to $900; Mrs. M. Riendeau, vacant store, Tice and George streets reduced from $1,850 to $1,450; Mr. C. Sloggett, vacant store, Front street, reduced from $900 to $700; Mrs. O. Sarginson, Naseby street, land and buildings, reduced from $750 to $600.

Mr. and Mrs E. Fallis Have 35th Anniversary

CAVAN, Oct. 30.— (ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fallis celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary this week with their family, numbering fifteen, including three grandchildren, Mrs. E. Vance, Bethany, the latter's sister, and Miss Margaret Gillespie of Peterborough.

The dining room was decorated with purple 'mums and ferns. the long table covered with white linen cloth, was centred with a silver pedestal cake plate (which had belonged to groom's mother) topped with a three story wedding cake.

After the fowl supper was served, the bride and groom were escorted to the living room, where they were presented with a lovely tri-light floor lamp.

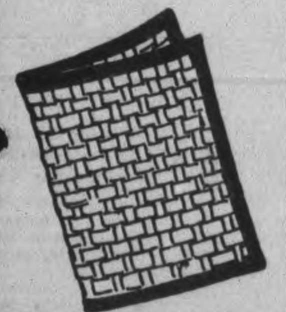
Learn to Weave and Make Smart, Lovely Things



MAKE THIS HOLDER

How useful your hands can be and how artistic, if you train them! You could weave a smart stationary holder as pictured above, or perhaps a lovely pastel cloth for a gown, or maybe a smart rug.

Weaving is an art that has been considerably revived in recent years. Particularly since the war began, people are reverting back to making their own materials because of a scarcity of the finer wools on the market.

Fingers are rediscovering weaving as a pleasant and useful pastime. Not so many years ago it was a necessary skill in the home. With the development of industrial machinery the craft was taken from the home. Years have passed, and war, more than anything else, has brought it back to the home again.

If you want to learn how to weave, our 32-page booklet will help you greatly. It tells you what materials you need and then explains clearly how to weave various articles from rugs to baskets.

The booklet avoids the complex. It tells what can be done on the more advanced looms but it really gets down to cases with such simple looms as pieces of cardboard, embroidery hoops, breadboards.

For your copy of HOW TO WEAVE USEFUL NOVELTIES send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THAT DOUBLING HABIT

GET YOUR opponents into the doubling habit, by bidding a whole series of different things they are certain to whack, and you may ultimately lure them into doubling something they shouldn't. At least, that is the idea back of a policy employed by some bidding psychologists or psychological bidders in trying to get the contract at a sacrifice and thus prevent the opponents from playing the hand at a highly profitable contract.

And, believe it or not, North passed that double. As it turned out, East was set five tricks, giving the opponents a score of 900, whereas they could have made more than 2,000 by playing the hand at an easily makable grand slam in hearts, spades or No Trump.

South told North, after the loss of the big score, that his business double of 7-Diamonds was not meant to be left in, but to tell his partner that he had the diamond A and also the A of his own heart suit. North could not read it that way, however. He reasoned that, having shown his blank in diamonds by the bid of 6-Diamonds, his partner probably had the diamond suit bunched against East and could beat his head off.

If you think East was taking a terrific chance in bidding all of those things which he could not make, just realize that he was willing, after North's 2-Spades, to be set any number of tricks not doubled at 50 points a trick, and could take himself out whenever he was doubled.

Your Week-End Lesson

All good players consider a suit bid of exactly one more than necessary to overcall the bid which reaches them, as a proclaimer of general power. What, then, is the accepted meaning, among fine bidders, of a call which is two more than necessary, or one which is three more than necessary, in the early stages of the auction?

Plane Missing One Year Found In Bush

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (CP) — The remains of two bodies beside it, the wreckage of what is believed to be a Harvard training plane which disappeared from nearby Uplands airport a year ago has been found about 40 miles north of here, the R.C.A.F. announced last night.

Air Force headquarters said the wreckage was reported by loggers operating in the Gatineau area of Long Lake, two miles from Low, Que., and the number of the aircraft as reported corresponds to that of the missing Harvard.

Officials said the aircraft took off last Nov. 26 with PO. Walter Tukhannen of Kirkland Lake, Ont., as instructor and LAC. Stewart Mackenzie Morrison of Montreal as student pilot, and never was heard from again.

One of the most intensive searches ever conducted by the R.C.A.F. followed the disappearance of the aircraft and the two occupants were officially presumed dead some time ago.

An R.C.A.F. salvage party has been ordered to proceed to the area immediately.

The cancellations, he said, were ordered because improved conditions in the Atlantic, where losses of merchant vessels to Nazi U-boats have been at a minimum for the past month, and the increasing need for more amphibious craft.

Knox did not amplify his references to the needs for more of the amphibious craft—landing boats of all types—which are used in invasion of enemy held shores.

Department Nearly Doubles Its Victory Loan Objective

Employees of Peterborough industries have during the past two weeks been setting a record which is putting the other divisions of the Fifth Victory Loan "right on the spot." Nearly every industry went over the top early in the loan and in all there is to be found groups of men and women whose records are most outstanding. ABOVE is pictured a group of men who are members of the Maintenance Department of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds. Their objective was $1,125, and they subscribed $2,150 with 100 per cent of the members of the department subscribing. Seated from LEFT to RIGHT: M. McIlmoyle, Allan Lester, O. Seabrook, S. Victory Loan Canvassers Report $165,700 On 11th Day Of Loan

Peterborough city and county subscribed $165,700 Friday, to swell their moving total in the Fifth Victory Loan of $3,443,550 for 74.86% of their objective at the close of the eleventh day. And the required percentage of their objective at Friday night was 61.1, leaving still the surplus margin of 13.76 points in the percentage column to cushion any immediate setbacks which may possibly occur.

Only three divisions of the campaign organization contributed to that $165,700 yesterday, as follows:

City general canvass $85,250
Rural general canvass 45,550
Employees canvass 34,900

Special names committee with 104% of their objective on Thursday drew a blank yesterday, but that was more or less expected after heaping up $1,560,000 by the tenth day of the drive.

Manifestly the $85,250 reported from the city general canvass was a big help. The figures for this section were an advance from $716,200 to $801,450, and in the percentage column from 46.21 to 51.71, a gain of 5.5. However, the plain fact stood out that it took the city general canvass eleven days to reach the half way mark to the objective of $1,550,000.

The task before the city group is to raise $648,550 in the remaining seven days, or an average of more than $92,000 a day to Saturday night, November 6.

Havelock at 91%

Chief honors in the Friday lending got to Havelock as the C.P.R. community shot its percentage from 61.58 up to 90.92, leaving them only 9 points off the 100% level.

Havelock subscribed $11,150 yesterday, raising their total to $34,550 from $23,400. This advance in the percentage list was 29.34. Another $3,450 will bring them to their allotted $38,000. T. P. Lancaster is in charge of the canvass in the eastern village.

Havelock not only retained the top rural position for its second day in succession, but probably secured a strangle hold on that spot.

North Monaghan pushed Smith out of second place to third. Asphodel tightened its hold on the fourth place, and the four northern townships, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos jumped from 9th to 5th place.

Otonabee moved back from 5th to 6th. Ennismore still held 7th and Dummer 8th.

Belmont-Methuen finished Friday wih a reverse of three notches to 9th. Douro was still 10th, Lakefield 11th and Norwood 12th.

The Day In the County

The rural canvass gain of $45,550 was made up as follows on Friday: Havelock, $11,150 Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos, $9,350; North Monaghan, $3,800; Asphodel, $3,400.

Norwood, $3,100; Dummer, $3,050; Lakefield, $2,650; Douro, $2,450; Smith, $2,300; Otonabee, $2,050; Belmonth-Methuen, $1,250; Ennismore, $1,000.

The total rural sales up to Friday night amounted ot $305,050 as compared with $259,500 at the close of Thursday, and the percentage advance was from 43.25 to 50.84 an improvement of 7.59 points in that column, but like the city general canvass just over the half-way post.

Employees' Canvas

The employees' canvass on the industrial front pushed along from $742,150 to $777,050, and the corresponding percentage from 78.12 to 81.79, a difference upward of 3.67 per cent.

Reports from the employees' canvass section are not yet all in, but it is expected that the last of them will return their subscriptions early next week. As they come up to their objective, and possibly exceed it—employees of the city's industries seem to be on the way to winding up their action with a surplus percentage over the 10 level—and Special Names already out at the 104% mark, the question becomes more sharply before the people of Peterborough city and county—how is the rest of the money to come from to reach the ultimate objective of $4,600,000.

The public reading the daily reports from headquarters no doubt feel elated at the progress of the Victory Loan in Peterborough, but it is looming more clearly every day as the climax approaches that an extraordinary effort will be required to make the last tough incline of the grade to $4,600,000.

On the front of battle action, if one sector shows lack of strength, reinforcements of men and arms are rushed in to bolster that spot. That analogy on the Peterborough financial front is facing Peterborough if the job is to be finally completed—it may be all right to use the phrase, with the coup de grace.

As the leaders say with warning to the people at home, the heavy fighting hasn't started yet, and that expression may mildly apply to the responsibility which next week is likely to thrust before public attention.

An appeal may have to be made for additional subscription to this Fifth Victory Loan. This is the increasing sentiment at headquarters, and after all it is not their job beyond directing the campaign. It remains where it was in the beginning two weeks ago, the job of the people of the city and county, and in the last reminder, they are only lending their money. It will come back with interest.

The 11th Day Summary

Those paragraphs are a digression from the actual news of the progress of the Loan.

The summary in Peterborough at the end of the 11th day, Friday, follows, reading across the column, objective, amount subscribed, and subscription percentage of the objective:

City general canvass: $1,550,000; $801,450; 51.71.
North Monaghan: $35,000; $24,250; 69.69.
Otonabee: $130,000; $59,850; 46.04.
Asphodel: $38,000; $22,950; 60.39.
Norwood: $58,000; $18,500; 31.9.
Smith: $90,000; $56,450; 62.72.
Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos: $45,000; $24,500; 54.44.
Lakefield: $60,000; $20,200; 33.67.
Ennismore: $12,000; $5,400; 45.
Douro: $35,500; $13,100; 37.43.
Belmont-Methuen: $25,000; $10,550; 42.2.
Havelock: $38,000; $34,550; 90.92.

Escaped Prisoners Get 5-Year Terms

GUELPH, Oct. 30 — (CP). — Sentences of five years in Penitentiary was imposed by Magistrate F. Watt to-day on four prisoners who pleaded guilty to breaking jail with violence.

The four were George Whitefoot and Lyle Banks, Sarnia, Norman Pringle of Oshawa, and Lawrence Johnson of Sandwich West. They had escaped from the Ontario Reformatory here last Wednesday after slugging a guard, Jack Nevin, in the Reformatory laundry.

Nevin, head wrapped in bandages was in court to testify as to the attack upon him.

The accused, who were recaptured near Freelton a few hours after the escape, were told by the Magistrate that they were lucky not to be facing the more serious charge of murder.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Francis and family, 581 Sherbrooke Street, have gone all-out in the war effort. Robert Francis, 21, is with the R.C.O.C. at Kingston. He was a toolmaker at John Inglis, and in a plant in Ottawa before he enlisted. PO. Charles Henry Francis, 27, has been overseas two years and about three weeks ago was promoted from the rank of Flight Sergeant. He is attached to R.A.F. Records and is a radio technician. Before enlisting he worked at the C.G.E., and he attended Prince of Wales School and the Collegiate. The third boy in the forces is Pte. W. O. Francis, R.C.O.C. (23), who has been overseas for a year. He was stationed in Barriefield and at the Training Centre, and was formerly employed at the C.G.E. He too attended Prince of Wales School and the Collegiate. Mr. Francis is on war work at Raybestos and his oldest son Dick is on war work in the C.G.E. Seeing all her family serving, gave Mrs. Francis the urge to do something, so a short time ago she began working part time at Genelco so that it would be a 100 per cent. family effort. She hoped soon to make it a full-time job, since she found it easy. In addition to this the family is also purchasing Victory Bonds.

Barry Ottewell Again Heads Scouts In City

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Boy Scouts Association was held on Wednesday in Hooper's Palm Parlors. Officers elected for the coming year: Barry Ottewell, president; Percy Hooper, 1st vice-president; Frank Buckland, 2nd vice-president; secretary, W. G. Shiner; treasurer, W. A. Brown. Acting Commissioner Ernest Wolff was appointed commissioner in place of John Hornsby, who had resigned on account of continued absence from the city.

A motion of appreciation of Mr. Hornsby was endorsed by all present, and the action of the provincial commissioner in making him honorary district commissioner was very much appreciated by the local association.

The reports of the acting commissioner, the secretary and the treasurer were very encouraging. There are in the city 14 Scout groups, all well organized and doing good work. This is particularly true of the Cub packs which are stronger than ever. In post-war years these boys will be the Scouts and leaders.

The financial statement showed a substantial balance on hand, thanks to the generosity of the public and the enery of the Cubs and Scouts on apple day. A vote of $50 was made to "Chins-up Fund"; $5 to the Canadian Legion for a poppy wreath on Remembrance Day; $10 to the Tweedsmuir Hut in Halifax, and $300 was invested in the Fifth Victory Loan.

During the year three new groups were organized. The Scout-craft show in April ad the jamboree in September were the main events of the year, but many hikes, church parades and other activities were held by the individual packs and troops.

The work of the building committee in erecting the new Scout hut was commended by those present, and a hearty vote of thanks extended to Frank Buckland, chairman, and Albert Hope, master builder, for their leadership in organizing the work so cheerfully given by other members of the executive and the Scout leaders.

The thanks of the meeting were tendered to the Peterborough Examiner for the publicity it has given during the year through Skipper Gromobridge's Scout Column. The other members of the executive elected for the coming year are:

G. Groombridge, Mr. J. Johnson, Mrs. G. Langhorne, Mr. O. Kidd, Mr. W. H. Frise, Mr. G. Clegg, Mr. Throop, Mr. L. Cunningham, with three members to be appointed by the Scouters' Club. Delegates elected to attend the provincial council, Mrs. Langhorne and Deputy-Commissioner A. Hope.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were enjoyed by those present, who spent a pleasant hour of planning for the future of Scouting in Peterborough.

JOHN ALFRED STEWART

CAVAN, Oct. 30—(ENS)—One of the older residents of Cavan died in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, this week in his 84th year, following a brief illness.

The late Mr. Stewart was born on Lot 6, Concession 12, Cavan Township, November 16, 1861, the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart. All his life was spent in the neighborhood. He attended the Beechwood school, later carrying on the farm work at home until he married Ida Stinson, who predeceased him some years ago. He then moved to Lot 5, Concession 12, where he has lived of late years with his son, Melville, who died a few months ago.

Mr. Stewart was well known and highly respected and was a member of Ebenezeer United Church. He leaves one son, Walter, Toronto, and one daughter, Floy, Mrs. Harry McGee of Ida.

The funeral was held from Lot 5, Concession 12, on Friday. Rev. W. E. Honey conducted the service. The pallbearers were Bruce and Walter Sharpe, William Finnie, Percy Stewart, Arnold Bidgood, Wellington McGee.

Those attending from a distanc were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Byrans Sunderland, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bradbur and Mrs. George Forder, Blackstock.

MRS. ISAIAH MAGEE

Mrs. Ellen Maud Howden Magee of 207 Murray street died early this morning in her 65th year. She had been in ill health for three months.

Born in Emily township, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs Gustavis Howden, she had lived in Peterborough for the last 2 years, moving here from Emily A member of the Pentecostal Assembly, she took an active part in church work.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Isaiah Magee; a son AC2. I. Clinton (Mickey) Magee R.C.A.F., stationed at Belleville and two daughters, Mrs. Russel Cannon of London street and Miss Leone Magee at home. Also surviving are three brothers, Herbert and Wilfred Howden of Peterborough and William of Emily; and a sister Mrs. Stuart Fallis of Cavan township.

The funeral will be held on Monday at 2:30 p.m. from the late residence, 207 Murray street, with services conducted by the Rev. H. McAllister of the Pentecostal Assembly. Interment will be made in Emily Cemetery.

BIG 4 PLAN POST-WAR CO-OPERATION

Red Armies Closing Escape Route

Less Than 8 Miles From Railway Serving Crimea

LONDON, Nov. 1—(CP).—Tens of thousands of Germans faced possible entrapment in the Crimea today as the Russians' fourth Ukraine army plunged forward to within eight miles of the Nazis' last rail exit from the narrow-throated peninsula.

The Red Army reached this point, within easy artillery range of the railway, with the capture of Chaplinka, 15 miles north of the Perekop Isthmus, which is only four miles wide at its narrowest point. The railroad runs up through the isthmus to Kherson on the lower Dnieper River.

The only other railway line leading out of the Crimea was cut when Russian forces stormed into Novo-Alexeyevka, some 40 miles east of the Perekop land bridge, after a 10-mile advance from Genichesk, which they captured Saturday.

Although the exact number of Germans in the 9,900 square mile Crimea has not been disclosed, the strength of their forces has been estimated at around 500,000.

Seek Junction.

The Russian communique, recorded by the Soviet Monitor, said the Red Army had recaptured 200 more villages in the Nogaisk steppe, above the Perekop isthmus, and also was grinding closer to Kahovka and Nikopol, lower Dnieper crossings, as well as making fresh gains southwest of Dnepropetrovsk inside the Dnieper bend.

(The B.B.C., quoting a Moscow correspondent, said that snow already had fallen in central Russia. The broadcast recorded by C.B.S., said the Russians, who have been favored with one of the driest autumns, could expect snow from now on, "which again helps the Red Army better adapted to winter fighting than the Germans.")

Coal Production Near Collapse

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(AP).—With coal production in the United States near collapse, district leaders of the United Mine Workers gathered for a crucial policy meeting to-day at which they face the choice of offering a return to work or provoking "decisive action" by President Roosevelt.

The outlook favored a back to work order by the Policy Committee. But how soon and to what extent such an order would be obeyed was more uncertain. The best possible results could not mean normal production before Wednesday, and Government officials are not that optimistic. They are fearful of wildcat or unauthorized stoppages.

Fuel administration orders controlling the distribution of coal for home use indicated preparedness for any eventuality, while the United States War Production Board revived talk of a country-wide cut in electric power to conserve coal.

The vast bulk of the 73,000 soft coal miners in the United States laid down their tools to-day.

An early morning survey showed virtually complete shutdowns of operations in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, each having about 110,000 bituminous workers. Similarly, Ohio reported all of its mines closed and 21,000 idle. Indiana production had about stopped, with 7,000 out.

British Engineers Ride The Volturno Ferry

Teano Captured by 5th Army

By NOLAND NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Nov. 1—(AP).—The Allied 5th Army seized Teano, control point to important roads flanking the enemy's Massico ridge anchor, in the relentless mile-by-mile march up the Italian Peninsula, Allied headquarters announced today. With equally steady progress, the 8th Army smashed through the mountains to capture the villages of Cantalupo—the town of the Singing Wolf—along with Macchiagodena and Frosolone. This advance placed Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's warriors, who include the Canadian 1st Division, within nine miles of Isernia, central bastion of the German mountain line.

Between these two sectors American troops advanced five miles through downpours and up steep mountain slopes to seize Valleagricola, a citadel perched on a 2,000-foot hill four miles south of Raviscanina, in the push toward Venafro. The advance was made in the face of intense enemy artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire and despite minefields guarding the approaches.

A Furious Battle.

Teano, too, was taken after a furious battle with elements of the Hermann Goering division. Allied troops wasted no time in capitalizing on the capture of the vital road centre and fanned out swiftly to the northeast and northwest to cut the highways piercing the German defence lines to the north of Massico ridge.

Captured documents showed that the Germans had attached the greatest importance to holding Teano, 10 miles northeast of Mount Massico and 12 miles northeast of the Volturno River crossing at Capua.

Gen. Montgomery's 8th Army gained the high ground on both sides of the road that runs from Foggia to Isernia and thence to Rome.

These veterans slugged through bitter resistance to capture Cantalupo, nine miles from Isernia and on the southwest side of the road, in a three-mile drive.

Macchiagodena, the same distance southeast of Isernia, is on the northeast side of the road and was taken in an advance of 1½ miles.

(Part or all of these important 8th Army successes may have been chalked up by the Canadian 1st Division. This is the Apennine mountain "backbone" region where the Canadians, particularly the 1st brigade made up of the Royal Canadians, the 48th Highlanders and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has been fighting steadily.)

Cerasito, Collecarrisi, Gentile, San Matteo, Mazzone, Ferrigiro, Campodiciello, Gronelari, Campitelio, Le Finciere, De Salvia and San Gregorio also were taken in the 8th Army's advances. Thus a total of 21 towns and villages were swept into the Allied lines.

Gunners Ankle Deep In Mud Smash Nazi Hill Positions

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 29 — (Delayed) (CP Cable). — The Royal Canadian Regiment and the 48th Highlanders shouldered the major share of the fighting in a 60-mile advance made by the Canadian 1st Division since it captured Motta 25 miles west of Foggia, three weeks ago.

Troops from these two Ontario regiments participated in capture of important sectors of two big river lines and also took part in the final drive for one of southern Italy's key centres, capture of which was announced last week.

(This was presumably a reference to the town of Torella Del Sannio, fall of which was announced last week at about the same time that the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment took Molise. The three battalions make up the 1st brigade of Gen. Guy Simond's Canadian 1st Division.)

The infantry battalions were supported throughout the march by Canadian tanks, some of which were dispatched to a sector occupied by British troops of the 8th Army and performed outstandingly.

Form Left Wing

(Canadian troops form the left wing of the 8th Army and according to latest reports are astride the Boiano-Isernia highway as well as in the mountains northwest of that important road.)

The Canadian-manned Sherman tanks proved their durability in the push through the mountains, rolling with the forward troops who have avoided roads not only because they are mined but also because German artillery and mortars are constantly trained on them.

Sweating, toiling gunners helped beat a way through the Apennine Mountains for the Canadian forces in their difficult three-weeks advance.

The medium and field artillery have been travelling up, down and around mountains in providing their essential support to the forward troops.

Like World War I.

The German positions around Motta, 25 miles west of Foggia, were the first target in the Canadian drive into the hills and from then on the gunners feeding 25 pounders and heavier 5.5's got little rest.

As the Canadians moved deeper into the range of high peaks, enemy artillery strength was found to be the greatest since the Canadians made their initial landing. On the last stages of the advance, a gun duel between the German guns and an artillery group commanded by a brigadier from Toronto raged.

Air observation officers, who flitted over the battlefront in tiny aircraft, brought down fire on a record number of 100 targets in a week. These officers, all trained gunners, used hilltops, valleys and riverbeds for landing. Lack of enemy air opposition permitted them to travel freely, although enemy ground forces potted at them in vain. If there happened to be any enemy aircraft about, ground observation officers tipped the flying observers by wireless.

Canada Faces Record Coal Strike

8,500 Western Miners Walk Out Seeking More Money

CALGARY, Nov. 1. —(CP).—A strike of miners in Alberta and British Columbia—scheduled to be the largest coal strike in Canadian history—began early to-day on orders of District 18, United Mine Workers of America to 8,500 men.

The strike, which got under way at midnight last night, has been declared "illegal" by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor of Edmonton, chairman of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into miners' wages. The miners seek increased wages.

The men either walked out or failed to report early to-day in scores of mines as District 18 U.M.W.A. officials were en route to Ottawa by plane to confer with Labor Minister Mitchell. The Ottawa conference followed union disagreement with the War Labor Board and the manner in which the Royal Commission was established following a strike vote Sept. 21.

The strike affects approximately 6,000 men in Alberta and 2,500 in British Columbia.

Want More Money.

The Union seeks a standard rate of $5.78 a day in all mines in the two provinces. It also asked for two weeks' holidays a year with pay and time and a half for the sixth day of work each week.

The strike order, issued Friday night by President Robert Livett of Calgary, president of District 18, came a few hours after the Commission began sitting in Calgary.

The Union had objected to failure of the government to give the Commission powers to put its recommendations into effect without any review by the government. The strike order, charged "dilly-dallying" in this issue, the same as the National War Labor Board.

Mr. Livett, in a statement before leaving for Ottawa said 'the membership of District 18, backed by other industrial workers, had completely lost faith and confidence in the set-up of the National War Labor Board."

Facts leading up to the strike had been placed before Ottawa many times in the past, he said. 'We have been forced into this situation to get action."

Coal is Scarce

VANCOUVER, Nov. 1 — (CP).—Approximately 2,500 British Columbia coal miners went on strike today complying with a call from district headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America (independent) protesting "dilly-dallying" of the National War Labor Board in considering a request for wage increases.

At Fernie and Michel in the Crows Nest Pass about 1,000 miners attended meetings, at Nanaimo and Cumberland on Vancouver Island 1,250 voted in favor of striking and at Princeton in the interior more than 200 approved the move.

British Columbia Department of Mines officials said Saturday there is very little coal on hand at Victoria because there has been no opportunity in recent years to build up reserves. No other British Columbia town reported such an acute shortage.

Moscow Conference Launches Long-range Security Program

International Force Envisaged To Maintain Order

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP).—Great Britain, the United States, Russia and China have pledged themselves to united action in the peace to follow defeat of their enemies and to establishment of "a general international organization" for maintaining peace and security.

This declaration was signed by the Big Four of the United Nations at the Moscow Conference attended by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of States and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov of Russia. It was made public simultaneously today in Washington, London and Moscow.

Highlighting fruits of a conference which included also declarations governing the restoration of a non-Fascist Italy, a free Austria and, a Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin pledge to punish those guilty of atrocities, four - power document stressed unity of action and consultation between powers with a common enemy (Russia is not at war with Japan) until conditional surrender was achieved.

In a joint communique, the tripartite conference agreed to establish an American - British-Russian "European advisory commission" in London to examine European questions arising as the war developed.

The foreign ministers also decided to set up an advisory council on Italy with representatives from the French committee, Yugoslavia and Greece.

The council on Italy will deal with day to day questions other than military preparations and make recommendations designed to co-ordinate Allied policy with regard to Italy.

The three foreign ministers also said that military experts at the conference discussed definite operations already decided and now being prepared "to create a basis for the closest military co-operation in the future between the three countries.

Other questions besides current problems taken up at the conference, the communique said, concerned treatment of Hitlerite Germany and its satellites, economic co-operation and assurance of general peace.

Will Act Together.

"Frank and exhaustive discussions of the measures to be taken to shorten the war against Germany and her satellites in Europe" also took place, the communique declared.

In the four-power declaration in which China joined, the countries said:

1. That their united action, pledged for the prosecution of the war against their respective enemies, will be continued for the organization and maintenance of peace and security.

2. That those of them at war with a common enemy will act together in all matters relating to the surrender and disarmament of that enemy.

3. That they will take all measures deemed by them to be necessary to provide against any violation of the terms imposed upon the enemy.

Bond Purchases Climb Steadily

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP)—Investments by members of the armed services, an insurance company and other firms, the Province of Ontario, and payroll subscribers combined today to give a "good start" to the third and final week of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan for a minimum of $1,200,000,000, national loan headquarters reported today.

Totals announced Sunday for the first two weeks of the drive were 1,356,586 purchases of $845,141,000 in bonds. The next cumulative total will be calculated overnight and made public tomorrow morning.

"The grand total subscribed by the armed services now is less than $500,000 from the grand total of all navy, army and air force subscriptions in the Fourth Victory Loan, with still one week to go," Loan headquarters said.

Invest 8 Million

Manufacturers Life Insurance Co., Toronto, invested $8,000,000 and Province of Ontario signed up for $5,000,000 as forecast some weeks ago by Premier George Drew. Halifax shipyards employees reached 109 per cent of quota and the Dartmouth, N.S., branch of the shipyards went to 117 per cent.

With payroll applications markedly higher than in the previous Victory Loan, and special names also ahead, general sales to the public were only 5.56 per cent higher at the end of the second week. As a result Graham F. Towers, general chairman of the National War Finance Committee, appealed to the sales organization and the public for greater effort and greater response during the final week of the loan.

Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd., Toronto, invested $1,000,000; and Abitibi Power and Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., Hamilton, each invested $4,000,000.

From Montreal came advice that Price Brothers and Co. Ltd., Quebec, invested $1,250,000 and Canadian Import Co. Ltd., Montreal, invested $500,000.

The Armed Services combined to roll up a two-week grand total of $26,294,950—$3,456,150 from Navy, $11,704,050 from Army and $11,134,750 from Air Force. The Navy with comparatively small personnel, has the smallest dollar total but leads in percentage of objective achieved, with 138.2. R.C.A.F. has 128.2 per cent. and Army 117. Overseas subscriptions from the three services total $1,834,750, with more to come.

Navy's $3,456,150 is nearly $1,000,000 ahead of its $2,500,000 quota and the $2,678,450 it raised in the last loan.

The Wren training establishment at Galt, Ont., not included in any command quota, raised $20,000, nearly double its $11,000 quota.

The Army's subscriptions of $11,704,050 came from 130,056 purchasers.

Loan Headquarters gave this standing of cities working for 100 percent of general canvass and pay-

Conference Results Dooms Nazis Propaganda Wave

LONDON, Nov. 1 (CP)—Official Britain hailed the sweeping declarations from Moscow today as the death blow to Germany's most effective propaganda weapons and as "a very considerable contribution to hastening the end of the war."

After reading the communique on the tripartite decisions in a conference room packed with journalists, a foreign office spokesman said that this evidence of collaboration both during and after the war knocked the props from under "Nazi propagandists who have encouraged their dupes to expect dissension among the Allies."

The historic conference and its concrete evidence of harmony among Britain, the United States and Russia was hailed as "a source of very considerable gratification to all free peoples of the world."

The spokesman said that in the European advisory commission "you see the beginnings of practical collaboration" and the forerunner of a "general international organization" for the maintenance of peace.

It seemed apparent that the question of an invasion of Europe had been settled.

He said he wasn't at liberty to discuss if, when or where Prime Minister Churchill, Premier-Marshal Joseph Stalin and President Roosevelt would meet, suggesting perhaps that the three chiefs of state would not meet soon.

The communique explained that the new council for Italy would supplant the present Mediterranean commission.

Eight Prisoners Return To Camp

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1. — (CP). — Eight of 19 German prisoners of war, whose escape was reported late Sunday, returned to the fuel wood camp at Riding Mountain National Park to-day, it was learned here.

After a night in the woods, during which there was a fall of snow, the men walked into the camp this morning, cold and hungry.

"We got lost in the bush," a spokesman for the men told guards at the camp, but the story was discounted. It was indicated that it was a deliberate escape plot, and not a case of the men losing their way from camp.

Meanwhile search continued for the other 11 men with R.C.M.P. detachments, camp guards and farmers searching the bush country and patrolling highways.

The men, clady in army uniforms, were reported to have escaped from the camp into the heavily wooded country during a blizzard Sunday afternoon.

It has been storming for many hours, and today there was a heavy snow blanket in the bushlands of the park area, 240 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

The search is being directed by Inspector A. Bella, R.C.M.P., Dauphin detachment, who has more than 100 members of 10 detachments in the hunt.

Patrols were out on every highway, and a search of trains was underway. Farmers, whose lands border the park, were called to aid.

This is the first prisoner-of-war escape in Manitoba and one of the largest in the Dominion. The biggest break was in the spring of 1941 when 28 escaped from a camp in Northern Ontario. Twenty-six were recaptured and two were killed resisting arrest.

Union Delegates Oppose CCF Proposals

United Electrical Workers Claim Representation Inadequate

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — The provisions which the C.C.F. lays down as a basis for union affiliation with that party amount to virtual "taxation without representation," delegates to a two-day convention of District 5, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (C.I.O.) declared by resolution yesterday. Delegates met Saturday and Sunday in the Royal York Hotel.

Although the Canadian Congress of Labor has recommended affiliation of its unions with the C.C.F., the U.E.R.M. of A. delegates, while agreeing in principle refused to advise this step until a union committee has conferred with C.C.F. heads and found a "satisfactory method" by which affiliation can be effected.

Requirement Under Protest

The C. C. F. requirement under protest, is that delegates from affiliated unions to C.C.F. conventions must also be members of local C.C.F. clubs. Those opposing this provision held that all the members of an affiliated union should be eligible whether or not they are members of the C.C.F. party.

Lengthy discussion of C. C. F. affiliation was prompted by a report from President C. S. Jackson secretary George Harris and the other officers which denounced the leadership of the C.C.F.

"During the period intervening between the C.C.L. convention and the opening of our District Council meeting today, there has been little evidence that the C. C. F. is prepared to give genuine representation to the labor movement," the report stated. "In fact, there have been some indications that the leadership of the C. C. F. is becoming more adamant in its demands that they and they alone will decide how and by whom the unions will be represented in the councils of the C.C.F.

The position of the Labor Progressive Party, formerly the Communist Party, was mentioned frequently in its relations to the C.C.F. In the resolution appointing the committee, it was urged that the C.C.F. should become a federation of unions and other "working class and farmer organizations." If this suggestion were effected, the Labor Progressive Party could affiliate with the C.C.F.—a merger which has been repeatedly rejected by the latter party.

"The only reason the C. C. F. will not accept the Labor Progressive Party is that the C. C. F. leaders are afraid they will lose control of the party if they did this,"' said one delegate. C. C. F. leaders who are "afraid" of the Labor Progressive Party should not continue in office, he stated.

Would Oust Labor Court

Carried unanimously was a resolution urging abolition of the Ontario Labor Court and its replacement with a board upon which labor would have representation. At present, only lawyers may plead cases before the Labor Court and unions have not been able to secure a full measure of justice, it

Politics Control U. S. Policy

Times Says Over-Confidence Hampers War

LONDON, Nov. 1 (CP)—Domestic politics, a new outbreak of labor trouble and a general feeling that the war in Europe is rapidly approaching its end are seriously retarding the war effort of the United States, the Times of London said today in a dispatch from its New York correspondent.

"Politics is warping or delaying decisions of great importance both inside and outside Congress, forcing compromises where clear cut decisions would seem to be urgent," the dispatch declared. "The long shadow of the elections—still a year away—had extended itself ever more darkly over such matters as the control of wages and prices, preservation (or restoration) of free enterprise in industry, taxation, conduct of the war both on the military and economic side and participation in post-war collaboration of nations."

The correspondent said that a policy of allowing political to rise above economic consideration in adjustments of labor grievances "is to be found most clearly" in the current coal dispute "where the miners apparently are determined to get everything demanded for them by John L. Lewis (United Mine Workers' president) regardless of what that may mean to the war effort and the community in general."

Premier Tojo Takes Ministry

Leader Has Complete Control Of War Effort

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 —(AP)—The Tokyo radio said that Premier Hideki Tojo was installed today as head of the new Japanese munitions ministry at ceremonies in the presence of Emperor Hirohito.

Thus, the premier, already war minister, was given the whiphand over virtually all of Japan's war effort.

The broadcast, reported by the United States office of war information, declared that Tojo's assumption of the new portfolio would "harmoniously" consolidate military operations, production and administration and will "leave nothing to be desired in the production of munition."

The new ministry, created by action of the Diet in special session last week, was charged with bringing about a "speedy expansion of decisive war production and especially a drastic expansion and strengthening of aerial fighting strength."

At the same time, Tojo announced 61 imperial ordinances putting into effect other phases of the mobilization program.

The new ordinances include an extension from 40 to 45 of the upper age limit for drafting of Japanese men and for the first time the conscription laws are applied to Formosa.

FORTY-FIVE JAP PLANES KNOCKED DOWN AS AIR WAR SPEEDS UP

Rabaul Blitzed In New Raids

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, The Southwest Pacific, Nov. 1—(AP). — Rabaul staggered today under another massive bombing while to the south New Zealand and American troops were locked in battle with the Japanese for possession of Choiseul Island.

Vanakanau airfield at the important New Britain airbase took a 115-ton bombing from heavy bombers and fighters Friday, it was announced.

Forty-five Japanese planes were destroyed, 25 of them in combat. This brought to 820 the October total of enemy aircraft destroyed for certain in this war theatre.

Four Allied planes were acknowledged lost.

Meanwhile, jungle - camouflaged troops who landed at two points on Choiseul Thursday morning met enemy resistance the next evening, and at latest reports were engaged in "brisk" fighting with the Japanese around Sangagai, a barge concentration point six miles to the southeast of the beachheads.

If the Choiseul Japanese hope for steady reinforcements from Bougainville, 30 miles to the north, they had little consolation in reports from the South Pacific Air Force that southern Bougainville has scarcely a plane left after 200 recent bombing sorties.

On Treasury Island the New Zealanders continued their advance toward Marsi, wiping out pockets of resistance.

MISS ELLA SMITH.

The death of Miss Ella Smith of Cobourg occurred in Peterborough Friday following an illness of six months.

A resident of this city for six years, Miss Smith was born in Cobourg the daughter of the late William Smith and Mary O'Leary. Educated in Cobourg, she was a practical nurse and a member of St. Michael's Church in that city. She is survived by a brother David Smith of Cobourg, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Blair of Toronto.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 6:30 a.m., with requiem mass in the chapel of the House of Providence Interment will be made in St. Michael's Cemetery, Cobourg, at 10 a.m.

MRS. WILLIAM JENKINS.

The funeral of the late Mrs. William Jenkins, formerly Maud Reynolrs, took place on Monday in Cobourg, with private service at McFadyen's Funeral Parlors, followed by service in St. Peter's Anglican Church. Interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery, Cobourg.

Mrs. Jenkins passed away in her 61st year after a brief illness at her residence, 526 Lock Street.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, William Jenkins, and a son, Leading Stoker Rex Jenkins. Two brothers, Smith and Edward Reynolds of Oshawa, also survive, as well as a sister Mrs. Mary Woodruff of Grafton.

MRS. MARY BURNET.

PORT ELGIN, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Mary Burnet, widow of James Burnet, Peterborough, died in Parkwood hospital at London in her 95th year. She was the mother of the late Mrs. H. H. Stevens, Port Elgin. The funeral will be held from Belleghem's funeral home in Peterborough, Tuesday, with burial in

Motor Accidents Cause 5 Deaths

By The Canadian Press

There were seven fatalities in Eastern Canada during the week-end. A Toronto man hung himself, a child in Nova Scotia was hit by a train, and traffic accidents were responsible for the rest.

The body of Frederick Stewartson, 39, was found Sunday hanging by the belt in the doorway of a Toronto police station, where he was being held for investigation of a motor accident in which he was involved. Two-year-old Ronald Rankin of Eureka, N.S., was killed Saturday when struck by a train as he was walking along tracks near his home.

When her motor-equipped bicycle collided with a passing automobile Sunday in Montreal, Marie-Louise Papineau, 62, was killed. Mrs. Frank Hawkins of Ottawa was fatally injured Sunday when the car in which she was a passenger struck a parked truck near Montreal.

Tr. Raymond Martin 19, of Amherstburg, Ont., died in hospital Sunday of injuries suffered Saturday when a blowout caused the automobile in which he was riding to strike a tree at London Ont.

A Toronto-truck-driver, Russell Noel Parker, 45, was killed in an automobile-truck collision Saturday at Bowmanville, Ont. As a result of injuries suffered when struck by a truck Friday, near Windsor, Ont., Frances Tweeney, 14, died in hospital Saturday.

4. That they recognize the necessity of establishment at the earliest practicable date a general international organization, based on the principle of the sovereign equaliyt of all peace-loving States, and open to membership by all such States, large and small, for the maintenance of international peace and security.

5. That for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security pending the re-establishment of law and order and the inauguration of a system of general security, they will consult with one another and as occasion requires with other members of the United Nations with a view to joint action on behalf of the community of nations.

6. That after the termination of hostilities they will not employ their military forces within the territories of other states except for the purposes envisaged in this declaration and after joint consultation.

7. That they will confer and cooperate with one another and with other members of the United Nations to bring about a practical general agreement with respect to the regulation of armaments in the post-war period

To Punish Criminals.

China did not participate in the other declarations dealing with the European war. They were:

1. Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin promised that those German officers and men, and members of the Nazi party, who have been guilty of atrocities—either directly or by consent—will be taken back to the scene of their crimes after the war and there tried according to the laws of the country concerned.

2. Britain, Russia and the United States agreed on Allied policy toward Italy, based on a determination to wipe out Fascist influence and to give the Italian people "every opportunity to establish governmental and other institutions based upon democratic principles."

3. The three also declared that "Austria, first free country to fall victim to Hitlerite aggression, shall be liberated from German domination."

The joint four-power declaration obviously left the way open for Russia to remain neutral as far as Japan is concerned, but provided a guarantee that neither Russia nor the Western allies would sign a separate peace or take other separate action against their joint enemies.

While recognizing the "necessity of establishing at the earliest practicable date a general international organization," the four powers did not attempt to specify the nature of that organization beyond insisting upon equality of sovereignty of all peace-loving states, with membership open to all such states, large and small.

Reward In Steak

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 1 —(AP). —A two pound steak dinner was the reward for a negro trusty who borrowed a shotgun and apprehended two of four escaped Kiby Prison inmates. Warden Pitt Williams said the trusty, Richard Shack, halted the two fugitives shortly after the four fled late Thursday.

Use Mosquitoes To Balk Night Raiders

LONDON, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Speedy R.A.F. Mosquitoes attacked targets in Western Germany last night, the Air Ministry announced today simultaneously with the disclosure that these hard-hitting planes now are being successfully employed on the home front as night fighters.

The announcement did not specify the objectives of the raiders, one of which was lost in the foray.

The disclosure that the Mosquitoes now are doing defensive as well as offensive work came when it was made known that they had downed three Nazi raiders over Britain in the last two nights.

The famous plywood fighter-bombers were said to be proving highly effective in countering German hit-and-run raids.

London had another brief alert last night as German raiders flew inland over the Thames Estuary at high altitude, but only three or four penetrated to the vicinity of the capital. A few bombs fell in outlying district and one man was killed and several other persons were injured in a suburban area.

Bombs also fell at scattered points in Southeast England, but few casualties and little damage were reported.

British bombers, escorted by fighters, yesterday attacked German airfields on the Cherbourg peninsula and railway targets in northern France, while Canadian-manned Mustangs penetrated to the Paris area where they shot down two enemy planes. Two British fighters were lost in these sweeps.

Gunner Ankled

Although the German opposition to the Canadians consisted of delaying tactics, it was backed up by artilelry including 88- and 105-millimetre guns.

One of the jobs the Canadians' supporting artillery had to perform was press forward and by counter-battery work keep the enemy guns on the jump. The Germans, on their side, seemed to take few such measures and casualties among Canadian gunners were slight.

Lots Of Digging

Because of the type of fighting and the country, the Canadian gunners laid down only a few prepared barrages, such as those which brought attention to the 25 pounders at El Alamein in the Libyan campaign. Most of the "shoots" were called at a moment's notice and the gunners were constantly on the alert.

On many occasions the men behind the guns worked in drenching rain and ankle-deep mud. They moved their guns forward from one position to another in short hops to keep up with the infantry and that meant lots of digging.

Just as soon as the guns rolled off the roads into positions in the fields, the gunners had to dig gun pits and encircle them with low earth walls for protection of the crews in event of enemy shelling.

The guns were dragged across rough detours build around road and bridge demolitions, across rivers and over roads that snaked up and down hills. The gunners' part in the drive was "a tough job well done," the brigadier said. Because of Nazi defences in depth, the gunners would no sooner crack one line than there would be another just behind.

3 Young Boys Make $16 For War Victims

Way down in the south end of the city on Payne street, which runs off Braidwood avenue, three young boys held a bazaar and a small draw which is responsible for a nice donation towards the Christmas Cheer Fund for British children, amounting to $16.05, which appears in to-day's list of receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

Jack Haslett, eleven year old son of Pte. Alfred Haslett of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regt., now serving with the forces in Italy, commenced this effort, in which we was joined by Ray and Tommy Douglas, sons of Pte. J. Douglas of the S.D. and G. Highlanders, who spent one and a half years overseas, and has now returned to serve in this country, his wife having lost her right hand while working in one of the city's war industries.

Together these three boys held a bazaar at 593 Payne street, the residence of the first named boy, part of which took the form of a bingo game, supplemented by candy apples supplied through the collaboration of the two mothers, and this with the small draw made the amount named above.

Draw For Rabbit.

The draw which they conducted had as the prize a young rabbit donated by Jack Haslett, and this was won by little Billy Perry of Braidwood avenue with ticket No. 586, who later on in the same day returned to buy another one to keep it company since he thought it would be lonesome by itself.

Having seen England under war-time conditions, both fathers of these boys would doubtless have seen some of the damage caused by air raids, which in itself would prove an incentive to them to make this effort on behalf of those in need, and especially when it was to provide Christmas cheer for the boys and girls who had lost their homes, and it must be admitted that they did a good job in raising this amount of money.

District Donations.

All the other donations listed to-day came from the nearby communities of Stewart Hall, Mount Pleasant and Springville, with the Stewart Hall community having two entries for a total value of $3, to bring the total of their recent market effort above the $40 mark, which about duplicates their splendid achievement for the fund last year at this time.

Then Miss Fairbairn turned in further proceeds from the Springville community's effort on the market on October 16, to bring their total fully above the $10 mark, and three ladies, Mrs. H. G. Best, Mrs. Chester Best and Mrs. Lloyd McConkey of Mount Pleasant united to make a contribution of $4 which was handed in by Miss Ella Best.

A Work of Art.

A beautiful basket centrepiece donated to the fund by P. E. Moore, made from pulled taffy has been and it is now being displayed in H. S. Routley's China Shop on George street, were tickets may be procured at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents. This is really a work of art, having a swan sitting at each end of the basket, with an array of fruit in the centre and doves resting on the handle, all of it being made in hardy candy in the Christmas colors of red and cream, an ideal table decoration for any festive board.

Allies Threaten Key Points On Central Italian Front

ALGIERS, Nov. 1—(AP).—Fifth Army forces have captured the Italian town of Teano overlooking the centre of the enemy's Massico-Venafro line, headquarters announced today. Teano, about 10 miles northeast of towering Mount Massico, controls four highways important both to the Germans and the Allies.

The air command announced that Allied heavy bombers had attacked a railway viaduct near Cannes, in France, while long-range fighters blasted the enemy airdrome across the Adriatic at Tirana, Albania.

(The attack at Cannes, not far from where Allied heavy bombers carried out heavy raids on the previous day across the border in the Italian Riviera followed reports of heavy German troop movements out of northern Italy.)

On the 8th Army front the village of Cantalupo, five miles northwest of Boiano, has been captured, the announcement said.

Cantalupo lies directly on the Boiano-Isernia highway beyond the points previously reported in Allied hands in that sector and only about nine miles short of Isernia itself.

Take High Ground.

High ground surrounding the village also was occupied by the 8th Army forces.

The 8th Army also occupied Frosolone, 12 miles due east of Isernia.

While there was no direct word during the week-end on operations of the Canadian 1st Division it is probable that its troops scored some of the successes listed today.

The Canadians have been pushing steadily ahead in the Apennine Mountain areas near the Boiano-Isernia highway.

Parallel Highway

Eighth Army troops have also swept into the town of Macchiagodena, nine miles east and slightly south of Isernia, on the east side of the Boiano-Isernia highway opposite Cantalupo.

Capture of both Cantalupo and Macchiagodena means that the left wings of the 8th Army is operating on both sides of the highway in their movement toward Isernia, important highway communications point.

After wresting Teano from troops of the Hermann Goering division, American troops fanned out to take other points including Valleagricole.

Driver Is Fined $10 For Careless Driving

Clarence Miller, Hamilton, sustained a cut on his head, requiring seven stitches to close and his car was damaged in a traffic accident on Highway 28 Saturday night.

This morning in police court Miller pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure stated that in attempting to pass another car on the highway, Miller's vehicle clicked the rear of the other machine and got out of control. His own car was damaged considerably but the other automobile, the officer stated, received only $10 damage.

Miller stated that he had already made a settlement with the other driver.

Tito's Patriots Repel Hun Push

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP) — Gen. Josip (Tito) Boz' red-starred guerillas are repelling heavy German infantry attacks near Kolasin and Berani in the interior of Montenegro, an army of liberation communique said today.

The communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, reported an outbreak of fighting between units of Tito's 5th Divison and forces of the puppet Field Marshal Milan Nedic and Yugoslav War Minster Draja Mihalovic near Prijou on the Serbian-Bosnian frontier. "The enemy is suffering heavy losses," said the communique.

Numerous German attacks were said to have been repelled in Croatia and Slovenia.

An earlier communique reported that the combined forces of Tito and Albanian guerillas, co-ordinating offensives on the Albanian border, had captured the Yugoslav town of Debar, near the Albanian border.

The communique also told of a Nazi success 23 miles east of Debar where the Germans were said to have captured the town of Kicevo.

Finger Print Tops Evidence

By E. V. W. JONES
Associated Press Staff Writer.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 1—(AP). —Frank Conway of the New York Police testified today a fingerprint reported by the Crown to have been found in the room where Sir Harry Oakes was slain is the impression of Alfred de Marigny's little right finger.

Conway, member of the New York Bureau of Identification, the first witness of the third week of De Marigny's trial on a charge of murder in connection with the bludgeoning and burning of his millionaire father-in-law, said he studied the fingerprint on exhibit and the impression made by De Marigny when he was fingerprinted after his arrest.

"My conclusion is that they are identical, and were made by the same person," he swore.

Conway sought to impress the jury with the value of fingerprints as a means of identification. He did so because the fingerprint brought in by the Crown is the first ever introduced at a murder trial in the Bahamas.

Capt. James O. Barker of the Miami police testified last week that the print was found on a bed-screen which stood in the death room.

Police Pick Up 300 Men In Special Raid

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 1 (ENS) —Nearly three hundred men from this town and district were lined up and questioned by RC.M.P. officers in a raid on pool rooms here Saturday evening.

The raid, conducted by Cpl. A. M. Lockwood and Constables J. K. Bridges and H. A. Waldon, could not have been at a more appropriate time as the pool rooms were filled to overflowing by the Saturday night crowd and it was a simple matter to line their occupants up and ask them to produce registration cards and show that they were not evading selective service regulations.

According to Cpl. Lockwood the military status of all the men was checked and several 'evaders' were discovered and they will subsequently be charged under Selective Service regulations. "Numerous persons," he said, "will also be charged under the National Registration regulations for not carrying their registration certificates." The raid here was of a similar type to those being conducted in various other communities throughout the Dominion.

Civic Service Demands Action

COBOURG, Nov. 1 — (ENS). — George Gillespie, former M.L.A. for Peterborough, and a member of the Peterborough Rotary Club, spoke on "Community Service" at the recent Rotary Forum. It is carried out, he said, by serving in various community societies and on councils, and providing help for the farmers in their present urgent need. He reviewed some of the steps which district clubs have taken in this regard. Aiding crippled and otherwise needy children and sponsoring Cadet movements are other community service undertakings of Rotary.

Dan McQuarrie, in a vigorous address on post-war planning, disagreed with the assertion that "Rotary is capitalism." He recaleld that Dr. Charlotte Whitten, Canadian sociologist of note, and a former college mate, had recently addressed Lindsay Rotary. "I prefer freedom without security to security without freedom," she had said.

Mr. McQuarrie stated he believes in democracy as an economic system and a way of life. "No other social order has brought to man so many of the better things of life. Despotisms have given much to few but not to the many. Consider the United States and Canada. Never in history has wealth been so well diffused as in these two countries. Even through the depths of the depression the standard of living was higher than it ever was in non-democratic countries.

Freedam of Enretprise.

"Art, invention and science stride forward in a democracy, as products of the unfettered mind. Since Hitler came to power, enrolment in the universities of Germany has dropped one-half. Freedom of enterprise is an Atlantic Charter. When it is lost, democrocy is lost. It is the right of man to choose his own calling and engage in such hazards as he wishes, repeating the rewards or the consequences."

35 Boxes Packed For Overseas

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 1. — (ENS).— Evening Auxiliary members were guests of St. John's W.A. at their October meeting held recently. The president, Mrs. R. E. Knox, presided and extended a hearty welcome to the visitors who were later to present the program.

During the business period a letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Charles Turner who expressed appreciation for flowers sent during her illness. The treasurer's report indicated the September and October thankoffering had been satisfactory.

Thirty-five boxes for overseas shipment had been packed by ladies of the W.A. with items contributed by members of the congregation according to a statement given by Mrs. A. J. Armour. The president extended an invitation to members of the Evening Auxiliary to again be their guests at the November meeting when a cooking school will be held. Details of the school, which will be a feature of the Christmas meeting, were left with Mrs. A. J. Armour and Mrs. A. D. Bennett. As a preliminary to the election of officers next month a nominating committee comprising Mrs. W. F. Scott, Mrs. C. K. Stephen and Mrs. A. J. Armour was appointed. The names of four ladies, Mrs. T. J. Craighead, Mrs. A. Hutcheon, Mrs. Varcoe and Mrs. T. L. Diamond, who had a perfect attendance record during the year, were read.

Mrs. Carl Johnston, president of the Evening Auxiliary, presided for the program which included a reading by Miss Esma Cole; prayer, Mrs. G. N. Maxwell; reading, on Madame Kai-Shek, by Miss Constance McKelvie; vocal duet, Miss Nellie Hoover and Mrs. S. Twigg; piano duet, Misses Patricia and Diane Ironside. St. John's Church Choir Attends Masquerade

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 1. — (ENS).— Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bates, Front street, entertained members of the choir of St. John's United church at a masquerade party and social evening in their home.

About thirty were present and in addition to games and a sing-song the occasion provided an opportunity for a presentation to Mr. Roy Young, a member of the choir, and Mrs. Young who were married recently. Mr. H. M. Donald read the address and Mrs. S. Twigg made the presentation, which took the form of a chenille bedspread.

All of the guests arrived in costume and were greeted at the door by two ghosts. The house was decorated with dimly lit pumpkins. Judges of the costumes were Mrs. Arnold Bates, Mr. G. W. Lucy and Mr. Glen Gemmell and the winners were: Mrs. Albert Wragg, women's fancy costume; Mrs. H. O. Richardson, comic costume; Harold Pierce, men's fancy costume; Rev. G. N. Maxwell, most original; H. M. Donald, men's comic.

Ducking for apples and other pastimes were enjoyed by the gathering, and later refreshments were served. At the close a vote of thanks was moved to the host and hostess by Dr. Richardson.

Northumberland Drags In Loan

COBOURG, Nov. 1—(ENS)—With 67.67 per cent. of the time gone on Saturday, Northumberland County had only 46.68 per cent. of its $1,700,000 objective of Victory bonds purchased. Victory loan officials expressed frankly that the sucess of the loan was very doubtful unless there was a very substantial rally. The vilage of Brighton showed the way for slower districts, with 106.-84% of its objective reached. This vilage of 1,517 people had an objective of $125,000 and up until Saturday evening the bond purchases amounted to $133,550.

Folowing are the totals of the district:

Cobourg—$171,250;34.25 per cent.

Hamilton Township—$78,700; 44.90 per cent.

South Monaghan Township—$25,-400; 63.50. per cent

Haldimand Township — $36,750; 36.75 per cent.

Alnwick Township—$14,450; 41.29 per cent.

Percy Township—$51,600; 46.91 per cent.

Hastings $25,150; 5.88 per cent.

Cramahe Township— $20,950; 34.-91 per cent.

Colborne—$42,900; 61.29 per cent.

Brighton Township—$28,100; 46.-83 per cent.

Brighton village—$133,550; 106.84 per cent.

Murray Township—$24,850; 31.06 per cent.

Campbellford—$78,500; 44.85 per cent.

Seymour Township—$61,550; 49.20 per cent.

The Cost Of Social Security

In these days "social security" is one of the most popular political catch-phrases, used by all parties with varying shades of meaning, and usually only partially understood by the great mass of the public. What social security would cost in Canada no one can estimate accurately now, but it is possible to make an informed guess if we examine its cost elsewhere. Many times in the past few years our sister Dominion of New Zealand has been held up to us as an example of a country with an excellent system of social security, and New Zealand's figures are available to us for comparison.

Here is a table which shows us how New Zealand raised the money for its social security program during the 1940-41 year:

Registration Fees	£ 604,179
Charge on Salaries and Wages	6,174,092
Charge on Company Income	1,107,338
Charge on other Income	2,828,147
Penalties and Fines	28,105
Grants from Consolidated Fund (Social Security Act)	3,200,000
Other Receipts	25,962
	£13,967,823

Let us look at these figures carefully, for they are full of meaning for Canada. Notice that the taxes on salaries and wages in New Zealand come to £6,174,092 in N.Z. currency which would be about twenty-two million Canadian dollars. But when we think what this would mean in Canada we find that $150,000,000 or thereabout would have to be gained from wages and salaries alone.

* * *

Would Canadian Labour or Canadian Agriculture like that? Let no one deceive himself that such a sum could be raised by soaking the rich. There simply are not enough rich people to be soaked. In Canada nine people out of every ten earn less than $2,500 a year when they are in employment. It is upon these that the main burden of the social security bill would fall. They would also be the principal recipients of the benefits of social security, but the question is: would they want to pay that much for it?

* * *

In New Zealand labour and agriculture pay, and pay, and pay. The social system in that Dominion discourages the acquirement of large fortunes, and thus the number of rich people who pay great sums into the public treasury is very small. Social security costs a lot of money, and that money comes out of the wages of the workers in the form of taxes. But taxes are not all; notice that registration fees to the sum of £600,000 are also included in the bill; labour pays the lion's share of that sum, too. Is Canadian labour and Canadian agriculture ready to pay as they are paying in New Zealand?

* * *

We doubt it. One of the ugliest troubles on the hom front during this war has been the reluctance of a large body of workers to earn enough to put them in the income taxpaying class. Would the bait of social security sweep away their objection to paying taxes? If Canadian labour and agriculture wants social security it must be ready to pay for it, because the whole sum cannot come from the Consolidated Fund or from the rich. The money simply does not reside in those sources. The workers, as the most numerous class of society, have also the most money. We feel that these facts should be made clear to those who may imagine that social security means a miraculous system under which it is impossible to be without money but which carries with it no obligation to pay out any money. It is an affair of give and take, and for most of us the lifelong emphasis would be on the give.

Gracie Is Taken To Task

The same opinion may have a very different sound when it is expressed by two people in different positions: thus it is that while most of us now are eager to say that we think the troops should have the best of everything, our teeth are set on edge when the troops say it, and complain about what they getting.

Recently Gracie Fields visited the Eighth Army, and did what she could to entertain that wonderful body of men. But the men were not satisfied; they felt that Gracie had slighted them, and they said so in an ill-natural article in their army newspaper. Now although we do not admire Gracie Fields as much as some people, we do not think that she is a woman who slights anything she undertakes, particularly when it is work of a friendly, large-hearted nature. But the Eighth Army paper had nothing friendly to say about her or any of the other entertainers who had paid them what they called "flying visits". It says, quite frankly, that it believes that everyone engaged in public entertainment should be drafted to perform exclusively for the troops.

The men of the Eighth Army are heroes. We say so, but we are not anxious to hear them say so. And similarly, it may be that they are not being entertained as thoroughly as they should be; many newspapers would be glad to say so if this is the case, but we do not like to hear the Eighth Army say so. Entertainers—the best—go to them at considerable personal risk, and work like dogs to make them happy and give them a touch of home. And what do they do? They set up a complaint that they are not getting the exclusive services of these entertainers. This is not a spirit which either General Eisenhower or General Montgomery would encourage; they know that the Eighth Army is not on a picnic, with a troop of hired entertainers as part of the fun, but on a difficult military assignment, with a few entertainers coming to them to brighten up the dull moments.

Praise and pity for the army should come exclusively from civilian sources.

The Girl He Left Behind Him

During the past week two prominent Americans have given a warning to the women of the U.S. which may be of interest and concern to the women of Canada also. Dr. George N. Shuster, the president of Hunter College, spoke to the girls of that institution in these words:

"The only possible bridge between the men who will return from war and the life they will lead in peacetime, is the beloved woman, the sister, the sweetheart, the wife, the friend. The boys will come back far different people from those to whom we said good-by."

And because the boys will be different, said Dr. Shuster, the girls will have to be different too. He urged them to take the time now to develop inward stability, to become "broader, deeper, knowing people". In a word, he urged them to develop character.

A very similar message, less politely expressed, appears in the current issue of Vogue from the pen of Philip Wylie. Mr. Wylie is famous for the way in which he trounces the women of his country, from powerful, semi-sacred "Mom" down to that yearning little ball of sex-appeal, "the girl-friend". Mr. Wylie does not hate women, but he hates silly and pretentious women, and in his opinion this class forms a majority of the sex. To these he says: your sons and your sweethearts have been abroad, away from your apron strings; they have seen something of the world and the people of other countries; they have been forced to face the ugliest passions of mankind, and to allow their own capacity for hatred to dominate them; when they come back they will be grown-up and rather bitter men, and as such do you suppose that they will be content with you? Madam, don't kid yourself!

In that beautiful old soldier's song, The Girl I Left Behind Me, the last verse begins with this fervent promise—

The bee shall honey seek no more,
The dove become a ranger,
The raging winds shall cease to roar
Ere I shall seek to change her.

This, say Dr. Shuster and Mr. Wylie in their different ways, is nonsense. The man who comes back from the war will want a woman with a stronger sense of reality than the one he left, and the girl who thinks that her man will love her exactly as he left her is due for a rude surprise.

The City That Stopped Hitler

By J. H. G.
In Winnipeg Free Press

IN the course of one of his speeches in the summer of 1940, when Britain was feverishly preparing for a Nazi invasion across the channel, Mr. Churchill remarked that a city like London which was defended street by street and house by house could swallow up an army. Two years later the Russians at Stalingrad gave a practical demonstration of the soundness of Mr. Churchill's prediction. Stalingrad swallowed a German army, a gargantuan feat of ingestion which turn the tide of the war.

If Stalingrad had fallen, Hitler might today be the master of European Russia, instead of desperately trying to avoid complete disaster on the fringe of western Russia. The attempt to take this great Volga city cost him perhaps half a million men directly, and the indirect cost of his failure is beyond computation at the moment. Stalingrad was the key to Russia and the keystone of Hitler's grand strategy. Once he took Stalingrad, his armies could wheel northward along the Volga for an attack upon Moscow from the rear. When Stalingrad fell it would be the beginning of the end for Russia. Hitler knew this, but the Russians knew it as well. They threw everything they had into the defence of the city. They defended it block by block, house by house, room by room, and when they ran out of rooms they defended it from dugouts and foxholes.

WHAT this heroic defence cost Hitler is known only to Hitler, and what it cost the Russians is known only to them. Canadians, however, can obtain some glimmering of what happened in Stalingrad from the new Russian documentary film "The City That Stopped Hitler," which is now being shown in this country. It is a picture which Canadians should see, for it provides them with what no other generation but our own has ever had—the chance to see one of the world's great climateric battles being waged before their eyes.

Eight Russian cameramen died in the making of this picture. This we can understand, for it is punctuated with shots of front line fighting. In it men, die, not as men die in batches in Hollywood epics, but singly from sniper bullets softly in infantry attacks over snow-covered fields. They died en masse in German prison camps, in great open ditches. They died, women as well as men, slowly and painfully from torture. It would be easy to say that because they died Stalingrad lived. But Stalingrad did not live. This great and beautiful city, with its fine new buildings, its parks, its schools and its broad paved streets, was wiped from the face of the earth. In the end, all that remained were charred block after block of ruins. First mass air raids and then the terrific pounding by the artillery of both sides laid waste to everything. You see this in the closing scenes of the picture in aerial views of unbroken mile on mile of desolation and ruin.

THE price which the people of Stalingrad paid for victory was high. Yet it was not without its compensations. They saw the remnants of Hitler's army which came to conquer and enslave start on its long trek to prison camps in Siberia. In lines that stretched to the far horizon they marched slowly through the hills to oblivion. They cut sorry figures, did these Nazi supermen. Gone was the bravado of the Berlin Sportspalast. Gone, too, was the clicking goosestep. Though the officer corps remained egotistically superior and defiant, the army that surrendered at Stalingrad had had more than enough of war. Russia was not France or the Low Countries. Here, there were no shops filled with goods to be looted and sent back home. There was no butter to be had by the brick, no ice cream, no fine silks and luxury goods. Here, at Stalingrad, there was only bleeding and dying and awful cold and hunger. Here was something the supermen of the master race had not expected. Here was a city which did not surrender even when destroyed. Here was a people who kept fighting when the battle was lost. Here the master race met its master. Here was indomitable will, stronger even than the will of Hitler, stronger beyond comparison than the will of von Paulus who, ironically, was raised to field marshal by Hitler on the morning of the day he surrendered.

The supermen trudged off to prison camps as back, across the Volga, came the women and children of Stalingrad to the ruins of their city, the ruins of their homes. "The City That Stopped Hitler" will bring this war home to Canadians as few other pictures have been able to do. It is truly a picture for Canadians to see.

A Bible Message

Thus saith the Lord, your redeemer, the Holy One of Israel....I, even I, am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins. (Isa. 43: 14, 25.)

Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness. Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David....

Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him: and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. (Isa. 55: 1-3, 6, 7.)

O sing unto the Lord a new song; for he hath done marvellous things: his right hand, and his holy arm, hath gotten him the victory. The Lord hath made known his salvation; his righteousness hath he openly shewed in the sight of the heathen. He hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. (Ps. 98: 1-3.)

THE PRICE CEILING

If the price-ceiling collapses—as Mr. Gordon fears it may—one important reason may be that it has been impaired in public favour by a number of the regulations which appear to the people as both unnecessary and absurd. The big battle may be in Ottawa on the wage front. But in the sewing circles in villages and cities, there is a growing opinion that some people in the price-control administration are plumb crazy.—Picton Gazette.

An International City

IT WOULD be hard to find another city of the size of Geneva that has played so prominent a part in modern international history. It is a city where no man is a stranger. It is not the largest town in Switzerland, but neither Zurich nor Bale nor Berne is a household word in the same way as Geneva. No adjective derived from their names has the currency that "Geneva" has in connection (e.g.) with Bibles, Confessions, Catechisms, Gowns, and Bands. We have to go back to Athens for a parallel, and we can reduce Athens in its palmy days to the size of Geneva only by ignoring the servile part of its population. The size of the Geneva territory, of which Voltaire could say, "when I shake my wig, I powder the whole republic," is curiously out of proportion to the historical influence it has exercised.

Situated on one of the larger Swiss lakes fed by water descending from the regions of eternal snow and ice, the first impression it makes suggests neither Alpine heights, nor Calvin, nor mediaevalism. It is just predominantly a gay and bright little place with streets and buildings in the French style, sweeping down on both sides to the pleasant boulevards bordering the lake. It is the capital of La Suisse Romande, or French Switzerland. Closer acquaintance with the town shows some quaint old buildings clustering round the cathedral and in other quarters; but in mediaeval picturesqueness Geneva does not rival either Zurich or Berne....

Of the distinguished natives of Geneva, Jean Jacques Rousseau is easily first; it is incontestable that in him Geneva, the international city, produced a conspicuous international figure. When we think of his direct influence on French thinking and on the framers of the American Constitution, we may well ask ourselves whether any speculative philosopher ever produced more striking results in the practical sphere of history.—From "A Wayfarer in Switzerland," by James F. Muirhead. (Boston: Houghton Mifflin.)

The Statue of the Archduke

THE town of Duesseldorf is very beautiful, and those who think of it when far away, and chance to have been born there, are filled with wondrous thoughts. I was born there, and I feel as though I must go home at once. And when I say "Home," I mean the Bolkerstrasse and the house where I was born. This house will some day be famous, and I have told the old woman who owns it, for goodness' sake not to sell it. She would at present hardly get as much for the whole house as the fees alone will amount to which someday green-veiled stately Englishwomen will give the waiting-maid, when she shows them the room where I first saw the light; ...and the brown door, too, on which my mother taught me to write my letters with chalk. Ay me, my mother will have had a deal of trouble to make a celebrated author of me, fair lady!

But at present my fame is still buried in the marble quarries of Carrara; the wastepaper crown of laurel, with which they will have crowned me, does not yet spread its scent over the whole world; and when the green-veiled proud Englishwomen come to Dusseldorf, they do not come to visit that celebrated house, but go straight to the market-place to look at the enormous black equestrian statue in the centre. This represents the Archduke Jan Wilhelm. He is clothed in black armor, and wears a bag-wig. As a boy I have heard it said that the artist who cast this statue had suddenly noticed to his alarm, during the process, that he had not sufficient metal, and so the townsmen had to come to his aid with their silver spoons, in order that he might finish the casting; and I used to stand before it for hours, wondering how many silver spoons it contained, and how many apple tarts might have been bought with all this silver? I had then a perfect passion for apple tarts—now my passion is for love, truth, freedom, and crab soup—and usually, not far from the Archduke's statue, might be seen a droll bow-legged fellow with a white apron and a basket filled with the most deliciously hot apple tarts, which he praised in an irresistible treble-voice, calling out: "Fresh apple tarts, just out of the oven. How nice they smell!" In truth, when in later years the tempter tried to assail me, he spoke to me in the same insinuating treble-voice...but this is a digression, for was I not talking about the statue, containing so many silver spoons and no soup, which represents the Archduke Jan Wilhelm?

He seems to have been an estimable gentleman, a patron of the arts, and himself very talented. He founded the picture-gallery at Dusseldorf, and in the Observatory there they show a very artistic wooden goblet, which he had carved in his leisure hours, of which he had twenty-four every day of the year.

At that period rulers were not so beset with cares as now, their crowns being grown more firmly to their heads, and at night they even covered these with a nightcap, and slept peacefully. The nations slept quietly at their feet, and greeted them in the morning with a "Good morning, father!" to which they gave answer, "Good morning, my dear children!" — Heinrich Heine, in his Memoirs. (1799-1856.)

Red Flannel

Is red flannel going to replace coal and wood this winter in meeting the fuel shortage? Maybe that purpose was in mind when the Wartime Prices and Trade Board gave assurance that there would be plenty of red flannel available.

Can you remember the days of the red flannel shirts and night gowns and the red flannel petticoats? There was a time when they flourished and in winter they brought more warmth than any other piece of wearing apparel. Red has always been associated with heat and red flannel certainly had a warming effect. In these modern days, red flannel has been seen very rarely, though the woodsmen of Northern Ontario and Quebec like the colour and the material and wear it in shirts and underwear. It is because of the warmth of this kind of clothing that those men go through the stiff winter of the north with little complaint.

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board was wise in making more red flannel available to battle the fuel shortage, for if you wear red flannel clothing close to your body you won't need as much coal in the furnace, or wood in the stove. That, at any rate, was the theory of the pioneers who fought the hard winters of early Canada—and it is being tried again in an age when flannel of any kind isn't worn as it used to be. — Lethbridge Herald.

Currently making the rounds in Holywood is this story of Louis B. Mayer, chief of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Passing the Douglas Aircraft plant one day, he was impressed with the skillful way in which it was camouflaged. As soon as possible, he called Douglas and asked to be connected with the camouflage expert. After a short speech praising his work, Mayer asked the Douglas man to camouflage his studios. The camoufleur declined with thanks.

"I'll give you a contract. I'll even double your present salary," persisted the film tycoon.

"I can't do it," was the answer.

"But why not?"

"When you camouflage a factory," replied the expert, "you must have an alternate target. And—Mr. Mayer—the alternate target for the Douglas plant is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer."

Asked by his hostess at a social gathering to explain his theory of relativity, Albert Einstein obliged her by recounting this parable of the blind man:

"I was once walking in the country with a blind friend of mine. It was a hot day, and I mentioned that nothing would taste better to me than a nice cold drink of milk.

"'Milk?' questioned my friend. 'Drink I know, but what is milk?'

"'A white liquid,' I answered.

"'Liquid I know, but what is white?'

"'The colour of a swan's feathers.'

"'Feathers I know, but what is a swan?'

"'A bird with a crooked neck.'

"'Neck I know, but what is this crooked?'

"Thereupon I lost patience. I seized his arm and straightened it. 'That is straight,' I said, and then bending his elbow, 'that's crooked.'

"'Ah!' said the blind man, 'now I know what you mean by milk.'"

Socialized Medicine

Indiana physicians meeting in Indianapolis has a good deal to say in opposition to the New Deal effort to socialize the healing art. They took the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill under fire and blasted away at it on the ground that if it should become law the freedom of medical practice would be destroyed and the relationship of physician and patient would be determined by Federal edicts, directives and regulations having the force of law.

The doctors are right and they are justified in their alarm. In leading the opposition, however, they inevitably give the impression that they are protecting their interest rather than the public interest. Since the leadership devolves upon them, both in the protection of their profession and in the protection of the people, this impression is hard to avoid. But the truth is that their fight is being conducted primarily in the public interest. The people as voters should make more of a fight to protect themselves from political medicine. That is the real issue.—Indianapolis News.

CGE-GENELCO RUGBY SQUAD DEFEATS LINDSAY 16-1 AT RIVERSIDE

Class Galore Listed On Big Card

Supporting the big British Empire championship brawl between Whipper Billy Watson and John Katan on Tuesday night, will be two preliminaries which promise undiluted action throughout. The semi-final bout will match Irish Pat Flanagan against Jarring Jan Gotch. Gotch has built up quite a surprising following here in spite of his back-alley tactics. On the other hand their are a good many fans who want to see this current wearer of the famous wrestling name, given a sound beating. Flanagan has always been a favorite here and with good reason. Irish Pat is a smooth wrestler with barrels of pluck and most of his bouts are high-lighted by his ability to take bruising punishment and still come back and hand his opponent a thrashing. A third match should be a honey for those who like their wrestling fast, clean and slippery. This bout has Joey Maich, the Brantford bouncer in against the flashy Montreal, Mike Demetre.

Nothing however can take the spotlight of the title match. Katan and Watson have been putting in some serious training licks and each states he is ready for the big test. The ruthless Katan is seriously out to stop Watson on this occasion, if need be by the injury route. John "Killer" Katan has injured more opponents, he states, than any other wrestler in the game today. Matching him this time however is an athlete who packs tremendous power in every muscle of his body and can use it with devastating effect. Whipper Billy Watson has really rocketed to the top in wrestling circles this past year and from what we hear about him, we don't think Katan can take him.

Fans are advised by the Arena management to come early for good seats.

Cleveland Team In First Place

By the Associated Press

Cleveland Barons were out in front in the American Hockey League to-day after the first week of play. In four games the Barons have beaten Pittsburg and Buffalo lost to Pittsburg, and yesterday came from behind to earn a 5-5 tie with Indianapolis.

Of the other clubs in the six-team circuit Pittsburg, Indianapolis, Buffalo, and Hershey each have won once. Providence still is seeking its first victory and first goal, having been shut out by both Hershey and Buffalo during the week-end.

Saturday night games saw Hershey trim Providence 2-0, Pittsburgh and Indianapolis fight through to a 1-1 tie and Cleveland take Buffalo 4-1.

Sunday, however, Buffalo bounced back in the win column with a last-minute goal that gave them a 1-0 victory over Providence, while Indianapolis and Cleveland settled for a 5-5 tie.

Peterborough got its first taste of organized rugby since the season of 1941 Saturday and a big crowd of fans enjoyed the novelty. Rich Jackson's Colts, a team composed of young players most of whom were playing their first organized football gave a good account of themselves in defeating a Lindsay team 16 to 1. The Peterborough youngsters showed surprising form in view of the fact that it was their first game. The back field handled the ball smartly and clipped off some good gains while the forward wall blocked and tackled nicely. Notable was the effective aerial attack displayed by the winners. Bill Edger who learned his football with the Bowmanville High School showed himself a passer of real ability. He took lots of time to get his shots away, picked out his target unerringly and his drives were fast and accurate. On the receiving end Joe Stewart was a standout. He picked the Edger passes out of the air with the same facility as he showed in grabbing off near-hits in centre field for the 4th Battery during the past summer. In addition to his success as a receiver he also hit the line hard, pivoting in smart style to go through for big gains.

* * * * * *

It was a game in which both clubs took to the air repeatedly. All three Peterborough touchdowns were scored on forwards, Bill Edger tossing scoring passes to Stewart and Don Davis while Roberts who shared the quarterback's duties with Berardi fired a touchdown pass to Stewart. The Lindsay outfit also depended largely on a passing game for their gains and Brigden who formerly played for Lindsay Collegiate showed some real class as a heaver. His line did not give him any too sure protection but in spite of that handicap he got away a lot of nice passes for considerable yardage. So much did forward passing dominate the game that both team threw orthodox football to the winds and disregarded rugby maxims completely by tossing passes from their own goal line. Lindsay did it a couple of times and one of the attempts cost them a touchdown. The Petes were guilty of the same gamble but their forward toss ended in a substantial gain. However the passing game kept the play wide open and the fans enjoyed it.

Record Crowd Likely

Everything points to the biggest wrestling crowd of the year at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night for the weekly Tunney battle of the behemoths. With the most popular grappler in Canada, Whipper Billy Watson defending his British Empire title against the dour and tough Killer John Katan the stage is all set for the class bout of the entire campaign. Katan is about as much disliked here for his mat tactics as Watson is admired and a clash between the two extremes in the wrestling art should provide a battle that will long be remembered. The cheers will all be for Watson of course but that will not bother the Panther very much. He doesn't care about the crowd. All he wants is a chance to clamp his chin lock on the Whipper and he declares that if he does, nothing will save the idol of Toronto, except a referee who doesn't know his business. That is worrying the Palermo contender a lot more than the expected hostility of the fans. He is afraid that the Whipper may get some help from the third man in the ring if the pressure should be on. On the other hand of course Watson is supremely confident. He says he doesn't care who referees and adds that he doesn't need assistance in making Mr. Katan say uncle in short order. Watson, fast, clever and courageous is a great crowd-pleaser. The fans like his looks and his actions and the smooth manner in which he works. His battle with Katan should be a classic.

* * * * * *

The supporting bouts are worthy of the main attraction. Watson's shadow and training mate Irish Pat Flanagan is matched in the semi-final with the turbulent Jan Gotch and we have a hunch that Flanagan is in for a tough session. Gotch has shown himself to be considerable of a bad man and he'll undoubtedly go to work on Flanagan whose impetuous style makes him a shining target for the back-alley school of grapplers. However the Toronto Irishman can take care of himself in rough going and if he loses his temepr the aggressive Gotch is likely to feel sorry that he didn't stick more closely to the code. The first bout brings together two fast and clever boys in Joe Maich, the Brantford speedster and Mike Demetre the Montreal Greek who can also turn it on. There will be plenty of action with those two fast-moving battlers engaged. It should be a speedy and clean start to one of the strongest cards that Promoter Tunney has staged this season. Plenty of seats will be provided and the Arena of course will be comfortably heated. The management is preparing for the biggest attendance of the year and the quality of the bill rates just that kind of a crowd.

It's Quite A Race

The senior O.R.F.U. race tightened up considerably as a result of Saturday's double-header in Toronto. The Balmy Beach outfit kept their playoff chances alive by nosing out the Ottawa Combines 4 to 3 in the first game. It was a decidedly close call for the Combines played stubborn, effective football all along the line and the Bammies were tickled to death to win by the solitary point. The winning margin came in the final period when a placement attempt by Annis Stukus who had booted a field goal early in the pastime missed the posts but resulted in a single. Hamilton Wildcats suffered their first defeat of the season in the second game when the Hurricanes roaring back from a bad trimming at the hands of the Bammies played fine football and outscored the team from the shadow of the mountain 12 to 8. It was a strange twist that the winning touchdown was made possible by an error by Hamilton's Mr. Football Joe Krol who threw a wild lateral that was picked up by Red Heron and turned into a major score.

Toronto Maple Leafs are away to a flying start in the N.H.L. race. To nobody's surprise Hap Day's mixture of veterans and rookies slapped down the New York Rangers Saturday night 5 goals to 2 and to almost everybody's astonishment they invaded Chicago Sunday night and handed the Black Hawks a 4 to 1 trouncing. On paper the Leafs do not look strong enough to be beating anybody but the Rangers but this is one of those years when experting at best is but a blind stab. Feature of the opening game was the good work of Gus Bodnar, the Port Arthur rookie who fired two goals for the Leafs Saturday night. Boston Bruins spoiled the Canadiens' opener by holding the once-flying Frenchmen to a 2-2 tie. It came near being worse than that, Toe Blake preventing a Boston victory by a late solo goal. Sunday night the Detroit Red Wings with the veteran Syd Howe and Mud Bruneteau hitting the mesh twice each had an easy 8 to 3 win over the Rangers who have already established their fight to a cellar priority. Most important feature about the opening games was the fact that near sell-out crowds at Toronto, Montreal, Detroit and Chicago attended. It's a queer thing that folk who will declare to high heaven that they cannot afford to buy a Victory Bond will plank down $5 for a pair of tickets for that kind of hockey and come back next week for more.

Edger, Stewart Star For Peterboro

Rich. Jackson's Colts made their football debut an auspicious one here Saturday when they defeated the Lindsay Bears 16 to 1 in an exhibition game at Riverside Park. It was the first rugby game here since 1941 and a nice crowd turned out to see the revival of football and really enjoyed the exhibition.

The Peterborough youngsters, the majority of whom had never played an organized game before showed a lot of stuff, considering the fact that they have only been working out a short time. The backfielders gave a good account of themselves and the line was somewhat surprisingly strong, in view of the limited workouts.

The Lindsay team were handicapped by the fact that the lineup was picked up at the last moment, without a chance for practice, but the visitors gamely stuck to their guns and made a good battle of it although they never had a chance to win.

A smooth-working backfielder who learned his football in Bowmanville, Bill Edger, and a tall Peterborough youngster, Joe Stewart, making his first start in football, sparked the Colts attack. Edger hit the line hard and made some nice runs, but his real worth was in his de luxe forward passing that hit the target repeatedly for big gains. Stewart gathered in the passes in great style and besides shining as a receiver tore through the line for big gains and tackled hard on the defensive. Bill Shadgett on the half line was in the limelight with some nice runs and altogether the team looked good.

For Lindsay, who had the help of several Peterborough players, Brigden, the former Lindsay Collegiate half, shone through his accurate forward passing, but the star of the outfit was the hard-working Kirley at quarter back. He, too, is a former Lindsay Collegiate player and never stopped trying Saturday. Miller, a Peterborough boy, did some good line plunging.

Russ Scriver, home on leave from his R.C.A.F. training at Aylmer, umpired the first half of the game and then donned a uniform and played for Lindsay in the second half and was a big help. He kicked their only point and made some nice gains on running plays.

Dominate Play

The Peterborough youngsters dominated the play in the first period. After the kick off good gains by Stewart and Edger, followed by a long punt by McBain carried the attack well into the Lindsay territory. Tommy Craig recovered a Lindsay fumble to put the Petes in a scoring position but the first attempt failed to click. However the visitors could not get the ball out of their own end of the field, and the Petes cashed in on a long forward over the goal line from Edger to Joe Stewart. The first attempt at a convert by a forward pass failed, but Lindsay were offside on the play and the Petes got another chance. Outram kicked a goal from placement for the extra point to make it 6 to 0.

Colts kept on pressing and a little later it was 11 to 0 when Roberts, who alternated with Berardi at quarter, tossed a neat forward to Stewart who took it three yards out from the Lindsay goal line and ripped over for a touch down. It was not converted.

There was no scoring in the second period. The Colts started several promising marches but the attacks bogged down on each occasion and Lindsay, with Brigden lining accurate forwards, had more of the play, although they failed to get in scoring range.

The Colts made it 16 to 0 in the third period and once again it was a through-the-air-play that was responsible for the scoring. Edger, standing on the Lindsay 20-yard line hit Don Davis with a touchdown pass straight down the centre and over the Lindsay goal line. Lindsay back fielders ganged up to cover Stewart on that play and Edger taking all kinds of time held the ball until Davis was in the clear and then drilled a neat pass into the hands of the Colts outside wing.

Lindsay got the only point of the final period. Several successful forwards by Brigden carried them close. They lost a single by being offside on one play but Scriver booted over the Petes' line again and this time the rouge that resulted went down on the score sheet.

The Colts struck back hard and carried the play to the Lindsay goal line only to have a forward pass go wrong when a major score seemed certain.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—After visiting around at last week's International Baseball League meeting, Manager Tommy Thomas of the Baltimore Orioles reports that money won't be any good in the player market this winter and most clubs won't even trade until about February.

Gunder Haegg, like Paavo Nurmi, is going into the haberdashery business..That doesn't necessarily mean he's breaking off ties with the sports world.

Luck Of The Irish

With Angie Bertelli doing the chuckin', the Irish probably could score with a pumpkin and you safely can bet your wife's only nylons that Army is glad he'll be at Parris Island. Notre Dame must depend on substitute Lujack, who also can pass and hit like a Beau Jack.

Another Sellout

When Bill Cross, Oklahoma's business manager of Athletics went to Dallas for the Oklahoma-Texas game a few weeks ago, he found hotel accommodations so scarce that he slept in the bridal suite, with a lavender satin headboard behind him and lovebirds over his head... sounds as if the hotel manager was looking for a few free ducats.

Will Plunder Minor Leagues

CHICAGO, Nov. 1—(AP)— Foreseeing a player shortage created by service calls, major baseball league officials today were expected to reach deeply into the Class A, Double-A, and A-1 minors for talent at the annual player-draft meeting with Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Virtually all the 16 major league clubs planned to attend the baseball raffle with prepared lists of available 4-F's, youngsters and oldsters. The first selection will be made by the Philadelphia Athletics and the second by the New York Giants —both being given preference after finishing last in their respective leagues. The American League cellar team gets first selection over the National on odd years.

There are an estimated 183 players eligible for drafting from the some 60 minor league clubs in operation this year, and many of these lads have had previous tryouts. A Class AA player's price tag is $7,500 and a Class A $6,000.

Winnipeg Team Cops Win In Final Game

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1—(CP).—Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers reaffirmed their claim to the role of No. 1 football team in Western Canada here Saturday by pounding out a convincing 11-0 victory over Winnipeg United Services in the final game of the Western Canada Armed Services Rugby League schedule.

It was the sixth consecutive victory for the Bombers coached by Reg Threlfall and they will open a two-game playoff with Regina All-Services Roughriders in Winnipeg next Saturday.

LAC. Sammy Lavitt and Sgt. Dave Greenberg played sensational football in the powerful crimson-clad aggregation's triumph. Both scored touchdowns, Lavitt dashing 95 yards for his in the third quarter. Greenberg hit pay dirt on a quarterback sneak in the second quarter.

Ches McCance, flashy Bomber halfback, was the other marksman for the Airmen when he booted the extra point after Lavitt's major score.

There was little to choose between the two clubs during the first quarter, but the overall power of Bombers began to exert itself in the second quarter.

A series of passes and plunges led to Greenberg's touchdown, with the quarterback lugging the pigskin over from the one-yard stripe. McCance's attempt for the convert failed.

The ball was on the R.C.A.F. five-yard line in the third period when Lavitt sailed around right end. Shaking off a series of tacklers, he bolted like lightning for the United Service goal-line. McCance made no mistake with the convert.

United Services, although receiving a brilliant performance from their shifty halfback, Cpl. Paul Bates fought desperately for the decision. However, try as they did, it was to no avail.

LEAFS SCORE DOUBLE WIN OVER WEEK-END; RANGERS LOOK WEAK

Bostonians Tie Canadiens, Wings Top N.Y.

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Wartime National League hockey may lack the polish and power of pre-war days, but the quality of mercy is not strained—not among the cash customers, anyway.

An average of 13,246 fans paid to see week-end opening games, sending the 1943-44 campaign off to a swift start and giving rise to speculation that all attendance records for major professional hockey may be shattered this season.

The one jarring note was injected by New York Rangers, who dropped two contests by alarming counts and looked just as miserable in other statistical departments — for instance rookie netminder Ken McAuley handled 98 shots in the double disaster compared with 36 his mates were able to direct at rival netminders.

Rangers lost 8-3 to Detroit Red Wings Sunday and 5-2 Saturday to Toronto Maple Leafs, who demonstrated that the triumph was no fluke by crushing Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 in Chicago Sunday. Boston Bruins played Montreal Canadiens to a 2-2 deadlock in the Canadian city Saturday to gain a third place tie with their rivals, one point behind Detroit and three behind Leafs.

Lack Punch

While Rangers had the excuse of foreign ice to offer for both their reverses, their lack of a purposeful offensive invalidated the alibi At Toronto, they trailed 5 to 0 until Jack McDonald and Dutch Hiller [illegible]ed third-period shots to prevent a shutout. The Leafs struck early in each period, rookie Gus Bodnar scoring fifteen seconds after the first face - off and again at 1:41 of the third period after assisting Lorne Carr in the second Toronto tally at 1.16 of the middle session. Jackie Hamilton and Ted (Teeter) Kennedy provided the other Leaf scores.

Grant Warwick and Bryan Hextall, two of New York's five holdovers from last season, took the charge of Rangers scoring at Detroit, Warwick sniping twice, but the Wings scored five times while Rangers were shorthanded, two of them 22 seconds apart in the second period while Hextall served time. Syd Howe and Mud Bruneteau counted twice with single goals going to Joe Carveth, Carl Liscombe, Adam Brown and Bernie Ruelle.

Mel Hill paced Toronto against Chicago, scoring twice in the first period after Bill Mosienko opened for Hawks on a play with Doug Bentley and Bill Thoms. Jack Ingoldsby crashed Hec Highton's barrier in the second period and Russ Johnstone found the mark unassisted in the final frame.

Montreal su[illegible]ed from behind a 2-0 deficit to tie Boston, Fernand Majeau and Toe Blake delivering the one-two punch. Herb Cain and Chuck Scherza were first-period marksmen for Bruins, who wilted after a fast start.

Hockey Stars Are In the Army Now

Privates Turk Broda and Billy Taylor of the Canadian Army team, photographed when they played in a Victory Loan game at the Maple Leaf Gardens. The speculation now is: Will They play in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association competitions as members of the Army team?

Hockey Plan Gets Approval

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—(CP).—A resolution sponsored by the Ontario Minor Hockey Association whereby bantam, midget, juvenile and midget players may play in the Junior O. H. A. without imperilling their status in the lower brackets was approve Saturday by an O.H.A. sub-committee, it was announced to-day.

The resolution, designed to reduce the manpower strain, will apply for the war's duration.

The meeting accepted an application for Junior "B" rating from H. M.C.S. Cataraqui, a Kingston Navy entry. Clubs granted Intermediate "A" classification were Woodstock Army, Camp Borden Army and Camp Borden R.C.A.F.

It was announced that the University of Toronto annual O.H.A. scholarship was awarded to Robert L. Campbell of Stratford, described as an outstanding student. The Queen's University O.H.A. scholarship for 1943-44 went to George Hook of Gananoque and Lennox Lane of Sudbury, a joint award.

Plans for the O. H. A. annual meeting Nov. 20 were discussed. The O. H. A. executitve will meet Nov. 19.

Coach Happy Day of Toronto's National League Maple Leafs led a rules discussion at a meeting of O. H.A. referees.

In four run-away games in U. S. pro football Sunday, each of the winners scored 34 or more points. Washington blasted Brooklyn 48-10; Green Bay Packers disposed of New York 35-12; Detroit Lions were outclassed by Chicago Bears 35-14 and Chicago Cardinals fell before Philadelphia-Pittsburgh 34-13.

Shut Out Wins

It was Mrs. Payne Whitney's Shut Out, four-year-old son of Equipoise, who won the seventh annual Pimlico Special Saturday for the $25,000 winner-take-all purse, defeating Slide Rule by a nose in a four-horse race. The win boosted Shut Out's earnings to $314,607.

The U.S. Eastern Amateur Hockey League opens as four - team circuit Wednesday in Baltimore when the Coast Guard Cutters, last year's champions, take on the New York Rovers. Philadelphia Falcons are at home to the Boston Olympics Saturday for the second game of the schedule.

For the third straight year, Boysy, purchased by Tom Heard for a mere $100 several seasons back, won the Scarsdale Handicap at Empire meeting Saturday, finishing three lengths in front of Bright Willie.

Tunney Fights

Cmdr. Gene Tunney, the former heavyweight champion of the world, returned to the ring Saturday night somewhere in the South Pacific when he sparred lightly with Carpenter's Mate Tom Heeney whom he had knocked out in the 11th round of a bout staged at the Polo Grounds, New York, back in 1928.

When Cleveland Barons banged out a 4-1 win over Buffalo Bisons in an American League fixture at Cleveland Saturday night, featured by 14 penalties, it was the last appearance of Alex (Bud) Cook, Baron forward for 10 years, before reporting to the U.S. Coast Guard.

Wildcats Taste First Defeat From Hurricanes

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The thrilling stretch duel between Hamilton Flying Wildcats and the R.C.A.F. Hurricanes and Balmy Beach from Toronto for the two play-off spots in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series today moved toward its climax after Saturday games involving all three teams did little to untangle the situation.

Hurricanes battled their way back into a first-place tie in the standings by handing Wildcats their first defeat, 12-8, in the second game of a doubleheader in Toronto. Beaches remained one point behind the two leading squads with a 4-3 win over Ottawa's rejuvenated Combines in the first. The other two teams in the Union—Toronto Indians and Toronto Navy—were idle.

Easy For Cats

Wildcats have the smoothest path to the playoffs. Their two remaining games are in Hamilton with Indians and Navy. Hurricanes play Navy Wednesday and then come back for their fifth game in two weeks against Beaches in Toronto next Saturday in a game which may settle the play-off issue. Beaches other game is a night contest Nov. 10 against Navy.

Hurricanes won Saturday by outplaying their formidable foes most of the way and by cashing in on one break for a touchdown. Annis Stukus, leading scorer in the Union, led Beaches to their victory in a hard-fought game. It was the fourth game in 11 days for the Toronto team.

Stukus' placement kick in the first quarter gave Coach Alex Ponton's club a first half lead of 3-1 but Arnie McWatters kicked two singles in the third quarter to tie the score. Then in the final quarter Stukus registered again, his placement missing the bars but rolling to the deadline for the single point which won the game.

Hurricanes were plainly superior to Wildcats in the first half of their contest, scoring four points on a placement and a single by Sgt. Charlie Prince and keeping play in Hamilton territory for all but about four minutes.

The Hamilton attack clicked in the third quarter, largely through the dynamic plunging of Paul Miocinovich whose long gains paved the way for a single and a touchdown by Joe Krol.

The Air Force tied the score early in the fourth quarter on singles by Prince and then LAC. Robert (Red) Heron snapped up the ball when Krol tossed a bad lateral to his backfield mate, Flt. Sgt. Murray Crowe, and ran 22 yards for a touchdown which Prince converted. The best Wildcats could do in reply was to offer singles by Walter Gibb and Krol.

West Brom Beats Aston Villa

LONDON, Nov. 1—(CP Cable)—Aston Villa fell from its pedestal as the only unbeaten club in Britain's professional soccer season Saturday when the youthful West Bromwich Albion team won a thrilling 5-4 victory that topped the day's program of high scoring games throughout the country.

Albions played at home before 25,500, one of the largest league gatherings of the war, shot up to sixth place in the League North standing by its victory while the Villa dropped to second position. Sunderland, which played a scoreless draw with Bradford, edged into the top spot on the basis of a better goal average, although Sunderland and the Villa each had 16 points.

Two Albion goals were scored by W. G. Richardson, only veteran on the forward line. Billy Elliot, 22, called by the Albion management "the best outside wing prospect in years," also counted twice while 19-year-old Ev Evans got the other.

Among the best of other Northern tilts, Coventry whipped Northampton 4-1, Manchester United defeated Liverpool 1-0 and Leicester walloped Notts County 9-1. The most extraordinary feat of the day was accomplished by the Wanderers, cellar dwellers, who inflicted the first home defeat on Blackpool in two years. The score was 2-1.

The League South leadership changed hands when Chelsea after five successive victories fell 5-1 before Tottenham Hotspurs. Queen's Park Rangers overwhelmed Southampton 7-0 and took the lead with a slightly better goal average than West Ham who won 6-2 from Fulham. Arsenal drew 1-1 with Crystal Palace.

In the League West the leading Bath team was trounced 5-0 by Lovell's Athletic.

Dumbarton fell into second place in the Scottish Southern League when trounced 4-1 by Morton. Hiberians jumped to the top with a 2-2 draw with Celtic.

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP). — During all the discussion about service hockey, it must be remembered that quite a number of hockey stars are serving overseas. Ed. Armstrong of the Winnipeg Free Press notes that Gordon McMurdy, a Winnipeg junior puck star who became commander of an R.C.A.F. squadron, is reported missing after air operations—Jake Milford, who played senior amateur hockey with Lethbridge and Turner Valley before turning professional with Cleveland Barons, now is a pilot officer posted to a night bombing squadron overseas.

Quip of the week:

Alan (Brantford Expositor) Rose: "Reg Threlfall, coach of the Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers, maybe said it unconsciously. He was quoted thus: 'I have a very good line.' You can transfer that to any hockey coach who is requested to give his opinion at this time."

De-iced again:

Although the military have turned Vancouver's Forum back to the Exhiibtion Board, it's doubtful the rink will be available for hockey after all. The directors don't think they can get the ice plant in shape in time....Vancouver's Sea Island R.C.A.F. hockey team is coached by Cpl. Bobby Kirk, former New York Rangers player.... His players include Johnny Quilty, Stan King, Jack Adams, Lou Labovich, Eddie Shamlock, Tony Licari, Vic Verde, Lyle Swaney, and Doug Norris.

Incidentally:

Stratford Kroehlers of the Junior O.H.A. kept their big secret all summer—all in vain. Kroehlers had 19-year-old Billy Warwick of Regina in Stratford all summer and were keeping it mighty quiet so some other club would not try to steal him. But Lester Patrick had the "dope" through brother Grant Warwick and signed Billy for his New York Rangers....The grapevine says new Army restrictions on service hockey are playing ducks-and-drakes with the Montreal Army team which is reported to have lost Defenceman Des Smith and Jack Portland in addition to Pat Egan. Ottawa Commandos are in similar straits and have invited several civilians out to practices.

LAKEFIELD

Small Youngster Lives After 50-Foot Plunge

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 1 (ENS). — Colin Campbell, 10-year-old son of Capt. and Mrs. Campbell, Regent street, Lakefield, who plunged 50 feet from an upper floor in one of the drier buildings of the Canada Cement Company, Saturday afternoon is still alive today and his condition is reported to be slightly improved, although he is suffering from several skull fractures and a broken leg between the hip and knee.

In company with three playmates, Miles and Grace Huddlestone, and John Pearson, Colin was playing in the Cement building which is being wrecked. The children were attempting to catch pigeons nesting there and Colin tossed a handful of debris towards the birds perched among the roof girders and stepped back to avoid the falling chunk. He fell through a four-foot opening, where wreckers had begun to dismantle the floor, and plunged some fifty feet to land on a pile of scrap iron. He is believed to have fallen from the third or fourth floor.

It is thought that his fall was partly broken by a girder on the way down. His chums raced down as quickly as they could, calling to the Richardson Company elevator crew across the road, who in turn sent for Dr. E. H. Moore who with Miles Huddelstone, 11, holding his chum in his lap, rushed the unconscious boy to the Nicholls Hospital. Dr. J. C. Dawson of Peterborough is the physician.

At the time of the accident, his mother was visiting his father who is stationed with the Dental Corps in Kingston. A telephone call brought them to Port Hope on the next train where they were met by Jack Brown and they reached the hospital about 9 o'clock Saturday night.

Chief Garnet Samis said that during the summer, he had repeatedly chased children from the buildings, as there are no guards other than the wrecking crews and it is difficult to keep children away.

Lady Drummers Steal Show At Rangers' Band Concert

The girls of the Peterborough Women's Service Corps drum and bugle band stole the show at the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) Band Concert Sunday night in their brief performance before an enthusiastically cheering crowd.

To the stirring strains of "Over There" played by the Rangers, the girls paraded to the platform and the drums gave a solo performance and then joined the Rangers Band in another effective setting of the same piece. In the past few weeks, the girls, who are being trained by Sgt. Harold Barton and Cpl. William Scott of the Rangers, have improved greatly and fit easily in with the other group. Only one of the buglers, Lois McBride, performed briefly, because the buglers have not had an opportunity to master their instruments yet. C.S.M. Mary Gregson conducted.

In another display of smartness, 13 members of the P.W.S.C. were presented with certificates from the St. John Ambulance Brigade for having completed their courses. These were presented by Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., and Major Gordon Monkman, M.C. E.D. Each girl saluted smartly before and after receiving her certificate, with plenty of snap.

Capt. W. H. Peryer conducted his men through a delightful variety program in which old and new were mixed. One of the more difficult numbers, "Largo" from Symphony No. 5 (The New World) showed shading to advantage and a fine depth of tone through its performance. The plaintive motif in the middle of the familiar "Going Home," was handled with skill and feeling.

Waltz Favorites

Under the title "Charm of the Waltz," the Band introduced a medley of waltz favorites which set the feet tapping in rhythm. This included parts of such tunes as Lehar's "Gold and Silver Waltz." "Voices of Spring," and "The Blue Danube," by Strauss. The men played these with a delicate timing and sure touch, which made it one of the hits of the show. Two well known pieces, "Coming in on a Wing and a Prayer," and the "National Emblem March," were done well too.

Perhaps the most popular section of their program was a group of old songs, familiar to the entire audience. While the melodies were simple, the sudden change of tempo and melody involved required considerable dexterity in handling, which was forthcoming. Some of the songs were: "Glow Worm," "Kerry Dance," "My Ain Folk. "Just a Song at Twilight," "Land of Hope and Glory," and "The Lost Chord." The audience was given an opportunity to join in with the words here.

Vocalists Too

Several vocal selections were given by younger Peterborough artists. Miss Olga Westbye sang the ever popular "When We Were Very Young." or more familiarly known as "Christopher Robin Is Saying His Prayers." She showed good diction, vivacious expression and well supported tones. She and her sister, Miss Margaret Westbye, sang two duets, "Thou Art O God, The Life and Light," and "Barcarolle." Their voices blended well and they handled the difficult runs in the former with ease. Adam Hawley sang "Bless This House" and "Church Bells of England" with good expression, although on his softer notes the words were indistinguishable at times. He also led in the singing of the closing hymn "For Those in Peril on the Sea." The singers were accompanied by Harry Northrop.

Mayor James Hamilton opened the program paying tribute to the work of the Corps. He said that when war broke out without waiting for the Government to call them they formed a group which has acted in an auxilary capacity and trained many girls who have gone into active service and have helped in canteen work and other civic jobs. He expressed the gratitude of the city for their duties, past, present and future.

Major Gordon Monkman acted as chairman and Gordon K. Fraser presented the certificates. Adjutant Mrs. Mary Craig of the P.W.S.C. spoke briefly on behalf of the Corps and the commander. Miss Flossie Mitchell thanked the artists for their assistance.

Egg Prices Climb To 55c At Market

Top grade eggs sold up to 55 cents a dozen on the market Saturday. Other sizes sold down to 50 and 48 cents, and some of those that were described as ungraded were quoted at 45 cents. This section of the market presented more price strength than in recent weeks.

Butter was 40 cents a pound, with only a small offering. Year-old chickens were 30 cents, and birds from this year's flocks were 33 to 35 cents; geese were 35 cents and ducks 35 to 38 cents a pound. The poultry supply seemed to be more than ample for the morning's demand.

Potatoes were $1.90 and $2 a bag. Farmers reported a firm demand.

Norman Moncrief quoted apples as follows: McIntosh Reds, 80 cents a peck or $3 a bushel; Talman Sweets, 70 cents or $2.50 the bushel; Snows, 65 cents and $2.50 a bushel and Baxters 60 cents and $2.25.

The last of the tomatoes were sold at 60 cents a six-quart basket. They have been kept in storage since picking. Turnips were six for 25 cents. Cabbages were 10 and 15 cents each, and cauliflowers two for 25 cents.

More ducks and geese were offered Saturday than at recent weekends.

Stalin Toasts Allied Forces

MOSCOW, Nov. 1 — (AP). — Technical experts labored to-day to put the finishing touches to the work of the tri-partite conference as the historic meeting neared its conclusion in an atmosphere of marked friendship and cordiality.

While there were no further talks yesterday between the principal delegates— Foreign Secretary Eden, United States State Secretary Cordell Hull, and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov—the conference drafting committee passed a busy day.

The spirit of amity which has been manifest since the beginning of the conference on October 19 reached its peak at a state dinner in the Kremlin on Saturday night, at which Premier Stalin proposed toasts to the success of the talks, the British and United States armies in Italy, and their airmen in Britain.

London dispatches said there was general elation there over what was regarded as the successful conclusion of the conference and that an official announcement on the decisions taken could be expected shortly.

CBS correspondent Edward Murrow, broadcasting from London last night, predicted the announcement would be forthcoming late to-day. He cautioned, however, that too much should not be expected because "the cmmunique, when it comes, can't possibly measure up to the hopes and expectations" which he said had been aroused by President Roosevelt last Friday in describing the talks as a great success.

Are YOU going to be a kangaroo?
A kangaroo's life is pretty soft.
At an early age he gets a free ride everywhere. When he grows up, he uses his long legs and small brain to take him hoppity-hop, hoppity-hop, anywhere he wants to go.
And he isn't going anywhere, anyway.
No true Canadian wants to be a kangaroo. In the first place, he isn't interested in getting a free ride at the expense of others. In the second, he knows that the war isn't going to be won by hoppity-hop. Thirdly, the average Canadian is going somewhere.
True Canadians are sharing in the cost of this war by buying Victory Bonds. They're helping themselves buy more Victory Bonds by cutting down hoppity-hop buying of needless luxuries. They're holding onto the Victory Bonds they do buy against that bright new world of tomorrow towards which we are all headed.

East Peterboro Boosts Saturday Loan

Peterborough county picked up the burden of the Fifth Victory Loan Saturday, assuming the week-end leadership in bulging out the total to $3,556,550 or 77.32 per cent of the objective, as compared with the required 66.65 per cent, leaving less than the last quarter of the stretch drive to be made up in the six days which began with this fine November morning.

Opinion was decidly buoyant this morning that Peterborough was again going to deliver the goods trimly and on time, no loose ends hanging over next Saturday night. However, there are six days to go. It has largely been a steady campaign without any pressure of extremely urgent appeal as the men and women in industrial employment went out to set a strong pace from the very eve of the opening action. So, that is the hope and the prospect, but it will take a lot of strenuous work to get the job done as desired.

Havelock supplied the feature of Saturday's report, breaking through the 100% objective after a consistently strenuous and forward running performance which shook off the bid from Smith township toward the middle of last week, and went on to clinch the job with a full week to spare.

Loans to the Government Saturday amounted to $113,000. This sum was made up as follows: Rural canvass $63,750; city general canvass $39,550; and city employees' canvass, $9,700.

Special names have evidently covered their territory and are resting on their laurels of 104 per cent.

Otonabee township went to bat Saturday for $26,050 increasing their total to $85,900 and moving into fourth place right on schedule time. Although the big rural neighbor to the south east has been lagging behind the bustle of the two first weeks of the campaign, their percentage on Saturday night was 66.08 per cent of their objective, and the required percentage for the two week's drive was 6.65.

Belmont's Long Leap

Right on the heels of Havelock's perfect score was the long spurt by Belmont-Methuen from the ninth place in the percentage column to third place, and the sweep through East Peterborough extended along the Norwood front for a substantial gain in the Rork Ferguson's village with its formidable objective of $60,000.

Norwood's sale of bonds was actually second to Otonabee's and Belmont-Methuen was the third largest total in the day's returns. These figures were:—Otonabee $26,050; Norwood $9,200 and Belmont-Methuen $7,050.

These three municipalities accounted for $42,300 of the counyt's total of $63,750 for Saturday.

Lakefield and Dummer each sold around $4,000 in Victory Bonds for their contributions, and progress was almost complete at all points of the line.

Sales in Douro were $5,300 but not enough to keep the township from being pushed back one notch in the day's standing.

Constable Paid For Extra Duty Inspector Says

The practice of constables policing dance-halls and other places of entertainment in their off-duty hours and being paid for their services entered largely into the picture in police court this morning when Robert Blackwood, 18, was charged with assaulting Constable Allan Edmison while in the execution of his duty.

The charge arose out of an incident at a dance in the Canadian Legion Hall on the night of October 21-22, and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who defended Blackwood, brought out the fact that the officer was there in his spare time and that he had been paid $5 for his services by the promoter of the dance, a man named Tully.

Police Inspector James F. Reid was called by the crown to state that he had detailed Edmison to go on duty at the dance that night.

"You knew that he was going to be paid $5 for his services?" asked Mr. Gordon.—Yes.

"Are the constables paid $5 when they go to ball games in their off time?"—"Yes." "And to the Brock St. Rink?"—"Yes."

"They wear the uniforms provided by the police commission?"—"They wear the regulation uniforms, yes."

"Does the police commission know of this practice?"

"I cannot say that. It is a practice that has been going on for many years."

Constable Edmison stated that he was on duty at the Legion Hall that night and there had been a fight outside the hall. Going out to investigate he had seen Robert Blackwood running away. Later he said Blackwood returned to the Legion Hall.

Describes Assault

"He was pushing people around and making a nuisance of himself" said the witness who added that when he asked Blackwood if he had received the cut on his head in the fight outside accused had sworn and stated that it was none of the officer's business.

2 Young Men Are Held Robbery Count

Two young men were charged in police court this morning with being guilty of the smash-and-grab robbery of Bert Austin's jewelry store, Charlotte street, last Wednesday night.

Claude M. Hopkins, of Lakefield, who was arrested in Toronto Saturday morning, was defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. and declined to elect. He was remanded until Saturday.

Gordon Scriver, of Peterborough, who had been sought by the police for several days and who was finally arrested Sunday night at his boarding house here, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Austin store and at the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., was remanded until Monday for sentence.

Mr. Gordon objected to that course but Magistrate Langley said that he did not see how the action would prejudice the case of Mr. Gordon's client.

Constable Paid For Extra Duty Inspector Says

The practice of constables policing dance-halls and other places of entertainment in their off-duty hours and being paid for their services entered largely into the picture in police court this morning when Robert Blackwood, 18, was charged with assaulting Constable Allan Edmison while in the execution of his duty.

The charge arose out of an incident at a dance in the Canadian Legion Hall on the night of October 21-22, and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who defended Blackwood, brought out the fact that the officer was there in his spare time and that he had been paid $5 for his services by the promoter of the dance, a man named Tully.

Police Inspector James F. Reid was called by the crown to state that he had detailed Edmison to go on duty at the dance that night.

"You knew that he was going to be paid $5 for his services?" asked Mr. Gordon.—Yes.

"Are the constables paid $5 when they go to ball games in their off time?"—"Yes." "And to the Brock St. Rink?"—"Yes."

"They wear the uniforms provided by the police commission?"—"They wear the regulation uniforms, yes."

"Does the police commission know of this practice?"

"I cannot say that. It is a practice that has been going on for many years."

Constable Edmison stated that he was on duty at the Legion Hall that night and there had been a fight outside the hall. Going out to investigate he had seen Robert Blackwood running away. Later he said Blackwood returned to the Legion Hall.

2 Young Men Are Held Robbery Count

Two young men were charged in police court this morning with being guilty of the smash-and-grab robbery of Bert Austin's jewelry store, Charlotte street, last Wednesday night.

Claude M. Hopkins, of Lakefield, who was arrested in Toronto Saturday morning, was defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. and declined to elect. He was remanded until Saturday.

Gordon Scriver, of Peterborough, who had been sought by the police for several days and who was finally arrested Sunday night at his boarding house here, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Austin store and at the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., was remanded until Monday for sentence.

Mr. Gordon objected to that course but Magistrate Langley said that he did not see how the action would prejudice the case of Mr. Gordon's client.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 1 (CP).—Lieut. Sydney T. Clark of Port Arthur, now serving in Scotland with the Canadian Forestry Corps, recently danced with Queen Elizabeth in Balmoral Castle.

In a letter to his wife, Lieut. Clark said he adn his fellow officers received invitations to the castle where he met the King and Queen and the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose.

After their introduction to the Royal Family, Clark and a friend entered the ball room where a Scottish reel was in progress.

"We both sat the dance out," he said he and his fellow officers re-which were strange to us....

A charming lady in black lace came over and asked 'Why are you not dancing?' I stood up quickly and said I was sorry I didn't know any Scottish dances.

"Well, there is no time like the present to learn," she said, "and with that she led me out on the floor."

"I couldn't and wouldn't refuse because my dancing teacher was the Queen—and so it began, with Her Majesty telling me what to do and when."

Dynamite Explosion Recalled By Old-Timers Of District

Memories of the spectacular dynamite explosion on the Sixth Line near Lakefield on Friday, September 4, 1884, appear to be etched deeply in the minds of district people who were living at that time, judging from the number of references, letters and telephone calls received at the Examiner office since a story was published a few days ago.

Briefly the story is this: Two men, George Morton and James Simmons were taking one ton of dynamite by team and wagon from Tweed to Burleigh Falls, to be used for blasting out rock when the Lovesick Lock was being built. At 9.45 in the morning, as the wagon was passing over a piece of rough corduroy road, the dynamite blew up, and little was left of the wagon, horses or men.

Calls to the Examiner have brought to light several interesting angles to this half century old tragedy. Grandfather of Major Claire Stuart of this city, who passed away several years ago, found a piece of the steel wheel rim, on his farm two miles from the accident. Major Stuart's father had a piece of the wagon nut, found near the scene, which he may still have but could not locate it when he looked for it this week. Tate Cavanagh, a well know hotel keeper of that era, offered Mr. Stuart a dollar for the souvenir, wishing to put it on display at his hotel, which was located across from the Examiner on the property now occupied by the Bank of Commerce. When one recalls that wages at that time were 50 cents a day, it was a good price, but Mr. Stuart refused to sell.

Chimney Toppled

A piece of the wagon pole was on display for several years in Roddy's Hotel on Simcoe street, now the King George.

The chimney at the home of John Murray in Hastings was blown down by the force of the blast, and Dr. Dick Coughlin of Hastings who was noted as quite a joker in his day, used to tell the people at Hastings that on the afternoon of the blast he was driving up from Brighton, when a wagon wheel dropped out of the sky, and came spinning down the road toward him, forcing his horse into the ditch, and the wheel zoomed past.

A. E. Sedgwick, Maniece avenue, was one who visited the scene of the explosion.

Crowd Gathered

It is recalled too, that on the Sunday after the incident, more than a thousand people drove out to the scene. It was impossible to rent a horse and rig in Peterbor- ... Hastings, Norwood, Lakefield, ... ny of the communities, as ... en hired.

... n were paid $100 a ... dynamite and ... three days to ... had made ... ap. On ... n at ... ad have followed.

A newspaper clipping, yellow with age, but still quite easily read, was brought to the Examiner in a scrap book by Mrs. Thomas Rose, R.R. 11. It was taken from the Peterborough Daily Evening Review, and reads in part ....Lakefield, Sept. 4—About 9.45 a terrible explosion took place close to the residence of Mr. Nolan, about a mile and a half from the village. There was a pit dug in the road about 60 feet wide and eight feet deep. For 50 or 75 yards around, the trees were level with the ground. There were two men on the wagon and nothing can be found of them but a finger and small bits of skull. Half the trunk of a horse is on each side of the road. The harness was blown off, and the shoes were blown from the hoofs. Fragments of flesh and clothing were hanging to the trees for scores of yards around. As the explosion took place in a swamp there is little chance of recovering the remains. This village was much shaken, windows were broken and things were thrown from the walls.

Believed Earthquake

(Notice in the above story, that the reporter has not told what the explosion was, apparently assuming that everyone knew what had happened).

Another despatch from Campbellford reads as follows:

"An earthquake was felt in this section at 9.40 this morning. The shock was plainly felt at Hastings, Madoc, Blairton, Marmora and Frankford. In Campbellford a plate glass window was broken and buildings were shaken. Women working in the houses heard dishes in the buttery rattle. In Frankford, a pile of freight was upset at the station."

An interesting sequel to this story is told by Mr. Stuart, who says a Robt. White, who owned a livery stable on Charlotte street where the Hotel Champlain now stands, unknown to everyone, contracted to move the second load of dynamite, but used a spring wagon, instead of one with solid bunks, which were the usual thing in those bygone days. He brought the dynamite to Peterborough after dark, put it in his stable overnight, and drove up the main street early in the morning before anyone was up. When the news got around, people were up in arms and appealed to the council to take steps to prevent any recurrence of this act.

The story goes on to state that above Lakefield, the driver overtook a tramp and the man was invited to have a ride. He clambered up on the wagon seat with his suitcase. After a few minutes conversation, he asked what was in the wagon, and when told it was dynamite, threw his suitcase off, and jumped without even waiting for the wagon to be stopped. The trip however was completed without mishap, and the driver collected his $100.

Militia Chief Retires After 40 Years

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 (CP). — Sam Browne is taking off his uniform this week-end and for many an old soldier across Canada it is one more mark of the passing of an era in the Canadian Army—the era of the pre-First Great War soldiers.

This Sam Browne has nothing to do with the belt which got its name from another Sam and from which he got his nickname. He is Maj.-Gen. Beverly Woon Browne, D.S.O., M.C., director-general of the reserve army who started soldiering back in 1900.

The army's age limit of 60 caught Gen. Browne and he goes to a civilian job, still spare and fit and hoping to do more to further the war effort. Behind he leaves many comrades of the First Great War but a dwindling number of those who served before them.

Gen. Browne leaves the army after ... years as a full-time soldier and ... years service, counting his pre-... service in the non-permanent active militia. His last job was to put the reserve no a basis of fighting efficiency. He leaves it 100,000 strong, trained to a standard never attained before and equipped with ... weapons and machines of modern warfare.

The new director-general is Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, formerly of Montreal, who comes to the post from command of Canadian troops in Newfoundland.

Gen. Browne is disappointed he didn't get overseas in this war. As a permanent force soldier he felt it was his place.

Apples Crop Increase Climbs Still Higher

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—The Ontario Department of Agriculture estimate of the Western Ontario apple crop is now considerably increased from previous reports, with the total commercial production placed at approximately 490,000 barrels. These ...ed figures indicate a 37 per cent increase over 1942 published figures, and 21 per cent. over the ...ember estimate. Some reduction in Norfolk and Middlesex-Huron areas due to poor sizing of late varieties has been more than offset by heavier production in other districts, particularly in Georgian Bay and Peel-York.

The bulk of the crop has been harvested under favorable conditions with practically no damage from frost, hail or wind. Apples have colored exceptionally well in practically all areas, although sizing has been somewhat irregular. Considerable tonnage in excess of last year is finding its way to processing channels for apple-pie filler, juice and dehydration.

HERE'S HOW I MAKE COFFEE GO FURTHER

FIRST of all—buy coffee for flavor! I use super-rich Chase & Sanborn Coffee!
Then I make it a rule to keep coffee in an air-tight container. And to get the right strength, I always measure the coffee and water carefully. Of course, I keep the coffee-pot scoured clean, and make only the exact amount of coffee needed—never more. And I serve it as soon as possible.
But getting plenty of flavor in the first place is most important! So I say be sure you get super-rich Chase & Sanborn Coffee. More flavor ounce for ounce. Remember —quality coffee goes further.

Hastings Holds Baby Contest

HASTINGS, Nov. 1 — (ENS). — One of the most successful bingos, draws and popular baby contests ever held took place in Hastings town hall Friday night with a capacity crowd of three hundred and seventy-five persons, under the auspices of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. During the past two months tickets have been sold for the most popular baby, which was won by Sheila Mullholland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Mullholland, with a grand total of 1,087 votes, and the guest baby prize was won by Lorraine Whitered, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Whitered.

Thirty-five games of bingo were played, for prizes donated by families of the parish. Prize winners were as follows: Chicken, won by Mrs. Stabler, Peterborough; towel, won by Morely Richardson; granite dish, won by Ed. Waters; set of glass dishes, won by Ben Gibson; box of groceries, won by Isabel Fowlds; 24 lb. bag of flour, won by Marie Fitzpatrick; pair of pillow cases, won by Miss Haneley of Kingston; sugar bowl and cream pitcher, won by Harold Wilson; bridge set, won by Mrs. John English; solid set, won by Stanley Stevenson; chicken, won by Mrs. Harold Stevens; water glasses, won by Ben Gibson; box of groceries, won by Mrs. M. Herr; 24 lb. bag of flour, Mrs. P. Lunitz; cushion, Mrs. Vince Keagan. A special prize for school children was played for and won by Nola Nelson, a school bag; bedspread, won by Mrs. Leo Keogan; bag of potatoes, won by Reeve L. E. Kelly; picture, won by Anita Stevens; chicken, won by Kerry Kumph; a wooden sandwich plate won by Mrs. Jack Quinavin; silver pie dish, won by Joe Powers; chicken, won by Miss Mary Barry; chicken, won by Mrs. Walter Warner; chicken, won by Bernard McCaskey; an en diable, won by Mrs. Frank Coveney; cushion, won by Mrs. Billy McFadden; bag of carrots, won by Cecil Oliver; bedspread, won by Mrs. Allan Sherwin; alarm clock, won by Paul Stevenson; pair of towels, won by Teresa Gallivan; chicken, won by Mrs. E. Waters; chicken, won by Mary Batten; chicken, won by Mrs. C. Baker; chicken, won by Mrs. Croel; chicken, won by Emmett Coughlin.

Rev. Father Garvey addressed the large gathering and thanked all present for helping to make the evening such a huge success, and asked those present not to forget the blood donors' night in Peterborough on Nov. 12th, as they would be making a small sacrifice compared to the sacrifice the boys are making overseas and will have to make before they reach Berlin.

The grand drawing of prizes was then held for War Savings Certificates that were donated and won by the following::

$10 War Savings Certificate, donated by Mrs. A. McCluskey, won by Gerard Waters, Kingston, Ont.; $10 War Savings Certificate, donated by Mr. and Mrs. B. Obituary

MRS. ISAAC FALLIS.

BETHANY, Nov. 1. — (ENS).— The passing of the late Elizabeth Hammond, and beloved wife of the late Isaac Fallis, has removed another of Manvers' pioneer women, in her 76th year.

She was the daughter of the late Mathew Hammond and Sarah Hunter, and was born in 1866. Early in her married life she and her husband resided on their farm, and for almost thirty years have been residents of Bethany. Mrs. Fallis was predeceased by her husband over a year ago.

Surviving are one son, Wellington at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Alvin Armstrong, of Oakwood, and four grandchildren, viz., Shirley, Iris, Wanda and Audrey Armstrong, and one brother, Isaac Hammond, of Peterborough.

The funeral was held from her late residence, and was largely attended by her neighbours and friends. The pastor, Rev. A. W. Harding, officiated at the house service and graveside service at St. John's church, Ida. Interment was in the family plot. Pallbearers were L. H. Staples, James McKinnon, E. J. Fallis, Harvey Fallis, W. L. Rowan and Frank Bigelow.

Friends from a distance who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. John Brimmage and granddaughter, Barbara Warren, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. McHugh, Brampton; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hammond, Peterborough; Miss Addie Somerville, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Fallis, Millbrook.

With The Boy Scouts

Scouters Club.

The season's activities open on November 17 with a banquet which is to be held at the Y.M.C.A. to which all leaders, group committee members and other friends of scouting are invited. Tickets will be on sale shortly.

Honor Roll.

All names are wanted of previous Scouts and leaders who are now with the armed forces. Please send names to Mrs. Langhorne — telephone 3896.

All Saints' Troop.

Last week's meeting, 25 boys and two leaders were present. Bob Miller passed his second class tests. Ken tSacey and Bob Watkins passed their tenderfoot tests. Frank Wright, Hugh Dibben, and Gary Robinson passed compass tests and the Eagle Patrol won the honor pennant this week.

Mark Street Pack.

At the council rock last week five boys left the Pack to join the Troop, and thus complete another step in Scouting. They were Bob Gandy, Bill English, Jim Daubney, Doug Ferguson, and Neil Thompson. Rev. Mr. Rowland addressed the boys in a farewell speech, and Scouter English received the boys, assisted by Scouter Nixon. Cub Leaders Ruth Murray, Fred Simmons and C. Dinney were in charge of the pack. A number of parents were present. The Cubs and Scouts attended church on Sunday morning. Three new recruits were invested, Walter Pridham, Roy Mullen, and Glenn Sage.

Sacred Heart Troop.

The troop is now reorganized and two new patrols have been formed, with Michael Crowley and Bill Hagen as patrol leaders, and Dave Hatton, formerly of Long Branch, and Ernie Mills as Seconds. Frank Lucano and Clare Dionne are to be instructors for the Patrols.

A cup presented by a former Scoutmaster, Peter Dominik, is to be competed for once again, and members of the Patrol winning it most often during the year will be given a replica to keep. Gordon Clegg has been instructing the Scouts in map reading and other subjects. The group committee has elected its officers for the coming year. They are Frank Lucano, president; Mr. Dionne, vice-president; E. O'Rourke, secretary-treasurer, and E. Woodhouse is to arrange for instructors and examiners for the Scouts. The Troop will celebrate its ninth birthday on November 14 and the Pack its 8th birthday. There will be a church parade in the morning and a display in the afternoon commencing at 2:30 p.m.

Reports and News.

Please send all reports for this column to Mrs Langhorne, 272 Lansdowne Street, telephone 3896, during the absence of Mr. Groombridge.

Second Armour.

The Pack held a Hallowe'en party and Larry Walsh led the opening grand howl. All the Cubs dressed in costume and the Pack paraded in a circle for the grand march. Rev. Mr. Bousfield acted as judge. This was followed by games, apple bobbing, ring the witch, and pin the tail on the donkey. Sandwiches, cake, candy and chocolate milk were served. Akela and Baloo wish to thank all those who donated things for the party.

Registration.

Registration fees are now due and this year for the first time Cubs are included. Get the forms filled in and the money paid to Mr. Shiner.

United Church Observes 59th Anniversary

HAVELOCK, Nov. 1 — (ENS).— Rev. George Kelly of Lakefield delivered an inspiring message to a large congregation on Sunday morning in the United Church, on the occasion of the church's 59th anniversary. Taking for his text Isaiah 6, verses 9 and 10, a text representing the commission Isaiah received from God at the very beginning. Isaiah had spent all his life under Uzziah, the King, who was a great and glorious monarch, and never since the time of David had national prestige been so high, he said. Then came the tragic end, when the king attempted with his own hands, to burn the incense which under law was a serious offence, irreverent and presumptuous. At once he was smitten with leprosy, banished from society, and as a ghastly end sank into a leper's grave. Isaiah was an ardent admirer of the king, and his passing was the end of this hero worship, culminating in the dawning of his new faith and vision and acceptance of the task of a prophet. The nature of his commission was hard to believe, since it did not fit with the usual conception revealed by Jesus.

Painful Period.

Years after Isaiah had received the call he wrote this account, after coming through a long period of disillusionment and at pain with repeated disappointments. So it is in life to-day, with minister, W. M.S. executives, and Sunday School teachers, the work at times is dreadfully disheartening and discouraging, but the belated response exceeds all expectations. Pay a tribute to the living hile they may enjoy it, Mr. Kelly declared.

At the morning service the choir sang "Sing Praises to the Lord," Miss Margaret Johnson gave a vocal solo, "They are only Shadows" and a male quartette Messrs. McBurney, Chiles, Nobes and Young sang "Let us Work while tis Day." At the evening service Mrs. Bert Robson, Trent River, sang "Thou Art Our Shepherd," and the choir "Thou Wilt Keep Him."

Rev. E. E. Pugsley of Norwood was the speaker at the evening service, using for his text Luke 10, verse 29, "And who is my neighbor?" taken from the story of the Good Samaritan, although the real meaning and implications fall far short of conditions then and now, he said.

Careful Thought.

It is difficult to point out the limits of neighborliness when the classes and people are not one and are conscious of a wider vision of world things. Great principles are the same in essence, but applications must be applied near at home. We are endowed in Canada with bountiful blessings and in a land of plenty when our neighbors are being trodden down. Canada is centrally situated and does not need as many neighbors as small outlying countries, but yet all must feel that in actual truth God is God and Father of all mankind, the speaker concluded.

Pulpwood Jobs Given Priority

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—(CP).—Steps to increase Canada's output of pulpwood, whose export represents the largest single industry cash income to the Dominion, will be undertaken through a campaign to induce as many farmers as possible to work in the bush during the slack season, it was learned here to-day.

In amplification of an announcement by Labor Minister Mitchell that "new measures" will be undertaken which will do much to relieve the tight pulpwood situation, an informant here said that the industry had been moved from 'C' to 'B' labor priority.

Mr. Mitchell said that essential war uses absorb much of the pulpwood industry's output, and that the remainder is used for making newsprint paper. Canada herself consumes less than three per cent. of the newsprint she produces; for the United Nations she is their sole source of imported newsprint paper.

From Canada the United States derives 75 per cent. of its newsprint, and "without newsprint paper from Canada the publication of newspapers in the United Kingdom, Australia and other United Nations and countries liberated by the Allies would be impossible.

The plans to increase the output of pulpwood stem from recommendations made by the Inter-Departmental Labor Priorities committee following discussions between a special committee of the Canadian puplp and paper industry and Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service.

Shortage Looms

MADRID, Nov. 1—(AP).— A Spanish correspondent said last night in a dispatch from Berlin that foreign newspapermen, inspecting the new Hermann Goering arms plant somewhere in Germany, were told by the factory director: "All this is possible, thanks to iron ore from Krivoi Rog and manganese from Nikopol." Moscow dispatches indicated both of these important Russian industrial centres will fall shortly to the advancing Red Army troops.

Seek Operation To Remove Staple In Lung

TORONTO, Nov. 1 (CP). —Mrs. N. Gilliland of New Westminster, B.C., arrived here to-day with her eight-year-old son Melvin on the way to Philadelphia where they hope that experts at Temple University Hospital will be able to remove a fence staple from the boy's lung. The Philadelphia hospital specializes in this type of operation.

The staple, which has prongs ¾ inch long, has been in the boy's lung since he swallowed it in a fall from a see-saw more than a year ago. He has been in hospital several times already to have the lung drained.

Stormy Weather Suit

Du Pont Zelan

Windproof, water repellent and wool lined, this hardy play suit amongst the Thanksgiving dinners comes also in a two-blue color combination.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

GENERAL MACARTHUR is the inspiration for this small boy's suit, and since it is water repellent, one could hope the General is faring as well as his small admirer, with his steaming, teeming jungle wardrobe.

Despite the light fawn of the double-breasted coat, this is a practical outfit, for ordinary soil can be sponged away with a damp cloth. The whole model, brown pants and all, can be laundered without spoiling the water shedding qualities. Outfit is lined with pure wool knit fabric.

DOROTHY DIX

HUSBANDS, WIVES LEARNING TO APPRECIATE OTHER'S BURDENS

War Teaches Woman What Coming Home Tired Means; Man Finds Drudgery

If the war cloud has a silver lining, it is to be found in the fact that it is giving husbands and wives a better understanding of the work each has to do, and a deper appreciation of the burdens and responsibilities that each has to bear.

Heretofore one of the sharpest thorns in the bed of roses that matrimony is supposed to be, has been the illusion, from which both parties suffered, that the other got the best of the bargain and was enjoying a picnic, while he or she had to toil like a dray horse. This naturally gave rise to jealousies and resentment, and brought on many a domestic brawl. For no wife could bear unmoved the thought of her husband leading the life of Riley, flirting with his pretty blond stenographer, going out for a leisurely lunch, and being "in conference" with a bunch of good story tellers, while she spent her day over the cook stove and wash tub.

Husband's Unpleasant Picture

Nor has any husband derived any pleasure in picturing his wife as lolling about the house in a pink negligee, or with nothing more strenuous to do than to spend a blissful morning in a beauty shop or at the movies, while he wrestled with incompetent employees, or took a bawling out from the boss.

This is, roughly speaking, about the idea that the average husband and wife had of each other's duties and labors, for to the woman going downtown to work of a morning hasn't meant a return to the treadmill. It has meant dolling herself up and going on a lark, seeing new things, and eating a meal she didn't cook herself. And to the man staying at home has meant rest and relaxation, leisure to read the paper in peace, and a chance to putter over his hobbies.

But the war, which has upset so many of our old beliefs and traditions and which has put so many women in men's jobs and so many men in what we have always called women's work, has changed all of that. Thousands of husky men are finding out that peeling potatoes and washing dishes and making beds and the sweeping of floors are not lightsome diversions that a woman engages in in her odd moments, but that they are hard manual labor, with a perpetual motion attachment to them. No sooner are they done than they have to be done over again.

Women Learn Why Men Complain

And women are discovering that a husband is not only a household ornament, but a useful gadget to have on the premises, and that there is a lot of difference between reminding George to do things and doing them oneself. And when women have to wrestle with a definite income, with no husband's pay envelope coming in on Saturday night, they are going to understand why their husbands growl when they don't keep within their budgets.

No man who has ever done kitchen police duty in the army is going to ask again: "What do women do with their time?" Nor is he going to express the wish that he could take it easy, as his wife does, and have nothing to do but to stay at home and keep house and take care of the children. He will know from experience that a woman's work is never done, and that there are no union hours or holidays for the wife and mother. And maybe he will lend her a hand now and then with the baby, or even cook dinner for her on his day off.

Futhermore, the war is going to give the superior wife complex a solar plexus blow from which it will never recover when women undertake to do men's work and find out how much brain and brawn it takes to fill the jobs that seemed mere child's play when a man was doing them. Many a wife secretly looks down on her husband because she is a college graduate and he isn't, and because he prefers newspapers and detective stories and tuneful music and plays that you can laugh or cry over to the highbrowed literature and art that nobody can understand. But no woman ever considers her husband dumb again after she sees him take an income tax in his stride, or unravel the snarl she has gotten her accounts in.

Wife Realizes Why Husband Was Grumpy

And, best of all, after a woman has come home from a hard day's work, where every nerve and fibre in her has been strained to the utmost and she is so tired and nerve-shattered that she feels she will scream if anybody even speaks to her, she is going to understand, as she never has before, what makes her husband grumpy when he has had a hard day at the office, and when he is worried to death over how he is going to meet his note at the bank the next day. And she isn't going to feel herself ill-used because he isn't gay and merry and doesn't want to step out to a dance.

For a kindred feeling makes us wondrous kind, and if the war does no other good, it is going to make husbands and wives understand each other better.

Thank Offering Is Held At Knox

The thankoffering meeting of the Willing Workers' Mission Band of Knox Church was held recently in the junior room, under the leadership of Miss Inez Barrie. The theme, "Thanking God For His Goodness," was carried out with the lighting of candles. Aris MacIlraith and Margaret Johnston gave the call to worship, and a litany of thanksgiving was given by the members. "Jesus at the Feast of Booths" was read by Katherine Craig. Mrs. H. Williamson, pianist, played "Onward Christian Soldiers," while the members walked in single file to place their love-gifts in an offertory box shaped like a church. Boyd Chalmers made the box. Mrs. Lanscone illustrated the Thanksgiving lesson with flannelgraph pictures. Dishes were placed on the table by Betty Crame, David Ross, June Drummond, Shirley Killingbeck, Margaret Johnston, Aris MacIlraith, Barbara Lacey, Boyd Chalmers, Robert Ross and Allan MacIlraith. Joyce Hanes and Catherine Stewart read a verse from the Bible as each dish was placed on the table.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, November 2

A MODERATELY active and successful day is read from the dominant lunar and mutual aspects of interventing planets. While this encouraging prospect is shown it must be developed by well organized and thorough plans, with fresh slants or clever new angles. Concentrated energy, sound projects and prudent tactics combine to attract support from high places and avert loss or defeat. With care new contracts regarding writings, publicity, travel, should flourish.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a moderately successful and satisfactory year, with assistance from employers, superiors or those in power, ready to support fresh and clever ideas, sound projects and well organized programs. These worked out with conservatism, skillful and constructive manipulation, on solid bases of worth, and not by means of slipshod methods, tricky gestures or dubious intrigues, may bear lucrative results. Be conservative of funds, propositions, energies, and rigidly adhere to the code.

A child born on this day should have much versatility and cleverness, which should enlist the friendly co-operation of others.

First Wedding Takes Place In Lakevale Church

The wedding of Genevieve Eileen, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Eggleston and the late Mr. Eggleton, of Ida, to David Feier, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tully, of Peterborough, was solemnized in Lakevale Presbyterian Church recently. Rev. Sharpe of Lakefield officiated. The church was decorated with fall flowers, and the music was played by Miss Mildred Fowler. During the signing of the register Miss Doris Windrem, cousin of the bride, sang "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Foster, and wore a gown of white sheer with a sweetheart neckline and long full sleeves. Her halo-shaped veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. Her only jewelry was a yellow gold locket, a gift of the groom.

She was attended by her sister, Lance-Corporal Betty Eggleston of Barriefield. She wore a frock of pink sheer with long full sleeves, a dirndl waist and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Mr. Ellwood Nichols of Peterborough was groomsman and Mr. Robert McAdam, brother-in-law of the groom and Mr. Arthur Eggleston, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at the bride's home. The bride's mother received, wearing a gown of navy blue sheer, black accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore navy blue sheer, black accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. The bride's table was decorated with pink and white streamers, and was centred with a tiered wedding cake. Eight friends of the bride waited on tables. They were Pearl and Russel Edwards, Helen Perritt, Ray Fee, Pearl Windrem, Earle McCarroll, Avis Parker, and Billie Windrem.

An interesting feature of the wedding was the presentation of a Bible to the young couple, who were the first to be married in the church.

After the reception the bride and groom left for a trip to Toronto and Niagara. For travelling the bride chose a two-piece wool dress, a brown tweed coat, and brown accessories.

Can Applesauce Now!

Now the rush of canning is over, it's a good idea to put up a dozen or so jars of applesauce

An apple a day keeps the doctor away . . . besides which applesauce is always a welcome pepper-upper for wartime meals. So, have you considered the wisdom of canning some applesauce to have ready for use at a moment's notice. It's easy and the cost per jar is modest.

Serve with veal, lamb or pork . . . as a spread for bread or toast . . . as a filling for pies or, chilled, with cake or cookies, for an appetizing dessert.

CANNED APPLESAUCE

1 Make up your very best applesauce—adding a little ground cinnamon, a few cloves, shaved lemon rind or a little grated nutmeg, if you desire.

2 Fill boiling applesauce into hot sterilized jars. (As each jar is filled complete points 3, 4 and 5 before proceeding with next jar).

3 Adjust rubber ring (which has been standing for 5 minutes in boiling water).

4 Stir applesauce in jar with a sterilized fork to let any air-bubbles escape.

5 Put on sterilized glass top and metal top (which has stood 5 minutes in boiling water); tighten screw-top, then loosen half a turn. On spring-type jars, close one spring only.

6 Process in boiling water bath; (water 2 inches above top of jars) 10 minutes for pints, 15 minutes for quarts (counting time only from moment water around jars boils actively). Or process in automatically-controlled oven, at 275°, 15 minutes for pints, 25 minutes for quarts.

7 Remove jars and complete seal. (Never open jars to fill them up, or tighten screw again after cooling).

8 Test for leaks, and store in cool, dry, dark place.

What Is Meant By "Plainly Marked Prices"?

In choosing funeral service, people like to know how much such service is going to cost—so that they can select according to their means.

At The Comstock Funeral Home, plainly marked tags like the one at the right, enable each family to know exactly what the cost will be.

Each price is for the complete funeral and there are no extra charges of any kind unless such special service is definitely arranged for. This is a feature of Comstock service that the public appreciate.

IN MEMORIAM

SYER — In memory of a dear father, Eber Henry Syer, who passed away suddenly, November 1, 1943.

We do not forget him, or do we intend,
We think of him daily, and will to the end,
We mourn him in sorrow, and silence unseen,
And dwell on the memory of days that have been.

—Ever remembered by daughter Lillian, and son-in-law, Frank Fry.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

By defeating University of California 13-0 Saturday for their sixth straight victory of the season, the Trojans of Southern California captured the Pacific Coast grid championship and qualified as one of the teams to play the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's Day. Meanwhile in the east, Notre Dame crushed hitherto unbeaten-untied Navy 33-6 for the sixth straight Irish win for the season, in a game at Cleveland which drew 82,000 fans.

Football players who are headed for the Navy and Marine Corps this week turned in spectacular performances in their last college appearances, Angelo Bertelli, who goes Marine, completed five of eight passes, three of them for touchdowns, in his last battle for Notre Dame. Bill Daley wound up his playing for Michigan with two touchdowns in a 42-6 smash against Illinois while Tony Butkovich sparked Purdue to their seventh victory in whipping Wisconsin 32-0 and Don Buffmire and Herman Srickey were outstanding for Northwestern in their 42-6 trouncing of Minnesota. Army and Pennsylvania, both undefeated, attracted 71,000 to Philadelphia and they saw a 13-13 tie. Army and unbeaten Notre Dame tangle at New York next Saturday.

For the first time in their two-year series of exhibition football games gainst Canadian teams, Western Mustangs suffered defeat when Toronto Navy registered a 19-16 decision at Little Stadium, London, Saturday, the engagement closing the season for the Collegians.

Diagrams Make It Easy to Learn Popular Steps

VIENNESE WALTZ THE RAGE AGAIN

So gay, si irresistibly romantic, the whirling Viennese Waltz! And new and important again!

If you'd rate attention at smart dances you simply must know how to do the lovely graceful turns that are the charm of the Viennese. So try our diagram for the Waltz Square Turn, to perhaps the "Blue Danube"!

Counting from 1 to 6, on Count 1, step forward on left foot, toe and shoulders turned left. 2—Make quarter turn left, placing right foot to side of left. 3—Close left foot up to right.

Now into the next whirl—taking on Count 4 a long step back on right foot. 5—Make quarter turn left, placing left foot to side of right. 6—Close right foot up to left. To complete Square, repeat.

Learn the other smart waltz variations, too! Our 32-page booklet has diagrams to show you these as well as the popular rhumba, Conga, tango, fox-trot and Westchester. Tells how to dance gracefully, lead and follow.

For your copy of HOME COURSE IN NEW BALLROOM DANCES send cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

A DENIAL OF POWER

WHILE, with all able users of standard bidding conventions, a bid at any time of just one more than necessary to be legal is a proclaimer of great general strength, the contrary is true of a bid which is two or three higher than necessary. It denotes great suit length, usually without any particularly impressive power in high cards and probably with almost none.

North: ♠ 3 ♥ A 10 4 ♦ K Q ♣ K Q J 10 6 5 4
West: ♠ A 2 ♥ K J 9 8 7 ♦ A 9 7 4 ♣ A 8

"You probably never will take a trick in my hand except in this particular suit" was the message South tried to convey to his partner with that bid of 4-Spades. A secondary message, of virtually equal importance, was, "I do not expect or need to find any spades at all in your hand, as I am satisfied with my suit, and even if I am doubled I want you to leave the double in."

North did not get the idea. His own hand looked so good to him that he forgot one essential of bidding principles. It is that, when one partner can lay down some high cards, he furnishes a pretty good dummy to the other. The corollary is that the hand with high cards may be terrifically up against it if his partner lays down a worthless dummy.

If North had passed the 4-Spades, South would have made his contract, losing one trick each in spades, diamonds and clubs. In the 5-Club contract North took a beating, losing one trick each in spades, diamonds and clubs following a heart lead. If a club had been led to the A and another returned, North would have lost five tricks, as he could not then have ruffed out any heart losers.

Rational Means Needed, Bracken

RED DEER, Nov. 1 — (CP). —John Bracken National leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said in a public address here last night that Canada's approach to the solution of national problems must be by rational means.

"It cannot be carried out in a reactionary way nor by the theoretical experiments proposed by certain elements," he said.

Mr. Bracken also spoke at Hanna and Settler and in his "off" hours yesterday engaged in a fact-finding tour of central Alberta.

Mr. Bracken mingled with farmers and heard at first hand their fight against climatic handicaps and listened to suggestions for remedying the damage done.

In his public addresses, the Progressive Conservative leader outlined his agricultural program and told farmers "the only promise I'll make to the Canadian people so long as I'm before them is to find the right objectives for this nation and, having found them, set out by rational means to achieve them."

Community Honors Newlywed Couple

YOUNG'S POINT, Nov. 1 — (ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moss of Toronto were honored with a miscellaneous shower by about 150 relatives and friends last week in St. Aidan's Parish Hall.

The bride prior to her marriage Saturday, was Leah Dunford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dunford of Lakefield and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freeburn of Young's Point.

Misses Gertrude and Verona Dunford, cousins of the bride, also T. O'Brien of the R.C.A.F. took charge of the program for the evening. Several games of Chinese checkers were played, after which the bride and the groom were asked to come forward and they were presented with a huge basket daintly decorated, full of the gifts Misses Gertrude and Verona Dunford also assisted in the opening of the gifts, which were then displayed on a table decorated with white and pink streamers and centred with a pink geranium. The groom on behalf of himself and his bride thanked their friends for the gifts.

Lunch was served too and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, Mr. S. Blewett and Miss Mary Young supplied the music for square dancing and Miss Ailiene Young for the round dancing.

Select Site For Military Hospital

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP). — Pensions Minister Mackenzie announced today that Sunnybrook Park located in North Toronto, about 1½ miles east of Yonge St., and about seven miles from the City Hall, has been selected as the site for a new Toronto military hospital.

The first sod is to be turned on November 11, Remembrance Day

The new hospital, permanent structure of about 1,200-bed capacity, will replace the present Christie Street Hospital which has been the subject of criticism for some time. The Sunnybrook Farm property has been deeded to the Dominion government without charge by the City of Toronto.

The site was recommended by a committee of Toronto citizens, under chairmanship of W. J. Stewart, which was set up by the Minister to consider possible locations.

3-PURPOSE MEDICINE Hits CATARRH Misery Fast!
When acute catarrh makes breathing difficult—causes stuffy head, watery eyes, nasal irritation and distress, put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol in each nostril and enjoy the relief it brings.
Va-tro-nol is so successful because it does three very important things: (1) shrinks swollen membranes of the nose, (2) clears out discomfort-causing congestion and (3) soothes irritation. Many catarrh sufferers say it's the best relief they've found. Try it!

HE FOUGHT THE GOOD FIGHT

Sergeant Joseph A. Gregory, M.M., has fought the good fight . . . not only in this war but in the last conflict in which he enlisted before he was fifteen years old, served three years in France and was twice wounded.

Today Sergeant Gregory is home in Canada. Behind him is the epic of Dieppe in which his daring sorties against snipers' positions and his gallantry and devotion to duty in carrying on despite a severe wound, which later cost him his eye, won him the Military Medal.

Sergeant Gregory is still "carrying on" as a member of the Recruiting Staff of M.D. 13, Calgary. He has two sons in the service, a sister in the C.W.A.C. and his brother was also wounded at Dieppe. Here is what the Sergeant says of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan:

"I'm out of action now and my two boys are taking my place. I'd like to know that they won't suffer from lack of equipment. Back up the boys who are in action fighting for us at home. We can fight for THEM by purchasing more and more Victory Bonds."

You, too, can

FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT

Dieppe . . . Sicily . . . these are the battle honours of Canada. Here Canadian soldiers won medal after medal for valour above and beyond the call of duty. Here our boys fought the good fight, as they are now fighting it in Italy.

Now is the time for you, too, to fight the good fight . . . to show your faith as our boys showed their heroism . . . to fight with your dollars as they fought with bullets . . . to buy Victory Bonds on a scale above and beyond the call of duty.

Remember, although Victory is now in sight it may yet escape us unless every one of us has the courage and devotion to see it through to the end. That is why Canada's Fifth Victory Loan is a vital challenge to all of us . . . a bugle calling for our best and finest effort.

Fight the good fight for the cause of freedom, the continued security of those you hold dear . . . the speeding up of Victory and all it means in a new and better civilization. Buy all the Bonds you can out of your savings. Buy more on installment. These are your Battle Honours.

Allies Punch Gains On Mt. Massico

Capture Casanova Driving Huns From Strong Points

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Nov. 2 — (AP).—Allied 5th Army troops battling against fierce enemy opposition have pushed forward to occupy large parts of Massico Ridge and Matese Mountain, two lofty anchors of the German line in Italy headquarters announced today.

The gains punched to within artillery range of the communications centre of Venafro, and the Garigliano River, 18 miles north of the Volturno River's mouth.

Along the Mediterranean coastal area, British elements of Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's army advanced four miles, seizing the town of Casanova high on the slope of Massico Ridge.

American troops farther inland won a good part of Matese which dominates the upper Volturno Valley.

The 8th Army on the Adriatic side maintained steady pressure against the Germans, and gained some ground on the Canadian left wing, at the southern end of its front.

Not Retreating

One Allied officer described these developments as "very encouraging" but said the Nazis still were fighting fiercely to hold their mountain line from Massico Ridge to Vasto. They are not retreating, he said, but are being muscled out of strategic points in bitter clashes and at considerable cost to the Allied armies.

On the aerial front, Allied aircraft fanned out in a broad arc of attack yesterday, with U.S. heavy bombers hitting the naval base of La Spezia on Italy's west coast about 50 miles south of Genoa. Medium bombers pounded rail and shipping targets at Rimini and Ancona on the Adriatic side. Fighters supported Yugoslav patriots by hitting at enemy planes over Split in Yugoslavia.

Question Status Baltic States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP) — Omission from the Moscow declarations of any mention of the three Baltic States, Estonia, Lavia and Lithuania—focused attention here today on the enigmatic position of these countries.

They are the only European countries occupied by the Germans which do not appear on the list of countries outraged by atrocities committed on their people.

Russia and the other occupied states are specifically named in the statement by Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin promising that German slaughterers will be turned over to their victims for punishment.

While an article appearing before the Conference in the Moscow newspaper Pravda said the Soviets could no more discuss the future of the Baltics than the United States could confer on the status of California, the communique issued yesterday said all questions on agenda of all three powers were taken up.

However, diplomatic representatives from the three tiny countries still are accredited to Washington and it is a rule of International law that only sovereign nations have a right to send ambassadors and ministers abroad.

Taps For His Dad

AN ADVANCED BASE, South Pacific, Oct. 24 (Delayed)—(AP).—There was a funeral for a serviceman on this island the other day and the chaplain wanted to be sure the bugler knew when to blow taps. "Yes sir," said the other bugler. "I know. I did it for my father the other day. He died here of pneumonia."

Monday's Sales Exceeds Daily Average

OTTAWA, Nov. 2—(CP).—Monday's subscriptions to the Fifth Victory Loan were $72,521,400, raising the cumulative total for 13 business days of the three-week drive to $917,662,400 — $282,337,600 from the minimum objective of $1,200,000,000 — National Loan Headquarters announced to-day.

The corresponding figures for the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory Loan last spring were $49,882,800 and $820,902,400.

"The bulge in to-day's total had been anticipated by reason of an influx of large subscriptions Monday, including the Canadian National Railways, a large life insurance company and various other substantial collective sums," said to-day's press statement. "The forecast for a reduced number of general sales and payroll savings applications by reason of Monday being All Saints' Day appears also to have been borne out."

Results tabulated by Canadian National Railways late yesterday showed employees' applications exceed the total subscribed in the Fourth Victory Loan. In this loan 71,288 employees have subscribed $7,004,850. At the end of the Fourth Victory Loan 68,744 employees had subscribed $6,825,000. These figures include employees of Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian National Munitions Co., as well as the railroad.

Toronto reported two life insurance company subscriptions yesterday—Crown Life Insurance Co., $2,500,000, and Excelsior Life Insurance Co., $2,000,000. City of Toronto Sinking Fund invested $1,500,000 and Hamilton Bridge Co. Ltd. $500,000.

Among cities approaching the 100 per cent mark, Vancouver now has 78 per cent, compared with 75 per cent in last night's headquarters statement. Other city standings include: Moose Jaw, Sask., 73.1; Halifax, 70.5; Edmonton, 70.3; Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., 69.3; Charlottetown, 68; North Bay, 67.8; Peterborough, 66.2; London, 66.1; Brockville, 65; Hamilton, 63; Calgary, Stratford, and Kitchener-Waterloo, 60; St. Catharines, 59.3; Ottawa, 58.4; Sudbury, 56.9; Galt and Moncton, N.B., 5.7.

"The armed services continue to add to their already excellent totals," said Loan Headquarters.

Mother Gets 4 Months For Concealing Birth

KINGSTON, Nov. 2 (CP)—Mrs. Rita Wagar, 25, of Wagarville, Ont., was today found guilty of concealment of the birth of an infant. Her mother, Annie McCumber, and Walter Haley, 22, will stand trial before Supreme Court Assizes in February in connection with the death of the child.

Judge J. C. Reynolds, presiding at a special sitting of the county court here, sentenced Mrs. Wagar to four months in jail less the 30 days she served while awaiting trial.

Mrs. McCumber has already been tried for murder in connection with the case but the jury deadlocked.

Start Parley To End Coal Strike

Alberta Schools Have Coal For Two Weeks

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 — (CP). — Labor Minister Mitchell and two of his departmental officers met with four representatives of district 18 of the United Mine Workers of America with a view to arranging an ending of the current coal strike in Alberta and in British Columbia.

The conference opened behind doors at a few minutes after 11 a.m. E.D.T. With the Minister were Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service and Deputy Minister, and M. M. Maclean, director of industrial relations.

The union delegation, which arrived here early today after a flight from Lethbridge, Alta., with highest travel priority arranged by the government, was headed by Robert Livett, president of district 18.

Mr. Livett, interviewed at a downtown hotel before the conference, said his group did not bring to Ottawa any proposals for a strike settlement.

"We have been called down here and we are ready to listen to what the government has to say," he said. "We have not come here with any proposals."

Shortage Looms

CALGARY, Nov. 2 (CP) — Coal shortage loomed on the horizon today as 8,500 miners continued their strike in British Columbia and Alberta for the second day while officials of District 18 United Mine Workers of America prepared to confer with Labor Minister Mitchell in Ottawa on wage increase demands.

Already, some districts have put plans into operation to conserve their coal supplies while Mr. Justice C. C. McLaurin of Calgary, Alberta regional coal controller, warned a "terrible situation" will have to be faced in many parts of Alberta if the strike lasts for only a week or 10 days.

2 Weeks Supply

Some schools public buildings and hospitals have supplies for only two weeks. Many householders are without reserve stocks and army taskiwin, Camrose, Wainwright and Grande Prairie where thousands of Grande Praire where thousands of men are stationed, have only enough coal for 11 or 12 days under "normal conditions."

Mayor Andrew Davison of Calgary has sent a telegram to Mr. Mitchell drawing his attention to the serious plight of municipalities in Southern Alberta.

Canadian Utilities, Limited, which supplies power obtained from steam coal plants in Drumheller and Prince Albert Sask., reported fuel supplies small. Service to civilian customers will be curtailed and may be discontinued, officials said. Street lighting service and window lighting will also be discontinued in many Alberta towns.

In Edmonton, street lighting was cut 50 per cent. Many householders reported they were out of fuel. R. G. Watson, power plant superintendent, announced that there was less than 6,000 tons of coal in reserve.

Lindsay Post Fined For Contempt Of Court Following Story On McGinnis Murder Case

LINDSAY, Ont., Nov. 2.—Previous to the opening of the Supreme Court case here this morning of Howard McGinnis, charged with murder, Mr. Justice A. Green imposed a $100 fine on Fred Reed, editor of the Lindsay Daily Post, for contempt of court.

Reed was so charged as the result of a newspaper article appearing in the Post last week concerning the McGinnis case which Justice Green labelled as "highly improper" and a misrepresentation of the facts. "It is the worst type of any kind of an article bearing on a court case that I have ever witnessed," commented His Lordship.

C. G. Frost, counsel for the Daily Post, stated that the story was written by Gordon Brigden, an inexperienced reporter, and that it had slipped by the editor during the busy period of an early Saturday edition.

Catholic Clergy In France Sabotaging Nazi War Effort

By JOSEPH DYNAN—Associated Press Staff Writer

ALGIERS, Nov. 2—(AP).—A young Catholic priest who has just arrived here says the Catholic clergy in France, always an important political factor, is taking an increasingly important role in sabotaging the Nazi war effort, even to the point of co-operating with Communists.

The priest is training with United States officers in parachute companies, as he intends to return to his followers in France by parachute after he has completed conferences with the French Committee of Liberation.

The young priest, a leader of French resistance since 1940, declared Catholic leaders no longer consider Vichy the legal French government. Some priests, he related, are assuming the leadership in various resistance groups and are working sincerely and wholeheartedly with Jews, Communist and other sections of the French people against the common enemy — Germany.

He said the resistance groups have organized underground organizations, aided able-bodied men to escape to Britain and North Africa, and helped young Frenchmen evade the German labor draft by escorting them to guerilla hideouts in mountain wilderness spots where they carry on an active insurrection.

Does His Duty.

Asked how, from a moral point of view, Catholic priests regard the destruction of a factory filled with workmen, he answered:

"The saboteur who hurls dynamite into a factory does so under his orders from his chief in the resistance movement. It is the same as a soldier who shoots his enemy. He is doing his duty."

The Germans, the priest continued, are conducting a subtle, indirect persecution of the church, either themselves or through their Vichy puppets. The Nazis, he said, feel the church is too strong with the French people to be assailed directly.

Like other recent fugitives from France, the priest gave the Com-

Crown Stresses Finger Print

By E. V. W. JONES

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 2—(AP)—The crown sought today at the murder trial of Alfred De Marigny to show that De Marigny had no opportunity after the discovery of Sir Harry Oakes' body to make the fingerprint offered as evidence that the defendant killed his rich father-in-law.

Corporal Cleophas Knowles said the death room and the bed-screen on which the crown contends the fingerprint was found were under constant guard during the investigation.

His testimony at De Marigny's trial in Bahamas Supreme Court differ somewhat, however, from the account he gave at a preliminary hearing, and Defence Counsel W. E. A. Callender shouted:

"Another error. The same as Captain Melchen and the other witnesses."

Capt. E. W. Melchen of the Miami police and other crown witnesses testified that De Marigny was taken upstairs at Sir Harry's estate, Westbourne, for questioning about noon July 9, whereas at the preliminary hearing they had set the time at midafternoon.

Knowles said he was assigned July 8—the day the body was discovered—to guard Sir Harry's bedroom and the hallway. He escorted a photographer who pictured the death

Russia Hints War Plan Satisfactory

World Reaction Generally Most Optimistic

MOSCOW, Nov. 2 (AP)—Praising the Moscow tripartite conference as a fruitful contribution toward victory and a secure peace, the Soviet newspaper Izvestia today devoted a three-column front page editorial to the accomplishments of Foreign Secretaries Eden, Hull and Molotov.

Both Izvestia and the army organ Red Star, Moscow's only morning newspapers, printed a picture of the conference across the entire bottom of their front pages. It was one of the biggest news spreads these papers have given any Moscow event in which the Allies have participated.

Izvestia said important military decisions looking toward speeding the offensive against Hitler were made at the conference.

"In the course of the battle against the common enemy a large number of strategical, military and political questions have arisen, some of which required first hand deliberation and undelayed decision."

Reds Satisfied

Hinting important decisions were taken toward what Russia considers the "second front," Izvestia continued: "The first thing upon which unanimous decision was reached was recognition of the necessity for hurrying the end of the war as the most important question before the conference. The unanimous recognition of the necessity to adopt measures now to bring Germany to her knees by blows from the east and west will accelerate the hour of her final defeat."

By the tone of the editorial Izvestia gave the first official Russian indication that military decisions made by the conference satisfied the Russians.

China's View

CHUNGKING, Nov. 2 (AP)—Foreign Secretaries Eden, Hull and Molotov "well may prove to be the instruments for bringing the dream of the ages near to fruition," Foreign Minister T. V. Soong of China declared today in welcoming the Moscow four-power declaration.

"China enthusiastically welcomes the joint declaration of the four principal United Nations, which not only provides for common action during the war but also evinces their firm determination to insure collective security thereafter," Soong's statement read.

Finns Worried

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 2 (AP)—The neutral Swedish press generally views the outcome of the Moscow conference as establishing a sound basis for optimism over Europe's future.

The newspaper Tidningen said "never before have we seen a communique so frank and rich in facts" and added it provided evidence "the Axis bloc no longer can hope to split the Allied partners."

Dagens Nyheter editorialized that "closer co-operation between east and west is not the least of Hitler's work."

Swedish papers noted the lack of specific reference to Finland's position and generally agreed that Finland is not going to have an easy time.

Major C. Robert Ostrander of Cobourg is one of 15 men to have been awarded the Croix de Guerre by the French National Committee. It is the first time in this war Canadian officers and men have been so honored, and the award was given to men who had fought at Dieppe. Major Ostrander received the Croix de Guerre avec Etoile de Bronze. He was teaching at the Cobourg Collegiate Institute when he enlisted.

Many Officers Land In Britain

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 2 (CP)—Additional thousands of reinforcements for Canadian Navy, Army and Air Force units overseas sailed from here recently. The movement also included several thousand American troops and fighting men of the United Nations. Their arrival in Britain was announced today.

Also sailing were nine intelligence officers of the R.C.A.F. Women's Division and two members of the British W.A.A.F., one a Canadian.

Top-ranking officers aboard were a group of lieutenant-colonels on their way to Britain for various duties or information-seeking tours. They included R. W. Zinkann of Kitchener, Ont., Col. Zinkann had been on the staff of National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa as a medical Corps officer.

Among R.C.A.F. fliers going back to Britain after a short leave in Canada was FO. Lorne Kropf of Kitchener, holder of the Distinguished Flying Medal. He went overseas in 1941, and was with Bomber Command, taking part in most of the big raids over Cologne, Essen and other German centres.

He gained the D.F.C. while a sergeant, wireless air gunner. "There wasn't much to it," he said offhandedly, "the plane was shot up a little, that's all." What his marksmanship score was he wouldn't reveal.

Canadian naval personnel included a large group of sub-lieutenants who will be attached to the Royal Navy for operational training. Arriving overseas, too were 30 members of the Canadian Army Dental Corps, who will be attached to various units of the three Canadian forces. Included was Major Windrum of London, Ont.

A combined draft of Ordinance and Signal Corps men included Lieutenants Bill Detenbeck, Kitchener, Ont., Bob Gale, Alma, Ont., and Stuart Rolfe, London, Ont.

Trapped Huns Battle Desperately

All Land Exits Cut Half Million Face Annihilation

LONDON, Nov. 2 — (CP). — The Germans asserted to-day that Russian forces had landed in the Eastern Crimea north and south of Kerch. Moscow dispatches declared other Red troops were compressing the Nazis into the peninsular trap with a fresh advance from the sealed northern entrance.

"The Germans immediately started a counter-attack which annihilated the main part of the Bolsheviks who had landed and compressed the remainder on a narrow space immediately near the coast," a D.N.B. dispatch broadcast by Berlin said of the Kerch landings.

Russian troops which cleared the Western Caucasus had stood on the Taman Peninsula opposite the Crimea across the shallow Kerch Straits for several weeks. Russia's Fleet dominates the Black Sea into which the Crimea juts.

Moscow advices said the 4th Ukrainian Army of Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin had moved deep into the Crimea beyond captured Armyansk against growing German counterattacks. All land exits from the peninsula were cut off with the capture of Perekop yesterday.

Tolbukhin was declared pushing tanks, armored cars, Cossack cavalry, and armored motorcycles swiftly into the Crimea. Another arm of his army which seized Perekop appeared moving north-westward toward Kherson, 60 miles away on the route to Odessa and Rumania

A Reuter's News Agency dispatch said big groups of Germans were wandering aimlessly over the Tavrida Steppes in South Russia, giving themselves up to the Russians after being cut off from their units. At midnight the Russian communique announced the capture of 6,000 Germans at Perekop. The Reuters dispatch said the Germans

Mosquito Bites Hit 145 Centres

LONDON, Nov. 2 (CP)—Crediting the R.A.F.'s Mosquitoes with playing an important part in the effort to smash Germany, the Air Ministry announced today these planes had made more than 145 attacks on Nazi industrial targets in the last six months.

The review of the activities of the fast, plywood Mosquitoes, some of which are made in Canada, disclosed that since May 1 small formations had hit Cologne 33 times, Dusseldorf 15, Aachen eight and Dortmund six.

Thirty other German cities also have had one or more "Mosquito Bites" in this period. Out of at least 1,000 sorties only 11 Mosquitoes are listed as missing.

The Air Ministry said their work definitely deserves a better characterization than "nuisance raiding"—a term the Germans have used to describe their attacks—and that they have shown definite superiority to the fighter-bombers the Germans have been using recently against Britain.

The Ministry explained the Mosquitoes frequently were sent out to pay a quick follow-up to cites plastered by heavy bombers and thus keep the population in a turmoil.

It was disclosed yesterday the Mosquitoes also are being used on home defence as night fighters.

Invasion Of Japan Urged

General Warns Japs Must Realize Defeat

HEADQUARTERS, THE ALASKAN DEPARTMENT, Nov. 2 — (AP). — Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, whose Alaskan Department of the army lies closest of any United States forces to the Japanese home soil, today advocated land occupation of Japan itself.

"You've got to march into a country to make them realize their complete defeat," he said in an interview.

"March troops in and the Japanese children will see them and they will remember," he continued. "We made a mistake when we didn't crush Germany by actual invasion in the last war, as Gen. Pershing and Marshal Foch wished. Then Hitler would never have been able to make the people who were children when the war ended believe Germany was not actually defeated.

"Loss of a few thousand men in invading Japan would be insurance against the loss of millions in a next war. We'll be better friends (with the Japanese) afterwards. They'll respect us. They understand force."

The plain - speaking general viewed the establishment of the Alaskan Department of the United States Army, announced only yesterday, as a long step in prosecution of this war and creation of a defensive bulwark against future wars in the Pacific.

Long War Would Produce Global Chaos

All-Out Effort To Shorten Battle Of Paramount Importance

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

We have reached the point in our fight for freedom where we can say with full confidence that Allied arms are going to triumph.

But there's another factor which is of far-reaching importance to us and to future generations — the length of time it takes to win the greatest of all conflicts.

Time, which fought for us in the days of our unpreparedness, is now against us! A protracted war of such unprecedented destructiveness leads to global chaos. We might win with bombs and bullets and still lose most of what we hold dear.

Not for a moment should we overlook the fact that the combatant nations of the world are dumping into the awful melting-pot of war not only the finest of their manhood, but mountainous quantities of the irreplacable natural wealth which God bestowed upon us.

The thing of immediate importance to all of us, however, is to save our soldier lads as much suffering as we can, and bring them back to the homes which they are fighting to preserve.

Give them the tools to finish the job, and they'll do more than their share in hewing out an early victory. The more we pile up resources for our fighting men, by working and by lending our money, the shorter the war will be.

Memories

I'll never forget the Armistice Day of Novmber 11, 1918. For more than four years millions of men had been enduring hell—killing and being killed as they struggled through the valleys of death.

Then the eleventh hour, and sudden silence and peace. It was unreal. The men at the front were unable to sense the meaning of it. Their minds refused to cope with the change.

Out in a muddy Flanders road a British Tommy approached me diffidently and swung into salute with crashing heels as only a veteran can do. His uniform had seen hard service, and his face was deeply marked by lines which carnage had put there for all time.

"Beggin' pardon, sir," he said diffidently, "but could you tell me what this 'ere army-stice is? Does it mean, Sir'—he paused and looked at me appealingly—"Does it mean the war is ended?"

I assured him that the war was finished. He stood looking at me, afraid that he had misunderstood. Again I told him that the fighting was through.

Only a man reprieved from death could have registered such joy. Once more his muddy, hob-nailed heels smashed together and, with a "thank you, Sir," he wheeled and started down the road.

"Ho, Bill," he yelled to a comrade, "the bloody war is over! do you 'ere me, Bill—the war is over! Oh, blimey, but I'm goin' back 'ome to my old woman and the kids."

Cameramen Join Paratroops

Jump With Gun In One Hand, Camera In Other

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(CP).— The deeds of the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion will be recorded in film by two army cameramen who are going out for action snots and are prepared to jump and fight to get them.

Of two veterans of overseas training who volunteered for the job, Sgt. David Reynolds of Toronto and Hamilton, Ont., already has qualified as a jumper and as a wielder of the weapons the paratroops carry. Sgt. E. R. Bonter of Toronto and Trenton, Ont., had completed three of the required eight leaps by parachute when he was injured.

They undergo all the rigors of paratroop training and when the day of action comes they will follow the fighting men as they tumble from their planes. In one arm they will carry a camera, in the other a Sten gun.

Both Reynolds and Bonter were overseas before the unit they have now joined. Both were in the army film unit of the Public Relations Department when a call came for two volunteers.

Reynolds came overseas with the 1st Division as a member of the Signals. In civilian life he was a radio announcer in Hamilton. Bonter was formerly with the Toronto Telegram and was an artilleryman before joining the film unit. He came overseas about three years ago.

LAST OF SOLOMON ISLANDS UNDER SIEGE BY MacARTHUR'S FORCES

Allies Invade Bougainville

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, The Southwest Pacific, Nov. 2—(AP).—The master stroke to crush Japan in all the Solomons, expose Rabaul to frontal assault and ultimately burst open the sea lanes to the Philippines was developed today by powerful Allied invasion forces on Bougainville. Troops of Admiral William F. Halsey leaped from landing barges Monday at dawn 45 miles up the west coast of that heavily garrisoned enemy base. Under naval and air cover, they captured Empress Augusta Bay against scant ground opposition and imperilled by-passed Japanese troops and air fields on the south shore of that 3,400 square mile island.

Venturing nearer Rabaul than an Allied naval force ever had approached before, cruisers had moved to the extreme northern end of Bougainville and bombarded the Buka airfield prior to the invasion, a spokesman at Halsey's headquarters disclosed. Other naval forces escorting the landing troops shelled Empress Augusta for 45 minutes before the dawn operations.

Bombers In Swarms.

Yet another task force shelled Bivouac areas in the shortlands, while swarms of Allied bombers roamed on missions of destruction over Bougainville airfields.

The move completely fooled the Japanese army. The enemy's mauled Solomons air force, with scarcely any useable fields, was unable to interfere. The Japanese Navy was defied by Gen. Douglas MacArthur to put in its appearance and risk disaster under the bombsights of "all my heavy bombers."

The invasion of Bougainville at a point only 260 miles from the enemy's pivotal sea air stronghold of Rabaul accelerated an offensive whose strategy was worked out recently at conferences of Gen. MacArthur, Admiral Halsey, Lt.-Gen. Millard Harmon and Maj.-Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift.

Capture of Bougainville would put the Allies in a position to storm New Britain from both east and west.

68 Boys Raise Funds To Help Y Service

Sixty-eight Peterborough boys are helping to raise money for the Y.M.C.A. world service program this year by the sale of Christmas cards. Canvassing their families, neighbors and friends, and in the case of news-carriers contacting the subscribers on their routes, these lads are contributing their bit to forward the work done by the "Y" for boys in China, India and other far-off places.

Leading salesman at the present time is Teddy Cranfield, with Darrell Ackford running him a close second, and George Fanjoy placing third. In a similar campaign for funds conducted last year, the profit on the sale of Christmas cards netted $92.

Through the world service program of North American Y's during the past half century Y.M.C.A. work has been established and developed in 32 countries. In wartime China 400 "Y" secretaries form the only auxiliary service working with the Chinese troops in the field.

Colorful Figure Gives Away $5,000 In Bills

By RALPH HAYMAN.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—Giving away money and valuable gifts on a large scale is an old habit with the eccentric and likable chap known as "Mr. X." The $5,000 he distributed at Christie Street Hospital Saturday afternoon was just another incident in a career dotted with similar spontaneous acts. The writer encountered "Mr. X" for the first time about 10 years ago. The Royal York Hotel appeared to totter on its substantial foundations when this big fellow swept into the lobby. He took a palatial suite on one of the upper floors, and proceeded to run up a telephone bill that probably paid the hotel's operating overhead for a few days.

In those days every hotel floor had a desk, behind which sat a woman employee. "Mr. X" figured the middle-aged woman on his floor looked kind of lonely, sitting there all day, so he bought her an expensive phonograph, complete with records, and gave it to her.

"A little music helps to pass the time," he said. The management discreetly overlooked this breach of hotel regulations, but when "Mr. X" checked out the music box was removed.

Greeted By a Bellow.

Assigned to interview what the city editor termed "a strange character with lot of dough," this reporter went to the hotel, learned the suite number, and eventually rapped at one of the doors. The answer was a bellow: "Come in, come in, what are you standing out there for?" The voice turned out to be quite in keeping with the large-sized individual reclining on a bed in his shirt sleeves, a torpedo of a cigar jutting out of his mouth.

The interview followed slightly unorthodox lines, and concluded with a solemn promise by "Mr. X" to break every bone in the reporter's — — body if he put anything in the paper that in any way slightly deviated from the facts as given to him.

The interview appeared the next day, and it was a plain, unvarnished recital of material supplied somewhat grudgingly by "Mr. X." That same night an agitated voice over the telephone requested the immediate presence of the reporter at the hotel, and when "Mr. X" said immediately he didn't want to be kept waiting. The voice belonged to his secretary.

Figuring that it would be better to take his punishment away from the office, the reporter took his fast-evaporating courage in both hands and again visited the lion's den. He was ready to run at the first sign of a blow, but there was no need to spring. Mr. X's face was wreathed in smiles.

"Best interview I ever had from you blankety-blank newspapermen," he roared, in what was no doubt supposed to be a genial tone. This was accompanied by a slap on the back that all but fractured the spine and a handshake that left the digits a lump of mushy flesh.

Clears Out Store.

"Do you smoke?" asked Mr. X. Getting a nod for an answer, Mr. X picked up the telephone and asked for the hotel cigar store. He then proceeded to order about 10,000 cigarets and all the expensive cigars in stock. A few minutes later two bellhops, staggering under their loads, deposited on the floor enough smokes to start a store in business and departed with paper-money tips.

"There you are," said Mr. X, indicating the parcels with a wave of his cigar. "Pick' em up."

"But, but . . " the reported stammered.

"No buts," roared Mr. X. "They're yours. If you don't take 'em I'll throw the lot out the window."

So the dazed newspaperman got the bellhops back again and they trudged away to the main lobby, where the parcels were checked. There was a twinkle in the eye of the big man as the reporter expressed his thanks.

"How would you like to fly to China," he said suddenly. "We'll be back some time next year. What about it?"

The answer was an apologetic no; there was a wife to consider, and besides, there was a little detail of a job to hold down.

"Come and see me again when I'm in town," were Mr. X's parting words.

This reporter hasn't seen him since that day.

City Council In Heated Debate Rejects Motion To Advance Money On Wood Cut In The Bush

"A heluva lot you seem to care for the people this winter," was the edged exclamation of Mayor Hamilton Monday night as the city council rejected a resolution to advance $2,500 to Ernest C. Braund on some 875 cords of wood which he has cut for the city in the Kelly woods in Cavan township.

The motion by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Swanston, was supported by Aldermen Glover and Mark.

Those who opposed it were: Aldermen Curtis, Gordon, Bradburn, Cotton and Sands.

Alderman Sullivan was not present.

"We're not in the banking business," was the dismissive attitude expressed by Alderman Gordon in the course of an hour's debate which figuratively beat around the Kelly bush two or three times.

Alderman Gordon loudly replied to Mayor Hamilton's protest at the adverse division "that we'll go somewhere else and get it," His Worship shouted back: "You go and get it then."

Alderman Glover was sitting tightly on his feelings, but Alderman Swanston asked Mayor Hamilton to relieve him of membership on the fuel committee.

"I've been a member of the committee since its inception," he said, "and we don't seem to have been able to get anywhere. I'd rather see someone else in my place. Besides I am going away for the next two weeks, and you may need some one here on the fuel committee."

"I think you should stay with it," Alderman Dutton remarked, and Mayor Hamilton interjected: "We've certainly been put in a rotten hole," referring indirectly perhaps to intimations by Mr. Braund that he wished to be permitted to withdraw from the contract, which both parties agreed during the discussion was not much more effective and binding than a gentleman's agreement."

Not Want Of Confidence Vote

Alderman Bradburn said the vote was not a declaration of lack of confidence in the fuel committee.

Alderman Swanston concluded with a comment on the prospect of increased work for the committee during the next two or three weeks and the necessity of having some one in his place, "and I'd suggest that the committee should have a quorum at its meetings."

After adjournmen, Mayor Hamilton told Alderman Swanston that his resignation would have to be in writing.

Three On Bush Trip

As chairman of the fuel committee, which had broached the Braund proposal last Thursday night, Alderman Glover explained briefly that deliveries of wood were being made to the city according to the contract, until wet weather set in.

As the ground softened and broke up under heavy traffic, deliveries had to be suspended, the intention being to wait for cold weather to put some steel into the ground.

Money had been advanced to Mr. Braund on the wood arriving in the city. With cessation of transport from the bush, and accumulation of four foot wood where it was felled, expenditure was accumulating. Wages alone amounted to around $1,000 a week, and the wood pile on the ground as of Monday was 875 cords.

The contract, Mr. Glover said, was for 2,100 cords of hardwood and 900 cords of soft wood.

"If it was considered advisable three months ago to try to get wood for the people, the conditions at that time have been greatly aggravated by today's reports of miners going on strike in the United States and Canada. If there was an emergency then, it has come much closer to us now."

Mr. Glover said Mr. Braund had at first suggested an advance of $8 a cord because the wood was cut and ready for transportation and was really the property of the city. At the conference last week $5 was suggested instead of the $8. Mr. Braund felt that affairs would carry along on that basis.

Experienced Men View Wood

"We thought we should have the opinion of experienced lumbermen as to the possibility of getting this wood out of the bush, and we asked Wallace Shearer and Charles Webb who is foreman for Harold R. Scott to go out there.

Those who went with them on Saturday were Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Swanston and Alderman Curtis. I had been out there previously."

The signed statement by Messrs. Webb and Shearer affirmed that nothing could be done before the freeze up, and that an effort to lay a road to expedite deliveries would probably involve substantial expense.

"The pinch is going to come toward the end of December and in January, and if provision is not made for this quantity of wood I would not want to be a member of this council," Alderman Glover continued. "It is good wood, it has been bought right, and it will be delivered as soon as the weather is favorable for hauling it out."

Advance Of $4 A Cord

Mr. Glover said the advance per cord would be only $4 by reason of the one dollar a cord subsidy from the government. He also told the council that advacing funds to bush operators was a common practice by fuel dealers, according to the information he had obtained by enquiry.

"They don't want to cut up the road out of the bush worse than it is and make it impassable later on," Alderman Glover explained. "It might be a matter of only a few weeks until the cold weather comes."

Replying to Aldermen Bradburn and Gordon, in their question why he did not get from a bank the funds he required that he had no intention whatever of asking for credit on the wood transaction.

"I don't want to be placed in the position of seeming to be a beggar coming before you men," said Mr. Braund. "It was understood when I went into this that payment would be made on deliveries, and that is the way we began. Rain has interfered, and if you don't want to advance anything on your wood as they do in this business, all I ask is to let me withdraw from the contract and I can sell all the wood elsewhere tomorrow."

Alderman Glover introduced his motion to pay $5 a cord on the wood already cut, and progress payments of the same amount on wood cut every two weeks until deliveries could be resumed.

"They can sell the wood under better conditions to other people, but they want to keep their contract with us," Alderman Glover said.

I haven't the least doubt about us getting the wood," the chairman said, and two or three times repeated that the "city could not get stuck on this deal."

Alderman Swanston said his impression was that the bush road would require a severe freezing to be passable for truck loads of wood. Operations in the bush were being rapidly advanced and it was expected that the work would be completed by the middle of December.

Discussion was focussed on the feature of two roads out of the bush, one long and one short, but on either way Welfare Officer Metheral said the damp weather was holding up transportation until the frost came.

Members of the council were at first under the impression that Mr. Braund had agreed to haul the wood out to the roadside somewhere, and at that point it would be picked up by the city. It transpired last night that the haul by Mr. Braund's men was only from the bush to a nearby field. Even the field is too "soft" at present for loads, and beyond it was a damp road which could not be travelled now.

Suggestions of making a road of 150 feet or more as one proposal, and of asking Mr. Braund to pay half the cost of it as another idea, were discussed, but nothing came of them.

Alderman Sands said he had been in the woods a number of times. People in the neighborhood had told him the timber would have been bought long ago if anyone could see a way of getting the wood out of the place.

Alderman Dutton recalled that the city had advanced money to the Peterborough Lumber Company in 1938 for the purchase of a large supply of slabs then needed, and he said that the delivery of the last lot of those slabs was not taken by the city until this fall. "I am wondering whether we haven't a responsibility of getting that wood out some way or other."

Several members expressed uncertainty about the wood being accessible this winter if the weather followed the pattern of a year ago. Another point mentioned was that the contract called for payment for the wood on delivery in a municipal fuel yard, but the city itself was responsible for delivery from the designated field into the city. For the present the wood had not been placed in the field by Mr. Braund, and again the weather is the facilitating factor.

"We are not going to need it until the cold weather comes," said Alderman Glover contending that the wood should be held.

"What would we do if we advance the money and we have a soft winter?" Alderman Sands asked.

It was also stated that $2,000 had been "advanced" or paid to Mr. Braund on the first flow of deliveries to the city's yard.

"I can't see how we would lose any money at $5 a cord," said Alderman Swanston.

Mr. Braund repeated that the understanding with the council's representatives was 'payment on delivery' and that was done. If the council did not wish to advance payment for future delivery when the weather became cold, "I'd rather cancel the agreement right now than put you gentlemen in any difficulty."

Alderman Glover: "There is not so much risk of loss of money as there is of loss of wood to the citizens in a real emergency."

Alderman Bradburn said that Mr. Braund might consider the fact that the emergent circumstances of the present time might call for extraordinary method or practice in financing a wood operation, and that he should break a precedent and go to the bank for the money."

"I would far sooner withdraw and sell the wood elsewhere," was Mr. Braund's reply.

Alderman Glover's motion, seconded by Alderman Swanston, to advance $5 a cord was withdrawn when an amendment by Alderman Dutton proposed an advance of $2,500 to Mr. Braund, and that the fuel committee be instructed to investigate at once the question of getting the wood out of the bush.

"A situation has arisen where no party can be blamed," said Alderman Dutton, "and I think we should do something about it."

Alderman Glover: "I think we'll be severely criticized if we lose 3,000 cords of wood, most of it hardwood."

It was intimated that Mr. Braund was satisfied with the Dutton proposal, which became the motion.

Moscow Verdict Jars Germany

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP). — The sweeping Moscow agreement was viewed here today as the greatest blow to German hopes of victory that the war has produced.

Unequivocal Allied unity — in the war and after the war— now confronts a beleaguered Nazi regime which recently has placed all its chips on prolonging the conflict by dividing the Allies against themselves.

The reply from Moscow seems to be clear. There is no division, and it is the sense of the four-power conference that there shall be none.

Foreign Minister Eden and United States State Secretary Cordell Hull and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, said the joint communique, had military experts along who discussed definite operations "already decided upon and now being prepared" to create a basis for the closest military co-operation in the future among Britain, Russia and the United States.

Solid Allied Wall

It was conjectured here that military understandings reached at the conference were incidental to the political agreements.

While the conference is regarded as likely to hasten the end of the war by confronting the Germans with a wall of Allied unity and by stirring rebellion against the Nazis all over Europe, the four power joint declaration in which China joined is considered here to be the historic milestone for which the meeting will be remembered the longest.

This agreement not only settles upon joint prosecution of the war until "those Axis powers with

Minister Pleads For World Outlook

The November meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association was held at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday. Those present were: Dr. E. W. Young (chairman), Reverends E. C. Moore, F. W. Craik, C. Kidd, W. A. Filer, J. F. Everson, E. W. Rowland, Andrew Thompson, H. J. Mahoney, J. H. Sutcliffe, Percy G. Buck, Doctors G. S. Easton and James D. Smart. Rev. W. A. Filer conducted the worship.

Several matters of interest were discussed, including the method of distributing casualty telegrams. It was agreed that each minister should forward to Mrs. Clare G. Collins, 528 Hunter Street N., a list of all men and women in the armed services from their congregation.

Dr. Andrew Thompson, returned missionary from China, spoke on behalf of the World Council of Churches. He outlined its origin and growth, its purpose and methods. He asserted that the Ecumenical movement had its origin and growth in the missionary effort of the past hundred years. Many problems confronting the missionary to China were happily solved in organizing the indigenous Church of China.

Dr. Thompson suggested that the churches of Peterborough endeavor to arrange a service of Ecumenical witness. He stressed the importance of lay evangelism in the field of evangelism and social service. He pleaded for a world outlook in the new program, the necessity of prayer to usher in this new life in Christ.

ALGIERS, Nov. 2 — (AP).—The Moscow four-Power announcements were greeted with mingled feeling of elation and disappointment by persons close to the French Committee of National Liberation.

The French expressed dissatisfaction that they were not included on the commission which will settle general European problems. They were included only on the Mediterranean Commission which is dealing with settlement of the Italian question.

"We feel no European settlement will be possible without consulting France," one French official said when he had studied the Moscow pronouncements.

Otherwise French officials praised the affirmation of close inter-Allied co-operation.

Flier Missing Over Year In Jap Prison

A happy ending has been written to the story of a young airman who vanished in January, 1942, almost without a trace in the Far East, when Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Horton, 368 Brock Street, received a card on Monday from their son, Sgt. Pilot Edgar F. Horton, saying he is now in the Japanese Fukuoka War Prison Camp.

SGT. PILOT E. HORTON

After he went overseas he was stationed in Scotland for a time and the last word received was when he docked for a day in South Africa. Later an aunt had a letter from him when he was somewhere on the Indian Ocean. An impenetrable cloud discouraged all efforts to discover any further traces, and there was some speculation that he might have been caught in the fall of Singapore.

Mr. Horton said to-day that he knows now that his son was never in Singapore, but was on his way there when the British stronghold fell. Instead of stopping they continued on to Java, where presumably he was captured.

A year after the young flier vanished from the ken of his family and that of the Air Force officials, the Government announced that he was officially missing, and his parents were forced to conclude that their boy was one of thousands who died in a vain attempt to stem the Japanese advance.

The card which arrived bore only a few words stating that Sgt. Pilot Horton's health was excellent and he was "working for pay," but it seems like a miracle to his happy family.

Enlisting in 1941, he trained as a pilot at Manning Pool, Picton and Ottawa. He got his wings at Upland. He has one brother, Sgmn. Ronald Horton, who is a despatch rider at Kingston. Before enlisting Edward Horton worked at the C.G.E.

Yugoslavs Break Tank Attack

LONDON, Nov. 2 — (CP). — Augoslav Patriots have smashed a German tank onslaught in Eastern Bosnia aimed toward Tuzla and have held their own in Montenegro against Nazi forces attempting operations, Gen. Josip Broz (Tito) Liberation Army reported to-day.

The communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, said the Patriots took the intitiative themselves in Western Bosnia, capturing a village, and that Croat guerillas destroyed a 2,000-yard stretch of railroad near Dugoselo on the Budapest to Zagreb mainline.

On the Serbian-Bosnian border, the Partisans listed 105 Nazi prisoners, including 25 Mihailovic Chetniks.

The Montenegrin fighting centred around the town of Kolasin, and the war bulletin said 250 German officers and men were killed while much material was captured.

The communique said Tito had received a telegram from Maj.-Gen. Apostolski, Chief of the Macedonian Liberals, pledging the Macedonians to fight for the liberation of their country. Apostolski was an officer on the staff of the former Yugoslav Army.

Tito's headquarters declared the former Yugoslav General Rupnik, now listed as a Slovenian quisling, was organizing a "white guard" in Slovenia to aid the Germans in their campaign against the Yugoslav Patriots. Rupnik, the communique asserted, has been charged with surrendering the plans of the Yugoslav general staff to the German high command.

F.D.R. Seizes Coal Mines Curbs Strikes

Orders Secretary To Draw Up Labor Contract

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP). — For the second time this year, the government took over operation of strike-paralyzed coal mines in the United States today and the seizure put the United Mine Workers' Union leadership in this position:

1. Order the strikers to dig coal again, immediately, or—

2. Sit tight and face the possibility of severe penalties under the War Disputes Act which outlines punishment for anyone who encourages a strike against a government-controlled industry in wartime.

The U.M.W.'s 200-man policy committee meets late today to make its choice.

U.M.W. president John L. Lewis by delaying action for one day on a coal walkout that is nearly 100 per cent effective, forced the issue yesterday when President Roosevelt ordered the seizing of the mines. There was a concession however from the government in the President's words:

"Because I appreciate the desire of the miners to work under a contract, I have authorized the Secretary of the Interior to enter into collective bargaining contracts with representatives of the miners to govern the terms and conditions of employment during period of Government operation. Such contracts will be made in accordance with the recent opinion of the National War Labor Board and will be subject to its approval in accordance with the provision of the War Labor Disputes Act."

Hinders War.

The bargaining field will be hedged, of course by the limitations which the War Labor Board laid down in the Illinois case and "such further directives as may be given" by the W.L.B. Nevertheless it offered Lewis an opportunity to nego-

"This is evidenced by the fact that Hon. A. Never any Sign of RHEUMATIC PAINS Returning . . . . .

When rheumatic pains have you in their grip, your one thought is of relief. If it can be quick relief, so much the better. And if it can be permanent relief, better still. Well, read what Mrs. Moore has to say:—

"About 12 months ago I was taken with rheumatic pains and was so ill I was getting deformed. For 10 months I tried everything, and was given up as a bad job. For days at a time, I could not get my hands up to my head. Then I thought of Kruschen Salts. Wonder of wonders! In six weeks' time I was able to do my own housework, and see to my kiddies, and there are no signs of the rheumatic pains returning."—(Mrs.) Moore.

Rheumatic pains, like gout and lumbago, can have their origin in intestinal stasis (delay)—a condition of which the sufferer is seldom aware. It means the unsuspected accumulation of waste matter and the consequent formation of excess uric acid.

Kruschen so stimulates the organs of elimination that the uric acid-forming waste material is regularly and effectively expelled. Kruschen helps to keep your inside clean and normal. Then, mischievous uric acid doesn't get the chance to accumulate again. Ask you druggist for Kruschen Salts: 25c and 75c.

Australia Faces Great Changes In Post War Era

Australia rests a great deal of hope in the growth of air transportation as a means of bringing her closer to the countries of the western world, and the tremendous increase in manufactures which the down-under continent has witnessed due to the impetus of war bids fair to make Australia, like Canada, an important factor in the post-war world, it was said on Monday by Mrs. Robertson Davies, addressing a meeting of the Rotary Club.

Mrs. Davies laid stress upon the distances which separate the land of her birth from the mother country and the nations of the Western Hemisphere, distances it still takes many weeks to cover by sea. The Australian people, she said, are looking forward to the day when the peace-time airplane will do much towards bringing to an end their sense of isolation from the rest of the world. Already, before the beginning of the war, a 10-day plane service had been established with the British Isles via India, and in the future traffic on this line and perhaps even to and from Canada, would be speeded up and made available to all.

Australia could now qualify as an industrial nation of the first rank, Mrs. Davies said. It was the requirements of war which led to this great expansion, with Australia now manufacturing combat planes for its own airmen and providing Allied troops with many of the munitions of war. In the future, the improvement of her position in this respect would make it possible for the Dominion to rely more on her capacities in her national defense and be less at the mercy of Eastern powers which outweighed her many times in size of population.

Japan Jealous

Speaking of Australian-Japanese relations in the troubled years before the outbreak of war, Mrs. Davies stated it was a fact well-known to the Australian Government that Japan had long had an eye upon the wide-open spaces of the big continent to the south of their Empire, and realizing this, good-will tours and visits of each country's navy had been undertaken from time to time as a means of promoting mutual understanding. In spite of these attempts, Jap fishing boats were secretly charting the waters of the Australian coasts and making plans for eventual invasion.

A land of 7,000,000 people, the vast majority lived in sea-coast cities the speaker said, and the "dead heart" of the continent, a thousand or more square miles, was useless for cultivation or the support of a population. In the back country were enormous sheep stations, and here also lived the aborigines whose civilization was that of the Stone Age. Famed as hunters and trackers in the desolate bush country, these Australian natives had proved of service in the war, rescuing lost airmen whom it would have been hopeless for white men to have tried to find without their aid.

Australians are great sportsmen, Mrs. Davies said, lovers of cricket and horse races and had a reputation of being passionate gamblers, ready to place a wager on almost any kind of contest. Their country's climate afforded a very striking contrast with that of Canada, being hot, dry and tropical in the north and in the south never cold enough to bring snow or demand more heating than open fires. Christmas, celebrated with the traditional feasting proper to people of English descent, came at the hottest season of the year.

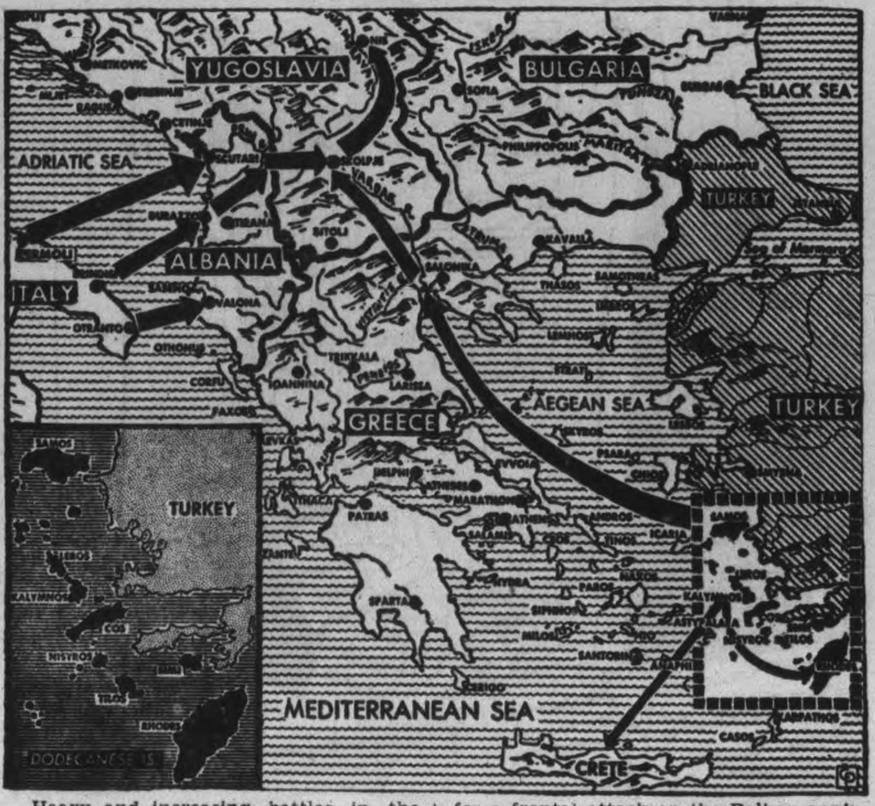
UNCONDITIONAL VICTORY

Britain's strategy from 1940 onwards led up to total victory in Africa, to the redemption of the first whole continent from the enemy.

Invasion Key To Balkans—The Dodecanese Isles



Heavy and increasing battles in the Dodecanese Islands, according to military analysts, involve strategic stakes that are rated highly by both the Allies and the Germans. These isles are essential links in the Nazi defence chain. The outer island bastions are Rhodes, Scarpanto and Crete. The surprise British seizure of Cos, Leros, and Samos, however, outflanked these German-held isles and gave the Allies a springboard for a frontal attack on the Balkan peninsula. The Nazis, therefore, are vigorously contesting any advance up the Aegean Islands to Greece. Should the Allies succeed in dislodging the enemy from these bases an invasion of the Balkans through the historic Vardar gateway, military experts believe, will follow. This drive, in all probability, would be coupled with amphibious invasions from Italy.

Winning War Precedes Bank Business

Citing the example of the thousands of Peterborough industrial workers who have not hesitated to pledge part of their earnings to investment in Victory Bonds, H. Clare Sootheran, manager of the Royal Bank, recommended this plan to farmers and business men in his CHEX address supporting the Loan in the series of Bankers' Broadcasts.

Mr. Sootheran directed his talk to this final week of the campaign in an urgent appeal to the people of the city and county to make certain of its success in Peterborough. The text of his address follows:

"So much has been said on behalf of the Victory Loan that anything I can say is repetition but there can be no harm in repeating some of the features already pointed out.

"One particular point I should like to emphasize is that you cannot go wrong by buying Victory Bonds. You may hesitate, on the grounds that your money may be required for something else, and you want to stay on the safe side by keeping a balance in your bank account, but you will be just as well off in that respect by buying Victory Bonds. You can get your money on them just as easily and as quickly as by cashing a cheque. These bonds will pay you three per cent interest, double the amount you get from a bank and will pay this right up to the day you have to have your money. That day might easily be farther off than you think. What is the use then, in leaving the money lying idle.

Business Secondary

"It may sound like poor business on the part of a banker to be pointing out that you can double the return on your money by putting your deposits into Victory Bonds, but the most important thing in the world is to win this war, and a large part of the money for the purpose must come out of the banks. Therefore, by advertisements in the public press, as well as by direct letter to the depositors, you are urged by all bankers to buy Victory Bonds to the maximum of your ability, and the time to buy these bonds is 'right now.' I am emphasizing the words 'right now' because we need an increased amount of interest in the County of Peterborough drive to put our proportion of the loan over.

The figures for this district indicate that about 75 per cent of our objective has been attained. However, we must remember that the Special Names and Employees' Campaigns are FINISHED, and make our results look better than they really are. Actually, there is over One Million Dollars STILL to be raised and only one week to go. This Million Dollars must come from the farmer, the householder and the business man of Peterborough; in other words the general canvass, which has only attained one-half of its objective.

"Perfectly Safe"

"Prospective subscribers will purchase bonds either with cash from their bank accounts, or by agreeing to make payment some time in the next six months. Some people hesitate about deferred payments, but factory employees have not hesitated to pledge a considerable proportion of their regular pay envelopes for the payment of Bonds over the next six months; that is the way they have reached and passed their objective. If the factory workers are prepared to do this, surely the business man and farmer, who will have money coming in in the next six months, should be equally prepared to save, on the instalment basis, by purchasing more bonds now than they can immediately pay for.

"As I mentioned before they are perfectly safe in doing so; if their receipts do not materialize as they expect they can always sell the bonds and in the meantime it is costing them nothing. The interest on the bonds will pay for the interest on the money borrowed. The Government has provided in the official application form a very simple method for instalment payment saving, and each Bank will be more than pleased to co-operate with you.

"The last week will be a critical week. Your help is needed to the utmost of your ability. See your Victory Loan salesman or go into your bank either tomorrow or the next day and make your subscription. IF possible, increase the subscription you have already made. Another point.

"At this moment, when the war news is heartening and encouraging, let us heed the warning against the folly of OVERCONFIDENCE.

"Let us realize that the time at which to hit hardest is the moment when the enemy shows signs of weakness.

"That moment is now! Show our strength, resolution and unity of purpose by making this Fifth Victory Loan the biggest and the most successful of all."

Lend Lease Takes 10 p.c. Of Output

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(CP).—This year probably 10 per cent of the food production of the United States will go to lend-lease, President Roosevelt said Monday in a message to Congress in which he also declared that substantial quantities of food have been provided for the United States' armed forces abroad by Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

He said American supplies had helped fed the army of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery and the R.A.F. and had helped to sustain workers in British factories, shipyards and mines.

"I think it is safe to say that English could not have continued in the war without the help she received in American and Canadian food."

The President said Russia lost 40 per cent. of her usual food production when Germany invaded that country and he was sure no one would disagree with the wisdom of "sustaining the gallant Russian fighters with food."

The striking power of American armed forces abroad has been "greatly augmented" by substantial quantities of food provided by the Allies.

"The United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand have provided the largest amount of food, but we have also received food under reverse lend-lease from other parts of the British Empire and are receiving increasing quantities of foodstuffs from the French in North Africa."

Farmers Shown How To Buy Victory Bonds

COBOURG, Nov. 2—(ENS)—How a farmer can pay for feed for his stock and buy a bond at the same time is explained by Ralph C. Banbury, agricultural representative for Northumberland County, in a statement issued to Northumberland County farmers. Mr. Banbury stated as follows:

"The Victory Loan salesmen tell me that the principal arguments they are encountering in the canvass is that people are havingto buy feed for their stock. I appreciate the crop situation but feel that perhaps there are one or two points not completely understood.

"Let us take the case of the man who has $500 in the bank. He says he is going to use the $500 to buy feed and cannot buy Victory Bonds. There are, however, two ways open by which this man could still purchase his bonds. In the first instance he could buy $500 bond for cash and then use the $500 bond as collateral for a loan at the bank to buy his feed. In this connection there would be no charge to him as the interest on the bond at 3% would pay for the interest on his loan, which also is 3% for the first six months. Then when the stock is sold, in the near future, he could use the proceeds to pay off his bank loan and he would still have the $500 bond.

"An alternative way of handling this situation would be to use the deferred payment method by which he would sign an application for $500 and make an initial payment of 10%. There would then be no payments due for six months and in the above case there would be no charges as the rate of interest on the loan is 3%, which is the same rate as the bond pays.

"Some people may say that they would rather not buy now but will invest in the next Victory Loan when it comes along. They should keep in mind however, that the cost of the war must be met as we go along."

Wild Geese Flight

GORE'S LANDING, Nov. 2 — (ENS). — Flying fast and high, a large flock of wild geese honked their way over this village Sunday afternoon. One line straggled across the sky for the best part of a mile. A local weather prophet said that when wild geese fly high it is a sign of fair weather.

COBOURG

Brighton Only Village To Reach Objective

COBOURG, Nov. 2. —(ENS). — Brighton village is still the only municipality in Northumberland county which has reached its Victory Loan objective, the standing for standing for that village being 107.2 p.c. last night. The results on the 13th day of the campaign show the disappointing total of $867,150, or a percentage of 51 of the $1,700.000 objective. Totals for the municipalities are as follows:

Cobourg $20,100, 40 p.c.; Hamilton township $84.700, 48.4 p.c.; South Monaghan township $24,900, 62.25 p.c.; Haldimand township $42,800, 42.80 p.c.; Alnwick township $16,300, 46.57 p.c.; Percy township $54,150, 49.22 p.c.; Cramahe township $23,500, 62.55 p.c.; Colborne $46,050, 65.78 p.c.; Brighton township $31,750, 52.91 p.c.; Brighton village $134,050, 107.2 p.c.; Murray township $25,900, 32.37 p.c.; Campbellford $87,550, 50.02 p.c.; Seymour township $66,250, 53 p.c.

Lindsay Woman Awarded $7,000

LINDSAY, Nov. 2—(ENS)—Mrs. Charles Stone, of Lindsay, was awarded settlement of $7,000 by Mr. Justice Green, at the Fall Assizes here Monday in a claim filed against the Kawartha Lumber Company, following the death by accident of her husband Charles Stone.

Mr. Stone was injured and later died as a result of being caught between a truck owned by the company and a portable sawing machine. I. E. Weldon, K.C. of Toronto, appearing for Mrs. Stone stated that a settlement of $7,000 had been agreed upon as satisfactory. The money will be distributed between Mrs. Stone and her five children. C. G. Frost acted for the defendants.

Alex. Young On Leave

COBOURG, Nov. 2 — (ENS). — Town Clerk Alexander Young, who has been in Toronto for a few days in connection with his health, will be absent from his duties for a time, as he has been ordered to take a rest. It is expected that after a period of convalescence he will be able to resume his duties. During his absence Miss H. Hawkey will be in charge.

William Runion Killed In Italy

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2 — (ENS).—Pte. William Runion, who enlisted in the Hastings, Prince Edward Regiment in November, 1939, has been killed in action in Italy, according to word received by his parents, Pte. and Mrs. Cami Runion.

A month after he enlisted he went overseas along with his father, who was in the same unit. He was a bugler for A company and was in France in 1940 when that country collapsed. He went to Sicily and while he escaped without a scratch, his brother Bud was seriously wounded and is still in hospital. He was in A company too.

Bugler Runion was born and educated in Campbellford and worked at the Campkellford Cloth Company before he enlisted. The Salvation Army, where he was a member, is holding a memorial service on Sunday.

He is survived by his wife and two infant sons in England, his father in Kingston and his mother at Campbellford; four brothers, Jack of Campbellford, Bugler Carl at Kingston, Fred of Kingston, Bud overseas and Norman at home. There is one sister, Mrs. E. Grilia, of Oshawa.

A Unified Plan Of Action

The greatest satisfaction will be felt among the United Nations at the splendid success of the Three-Power Conference in Moscow. Last week General Sir Bernard Montgomery said: "If ever anything is certain in this life, it is now clear that we shall win this war": this week it would be possible to go further, and say that if anything is certain, it is now certain that we shall win the peace.

Unity for war we have had for a long time, in spite of the mistrust of Russia which has been worked up in some quarters. But the longer the war goes on, the more obvious it is that Russia is our unwavering ally in war, and will be our unwavering ally in peace if we choose to treat her decently. The Three Power Conference has put in concrete form the intention of Britain, Russia and the U.S. to work for victory in the fight, and to continue their close association to work for victory in the postwar reconstruction of Europe and of the world.

They have stated the need for "a general international organization, based on the principle of sovereign equality of all peace-loving states and open to membership by all such states". They have recognized the wisdom of disarming the enemy while keeping themselves well armed. They have determined to act together for the peace and for the general good, in an agreement which is a pact of mutual non-aggression and a promise not to go to war with other states without a mutual consultation first.

Their determination to visit justice on German war criminals will be received with glee by the conquered countries; the offenders are to be returned to the scene of their crimes to be tried under the law of whatever land it may be; this should keep the courts busy for a year or two in the most congenial trials of all history. It must be clear also that this action establishes a precedent which should be of the greatest value in the future, and which should certainly have a salutary effect on any Germans who still yearn for the unlimited power and brutality of Nazism.

The Moscow conference has apparently been a brilliant success. A plan has been made for united action in peace as well as in war, and the agreements which have been made public all have a thoroughly sound, practical appearance. The three great powers mean business, and they have made a thoroughly businesslike agreement.

The Silent Censor

The job of censoring letters is one which would put a severe strain on a man who was genuinely interested in people. Think of what passes through his hands: confessions of love, of hate, gossip, scandal, trivialities amusing revelations — everything that can be crowded into a letter! Minding other people's business is his bounden duty. But—and this is the catch—he must preserve an absolute discretion about what he reads, and refrain from interjecting any comments of his own. It would take a man of cold and indifferent temperament to make a good censor.

Apparently some of the American censors have not had the glacial integrity needed for their work. They have not only snipped bits out of letters; they have also written bits in. They have given advice; on occasion they have even put money in the envelope! They have done, in fact, what any of us might do in similar circumstances.

Of course they have been rebuked for it, and ordered to do no more than delete dangerous matter from the mail. Writing things in letters is an offence against the privacy of the mails, a cherished right of free countries. The censor is supposed to be not a man, but a disembodied spirit of discretion who reads letters, cut out what should be cut out, re-seals the envelope, and immediately forgets what he has read. We doubt if it is granted to even the frostiest censor to do all of this every time; he must remember a phrase or two or a passage which has called up an amusing picture. But in future he is forbidden to shove his oar in where he is not wanted. Pity the censor; not all the war's heroes are at the front.

More About German Weakness

No living diplomat could be more conservative than Viscount Halifax, and when he makes a statement that "anything may happen" in Europe during the next few months it is time for us all to sit up and take notice. Lord Halifax has been in Britain for the past two months and is undoubtedly equipped with the latest information to come from Occupied Europe and from within the Reich itself. What he said was: "One part of your mind should prepare for a long and tough struggle, but with the other part you can legitimately watch for anything to happen". This, taken together with Mr. Churchill's recent remark that we might soon be looking, not for men, but jobs, is deeply significant.

We have been warned time and again not to count on a sudden collapse of Germany to end the war and only a few unrealistic folk have done so. But we are now in the fifth year of war, and any collapse which comes in the next year can hardly be considered premature or unexpected. We know that Germany's strength has waned as that of the United Nations has waxed; we know that the bombing of her great cities has been a crushing blow to her industrial power and to her self-esteem. Germany is near a break-up, there can be no doubt of that.

But Germany is tough. Great fighting nations can rally themselves when their plight seems hopeless, and fall on their foes with the utmost ferocity; Germany has proved herself a great fighting nation many times in recent history. She may rally again, and snatch the victory of which we are now so certain from our grasp, if we relax our efforts in any way. We may hope for a collapse, as Lord Halifax says, but we dare not behave as though a collapse were imminent.

Miss Dorothy Thompson, in a carefully reasoned article, has explained how hard it would be for a collapse of Germany to come about. The German commander-in-chief is Adolf Hitler, and he is also chief of the state. So long as Hitler chooses to hang on, there will be no surrender, and even if Hitler were to die or disappear, there would be no surrender so long as the Nazi party remained in existence. Only a complete blow-up in Germany, which destroyed the party and its Fuehrer, and plunged the country into chaos, would end the war. And even then it would not be easy, for in a chaotic state who is to be trusted to speak for the public?

Nevertheless these repeated hints from the highest sources that Germany is near collapse are good news, and a spur to intensified effort.

Opera In English

Joseph Laderoute, the young Canadian tenor, has told the press that he thinks that opera should be sung to English-speaking audiences in English. If Mr. Laderoute expects this to be a bombshell, rousing controversy everywhere in Canada, he is going to be disappointed. Everyone has shared his belief for fifty years or more. It is the custom on the Continent for opera to be sung in the language of whatever country it is performed in, and there is no reason why we should listen to it in French, or German, or Italian if we are not familiar with those tongues. Of course, opera in English might not always sound as well as opera is other languages; it is the custom in the Netherlands to present the fiery libidinous Carmen in Dutch, and everyone, including many Netherlanders, agrees that the effect is terrible; the Netherlanders understand what is being sung but much of the beauty of the opera is destroyed.

It is often so when opera is sung in English. The opening lines of the Jewel Song in Faust, for instance, are translated thus:

Ah, what joy beyond compare
Possibly these jewels bright to wear!

Could anything be more trite, less poetic? Sing opera in that sort of English, and the Metropolitan can hang up its shutters next week.

We know of only one theatre where opera is consistently sung in English, and that is Sadler's Wells theatre in London, where operatic performances are given for nine months of each year. The musical and dramatic standard of the company is high, the repertoire is large and varied, and the audiences are enthusiastic. But—and this is the important thing—the Wells gets either new translations, or old translations which have been carefully re-vamped, before it foists them on the public. There is no point in singing opera in English if it is going to sound silly.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Says a German officer in Italy: "The Canadians are as bad as the Russians. They keep pushing in and trying to kill us". Are they really as bad as the Russians? Hurray!

Mr. Bracken's Farm Program

(THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

THE views of Mr. Bracken, as an expert on agriculture and an experienced administrator, are of interest and value, and his program speech at Lethbridge will thus attract general attention. The advance announcement of a 30-point policy, however, invested it with an importance which its contents do not altogether validate. Much of the discussion and the program itself simply recognize phases of the agricultural problems which are matters of common knowledge and concern to all who have responsibilities in this connection; and give the promise in very general terms that Mr. Bracken is himself aware of these difficulties and will do his best if he is given the opportunity to work out needed improvements and solutions. The present Minister of Agriculture, with respect to most of the points, could say as much, and in addition point to policies and methods already in operation directed towards many of the desired objectives.

Thus Mr. Bracken makes something of a claim that in his government, should he form one, the Minister of Agriculture would be a trained agriculturist and so would his under-secretary. This has been the custom with all up-to-date governments for the past twenty years. The present Minister of Agriculture is a practical farmer, trained in the hard school of experience and the permanent head—who is just as competent under the title "Deputy Minister" as he would be under Mr. Bracken's preferred term "under-secretary"—is a scientifically trained agriculturist, as practically all deputy ministers of agriculture are.

Another point made was that additional markets would be obtained by developing industrial uses for farm products. Research to these ends has been going on for some years and considerable progress has already been made. Possibilities in this direction were set out in some detail at the last session of parliament by Mr. Gordon Ross.

We mention these facts because they illustrate the character of two-thirds or three-fourths of the pronouncement. These statements are simply assurances to the public that Mr. Bracken is aware of the difficulties from which agriculture is suffering, and has some ideas as to how they are to be tackled. But there is nothing startling in all this—it is the commonplace course of politics.

MR. BRACKEN in his address left out the mathematical calculation of the share of agriculture in the national income which has been a feature of many of his past addresses. It usually took the form of pointing out that while the farming population represented one-third of the Canadian total it received less than one-sixth of the national income. The figures, even when th proportions are accurately stated, strongly support the general belief that the agricultural income of Canada is less than it should be, and are a justification for an examination into the reasons and for remedial action. But we note with interest that, according to the newspaper reports, Mr. Bracken did not resort to the argument that there should be a distribution of national wealth on a strictly mathematical basis. This fallaciously superficial claim should be left to the Socialists.

The correct figures of aggregate farm income as worked out recently by statistical experts show that the total farming population is 27 per cent, not 33 per cent, and that its share of the national income is 18.4 per cent, not 16 per cent or less. This is a considerable improvement upon the figures which have so often been used to illustrate violent speeches, but the disparity is still great enough to give support to the claim that farming suffers from our fiscal set-up. There is nothing new about this claim. It has been pressed by Western Liberals for the past forty years; and associated with them in their protest was Mr. Bracken during his twenty years as Premier of this province.

THESE beliefs Mr. Bracken has not renounced. The chief and the most valid of the remedies proposed at Lethbridge was the securing of wider markets under a program of international collaboration. This is consonant with the policies which John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba, stoutly supported; and is in harmony with the fiscal policies as restated no later than yesterday by Mr. King in his message to the National Foreign Trade Convention in New York. In his message Mr. King mentioned not thirty but four points, but they are sufficient, if implemented, to go a long way to remove the disparities which are quite rightly, resented by Canadian agriculturists. Mr. King called for close international relations between all nations; for agreements looking towards progressive tariff reductions; for functional machinery to carry on necessary arrangements, including international monetary stability and all necessary credit; and for domestic policies to provide maximum employment.

That Mr. Bracken is himself in favour of all these provisions we have no doubt. This is established by his whole public career. That he thinks he is forwarding their attainment by his crusading on behalf of the Conservative party is equally certain. Upon this point however confidence is not as general as he thinks. Mr. Bracken would remove these doubts were he to assert this low tariff program on the floor of parliament and see to it that his followers pledge themselves by voice and vote to make these policies effective if given the chance. Until he does so he must not be surprised if there are people and plenty of them who, while not doubting in the least his own integrity, suspect that he is being used to get support for policies in keeping with the traditional beliefs of the Conservative party which are being kept in storage against the day when they can again take the field on behalf of restriction, monopoly, protection and all the products of thorough-going economic nationalism.

A Bible Message

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them....

And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day....

Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made. And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made....

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. (Gen. 1: 26, 27, 31; 2: 1-3, 6, 7.)

Utopia With Whipped Cream

(THE PRINTED WORD)

THE other day a man who for long years has viewed political questions with amused tolerance was asked why he became so violent in opposition to the C.C.F. Here are some of his reasons.

1. The C.C.F. program for spending to make prosperity would make it impossible to reduce taxes.

2. The C.C.F. program makes inevitable the continuance of wartime controls of business.

3. Gradual taking over of our large enterprises by the State would mean, eventually, that our most enterprising young people—the kind who don't wish to become civil servants—would leave Canada for the United States.

4. Socialism reduces steadily the number of people giving orders and increases the number who take orders.

5. Continuance of controls in time of peace would mean that, as at present, no one could start a new business without governmental permission. Those already in a given line of business would always have sufficient political power to convince the authorities that that line of industry already was well served.

6. The government enterprise inevitably would try to control the competing private enterprise. The general manager of the government-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is the real boss of the privately owned radio stations.

7. Heads or employees of boards and commissions already enjoying a certain measure of independence of parliament (sometimes called "freedom from political interference") have at times endeavoured to stifle criticism, or even discussion, of their work. This tendency would grow as government enterprises became more all-inclusive.

8. The necessity for uniformity—or alleged necessity therefor—would lead to more and more centralization. At present, he argues, a complaint about garbage collection is effective when he gets an alderman on the telephone.

Our friend, who has been in various occupations, including selling cigars, says he might think up some more reasons. But these eight suffice, he says, to qualify him as a voter for some other party which doesn't promise Utopia with whipped cream on it.

Young Votes Are Needed

(THE PRINTED WORD)

CONFRONTED with the fact, as adduced by the Gallup poll, that the Progressive Conservatives in Ontario received the largest percentage of aging and aged voters of any of the three parties, a continuing Tory remarked that that merely proved that we grow wiser as we grow older. This was more of a rejoinder than an argument, for it it still remains a fact that the older parties must, if they are not to die, win the support of a high percentage of the young voters. There are Liberals now voting who were not born when Sir Wilfrid Laurier died and there are relatively few Tories still living—and most of these are living on borrowed time—who remember the charm of Sir John A. Macdonald. Mr. Meighen, who was Sir Robert Borden's bright young man, is now an elder and retired statesman who has hardly been heard from since last December.

Of course there were youngsters at the Winnipeg Progressive Conservative convention. One of them is sure he'll be Progressive Conservative prime minister and has already promised at least one senatorship. But, by and large, younger people are more likely than their elders to see little or no merit in the tried and true and to go in a big way for some reform or other, if only because it never has been tried before.

Perhaps the greatest democratic need is to show people that they can't successfully bribe themselves with their own money—that the state has no mysterious source of wealth other than the collective wealth of its citizens. Another great truth which some people invariably overlook is that administration is overhead, that bookkeepers are necessary evils. All evil, even bookkeeping, should be kept to a minimum. In some kinds of industry they have an account called "unproductive labour." Costs are lowered when the percentage of unproductive labour is reduced. Many of the so-called reforms proposed by young and enthusiastic persons involve the creation of unnecessary unproductive labour. As individuals and as a people we cannot become wealthier by adding unproductive labour, increasing overhead unnecessarily, or superimposing frills on an essential minimum of administrative establishment.

The problem for every citizen would seem to be how to be conservative without being reactionary; how to be progressive without playing with dynamite, and how to be liberal without compromise of sound principle. Age cannot be allowed to quench the enthusiasm of youth, and youth should not discard, as merely hoary, the accumulated experience of men and women who were young only yesterday or the day before.

Beyond Freud And Adler

(CHESTER A. BLOOM in the Winnipeg Free Press)

WHOLE-HEARTED British collaborationists in the United States, though they number a majority of Americans, are handicapped by two almost ineradicable American complexes.

One is that Britain is the traditional enemy of the United States and has been trying, since 1776, to destroy the republic. This is largely held by Americans deriving from revolutionary stock.

The other is the split mind now afflicting most Americans on the subject whether America shall pursue her destiny as a great world power or withdraw into her western hemisphere shell once more. It is surprising the number of otherwise intelligent people who believe the latter course is still possible.

Intangible as both these illusions seem, they nevertheless are hard facts in the realm of international politics; they must be taken into calculation and weighed in considering such otherwise unintelligible outbursts as the criticisms of the five peripatetic senators. Undoubtedly, all the quintette were influenced, at bottom, by the two great illusions — traditional British ill-will and American isolationism.

A concrete illustration is more effective than the generalizations above. The writer had a long and friendly talk the other day with an able anti-administration politician busily engaged in gathering ammunition against That Man. His argument was based on these premises:

First, that Roosevelt was responsible for taking the United States into the war even in the case of Japan, where provocative acts had been committed. Second, that even if Roosevelt were right in taking the United States into war, a sufficient number of people would not believe any proof to that effect—would defeat him at the first opportunity. Third, the President always took the British side, and the British had been giving the United States the worst of all the deals for more than 150 years. Fourth, the proper course for the United States to take when Germany and Japan are beaten is to keep out of Asia and Europe, maintain suzerainty over the whole western hemisphere and keep other nations from trespassing. Fifth, the United States should take steps to see that she keeps permanently the rights to which she is entitled by spending billions in establishing airplane and other bases around the world—in short, dominate world aviation.

The writer pointed out the inconsistency of the last two arguments. Does the United States really want to withdraw into the western hemisphere, or does she wish to extend her world influence; to maintain a sphere of influence over the Philippines and, say, over Dakar in West Africa, or wherever else her war bases are located? Obviously, the two do not go together. The British, said the writer, merely want the United States to make up her mind, one way or the other, so they will know what to do.

This putting of the question floored the politician—he did not in truth know his own mind on the subject. And that is precisely what afflicts a large and influential section of American opinion today. By the self-glorifying patriotism with which they have been indoctrinated, they unconsciously long for world power and American expansion—but there they came in inner conflict with the great illusion that foreign nations are inimical to the United States, especially Britain, and the safest thing is to stay home.

This is a problem that no one else but Americans themselves can resolve. Unfortunately their form of government, with the executive and legislature in separate, sealed compartments, does not lend itself to an easy solution of the problem. Let us hope it will not take a third war to convince them.

Mr. Jolliffe's Figures

(THE OTTAWA JOURNAL)

WHEN Mr. E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader, said in Ottawa last week that "35 to 40 per cent of the workers—even now—get less than $500 a year" and that "20 per cent of the wage-earners who are heads of families still earn less than $10 a week," The Journal asked: "Where does Mr. Jolliffe get his figures?"

The Montreal Gazette holds up its hand.

"We have an idea where he got them. If we are right the case against them is even stronger than The Journal makes out. Over-all averages admittedly, can sometimes be quite misleading but not half as misleading as the Jolliffe version of wage breakdowns compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics from the 1941 census—based incidentally, not on the whole population but on a 10 per cent sample."

The Gazette, we think, is right; and we suspect that Mr. Jolliffe picked his figures from the Marsh Report, which reproduces the Census findings. But whereas Prof. Marsh made clear that the Census count was but a 10 per cent sampling, and that it included "salaried personnel from the age of 14 upwards," Mr. Jolliffe didn't trouble with any such explanations.

The Census figures were compiled in 1941. Mr. Jolliffe gives them as representing "even now" —when the position has vastly changed. Even then, Mr. Jolliffe wasn't satisfied. Says the Gazette:

"Even at that, he exaggerates. He says 35 to 40 per cent of all workers earn less than $500. Census tables show the proportion of all workers aged 14 years and over whose earnings are below $500 to be 33 per cent. Mr. Jolliffe says 20 per cent of wage-earner heads of households earn less than $500; the census makes it 17 per cent.

Nor was that all. The census lumps all workers, part-time and full-time, into the totals from which this breakdown was derived. It is true that 33 per cent of all wage-earners were employed less than 40 weeks, 22 per cent less than 30 weeks, 16 per cent less than 20 weeks. Deduct the men who were wage-earners only half the time, and then deduct the boys of 14 to 18 who were drawing apprentice rates from those who were earning less than $500, and the position becomes entirely different. And all this, remember, was in 1940-41. Today, the figures, even on the basis of the census method of compiling them, would be different—yet Mr. Jolliffe, using misleading figures to mislead, makes them still more misleading by the use of the words "even now."

It is hard to believe in that way the C.C.F. party is going to win public confidence.

Roosevelt Asks Retention Food Subsidies

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP).—President Roosevelt in an exhaustive review of the world food situation urged Congress yesterday to continue and increase the administration's $800,000,000 food price subsidy program to assure an adequate supply and prevent a "serious and dangerous cycle" of inflation in the United States.

The President sent to the Legislature the longest special message of his nearly 11 years in the White House—10,000 words.

The message assured the people of the United States there will be "enough food to go around,' specifically nailed reports of a "meat famine' this winter, and declared the price support program is proving reasonably successful in these two objectives:

Increasing production, and maintaining fair food prices for the consumer.

"I am convinced," the President said, "that to abandon our present policy would increase the cost of living, bring about demands for increased wages which would then be justifiable, and might well start a serious and dangerous cycle of inflation—without any net benefit to anyone."

800 Millions.

The President did not say how much money the United States Government would need for price supports in 1944, but he said it would be more than the $800,000,000 used this year.

Preferring to call payments to farmers made to meet the promised price "war subsidies" instead of producer or consumer subsidies, the President said such aid is the same principle that has "proved so effective" in the production of copper, lead, zinc and aluminum and which every country at war has utilized to hold down living costs.

(In Canada the Government maintains price ceilings for various imported products such as manufactured foods and certain citrus fruits through the payment of subsidies to dealers through the Stability Corporation. The corporation is empowered to order the reduction of manufacturers' and wholesalers' costs to keep retail prices within ceilings set by the Prices Board and to compensate them accordingly.)

The President said the United States has exceeded all First Great War production figures in the food line by large margins and that control programs in this war have kept the rise in the cost of living since August, 1939, to not quite 26 per cent as compared with 53 per cent for the same period of the last conflict.

Britain Needs Lots Of Bacon

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 — (CP). — The United Kingdom still needs all the bacon Canada can ship and a reduction in the amount to be supplied under contract during the next two years does not mean there will be hogs to spare for export to the United States, informed sources said to-day.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario recently urged Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Agriculture Minister, to remove the embargo on export hogs to the United States.

"Although Canada is contracting to supply only 900,000,000 pounds of bacon to the United Kingdom in the next two years, compared with 675,000,000 pounds this year, it has to be kept in mind that the two-year contract will be on a 'not-less-than' basis," one official said.

"This means that if we can supply more than 900,000,000 pounds we shall send it—and the British will be glad to get it."

The ban on shipments to the United States was imposed two years ago to ensure that the United Kingdom got the bacon supplies required to maintain her bacon ration.

"I'll tell you one thing," says Squadron Leader Charles Stuart Dowie, D.F.C., Bar—

"We can't win this war with an even balance of power—it must be a decisive superiority. The more support, the shorter the war!

"The better we're backed up by the folks back home—the better we fight!"

SETTING THE PACE FOR VICTORY

Squadron Leader DOWIE knows what he's talking about! Fifty flights over enemy territory taught him. He knows you can't stop at being just as good as the other man—you've got to be better and have more of everything!

He knows the Jerries are tough! Once they nearly got him when he visited Hamburg in a death-dealing Wellington! It was a close call—but those Canadians did what they set out to do ::: released a surprise packet of bursting bombs right where it hurt Jerry most—on one of his precious war factories.

Then they streaked for home ::: if you can call it streaking ::: peppered with flak—the bomb doors hanging open ::: flaps sagging ::: and the hydraulic system knocked out! You lose a lot of height quick in a jam like that—and bucking a strong west wind doesn't help much! But they made it—safely—with less than ten minutes' gas to spare. That's war as they know it ::: split-second decisions ::: nerves tensed to trigger quickness ::: brains alert to death and danger.

That's their job—tackled in the true Canadian spirit! Tackled by boys from prairie farms . . . from northern bushlands . . . from peaceful Canadian seacoasts . . . from little towns that have borne and bred men with the spirit of Squadron Leader Dowie.

They're fighting this war—and they know what's needed! When they ask for more planes, more equipment, more guns—there's only one answer ::: "more of everything on its way!"

We can do it—we're Canadians too! It means more and more work ::: greater self-denial ::: MORE VICTORY BONDS!

Show these boys we're in there fighting with them ::: they're putting everything they've got into this war ::: put everything you've got into VICTORY BONDS.

For it's VICTORY BONDS that will deliver the goods ::: it's VICTORY BONDS that will shorten the war.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

"The "draft board" of major league baseball held its annual session in the Chicago office of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday when they mulled over the call-up of 15 eligible players from the minor circuits for next season. New York Giants, last in the 1943 National League race, obtained the prize package in picking first-baseman Phil Weintraub, who hit .334 and 16 home runs for Toledo Mud Hens in the American Association during the past season. Giants really got him back because Weintraub formerly looked after the initial sack for the N.Y. Nationals and, in subsequent draws, they obtained two second-basemen and a pitcher.

Charles Letchas, Toronto second-sacker. was in the grab bag and he was taken by the Philadelphia Phillies. Boston Red Sox claimed a twirler in Clem Hausmann, who won 14 and lost 14 for Kansas City, and the Phils got what w considered third choice in Charue Chans, San Diego hurler. Detroit took Eddie Mayo, Louisville third oaseman; Chicago White Sox bid in Ed Carnett, .321-hitting outfielder from Seattle, and the Brooklyn Dodgers drafted Gil English, Indianapolis third sacker with a .322 mark. Rochester of the International League, lost pitcher Ira Hutchinson to Boston Braves while Joe Orango, St. Paul shortstop, went to the Detroit Tigers.

Bird dog enthusiasts from all over the province will gather at Glendale Corners next Saturday morning and remain for the autumn trials of the London branch of the Ontario Bird Dog Association.

Annis Stukus of Toronto Balmy Beach, season-long scoring leader in the Ontario Rugby Football Union series, last night held a 10-point lead over his closest rival, Joe Kroj of Hamilton Flying Wildcats, it was shown in Union scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press.

Big Stuke scored two field goals, a single and three converts in the two games Beaches played in the last week to increase his total by 10 points to 56.

Scores 29 Points.

Earning 29 points in six Conference games, Ches McCance, backfielder of the Winnipeg R.C.A.F. bombers, headed the season's point-getters in the western season of scheduled grid tilts. A team-mate, Lac. Johnny Lake, ran up 16 points. Lieut. Lee Sherman, Winnipeg United halfback, was third with 13 tallies.

Manager David Kerr of Toronto Peoples announced last night his team would not continue in the Senior Provincial playoffs of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association after winning three of four games from Hamilton Majors, the latter having demanded a best-in-seven series.

Five horses of the Cosgrave and Meadway stables were being shipped to-day from Toronto to Tropical Park for the Florida raing season. The quintette is headed by Appas Tappas, Muchy and Gypster. Bert Alexander is in charge.

No less than 131 Canadian-bred colts have been nominated for the 1945 renewal of the Orpen Cup and Saucer, annual fall feature of the Long Branch Jockey Club for two-year-olds. The nominations are 23 greater than any previous list.

Empire Title At Stake Tonight

The biggest thrill wrestling fans of this city have ever had, is due tonight at the Brock Arena. On the Arena mat two of the "top shots" of the grapple game come together in a do-or-die struggle. And the prize is the mat championship of the British Empire, which Canadian wrestlers consider almost as important as the world title. The setting tonight is a perfect one for one of the hardest wrestling matches ever fought. The champion, Whipper Billy Watson, has proven beyond all doubt his title quality not only by winning the coveted crown but even more so by the fact that he has consistently met all comers who have challenged. Watson is probably the fightingest champion the game has seen. In the past six months he has met and flattened a whole array of heavyweights who thought they were good enough to take him into camp.

Matching him tonight though is Palermo John Katan, bigger, rougher, and more ruthless than any other wrestler Canada has ever developed. If Katan can win back the Empire Crown (which he once held in Australia) the title is likely to stay with him for a considerable period of time. A cagy veteran, and an opportunist of the first water, Katan "The Killer" is ring-wise enough to seize any weakness that an opponent may momentarily present. If he wins tonight Katan is very unlikely to give any dangerous challengers a "break" in the near future.

Two other bouts are between Irish Pat Flanagan and Jan Gotch and between Joe Maich and Mike Demetre.

Patrons are advised to get into their seats early.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

This is quite a week for Whipper Watson. Tonight he lays his British Empire title on the line in a match at Brock St. Rink with the Palermo Panther, John Katan. Thursday night in Toronto the Whipper will meet Wild Bill Longson in a battle for the world's championship. In other words Peterborough fans are being given the chance to see the Empire title-holder and the logical contender for the world honors risk the championship he holds in a final workout for Thursday's battle that he hopes will put him on the top shelf in the wrestling hall of fame. Watson is on the spot in a sense. He has to go after Katan with everything he has and wind up this bout as soon as possible in order to be in the best possible condition for the struggle with Longson. And Katan is not the kind of an opponent that you can get rid of in a hurry. He's tough and rough and courageous and he knows about everything in the wrestling text books. He may not be as handsome as the Whipper or as fast but he has a lot of moxy and he is a mighty tough bird to be asked to meet in a championship bout two nights before meeting the world title-holder. So far as the Panther is concerned he figures he would have as much chance against Longson as the Whipper has and he is going out tonight to prove it. All of which adds up to one of the most exciting struggles of the year.

* * * * * *

The Brock St. management is arranging for extra seats, rightly figuring that the Watson-Katan battle will mean the biggest attendance of the year. And all the interest will not be in the main bout either. Many fans are expecting a lot of entertainment out of the engagement between Irish Pat Flanagan and the bad man Jan Gotch in the semi-fnial. Flanagan who works out with the Whipper frequqntly using a lot of the Watson technique and he hopes to be able to outsmart Gotch. The latter, however, knows most of the answers and the final result will probably be that Flanagan will find that instead of outsmarting his opponent he'll have to outpunch him. That should make the bout a merry mixup with Gotch tossing everything but the ring posts at the Irishman and Flanagan coming back with mule kicks, pile-drivers and what-have-you. On the other hand unless somebody loses his temper the fast-travelling Joe Maich of Brantford and the slippery Mike Demetre of Montreal should treat the customers to a speedy and clever demonstration of the wrestling art in the opening bout.

Quite A Year

The robbing-the-cradle policy that has been inaugurated this season by the professional hockey teams is spreading to the amateur ranks. Thus the proposal to come before the annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association's various divisions to play junior O.H.A. without losing their status in their own series. That ostensibly is a move in the interest of minor hockey but its purpose is really to make it easier for the junior O.H.A. club to bolster up their ranks. The junior A series of the Ontario body is a big money-maker and as the Ontario body takes its cut there is naturally a desire to make the organization as strong as possible, hence the motion. It is going to be a queer year, with juveniles breaking into the cash-and-carry ranks and bantams probably starring in the higher bracket of the O.H.A. junior series.

According to Billy Westwick, Ottawa sports commentator, heads of army hockey teams are doing a lot of worrying these days. Here is the situation as he outlined it in his sport column in the Ottawa Journal: "If there is to be a wholesale movement of star hockey players within army ranks—practically all centres are prepared, or should we say, resigned to one—it should not be long in coming. Thus far National Defence has confined itself to one public statement which has been accepted as rather vague by some quarters and looked on as very ominous by others. But latest banter along the boulevard has it that the orders already have gone out to commanding officers in the various centres. The word around is that commanding officers have been asked to submit a list of the hockey players of all categories who are of overseas age. It is also reported that such players should not "be deprived of the opportunity of going overseas." The newcomers are covered by a "reminder" that all recruits must start taking their basic training. The list of overseas eligibles are to be completed and returned by November 4, according to the reports. Meanwhile, hockey centres with their eye on the opening date of November 4 are keeping their fingers crossed and eyes peeled for replacements."

Another Kasaboski

Peterborough wrestling fans who remember Alex Kasaboski, the Renfrew boy who used to wrestle Frankie Hart and Jack Kogut here a few years ago will be interested in learning that he has a younger brother Larry who is making his debut in the wrestling game. The Ottawa Journal says: "They've given Larry Kasaboski, of Renfrew, a spot on tomorrow night's wrestling card. It doesn't seem so long ago he was a young student at Renfrew campaigning in the collegiate assaults and yearning for the time he could step into professional ranks and follow in the footsteps of brother, Alex. The latter, who broke into the pro ranks around here about the time Ivan Mickailoff was opening up the city, is still campaigning across the border. Young Larry couldn't see any other sport but wrestling as a youngster. Older brother Alex was his idol and the late Stanley Stasiak was the idol of both. Now Larry is out on his own and doing quite well from reports. They've picked out a seasoned light heavyweight as an opponent for him in Bill Demitre, who once lost out in a close bout to Billy Watson as a light heavy in Europe. There'll be plenty of interest in young Kasaboski's bout for those who watched him when he was one of the most talented high school grapplers developed in the Ottawa Valley."

* * * * * *

The only game in the National Hockey League tonight sees the luckless New York Rangers, playing their third battle in succession on the road, clashing with the Canadiens in Montreal. That should see Lester Patrick's team, once the classiest in hockey, absorb its third loss in succession. The showing made by the new Young Men of Manhattan in their games against the Leafs and Red Wings contains no reason for suspecting that they have a chance of tripping up the Canadiens in Montreal. Toronto Leafs who got away to a flying start over the week-end have a real test Thursday night when they will battle Jack Adams' Red Wings in Detroit. It never was an easy job winning over the Detroiters at home and this year the Red Wings, compared with some of the other aggregations, look particularly tough. Thursday night's battle will be a good yardstick as to the real strength of the Leafs.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: There are still plenty of hockey players in the 'teen age group....Toronto Marlboros had 50 candidates out for their initial practice....Kingston Navy hockey team has been given Junior B rating....Annis Stukus of the Bammies sure has an educated toe... So far this season he has kicked nine goals from the field, converted ten touchdowns by placement goals and picked up four singles on placement attempts that went wide....Philadelphia Phillies have drafted second baseman Charlie Letchas from the Toronto Leafs....The senior A softball race is apparently over....Peoples of Toronto who were leading the series 3 games to 1 have announced that they are through for the season.... That's not a very satisfactory ending to the long campaign....It all points back to the need of getting these championships decided before hockey arrives on the scene.

Sargent Gives Hockey Ruling

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2 — (CP). — A problem worrying hockey officials here — the status of junior players who since last season have joined one of the armed services—has been clarified by Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association

He has ruled that a player still eligible for junior hockey and whose services have been acquired by a military team, does not automatically become a free agent.

As long as the player remains in the same area in which he played the previous season he continues to be the property of the club with which he played prior to joining the service.

Mr. Sargent gave his ruling at a meeting of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association here during the week-end.
